"I agree to your terms. Give it to me."

The man hesitated, fumbling in his inside pocket.

"I was to get your promise in writing," he demurred.

"Give it to me, give it to me," she demanded. "I do not break my word."

He handed her the letter.

"My dearest Dorothy," she read in writing well known to her, "you may judge my exalted state of mind when you see that I dare venture on such a beginning. I have been worrying myself and other people all to no purpose. I have received a letter from Jack this morning, and so suspicious had I grown that for a few moments I suspected the writing was but an imitation of his. He is a very impulsive fellow and can think of only one thing at a time, which accounts for his success in the line of invention. He was telegraphed to that his sister was ill and left at once to see her. I had allowed my mind to become so twisted by my fears for his safety that, as I tell you, I suspected the letter to be counterfeit at first.

"I telegraphed to his estate and received a prompt reply saying that his sister was much better and that he was already on his way back and would reach me at 11 tonight. So that's what happens when a grown man gets a fit of nerves. I drew the most gloomy conclusions from the fact that I had been refused admission to the foreign office and the admiralty. Yesterday that was all explained away. The business is at last concluded, and I was shown copies of the letters which have been forwarded to my own chiefs at home. Nothing could be more satisfactory. Tomorrow Jack and I will be off to England together.

"My dearest Dorothy (second time of asking), I am not a rich man, but, then,

"Do you think it worth $10,000?"

in spite of your little fortune of Bar Harbor you are not a rich woman, so we stand on an equality in that, even though you are so much my superior in everything else. I have £500 a year, which is something less than $2,500, left me by my father. This is independent of my profession. I am very certain I will succeed in the navy now that the Russian government has sent those letters, so the moment I was assured of that I determined to write and ask you to be my wife. Will you forgive my impatience and pander to it by cabling to me at the Bluewater club, Pall Mall, the word 'Yes' or the word 'Undecided?' I shall not allow you the privilege of cabling 'No.' And please give me a chance of pleading my case in person if you use the longer word. Ah, I hear Jack's step on the stair. Very stealthily he is coming, to surprise me, but I'll surprise"—

Here the writing ended. She folded the letter and placed it in her desk, sitting down before it.

"Shall I make the check payable to you or to the society?"

"To the society, if you please, madam."

"I shall write it for double the amount asked. I also am a believer in liberty."

"Oh, madam, that is a generosity I feel we do not deserve. I should like to have given you the letter after all you have done for us, with no conditions attached."

"I am quite sure of that," said Dorothy, bending over her writing. She handed him the check, and he rose to go.

"Sit down again, if you please. I wish to talk further with you. Your people in St. Petersburg think my friends have not been sent to Siberia. Are they sure of that?"

"Well, madam, they have means of knowing those who are transported, and they are certain the two young men were not among the recent gangs sent. They suppose them to be in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul; at least, that's what they say."

"You speak as if you doubted it."

"I do doubt it."

"They have been sent to Siberia, after all?"

"Ah, madam, there are worst places than Siberia. In Siberia there is a chance. In the dreadful Trogxmondoff there is none."

"What is the Trogxmondoff?"

"A bleak rock in the Baltic, madam, the prison in which death is the only goal that releases the victim."

Dorothy rose trembling, staring at him, her lips white.

"A rock in the Baltic! Is that a prison and not a fortress, then?"

"It is both prison and fortress, madam. If Russia ever takes the risk of arresting a foreigner, it is to the Trogxmondoff he is sent. They drown the victims there—drown them in their cells. There is a spring in the rock, and through the line of cells it runs like a beautiful rivulet, but the pulling of a lever outside stops the exit of the water and drowns every prisoner within. The bodies are placed one by one on a smooth inclined chute of polished sandstone, down which this rivulet runs, so they glide out into space and drop 200 feet into the Baltic sea. No matter in what condition such a body is found or how recent may have been the execution, it is but a drowned man in the Baltic. There are no marks of bullet or strangulation, and the currents bear them swiftly away from the rock."

"How come you to know all this which seems to have been concealed from the rest of the world?"

"I know it, madam, for the best of reasons. I was sentenced this very year to Trogxmondoff. In my youth trading between Helsingfors and New York I took out naturalization papers in New York, because I was one of the crew on an American ship. When they illegally impressed me at Helsingfors and forced me to join the Russian navy, I made the best of a bad bargain and, being an expert seaman, was reasonably well treated and promoted, but at last they discovered I was in correspondence with a nihilist circle in London, and when I was arrested I demanded the rights of an American citizen. That doomed me. I was sent, without trial, to the Trogxmondoff in April of this year. Arriving there I was foolish enough to threaten and say my comrades had means of letting the United States government know and that a battleship would teach the jailers of the rock better manners.

"The cells hewn in the rock are completely dark, so I lost all count of time. You might think we would know night from day by the bringing in of our meals, but such was not the case. The jailer brought in a large loaf of black bread and said it was to serve me for four days. He placed the loaf on a ledge of rock about three feet from the floor which served as both table and bed. In excavating the cell this ledge had been left intact, with a bench of stone rising from the floor opposite. Indeed so ingenious had been the workmen who hewed out this room that they carved a rounded stone pillow at one end of the shelf.

"I do not know how many days I had been in prison when the explosion occurred. It made the whole rock quiver, and I wondered what had happened. Almost immediately afterward there seemed to be another explosion, not nearly so harsh, which I thought was perhaps an echo of the first. About an hour later my cell door was unlocked, and the jailer, with another man holding a lantern, came in. My third loaf of black bread was partly consumed, so I must have been in prison nine or ten days. The jailer took the loaf outside, and when he returned I asked him what had happened. He answered in a surly fashion that my American warship had fired at the rock and that the rock had struck back, whereupon she sailed away, crippled."

Dorothy, who had been listening intently to this discourse, here interrupted with:

"It was an English warship that fired the shell, and the Russian shot did not come within half a mile of her."

The sailor stared at her in wide eyed surprise.

"You see, I have been making inquiries," she explained. "Please go on."

"I never heard that it was an English ship. The jailer sneered at me and said he was going to send me after the American vessel, as I suppose he thought it was. I feared by his taking away of the bread that it was intended to starve me to death and was sorry I had not eaten more at my last meal. I lay down on the shelf of rock and soon fell asleep. I was awakened by the water lapping around me. The cell was intensely still. Up to this I had always enjoyed the company of a little brook that ran along the side of the cell farthest from the door. Its music had now ceased, and when I sprang up I found myself to the waist in very cold water. I guessed at once the use of the levers outside the cell in the passage which I had noticed in the light of the lantern on the day I entered the place, and I knew now why it was that the prison door was not pierced by one of those gratings which enable the jailer in the passage to look into the cell any time of night or day. Prisoners have told me that the uncertainty of an inmate who never knew when he might be spied upon added to the horror of the situation, but the watertight doors of the Trogxmondoff are free from this feature and for a very sinister reason.

GIFTS FOR AN INVALID.

Christmas Remembrances That May Be Made at Home.

Many useful Christmas gifts for invalids may be made at home. A case for the hot water bottle is one that calls for skill with crochet book and knitting needles.

Heavy fingering and bone needles will be required for this, the bag being knitted on two needles. A frill is crocheted, also of wool, and sewn around the three sides and the mouth of the case. When the water bag is inserted the top is drawn together by running a ribbon in and ont, tying the bag in place, and it goes without saying that this is much more pleasing and sightly than the usual flannel case. To match this a pretty covering for a hand warmer may be constructed on similar lines, except that both ends are drawn up and finished with tassels and loops, though one is left open to receive the warmer. Little bottles filled with hot salt, then tightly corked, are slipped in the case and the open end drawn together. When complete it is not unlike the silk crochet purse of long ago, as the hand warmer, though matching the colors of the hot water bottle case, is made of heavy silk in crochet.

Then, too, the sofa rug, that will keep slipping off, may be made to retain its position by having an under portion—say half the length of the rug—into which the feet are slipped, thus having it up to the knees both over and under the legs. From the knees upward the rug may be drawn up or thrown back, as preferred, because this part is single.

Every one knows how pillows are apt to slip, whether the patient is lying or sitting in bed, and so a holder is quickly and simply made by sewing to a strong pretty ribbon stocking suspender clasps, which will grip the pillow and hold it in place when the invalid wishes to sit up for a few minutes. Leaning back again, she will find it in exactly the same place. A thoughtful gift would be a strip of white linen embroidered, bound and the ends finished with the clasps.

Tobacco Pouches Always Acceptable.

Tobacco pouches are always acceptable gifts for men, and stunning ones may be made from suede. A pretty pouch in rich brown or dark green, lined with a maroon silk, would be attractive when the edges are pinked and a drawstring of heavy silk with long tassels runs in near the top. It's not the kid, the lining or the cord that makes these bags so unusual, for without the monogram or crest done in gilt thread or in bright colored silks the pouches, aside from being handmade, would be quite the same as those bought in the shops, but with an attractive emblem or two or three initials prettily embroidered in one corner the pouches are presents any man, no matter how surfeited with gifts, would be glad to receive.

Knitted or crocheted ties, though not a novelty, will be desirable gifts, for they are serviceable and, being made by hand, are a valuable accessory to any wardrobe. In plain green, dark cardinal or made of a combination of two tone effects or of two strongly contrasting colors, such as black and red or orange and blue, they are striking contrasts as neckwear.

HOMEMADE PRESENTS

Dainty Aprons Make Charming And Inexpensive Gifts.

MATERIALS THAT ARE USED.

Dimity, Lawn, Flowered Fabrics in Silk and Muslin, Are All Suitable and Attractive For This Purpose—Trimmings of Hand Embroidery.

WHEN distracted over what to make for Christmas gifts, did you ever think of a dainty apron? Such a present has much to recommend it—novelty, charm, inexpensiveness and, better yet, downright usefulness. The materials are quite inexpensive—sheer dimities or lawn, flowered muslin and the soft French handkerchief linen. These are combined with lace insertions, embroidery insertions and edgings or even with bottonholed scallops and embroidered designs.

A very fascinating apron is of sheer blue dimity or lawn, with the front breadths tucked and sharply pointed and two pointed revers turned back on broad shoulder straps for the bib. This is trimmed with valenciennes lace insertion about an inch wide and lace edging to match. An extra fluffiness is given by a ruffle of the material outlining the bottom and finished with a lace edge.

The dusting apron may be carried out either in white or colored handkerchief linen, trimmed with insertion and edging of embroidery. The panel arrangement of the insertion on the front gore of the apron and outlining the sloping tucks at the bottom just above the ruffle of the material is most effective. The suspender shaped bib, with crosspiece, is made entirely of the embroidery and edging.

Much more inexpensive and even more charming would be a knitting apron of pale pink handkerchief linen. This requires nothing but a few yards of the material and some white mercerized cotton. The bottom of the apron and the circular collar of the bib are finished in scalloped points, done in buttonhole stitch, with a very simple conventional design in flowered dots embroidered above it. A tiny frill of the material is set on round the scallops. Such an apron is lovely in pale blue or white.

Extremely Frenchy is an apron of gay flowered muslin trimmed with a cluny lace insertion in coffee color and rosette bows of a soft narrow ribbon. The ruffles are made of the flowered material.

Sachets, really pretty ones, that would please the most fastidious, may be fashioned from a yard of ribbon if it is not more than four inches in width. Where wider ribbon is liked the length should be proportionately increased. Tie in an ordinary bow-knot. See that the knot is tight, so that the loops have the proper "perky" air. Place sachet powder between two layers of thin cotton sheeting, cutting this padding just a trifle narrower than the ribbon loops, then with fine silk that matches the ribbon overhand the edges of the loops, so that they form bags to hold the perfumed cotton. Fringe or trim the ends of the bow and place in a dainty holly decorated box.

Baby Laugh

It belongs to health for a baby to eat and sleep, to laugh and grow fat.

But fat comes first; don't ask a scrawny baby to laugh; why, even his smile is pitiful! Fat comes first.

The way to be fat is the way to be healthy.

PRACTICAL PRESENTS.

Shirt Waist Protector, Collar and Cuffs and Penwiper.

Five inexpensive Christmas gifts that may be made at home are shown in the illustrations. They are particularly suitable for girls. No. 1 is a heart shaped sachet of pale blue china silk, covered with fine linen, on which are embroidered a spray of flowers and French knots. The edge may be finished with a frill of the linen or val edging. A lace bow or ribbon is put at the top. A pretty idea would be to embroider on the linen the flower of the kind of perfume used.

No. 2 is a collar and cuff set of heavy linen intended to be worn with a coat. The shape of the cuffs and collar can be marked on the linen after making an outline with a lead pencil. The scallops may be marked with a half dollar and the dots with the end of a pencil. The scallops are done in buttonhole stitch and the dots in satin stitch. Launder the linen before cutting.

No. 3 is something entirely new, and a woman or girl will find it very useful to protect the front of white shirt waists. It is made of plain white, either linen or muslin. At the waist it is slightly gathered and sewed to an inch wide piece of beading, through which a yard and a quarter of ribbon is run. The edges are featherstitched. The tabs on either side at the top may be pinned to the waist or finished with ribbon, which goes over the shoulders and comes down and is fastened to the ribbon at the waist about one inch either side of the center of the back.

No. 4 is a penwiper made from pieces of chamois cut in an irregular shape at the edge. A clover leaf is either painted or embroidered in pretty shades of green on a piece of dark leather used for the top. The leather may be bought at any department store.

No. 5 is a traveling case made from a strip of pretty flowered cretonne and interlined with rubber sheeting. The pockets, which are for the brush, comb, toothbrush, soap and sponge, are made of the sheeting and stitched on. The edges are bound with ribbon. The case rolls and is kept in place by tying it with the ribbon shown at the pointed end.

Puff Bags.

Little lace edged handkerchiefs are utilized for making bags into which the powder puff can be conveniently slipped and used so that no one but the woman who knows the trick would detect it.

Remembrances For the Holiday Time

TOY poodles, knitted or crocheted of white or fancy colored woolen yarns, are a novelty in Christmas gifts that will delight young infants and because of their oddity will interest even grownups, for, though they were originally intended as playthings for young children, they have become quite a fad with smart women, who are making them to use on their dressing tables either as ornaments or for pincushions.

These dogs are equally attractive to babies and older persons because of their shagginess, a feature in knitted and crocheted animals not successfully produced before. And, incidentally, they are really excellent reproductions of Skye terriers and the griffons, for the wool made in loops of yarn is a decidedly good imitation of the curly coats of these dogs.

The Skye terriers in white or a grayish blue yarn are both effective and quite as soft and fluffy as the real pets, for like the living dogs their entire bodies are covered with loops of yarn that hang down from long ears and dangle about their eyes. The noses and mouths of these dogs are made of black yarn and the eyes of large shoe buttons, giving quite a natural and expressive look to the cunning faces. With large pink buttons tied in bows about these little dogs' necks they are decorative enough to grace any dainty boudoir and are practical for use as toys for small youngsters to throw around a nursery.

Unlike the griffons, these Skyes have only two feet—front ones—that are shaggy like the rest of their bodies. They are made in a lying position so that hind legs are not necessary. The claws of the feet are outlined with stitching of black yarn.

The griffons are made on larger lines than the Skyes and are most effective, because the heads and front parts of the bodies are shaggy and in sharp contrast to the plain crocheted or knitted hind portions, so fashioned to look as if the hair had been clipped. The tail is of course curly, like the head and front legs. The claws on the four feet are brought out by dark lines of gray wool, which make the toes distinctive. The eyes are large shoe buttons and the noses and mouths of black yarn, made in the same way as the features of the Skyes. The legs are short, but are stiff and strong enough to support the weight of the dog's body and keep it in an upright standing attitude.

As toys these poodles are especially desirable, because they are made of cotton and wool and are so soft that a child cannot be hurt by playing with them, even if hit. Then, too, they cannot be easily torn and when dirty may be washed the same as any woolen cloth.

The charming waste paper basket shown in the design is quite within the capabilities of every girl to make. It is composed of six pieces of cardboard cut to shape and lined with colored sateen, which also covers the cardboard forming the bottom. The pieces are covered on the outside with flowered material in a stripe design, and care must be taken when cutting to make the stripes meet at each piece when it is joined to its fellow. The ends are firmly sewn to the cardboard bottom, and the sides can either be joined or else merely connected by ribbon bows passed through stiletto pierced holes in the cardboard, and if the ribbon is tightly tied and the holes evenly pierced there will be no danger of the contents of the basket falling out.

ribbon embroidery flowers are comparatively new this season and will be most acceptable gifts, for they may be used with appropriateness on either a dressing table or in a sitting room or parlor. Though these frames, finished with an edging of white or gilt wood, are attractive, a piece of bright gold galloon put around the glass makes the whole more original and decorative.

Cure That Cough!

YOU CAN DO IT BY USING

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

The Most Perfect Throat and Lung Healer in the World.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup gives prompt relief from that choked up, stuffed up feeling which is so distressing, it loosens the phlegm, checks the rasping and useless cough, and heals and soothes the irritated breathing organs. It is a pleasant preparation to take and is therefore specially adapted to the coughs and colds of children and those who dislike nauseous mixtures.

This is no vain boast, but a fact that can be backed by unimpeachable testimony. One 25 cent bottle, indeed, a trial dose, will prove its merits.

Mr. Frank K. Purdie, Brandon, Man., writes: "I have used your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for some years and have always found it a sure remedy for all colds, coughs, sore throat, hoarseness, etc. I cannot too highly recommend it to anyone suffering from any effect of cold."

UNITY NEARLY ACCOMPLISHED.

Bringing Irish Nationalist Party Under One Flag.

London, Nov. 26.—Nationalist unity appears to be on the eve of accomplishment. Communications have been passing between the leaders of the party, and William O'Brien, member of Parliament for Cork, speaking at Ballycullan, Wexford, yesterday, expressed the belief that all Nationalist representatives soon would be brought under the same flag.

It is understood that the terms of the proposed agreement are that the chief work of the coming session of Parliament should be Chief Secretary Birrell's new university bill, that the agrarian agitation in Ireland should be to a great extent suspended, and the efforts of the party devoted to securing an amendment to the Land Acts through further conferences with the landlords, while preparations should be made to raise the home rule question on Gladstonian lines at the next general election.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Farmer Attacked by Thieves—Wounds One of His Assailants.

Buffalo, Nov. 26.—The Buffalo News last night published a despatch from Bridgeburg, Ont., which says:

"While James Roberts, who works on the farm of Arnold Zabbits, near this town, was driving home Sunday night from Stevensville, Ont., he was held up by three men, who ordered him to hold up his hands and deliver his money.

"Roberts fired at the men and wounded one of them. They thereupon fired at him and hit him in the arm. He whipped up his horses and escaped.

"Roberts had met the midnight express on the Michigan Central at Streetsville and had received a package containing a large sum of money. This package he had deposited in the Sterling Bank in the village for safekeeping."

FONTANET DISASTER.

Was Utter Disregard of Life In Factory, Says Coroner.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 26.—Coroner L. H. Leavitt yesterday filed his verdict in the case of the Fontanet powder mill explosion, in which 27 lives were lost and more than 100 persons injured. In his findings the coroner says:

"This factory was operated with utter lack of regard for human life or injury to others. The magazine was located at such a short distance from all the units of the factory that it made each and every man employed at the mercy of any other employe, and where an act of ignorance or negligence of any could kill or injure all."

Found Captain's Cap.

St. Catharines, Nov. 26.—After having spent the entire day at the spot where the tug Escort went to the bottom of Lake Ontario, the tug Alert returned to Port Dalhousie harbor about 7 o'clock last night, bringing with it the cap worn by Captain Harry Dunlop at the time of the collision.

It is taken as evidence of the fact that he must have escaped from the pilot-house and was drowned outside the Escort. The work of searching for the bodies and endeavors to raise the sunken tug will begin in earnest by the Carters' wrecking outfit to-day.

The searchers report that a floating buoy was found in but 85 feet of water, some six miles from Port Dalhousie harbor, and a few miles from shore.

Irish M. P. Robbed.

Cincinnati, Nov. 26.—John McKean, Monaghan County, Ireland, member of the British House of Commons, was shown a "river regulator," a device for "regulating currents" of the Ohio River, in the basement of the union depot here.

At the bottom of the stairs the "inventors" grabbed him by the collar, pushed him into a corner, robbed him of a thick wad of five-pound Bank of England notes and then locked him in.

Nobel Prize Winners.

Stockholm, Nov. 26.—The next Nobel prize for chemistry will be awarded to Sir William Crookes of London.

Rudyard Kipling has been designated for the literary prize.

Sir William Crookes was born in 1832. He discovered Thadium, an element, in 1861, and invented the radiometer in 1874. He was knighted in 1898, and has been closely identified with many of the most important advances in science.

Looted Summer Lodge.

Brockville, Nov. 26.—Investigation shows that the summer lodge, an American island, opposite Brockville, has been plundered since the close of the season by river pirates and everything of value was taken. The loss is estimated at $1,000.

Cuba's Population.

Havana, Nov. 26.—An estimate by one of the most accomplished statisticians in the service of the Provincial Government places the population of Cuba at two millions, of which about 400,000 are foreigners not entitled to the franchise.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—(Special.)—The export live stock season will be brought to a close to-morrow with sailing of the SS. Montezuma for London with 854 cattle and 910 sheep. The exports for November were 11,008 cattle and 4234 sheep, making a total for the season of 1907 of 96,977 cattle, 11,585 sheep, as compared with 138,169 cattle and 10,791 sheep for 1906. At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 23 were 4508 cattle, 4471 sheep and lambs, 2304 hogs and 397 calves, while the offerings for local consumption this morning were 1400 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1900 hogs and 200 calves. There were no new developments in the cattle situation, except that the feeling was somewhat better, owing to the fact that supplis were fully 400 head smaller than a week ago, and this, coupled with more seasonable weather, induced buyers to operate more freely, and an active trade was done, but there was no improvement in prices or in the quality of the stock, the bulk of it being rough. Choice beeves continue to be scarce, while good were none too plentiful, but the supply of lower grades was fully up to the average, and on the whole there was ample to fill all requirements. The demand was good from local and outside buyers, but there was no business done for export account, as the season for shipping from this port is practically over, there being only one more vessel to sail with live stock. Cables from Liverpool on Saturday reported the market firm, with prospects brighter. Choice beeves were quoted at 4¾c, while good stock sold at 4½c to 4¼c; fair, at 3½c to 4c; common, at 2½c to 3c, and inferior at 1½c to 2c per lb. The demand from packers for canners was good, and sales were made at 45c to 90c per cwt. Owing to the continued large supplies of sheep and lambs coming forward, an easy feeling prevails in the market, but there has been no further change in prices since this day week. The export demand for sheep is quieter, as the shipping season from this port is now practically over, and foreign advices show little improvement. Choice lots of sheep sold at 4c; good, at 3½c to 3¾c, and culls, at 2c per lb. The local demand for lambs continues good, and an active trade was done at 5½c to 6c per lb. Receipts of calves are decreasing, but considering the period of the year they are still larger than in former years, for which the demand is good and sales of choice stock were made at $12 to $15; good, at $8 to $10; fair, at $5 to $7, and common at $3 to $4 each. A weak feeling has developed in the market for hogs since this day week, and prices have declined 25c to 37½c per cwt. This is due principally to the continued discouraging and weak advices coming from European sources, on Canadian bacon cuttings on Saturday from Liverpool, London and Bristol, noting a decline in prices of 3d to 6d per cwt., as compared with the previous one. Receipts of hogs to-day were 600 head larger than a week ago, but the bulk of the supply was contracted for in the west by some packers at higher prices than those ruling here. Sales of selected lots on spot were made at $6 to $6.12½ per cwt., weighed off cars.

Brockville, Nov. 26.—A young Austrian named Vosujak, in opposition to the protests of his fellows, touched a live wire which had fallen to the ground in a tearing wind at Hailerboro, and was instantly killed.

His curiosity was aroused at seeing the wire spitting fire. He was about 25 years of age, unmarried and had been in this country a short time.

Sailor's Tragic Delusion.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—Mike McMann, aged 25, a deckhand, on the freighter Cheming, jumped overboard Sunday night. McMann was laboring under the delusion that his companions on the boat intended killing him, and had been bound in his bunk, and he succeeded in freeing himself.

Drug Clerk Acquitted.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—The Ontario Medical Council failed to convict Frank Richardson, a drug clerk, of a breach of the Medical Act in having prescribed for a customer. George Champion said he had gone to Richardson complaining of an abscess and he had been given a stock preparation. On the second visit he had said he was poulticing and Richardson told him to continue doing so. Champion had gone to the druggist for the same medicine that had been given a friend with the same complaint.

"The fact of his asking for the same kind of medicine the other man had makes it no breach of the act," said the magistrate.

New Tariff In Effect.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 26.—A telegram received yesterday by the freight department of the C. P. R. from the Railway Commission in Ottawa, announces that the new freight tariff, which take effect to-day, notwithstanding the fact that an order was formerly given postponing the date upon which the new schedule was to become operative.

Gen. Colville Killed.

London, Nov. 26.—Gen. Sir Henry Edward Colville came to his death Sunday as a result of an automobile collision with his old friend and battlefield comrade, Gen. Sir Henry Seymour Rawlinson.

Gen. Colville was born in 1852. He was one of the generals recalled from South Africa during the Boer war.

Death Before Dishonor.

New York, Nov. 26.—Louis Straus, senior member of the firm of Louis Straus & Co., importers, took his life Sunday night by swallowing poison in the presence of central office detectives who had come to his home to arrest him. The charge is said to have grown out of the disposition of $200,000 of the firm's money.

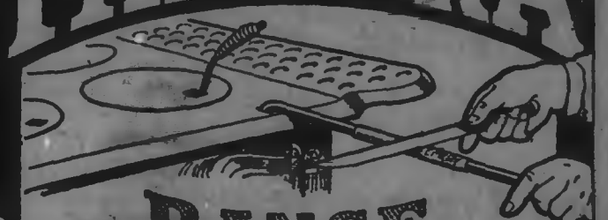
PANDORA RANGE



A convenience much appreciated by every owner of a Pandora is the towel rod attached to the range.

As one-third of the rod is made of emery, it makes a splendid knife sharpener, too.

It's always there handy for you. You need waste no time hunting around for the easily misplaced "steel." Bright idea, eh?

An accurate thermometer is a reliable guide to successful baking, while an inaccurate one is a "cheat" of the worst kind.

Every Pandora thermometer is carefully adjusted and undergoes a practical test by heat—is proven correct before being sent out.

The figures, which show the required degree of heat necessary for the successful baking of bread, cakes, pies, etc., are plainly inscribed in black on a white enamel surface, so that they are easily readable, even when the day is dull.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora, write direct for free booklet.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1907 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

FIRE BUGS TOOK DIRE REVENGE

Tenement House Holocaust the Work of Incendiaries.

THIRTEEN BURNED TO DEATH

Seven Children Among the Victims—Many Others Injured—Bodies Found Piled Together at Top of House—Mother Perished Trying to Save Her Babe—Thought to Be Work of Black Hand.

New York, Nov. 26.—Thirteen persons lost their lives and several others were injured early yesterday in a tenement house fire at 109th street and Second avenue. All the dead were Italians. Seven of the thirteen were children. The bodies were found huddled together in rooms on the top floor of the four-storey building where the terror-stricken people had been driven by the flames which rushed up from the lower floors. They had been caught and swept down to death before they succeeded in reaching windows which led to the fire escapes and safety. Some had been enveloped in the flames and burned alive. Others, overcome by smoke, were spared the agonies of death in the flames.

That the fatal fire was the work of incendiaries who sought revenge is the opinion of the police and firemen who made the first hasty examination. Three weeks ago, three Italians were caught in the act of attempting to rob a safe in the saloon of Guiseppe Cudano on the ground floor.

The safe contained over $3,000, which the saloonkeeper and friends had withdrawn from banks during the money panic. The would-be robbers were arrested and are now awaiting trial. The fire of yesterday started in Cudano's saloon, and the police believe that it may have been the work of friends of the prisoners who took this means of squaring the account with the saloonkeeper.

So quickly did the flames spread that almost before the firemen arrived the whole building was a furnace, and it was impossible for anyone to enter. Even the cries of the agonized women and children were drowned by the roar and crackle of the flames, the hissing engines and the frantic crowd which pressed as closely as possible to the fire lines. Not a single person was seen to appear at any of the windows of the blazing building with the exception of those on the second floor, from which several persons reached the fire escape and were rescued. The reason for this was explained when after the flames had been partially checked, firemen fought their way through the smoke to the upper floors.

There they came upon piles of dead where they had fallen victims to the rush of flames and smoke, even before they had a chance to attempt to save themselves. In one of the heaps the fireman found a woman who had made one last desperate effort to save the life of her baby, even when she knew that she herself was doomed to a horrible death. She had folded her arms tightly around the little one, and then huddled down close to the floor, her own body protecting that of her child. The mother's body was badly-burned. That of the child bore scarcely a mark, but it was dead from suffocation. On every side of the mother and child lay the bodies of other victims.

Portuguese Peaceful.

Paris, Nov. 26.—A despatch received here yesterday from Lisbon, believed to emanate from the Government is as follows:

"The false news regarding the internal situation of Portugal that has been circulated recently, especially in Spain, has caused general astonishment in Lisbon. There are no signs of agitation here. Everybody in Portugal, from the members of the royal family down to the humblest peasant, is leading a normal life.

A FIERCE ATTACK BY ARABS

Ten Thousand Tribesmen Swoop Down on French Camp.

TWELVE THOUSAND KILLED

Fought Desperately With Utter Disregard of Life—Charged French Infantry With Fanatical Persistence—Soldiers In Perilous Position—Arabs Finally Routed With Shells—Fighting Resumed.

Lalla, Maghnia, Algeria, Nov. 26.—Ten thousand of the fiercest Benis Nessen tribesmen swooped down on the French camp on Sunday and were beaten off with a loss of 1,200 killed. The fighting continued on the part of the tribesmen apparently with total disregard for their lives.

At one time the French infantry were in danger of being surrounded, but they finally disengaged themselves from their perilous position by a most brilliant charge of the spahis. The rout of the Arabs was completed by vigorous shelling by the artillery. The French loss was eight killed.

The Arabs were not discouraged by this severe repulse but reformed their forces and in addition directed their efforts to rousing other tribes. The fighting was resumed yesterday and the booming of cannon could be heard throughout the afternoon. The results of the battle now on are unknown at present.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC.

Schools and Churches Closed at Goderich—Many Mild Cases.

Goderich, Nov. 26.—Smallpox is epidemic here and between 40 and 50 cases have been quarantined.

The schools have been closed and a general vaccination of citizens and children has been ordered.

The churches had no services on Sunday on account of the outbreak. Service was held in the Roman Catholic Church, but an announcement was made that no further services would be held until the spread of the disease had been checked.

Many cases in rural portions are reported.

Dr. Charles A. Hodgetts of the Provincial Health Department has arrived here and is doing all that can be done with the staff of local doctors. Most of the cases are being treated in private residences. The majority of them are very mild.

La Rose Shipped to Denver.

Cobalt, Nov. 26.—A local character, Lachlan Cameron, commonly called "Lottie," was tried by Magistrate Brown yesterday on two charges, one of passing worthless checks and the other of vagrancy. The crown alleges that he was in the habit of getting men drunk who had money and then getting them to sign checks. The prisoner was acquitted on the first charge and the charge of vagrancy was withheld on the accused promising to leave the district. Cobalt could well dispense with several men, both young and old, who are living by their wits.

Last week's shipments amounted to over 598 tons. La Rose shipped all but 31 tons, sent by the Temiskaming mine to Perth Amboy. La Rose sent 500 tons to Denver.

Increased Grain Movement.

Fort William, Nov. 26.—Over a million bushels of grain was shipped out from Fort William elevators last week, which is the largest amount yet shipped in any week this fall.

The elevators are running night and day, and on Sundays.

Train Plunged Over Bridge.

Barcelona, Nov. 26.—An express train from Valencia with many passengers on board fell from a bridge into the water below, on the outskirts of this city. Twelve persons were killed and 23 injured.

GEORGE TAYLOR NOT HEARD

Conservative Whip Called, But Evidence Not Admissible.

LONDON ELECTION TRIAL

Sifton Takes Stand and Tells Story of Dealings With O'Gorman—Says Collins' Evidence as to Ballot-Folding Is Not True—Why He Came Back—Tells of Money Received to Buy Votes.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—Edgar I. Sifton, the young electrical engineer who skipped out of London to avoid arrest for conspiracy in the London case, took the witness box at the investigation yesterday and told briefly of his three months' stay on the other side.

He told of several visits made by O'Gorman to Buffalo to see him; of his first trying to get him to come back and perjure himself, by swearing that he (O'Gorman) had not given him money to buy votes with, and, when this was useless, promising that he, Reid and Duffield would put through a deal to take over his interests and keep him away. When there was nothing doing and Sifton had to come back, he sent his lawyer, Winnett, of London, to Toronto to make arrangements. An affidavit followed and Sifton was put on the list of crown witnesses.

Sifton told of getting $100 from Reid during the Beck-Rumble election, and of getting between $700 and $800 from O'Gorman in the Hyman-Gray election. He admitted opening a ballot box and said that it was done on the advice of Reid, in order to check up the purchaseable voters who had been bought up in London West.

After the noon adjournment Jerry Collins was recalled and examined by Assistant Defence Counsel McEvoy. In the general election he had nothing to do with O'Gorman at all, in fact, that defendant did not figure, in 1904.

Edgar I. Sifton was sworn. Led by Mr. Staunton he said that he took a slight interest in the general election, but a big interest in the Beck-Rumble election.

Did you get any money?

Yes. I got $200 at the start, but I could not swear where I got it.

How much money did you get, all told?

In the neighborhood of $400.

The witness identified a list of bribed voters, which Collins had turned in, as a list of men he arranged to buy. The writing was his.

Mr. Staunton was anxious to learn where the first $200 came from, but the witness could not locate it.

What occurred after the Beck-Rumble election?

On the evening of the election I was at the committee room when Serviss told me that we could get Spence's ballot box if he got $10. I had no money and I enquired whether money should be spent for that purpose.

Witness told of discussions with various people about folding ballots. He was present when O'Gorman demonstrated these ideas, although he could not recollect any definite meeting.

"Were you present at a meeting Saturday night before the election?"

"I don't remember."

"Who did you discuss the folding game with?

"Lewis, O'Gorman, Miln, and Collins."

"Did any one ever show you about the blotting paper?"

"Yes, I remember the scheme. I think O'Gorman sprung that one."

Witness then told of his leaving London and going to Buffalo. He heard that he was wanted as a crown witness. Shortly afterwards O'Gorman came to see him and wanted to know what his possible statement would be. When witness told O'Gorman that he would tell the truth O'Gorman commenced to figure to keep him out of the country.

"He wanted me to come back and perjure myself, but I refused."

"Were there any arrangements made concerning your staying out of the country?"

"Yes, I said that if I was to stay away I would have to have a financial arrangement of my business in London, the Power Equipment Co. and the Electrical Construction Co. This was gone into and the promise was made that there would be a deal put through to take care of these. But there was nothing doing. Although Mr. McEvoy had the figures on the Power Equipment Co.

Cross-examined by Mr. McEvoy witness said that the attempted sale of the Power Equipment Co. had been going on long before this investigation commenced. Mr. Duffield or Mr. McEvoy knew nothing of any deal as far as the Buffalo transactions were concerned.

To Mr. Johnston witness said that Collins' story that O'Gorman and he were practicing the folding of the ballot gag the Saturday night before the bye-election was not true.

At the morning session, George Taylor, M. P., Conservative whip, was called to tell what he knew of the Brockville elections. Mr. Johnston objected to his evidence, and was upheld by Judge Winchester.

Brock Cowan, James Robertson, C. C. Tyman and Antoine Lindley, deputies in the Comstock-White election in Brockville, told of being instructed on how to switch ballots, but by whom they did not know.

Roderick Young, David Gliddon and J. H. Currie gave similar testimony as regards the Holmes-McLean election at Goderich.

Moose Westbrook of Brantford saw O'Gorman in the Liberal committee rooms at Brantford during the Heyd-Henry election. Mr. Johnston tried to shake his recollection of O'Gorman's, but Moose stuck to his story. He reiterated the evidence given at the Police Court implicating O'Meara as a personator at the same election.

John T. Wallis, police sergeant of Brantford, corroborated the evidence of the last witness, and identified O'Gorman as a visitor at election times.

Even.

"Has he an even disposition?"

"Yes—ugly all the time."

FIRST TANK SHIP SAILS.

Oil For Supply of Britain's Fleet of Mosquitoes.

London, Nov. 26.—The sailing of the Admiralty owned tank steamer Petroleum, for Port Arthur, Texas, marks a new departure in the British navy, as it is the first time that the Admiralty has tried the experiment of importing a cargo of oil in its own ships. It is anticipated that petroleum is only the forerunner of a small fleet of Admiralty owned tank ships, which will be continually employed in meeting the increasing requirements of the British navy for oil as a fuel.

Oil is ousting coal from the furnaces of the British mosquito fleet, and a plan to dot the coastline of the British Isles with oil depots, where torpedo boats may replenish their tanks, has been decided upon. A fleet of naval tank steamers which will bring the fuel direct from the oil shipping ports is considered to be the most cheap and most satisfactory method of keeping these depots supplied.

Believes Mrs. Bradley Crazy.

Washington, Nov. 26.—That Mrs. Annie M. Bradley was insane at the time she shot former Senator Arthur Brown of Utah, was the opinion of Dr. W. M. Barton of the medical department of Georgetown University, and a specialist in nervous diseases, expressed at the trial yesterday.

Dr. Barton's testimony followed the reading to him of a hypothetical question of 13,000 words, covering the history of Mrs. Bradley's relations with Senator Brown from the day she met him to the day of the tragedy.

Dr. Barton diagnosed Mrs. Bradley's ailment as being puerpural insanity. In explaining why he looked upon her as an abnormal woman, he said she was interested in things that do not usually attract women and instanced the fact that she was secretary of a political club as an evidence of her abnormality.

Explosion In Station.

St. Catharines, Nov. 26.—The baggage-room of the G. T. R. station was wrecked by an explosion which occurred about 4.30 yesterday morning.

The boiler used for heating the building blew up, the top tank or boiler used for holding the hot water striking the high ceiling and badly wrecking the roof.

Did Not Get Judgeship.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 26.—William Trant, the well-known Liberal magistrate and party worker, will take the field against J. G. Turriff, Government nominee for Assiniboia, at the next Dominion elections. He was promised a judgeship and passed over. The announcement of his candidature is made on Mr. Trant's own authority.

Conscription For U. S.?

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—The difficulty of securing recruits for the United States army; the prevalence of desertion; and an unwelcome suggestion that the dreaded European system of conscription, or compulsory military service, may become necessary, are the features of the annual report of Adjutant-General Ainsworth.

THE REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ARE AT VARIANCE OVER FINANCE POLICY

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.It can be stated authoritatively that the Republican leaders in Congress have no intention of permitting any action by Congress which would seem to imply criticism of the Administration's financial policy. The Democrats will attempt it but will be voted down. At the same time the Administration will be advised by the leaders in Congress to put out just as small a sum of the three per cent. certificates as it can and to use as few Panama bonds as possible.

NEW SHELTER ON HILLIARD PROPERTY WAS OPENED TO CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

Fruit of The Efforts of The Officers Has Been Realized—Spacious Building Will be Entirely Opened In Spring—Moved in Yesterday

ONLY ONE CHILD NOW

Yesterday marked the beginning of a new era in the history of the Children's Aid Society. After almost being compelled to find another location for their Shelter, the officers with commendable enterprise began to look around for new quarters, and the result was that on Monday the caretaker, Mr. Wm. Henry, and his wife, moved into the western half of the house on the Hilliard property in the northern outskirts of the city. At present the eastern part of the house is occupied, but only until the spring, when the Society will take possession of the whole building.

When it was decided at the last meeting of the officers and board of management to find new quarters, preferably out of the city, someone suggested the Hilliard property. The Council agreed to give them the use of it for a term of years provided the society should make certain improvements. This was accepted and the work of procedure has been steadily advanced.

The general opinion is that the Hilliard property is a desirable location for the Shelter, but some have thought differently. One man said that it was too near the river; another that it was too far from the city, and so on, but these gentlemen who have looked into the matter are confident that the place is healthy and as suitable as could be chosen.

Only One Child

Mr. and Mrs. Henry have only one child in charge at present. The building is a spacious one and will comfortably accommodate more than the Charlotte street Shelter. The ground that is with the building may be used to keep the small boys busy and it may be that the Shelter will be used for incorrigible children. There was some talk about this, but nothing definite has been considered.

The officers of the Children's Aid Society deserve great praise for the work they have done. Mr. E. L. Goodwill, the secretary, has been untiring in his efforts to secure a good building, and it is hoped that his expectations will be realized and the new Shelter be without any drawback.

ROUSING RECEPTION TO PETERBOROUGH'S WALKING WONDER

ALD. PHELAN,
Chairman of the Reception Committee of the City Council

POPULAR YOUNG MAN PASSES AWAY

Death of Stanley Giroux, At Ten Minutes To Seven O'clock This Morning

TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF AGE

The death of G. Stanley Giroux this morning removed one of Peterborough's most promising young men. Born in the city and educated in the Separate school, Collegiate Institute and Business College, he was intellectually fitted to take his place in the world, and make a success of the work which he had undertaken.

Having lived in the city and grown up with the boys, Stanley was widely known and was a general favourite. At school he had no difficulty in learning, being naturally talented for the different subjects which constituted the course he was studying. With the teachers he was always on good terms as he seldom, or ever, gave them any trouble. He entered the Collegiate, and under the principalship of Mr. C. Fessenden, made rapid advancement through all the forms.

On completing his studies in that institution he decided to go into business and prepared himself by a course at the Business College under Mr. Pringle. When finished he entered the office of the Quaker Oats Company and industriously applied himself to the interests of that company. Last January he was compelled to cease work his sight failing him, and he underwent a treatment which was beginning to be successful.

However, another illness affected him, and slowly, but surely, it proved fatal, in spite of medical efforts.

Stanley was 21 years of age and the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Giroux, Stewart street. Besides his grieved parents, the following brothers and sisters survive him:—Omer, of the Bank of Ottawa staff, Tweed; Leonard, of the Royal Bank, Peterborough; Cyril, Herman and Bertie; the sisters are Bernice, Blanid and Florence.

As in his studies, so in athletics, the deceased was popular and entered whole-heartily into almost every line of sport. His forte was rugby, and at outside wing was a player of great promise. He starred with the Rough Riders in the famous City League several years ago, and a year ago played the same position with the Quaker Rugby Club. Although his absence from public life has been noticed of late, the seriousness of his illness was not known, and news of his death was learned with surprise and regret.

The funeral will take place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 306 Stewart street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

THE CITY WAS PAINTED RED LAST NIGHT IN HONOUR OF THE PEDESTRIAN PAINTER

Dave Hartley's Home-coming Was Marked by a Monster Reception —Thousands of People Took Part in Demonstration

WILD ENTHUSIASM SHOWN

Imposing Procession Took Place Followed by Speeches at Central Park — A Grand Tribute To Plucky Athlete

To few men comes the honour that was paid David Hartley, Peterborough's great walker, late night when he returned from Toronto with Jimmie Reynolds' scalp dangling from his belt. The reception from the viewpoint of spontaneous enthusiasm on the part of the citizens of Peterborough as a unit has never been equalled in this city. Even the wild enthusiasm which greeted the Lockey team on its return from Goderich and the excitement of the relief of Mafeking on the other stirring incidents in the South African war were surpassed. It is safe to say that the citizens of Peterborough never turnout in such numbers on a previous occasion to do honour to one of their number. The city simply went wild with excitement and enthusiasm, and everyone entered into the spirit of the moment, forgetting everything but the desire to honour one who had done so much to advertise Peterborough. The arrangements were made in a very short time; but few people knew that Hartley was coming home last night until the evening papers announced that fact, but they answered the call to arms in a manner that indicated that local men, and women too, for the ladies were prominent throughout, are not lacking in appreciation of good work on the part of one of their fellow citizens, nor in the spirit which gives outward expression to that appreciation. It was a grand and fitting tribute to as plucky and clever an athlete as ever represented Peterborough at home or abroad, and must have been very gratifying to the recipient in view of the cold reception he was given by the Toronto crowd. Dave Hartley was the uncrowned king of Peterborough, and if a ballot expressed a wish for the city the crowd would have handed it over to him if it had been possible.

Carried out Without a Hitch

As announced in last evening's Examiner, the Reception Committee of the City Council met yesterday and showed the proper spirit by taking in charge the reception and making arrangements for the demonstration. The arrangements were carried out without a hitch, and aided by the co-operated efforts of the citizens generally made the affair a grand success that will advertise to the outside world that Peterborough is not slow to show its appreciation of a praiseworthy feat on the part of a citizen of this city. Hartley arrived home on the 7.47 C.P.R. train, accompanied only by his trainer, Charlie Stevens, and long before that time the crowd had begun to congregate at the station. The 57th Band in full strength led a procession consisting of the Council and the fire brigade down to the station a few minutes before the arrival of the train, and thousands of people joined in the the parade to swell the crowd at the station to one of monster proportions. Before the train pulled in the station platform was filled up with a swaying, surging sea of humanity that overflowed on to the tracks and to the square at the rear. Many climbed on to the tops of the freight cars on the sidings and watched from there the arrival of the hero. The small boy was there, of course, and it is a wonder that some of them were not trampled under foot in the terrific jam around the station. On very few occasions in the history of Peterborough has such a crowd congregated there, and the enthusiasm knew no bounds.

Wild Scene of Enthusiasm

The scene as the train pulled in will not soon be forgotten by those who were on hand. As the locomotive came to a stop the band struck up a lively air, and cheer upon cheer came from the throng, while Roman candles and sky rockets pierced the night air. As Hartley alighted from the train there were cries of "Here he is," and before the bewildered walker could realize what the noise meant he was picked up on to the shoulders of some of his enthusiastic friends and carried triumphantly to the gaily decorated cab that was waiting for him at the rear of the station. So dense was the crowd that it required the services of two policemen to open a way through the cheering multitude that was press-

FAMINE HANGS OVER ASIA MINOR

Due to Failure of the Crops—Barley Not Allowed to be Exported

Special wire to J. R. Heintz & Co.

Constantinople, Nov. 26. — A famine threatens the greater portion of Asia Minor, owing to the failure of the crops, and the greatest distress prevails. The Sultan has issued orders forbidding the export of barley, of which large amounts are generally shipped abroad. The Sultan has also exempted from duty all wheat imported until the end of January.

MONTREAL TO HELP THE LOCALS

Will Support Them in an Effort to Get Into the Inter-provincial—Practice To-night

There will be a full practice of the Rugby Club to-night at 7 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium, and every member of the team is expected to get in shape for the game at Montreal. The use of the gymnasium can only be secured for half an hour, so that the team must be on hand early. It is very important that the practices from now on to the end of the week should be as fully attended as possible, as if the team hopes to win they will have to be in the best possible condition.

Secretary McDonough received the following telegram from President A. B. Irvine of the Montreal team, this morning. Part of it referring to how many seats the Peterborough supporters would want reserved, is very funny:

"If the Inter-Provincial League is divided next year your club can count on our support for admission to the Western Division. Will your supporters require seats reserved? Wire if the officials suggested in my letter are acceptable."

The officials referred to are Russell Britton of Gananoque, and Phil. McKenzie of Montreal, who refereed the game between Peterborough and Westmount here two weeks ago. These are acceptable to the locals, who wired to that effect.

NO TRACE OF THE GIRL

But Mr. and Mrs. Marion With Aid of Detectives Are on Trail Of the Abductress

THINK IT IS MRS. MARION

Montreal, Nov. 26.—Up to the present the police were unable to find any trace of woman who is said to have carried off the adopted daughter of Mr. John B Marion, of Lindsay, Ont. Mr. Marion is now in Montreal, and he spent most of the morning at police headquarters, waiting for news of the missing child. Chief Carpenter has out a number of the best detectives of the force on the case, and an effort is being made to trace the woman who is said to be the mother of child, and who, according to Mr. Marion's story, carried the little girl off last Thursday.

Mr. Marion was accompanied to Montreal by Chief Vincent of the Lindsay police force. He has a warrant for the woman's arrest. Her name is Mrs. Marion. Chief Vincent has been aiding the Montreal police in their search for the missing child.

It has been discovered that the woman had been living at 1,236 Bordeaux street, a house occupied by L. A. Young, and yesterday accompanied by Detective Riopel of Chief Carpenter's staff, Chief Vincent of Lindsay visited the house.

Gone to New York

At first the proprietor refused to admit the officers, but offered no resistance when he learned the officers had a warrant. Young did not deny that the woman sought had lived at his house, but said she was not there at present. If the officers wanted her they would have to go to New York, he intimated. The mother of the child was until recently employed as a model in a Montreal cloak manufacturing house.

ADDRESSES ON MISSION WORK

Rev. Robt. Laird of Kingston and Rev. A. D. Menzies at St. Andrew's Meeting

The meeting of the Young People's Society at St. Andrew's church last night was a very enthusiastic one. It was held in charge of Missionary Committee and included an address by Rev. Robt. Laird, M.A., of Kingston, who spoke in terms of appreciation of the late Rev. R H Warden, who was prominent in the Home Missionary work of the Presbyterian Church of Canada and particularly in the West. He urged the young people to take a greater interest in the missionary work of the church. Rev. A D Menzies followed with an earnest appeal referring to the important and expanding work in the West.

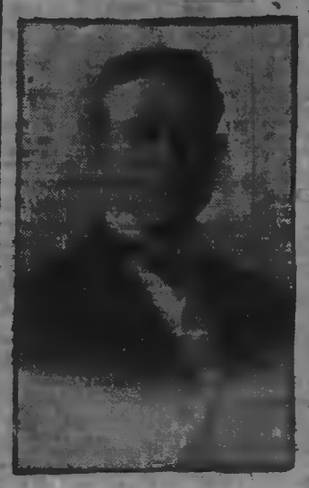
CARRIED A BEARSKIN FOR FOUR LONG MILES THROUGH THE NORTHERN WOODS

Among those who were successful in the northern woods was J. S. Knapman, who, it appears, was the successful hunter in a suit of a big black bear. Mr. Knapman spent some time in Northern Ontario, not far from Algonquin Park, and while there he shot the bear. The animal was a large one, and Mr. Knapman was several miles from the camp, accompanied by a friend. The bear was shot where it died, and for four long miles the hide and head had to be carried by Mr. Knapman to the camp. The trophy of the chase, however, well rewarded the four-mile jaunt with the bear skin on his back.

THE IRISH CANADIANS SEND THEIR ENTRIES FOR THE BIG INDOOR ATHLETIC CONTEST

AN INTERESTED WORKER FOR SUCCESS OF THE BIG MEET



MR. E. M. BEST,
President of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers Club

The Toronto Men Will be Represented by the Cream of Their Men—Marsh, McMurray, Middleton, Coley, Sellen and Green Entered

LONGBOAT AS A STARTER

May Bring With Them Champion Jumper Of Great Britain—Officials Were Decided Upon Last Night

The success of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers meet, which will be held in the Brock street rink a week from to-night, is assured, if the entries already received can be taken as a guarantee. There will be a big field in every event and the night's sport should be the best ever seen in Peterborough.

The Irish Canadian entries were received yesterday as follows:

50 yards handicap, J. E. Marsh, J. McMurray.

Half mile handicap, A. W. Haddleton.

220 yards dash, J. E. Marsh, J. Murray.

One mile race, A. W. Haddleton.

Exhibition of shot putting, J. O'Rourke.

Three mile race, handicap, H. Green, P. C. Sellen.

Three mile special race, one man each from the Irish Canadians, West End and Central Y.M.C.A.s, Toronto and the Peterborough Harriers, T. Coley or P. C. Sellen.

(Accompanying these entries was the following letter from Mr. T. C. Flanagan, the manager of the Irishians:—

"Your programme is just the right thing for a good night's sport. I can have every man we have. It will only be a pleasure to the Irish to do all in our power to help the Y.M.C.A. of Peterborough. Coley is living in Guelph now and I will 'phone him Monday. If anything should happen that he could not come I want P. C. Sellen to take his place. As you know, he holds the Canadian record for five miles, time 25 minutes 10 seconds.

"I had a letter this morning from Mr. Creed, champion jumper of Great Britain, and now a member of our team. He is on his way out and if he is here in time we will send him down to give you an exhibition of jumping.

"Wishing you every success,

"Yours truly,

"T. C. FLANAGAN."

As will be seen, the entries sent in by the Irish-Canadians are the very cream of that great club's men. McMurray and Marsh are the club's two best sprinters and the local men will have their work cut out for them if they hope to defeat them in the fifty yards and the Haddleton is the lanky Englishman who has been cleaning up the field in mile and mile contests at every meet during the past summer, and a most dangerous man. He will have opposition next week, however, as Ray Best, McBurney, Chas. Tate and other local men who have entered will make him extend himself to the utmost. The three-mile handicap will be a great struggle with Tom Green and Sellen of the Irish Canadians contesting it with Howard. With the three Irishmen and the great little Englishman starting at scratch, and with a number of other good local men startling on handicap the race should be a great one.

Eddie Wilson will represent the Irish in the special three-mile race, which will be a battle to the drop of the hat. Either Coley or Sellen will put up a great fight on behalf of the Irish-Canadians and the Toronto Y.M.C.A. men will enter will help to make the race decidedly interesting.

Tom Longboat will be on hand and will start the special race. His presence will add to the interest, as the local people have seen the great Indian.

The other events will be started by Mr. T. C. Flanagan, manager of the Irish-Canadians.

The Executive of the Harriers met last night and made arrangements for the officials and other details concerning the meet.

The following will be the officials:—

V. Eastwood, J. J. Howden, H. H. Kenner—Judges.

Thomas Longboat—Starter of special race.

WORK FOR SIR WILFRID

(Montreal Herald.)

It is announced, with every appearance of confidence, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will undertake, after the close of the parliamentary session now about to open, a tour of the country west of the lakes, and clear through to the coast. It is easy to understand that the Liberals of British Columbia and the West have been clamorous for such a visit ever since Mr. Borden began to appear amongst them. There would be the natural desire to see the party chieftain and to listen to his eloquence; there would be the fancied necessity of showing to the local enemy that the Conservative leader is not the only one who is regardful of the West; and there would be the excusable, it essentially boastful, desire to show those who have entered ed the community since Sir Wilfrid's last political tour of the country what a [illegible] sort of political personality that of Mr. Borden is as compared with that of the Liberal leader. Sir Wilfrid, it would appear, has yielded to the pressure and has consented to go. All will agree that, quite apart from the question of party advantage, such visits to the thinly populated provinces, by the leader of either of the great political parties, make for the general good. They can hardly fail to establish a certain community of interest between the East and the West, one, moreover, that is apt to be permanent inasmuch as it is based upon so thoroughly human a principle as the desire to triumph in a common cause, or at the least in a united effort.

If the Herald had a recommendation to make in the premises, it would be that the local Liberal organizations in Ontario take a leaf out of the Western Liberals book, and morally nudge Sir Wilfrid into a series of visits to central points in Ontario while the session is on. If he is booked for the West next summer, Ontario can hardly look to have him then, and if the elections come on in the autumn, as there is a fair presumption they will, then the most that could be looked for would be a few meetings in the heat of the campaign, not at all the thing that is needed. What is needed is that he should be seen in the flesh and his voice be heard by the younger generation of Ontario voters, those who have grown into the franchise since 1896, and who partook regard the Prime Minister as more or less of an abstraction, glorified, no doubt, by a long series of brilliant successes at home and abroad, but at the same time dimmed by the atmosphere of suspicion with which his every action has been invested by critics who refuse to overlook his racial origin or the religious belief entertained by the vast majority in his native province. It is high time for the abstraction to give place to the man. The under-strength of the Liberal delegation from Ontario is enough to prove that.

Of course, Sir Wilfrid would object to leaving Ottawa, while the session is one, for the work of Parliament is meat and drink for him and not wanting to leave it is easily transplanted into conviction that he cannot. But it he could leave Parliament to its own resources to go to England, he can let it run on while he runs out into Ontario from Thursday to Monday, now and then. We commend to Ontario Liberals the example of their Western friends, and would ask them to note the success of their appeal. It does seem such a pity to go on losing elections in ridings that ought to be Liberal just for want of doing what is so obviously the best thing to do. Sir Wilfrid would not refuse if he were put to it. He knows how big a job he has put upon the shoulders of Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. Graham, and he is not the man to refuse to help them out. It is for Ontario Liberals to show him the needs of the case, that is all.

BEER IS GOOD TO ENRICH THE BLOOD
PEOPLE who drink good beer with their meals can't be anaemic—thin-blooded.
Because beer, so drank, actually supplies the food elements that make the blood rich. Also beer assists the stomach in getting all the good possible out of all the food that enters it.
Put aside prejudice and learn just how good for almost every adult good beer really is.
[illegible] is a term which covers lager, ales, porter and stout, such as the product of Ontario breweries, including brewings made under most hygienic conditions, from Canada barley and hops, the best in the world, malt, hops, and pure water. 103

A COMPARISON AND A CONTRAST

The Conservatives, to justify their condemnation of Liberal "extravagance of expenditure," frequently claim that while in office they expended more on public works than the Liberals have done in the same length of time. The records do not sustain any such contention, as a look into the figures will prove. Take the eleven years previous to 1896, the last eleven years of Conservative rule, corresponding in point of time to the period the Liberals have been in power. In that time the Conservatives expended on capital account the sum of eighty millions of dollars ($80,000,000), and it is no small discredit to their administration that of this amount they borrowed sixty-two millions, or in other words, went into debt for public improvements, and increased the national debt by that amount. In contrast; during the past eleven years of Liberal administration the Liberals have spent one hundred and twenty-seven millions ($127,000,000) on capital account, and instead of going into debt, they have actually reduced the national debt, and have, in addition, achieved surpluses to the total of $90,000,000. At the end of the Conservative eleven years referred to, they were sixty two millions of dollars more deeply in debt than when they began. By way of contrast, after eleven years of Liberal rule, without any addition to, but, on the contrary, a reduction of, the net debt, there has been expended nearly fifty millions on public improvements more than was expended during the last eleven years of Conservative rule, and the Liberals have, besides, achieved an aggregate surplus nearly thirty millions greater than the total expenditure on public works by the Conservatives in their last eleven years. He that runs may read. A comparison of the results of Liberal and Conservative administration furnishes a striking contrast; to the decided advantage of the former.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now, the Mail and Empire has a chance to denounce Russia for creating financial stringency, by paying 25 million dollars to Japan, the balance of the war indemnity.

Queer things happen. Canada is importing butter from Ireland, and the United States is importing eggs from England. By comparison, carrying coals to Newcastle, is quite consistent.

In a political sense, Sir Wilfrid Laurier speaking in Toronto, is casting pearls before swine.

Ottawa Conservatives are arranging an imposing demonstration in honour of Mr. R. L. Borden, on the occasion of his return to Ottawa, after his tour of the country. If the weather conditions are favourable no doubt he will receive a warm welcome. Personally he is in every way entitled to it; politically, it is difficult to see how any enthusiasm can be justified.

The lack of public confidence in the United States banks, is the fact of the Government issuing bonds at three per cent., to tempt small hoarders, who would not trust their money to the custody of the banks. There is no Government nor postal savings banks in the United States, something more needed there than here. In Canada the people have reason for the most implicit confidence in the soundness of the banks, yet in the Government and postal savings banks combined the people have a total of deposits of more than sixty-two millions. What these deposits would be if we had a banking system like that of the United States can only be a matter of conjecture.

PRETTY WEDDING IN ENNISMORE

Nuptials of Miss Mary Young and Mr. Michael Dovey

MOVING TO PETERBORO'

Examiner Special

Ennismore, Nov. 26.—A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning in St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, when Miss Mary Young became the bride of Mr. Michael Dovey of Lindsay, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick officiating. The bride and groom came into the church during the playing of the wedding march by Miss Agnes Scollard. The bride was handsomely gowned in blue silk with white silk yoke and all-over lace and wore a picture hat to match. The bridesmaid was Miss L. A. Scollard, cousin of the bride, and wore blue lady's cloth trimmed with silk, and a hat of light blue chiffon and Valenciennes lace. The groom was supported by Mr. M. Farley of Lindsay. The bride received many costly and beautiful presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held by her many friends in Ennismore. After the wedding ceremony the party sat down to a sumptuous feast at the home of Mr. Wm. Young, brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Dovey will reside in Lindsay.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair no Matter What Colour

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is not known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing is called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes—50c and $1. McDermid & Jury, Special Agents.

SCALES INSTALLED IN ENNISMORE

Other Items of Interest in The Township To The North

Examiner Special.

Mr. P. J. Scollard, our enterprising business man, has just completed erecting a large four-ton weigh scales not only for his own business, which is quite extensive, but for the use of the general public as well. Mr. Thos. Irwin of Peterborough, a gentleman of many years' experience at the business, did the work of installing, which is a credit to himself both in neatness of workmanship and also in its accuracy in weighing. Naturally, the people of Ennismore, and especially those to whom the scales will prove a benefit, are sounding the praises of Mr. Scollard.

Mr. R. O'Donoghue and Mr. D. Kennedy have rented their farms and removed to the city with their families last week, where they will make their home. They will be very much missed by their large circle of friends at home, and we wish them every success in their new abode.

For Diseases Of The Skin
THERE IS NO TREATMENT SO CERTAIN TO RELIEVE THE ITCHING AND HEAL THE SORES AS
Dr. Chase's Ointment
The one common feature of nearly all skin diseases is itching, annoying and oftentimes almost unendurable itching.
The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that by reason of its remarkable soothing qualities it relieves itching the moment it is applied.
But Dr. Chase's Ointment does more than this. It is composed of the greatest healing ingredients known to science, and its healing powers are often described as magical.
Allaying the inflammation, relieving the itching and gradually and naturally healing the raw, flaming flesh, Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most effective treatment for eczema and salt rheum that was ever discovered.
There are many kinds of eczema, and nearly all itching skin diseases come under this head. In children it is known as teething eczema, and many a fond mother will tell you heartfelt gratitude of how her little one was rescued from torturing, itching eczema by the use of this great ointment.
Wherever there is itching skin or a sore that refuses to heal Dr. Chase's Ointment will positively prove effective as a relief and cure.
Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 293 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ont., writes:—"In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I recall was that of a child of sixteen months who was in a bad way with scaley head. It was a real nasty case causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment and in ten days the child was entirely cured.
"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was dosing her with medicine which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."
Dr. Chase's Ointment has an unparalleled record of cures; 60c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 12

Gifts Girls Can Make.

A spectacle cleaner made from cut leather and filled with chamois leaves is a thoughtful gift, and any little schoolgirl could certainly manage to draw a simple conventional design on the case leather, afterward cutting it away with sharp scissors and lining the two rounds with a bit of pretty bright silk. The chamois leaves are cut a wee bit smaller than the leather covers, and all are threaded on a bit of baby ribbon tied with a bow. A very nice pen wiper is on the same order as the cleaner, except that the rounds are cut larger and the leaves are made of cloth, the threading together being exactly in the center instead of at one end, as in the case of the spectacle cleaner.

A Triumphal Procession

Finally he was deposited safely into the cab, followed by Mr. George Stevens and the Mayor, and Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Reception Committee. A procession was quickly formed and a most imposing pageant it proved to be. The 57th Band, playing "The Maple Leaf" and other patriotic airs, was the advance guard, and was followed by the members of the fire brigade with their apparatus. The fire ladder and their new, chemical hose wagon, also the new ladder truck, in line, and with the brigade clothed in their rubber coats and ceremonial caps, made a fine showing. They were entrusted with the fireworks, and their path up George street was marked by a grand display. The carriage in which Mr. Hartley was came next, and was surrounded by hundreds of citizens cheering madly as the procession moved up the street. It was followed by the members of the City Council in carriages, and a number of private citizens also in vehicles, among which a carriage containing Messrs. John Jayes, Andy Graham, W. Gould and Chas. Nixon, attracted considerable attention. It was the most gaily adorned vehicle in the procession, being decorated with flags and streamers, while its occupants wore silk hats and were provided with a seemingly never-ceasing supply of fireworks, which they used to great advantage. A number of members of the Karnot A. C. occupied a position in the line and were followed by a carriage containing Mrs. Hartley, Mrs. Stevens and Mr. Charlie Stevens. The Nassau Fife and Drum Band voluntarily turned out and brought up the rear, playing inspiring airs all the way up the street.

A Monster Crowd

As the procession moved up George street the scene was one that has rarely been equalled in Peterborough. It was truly a journey of triumph for Hartley. Thousands of people fell in with the procession until the road for three blocks was simply black with people, while thousands more lined both sides of the street and gave cheer after cheer as the carriage containing the great walker passed. After Charlotte street was passed the crowd was even greater, and nothing could be heard but a continuous roar when Hartley was caught sight of, and the plucky little pedestrian was kept busy bowing his acknowledgments to the crowd. It is estimated that between 7,000 and 8,000 people took part in the demonstration. Thus with the bands playing, fireworks blazing, and people wildly cheering, the hero was brought in triumph to Central Park, where the Council had arranged to hold a reception. Almost before the head of the procession reached Murray street, what had been an empty square was in a moment turned into a shoving, cheering mass of people that within a few minutes filled up the greater part of the park, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that way was made through the congress for Mr. Hartley and the members of the Council to reach the stand which was illuminated for the occasion.

Mr. Hartley was the first to step on to the stand and as he appeared under the light with his cap in his hand and a smile on his face, the enthusiasm of the crowd was something to remember. Cheer after cheer was given and the excitement was kept up for some moments while "Davey" gazed into the up-turned sea of faces stretching on all sides.

The members of the Council and Mr. Stevens and his son followed, and Mrs. Hartley and Mrs. Stevens were brought up. Mrs. Hartley was led over to her husband and kissed him, causing a fresh outburst of enthusiasm.

The Speeches

Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Reception Committee, opened the ceremony by a few words, referring to Mr. Hartely's achievement and the honour which he had brought upon the town. He then called upon Mayor McWilliams for a speech, and the latter led off by calling for three cheers and a tiger for hero of the hour, which were given with a vim by the thousands who had gathered around the stand.

The Mayor said that the city should be proud of the man who had made Peterborough proud of him, and had nearly equalled the world's record for a twelve-hour walk. Competent judges who had seen the race, stated that Hartley's walk was one of the finest that had ever been seen. "And that is not the end of it," the Mayor remarked, and continued by saying that further honours might well be expected before Mr. Hartley had retired from active sport.

The Mayor concluded by congratulating Mr. Hartley, as the representative of the city, and suggesting that the citizens give some material proof of their appreciation of what he had done; and, if a subscription list were started the council would donate a substantial sum to head it.

Mr. Hartley Introduced

Ald. Phelan then introduced the famous pedestrian who was received with prolonged applause. Mr. Hartley displayed his oratorical abilities by making a neat and appropriate speech. He was glad to have earned the good-will of the citizens, and expressed his sincere gratitude for the hearty reception which they had tendered him. He made a few brief remarks about the race and his opponent, and again thanked the people for their demonstration.

Mr. George Stevens was then called upon and told a few amusing stories of the race, which he had followed throughout the entire course. He paid a tribute to Hartley's courage and endurance in the face of an opposing crowd who constantly urged Reynolds on, but to no avail, for any sprint the Port Hope man attempted was outdone by Hartley.

Mr. Stevens referred to the fact that Reynolds had expressed his desire for a square heel and toe walk, but when the race started he found that his opponent was too fast for him at that gait, and accordingly started in to run, and had to be stopped by the judges. The speaker urged upon the citizens to enter into the plan whereby it was proposed to purchase a house and lot for Mr. Hartley as a recognition of his magnificent feat. He also spoke of the attempt which Mr. Hartley will make next spring to walk from Toronto to Montreal in six days. "Mr. Reynolds has been invited to come along," said Mr. Stevens, "and we will see who is in Montreal first."

Mr. Chas. Stevens, jr., who acted as Mr. Hartley's trainer, both in the match in Toronto, and in the Thanksgiving day walk, was also introduced and received enthusiastically, speaking briefly in regard to Mr. Hartley's exploits.

To an Examiner reporter, who managed to speak to him for a moment in the throng, Mr. Hartley said of his reception, "I can hardly realize it; if some one had told me this would occur to-day I would have thought he was dreaming."

Dinner at the Oriental

Immediately after the reception in the park, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley, and Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens, were driven to the Oriental Hotel, where they were the guests of Mr. Geo. N. Graham at a quiet and informal dinner, Mr. Graham's hospitality being much appreciated. The procession to the hotel was made through a lane of people who cheered once more as the carriage containing the party passed down the street. The rotunda of the hotel was crowded when the carriage reached there and Hartley was given another enthusiastic reception.

After partaking of dinner Mr. Hartley received the congratulations of the crowd, hundreds of people remaining for an opportunity to shake hands with the lion of the occasion. Many were the tributes paid to him and they were received with the modesty that should characterize a victor. If he made friends by his victory, Mr. Hartley made many more by the manner in which he received the congratulations of the crowds.

Meanwhile the enthusiasm on the streets continued and the name of "Hartley" was everywhere in the air. Bon fires were lighted on Brock street, on Hunter street, opposite the Oriental, and on Water street, and were surrounded by cheering crowds, while others walked around the streets for an hour after Mr. Hartley had entered the hotel singing the praises of the wonderful pedestrian.

Peterborough is proud of David Hartley, and that gentleman should be proud of himself and the magnificent reception that was tendered him. It was a demonstration such as is given to very few people, for it is only on very rare occasions that a whole city is stirred up to such a high pitch of enthusiasm such as characterized the gathering last night.

A SPLENDID PRESCRIPTION

An eminent physician states that he has used the following prescription in his practice for a number of years and found it very successful in the treatment of kidney, liver, bladder and urinary affections, and is unsurpassed for the cure of rheumatism, driving the uric acid entirely from the system. He claims that a very few doses will relieve the most severe pains in the back, arising from disordered kidneys and impure blood, and being harmless may be given to children with safety. The prescription is, one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of compound vimosa, and four ounces of syrup rhubarb, taken in dessertspoonful doses in water after meals and at bedtime. These inexpensive ingredients are obtainable at any reliable drug store.

The athletes of the city should understand that no fee is charged for entries and that everybody is invited to compete in the open events. All entries must be sent in to the secretary, Mr. R. M. Glover, at the Examiner office, before 6 o'clock on Friday night, as the handicaps will be made then.

The Y.M.C.A. Harriers ordered a dozen new jerseys for their men yesterday, and they will appear in their new garb at the meet. The jerseys will be white with a sash of blue over the right shoulder and across the breast, while on the left side is a large winged "P."

Everything points to a most successful meet, and no doubt the crowd will be one of the largest that ever packed into the Brock street Rink.

MAY BE RE-ARRESTED.

Steve Adams Will Likely Face Second Murder Charge.

Rathdrum, Idaho, Nov. 26.—Steve Adams, the jury in whose trial for the murder of Fred Taylor reported a disagreement, was yesterday admitted to bail.

Bail was fixed at $20,000. Attorney Barrow, for the defence, announced the bond would be provided within a few days. It is expected that as soon as Adams is released on this bond, he will be re-arrested on a warrant charging him with the murder of Arthur Collins, at Telluride, Colorado, in 1902.

Attorneys Darrow and Hawley leave at once for Boise to attend the Pettibone case.

Lash For Drunkards?

Toronto, Nov. 26.—The presentment of the grand jury in the Criminal Assizes which closed yesterday recommends an entirely separate institution or ward for young offenders confined in Toronto jail on the grounds that at present they are herded with hardened criminals, and thereby given an elementary course in vice.

The presentment goes on:

"We regret to notice the large number of cases of indecent assault which were brought before us and for this class of criminals we see less hope of reformation than for any other, and we recommend the lash and long terms of imprisonment as the only means of preventing a repetition of the offence and as a means of deterring others."

"We find that sentences of 30 or 60 days for drunkenness has no deterrent effect. We are of the opinion that corporal punishment for repeated offences of this kind would in most cases work a reformation, and of the remainder the greater part would seem fit subjects for medical treatment."

Bridal Napery.

No bride considers her napery outfit complete nowadays unless she possesses at least one luncheon set comprising two sizes of doilies and a large centerpiece to match. This set may be of lace drawn work or embroidery, and she very often makes it herself. The centerpiece may be round or square and is almost large enough to be called a tablecloth, since it is used on the bare table. The present fashion demands that this centerpiece if embroidered be worked in white thread.

Mexican drawn work sets are particularly pretty, since the dark wood of the table underneath displays the fine work on the linen.

For ordinary occasions a plain hemstitched set, with square pieces, each with a large initial or monogram embroidered on it, is very pretty.

The correct method of embroidering the monogram or initial on a tablecloth is to place it at one end at a point twenty-seven inches from the end and right hand side of the cloth. This places the initial so that it shows on top when the cloth is laid on the table. The lettering should be large and gracefully embroidered.

Sewing as a Cure For "Nerves."

"Nerves" were the fashion not long ago, and many women liked nothing better than to pose as invalids. What a change! The rush and tear of pleasure seeking has sent the languishing, die away girl to the rear of the procession. The fact is women do not wish to be debarred from any of the current amusements. So those who really suffer from "nerves" are doing their best to get over the ailment. A London specialist advocates sewing, as it is a quiet occupation which absorbs attention and keeps the fingers busy without making much demand upon the brain. "Look at the women who sew," he exclaims, "They are certainly the most pleasant to live with. They are not excitable, jumpy, always wanting something to happen. Over their homes broods the spirit of peace. They radiate an atmosphere of quiet happiness. Who will be the pioneer of the sewing cure?"

His Head For a Smoke.

According to the Chinese opium regulations of last November, all teachers, scholars, soldiers and sailors of all ranks were to be allowed three months wherein entirely to relinquish the opium habit. Information has reached the authorities in Peking that some soldiers are paying no attention to these regulations, so instructions have been issued to the effect that any officer or man found smoking will be at once beheaded.

Had Palpitation of The Heart

EVER SINCE SHE WAS NINE YEARS OLD.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS EFFECTED A COMPLETE CURE.

If you find your health failing, your food apparently doing you no good, your heart beating irregularly—now slow, now fast—skipping a beat now and then, palpitations or throbbings on the slightest excitement or exertion, pain in the region of the heart, face pale, dimy and faint spells, these all point to heart weakness, to nerve derangement, to a state of health consequent upon these, which, if not corrected and cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, will surely end in utter prostration and hopeless invalidism.

From the depths many have been raised by this remarkable remedy, as its power is beyond all question most marvellous; but, why wait until you have gone so far? Taking these pills now will turn you from the perilous path of sickness and put you on the highway to health.

Miss Mary Wilson, Toronto, Ont., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure that I recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Ever since I was nine years of age I have been afflicted with palpitation of the heart, pain in my side and nervousness. As I grew older it kept increasing. After having tried numerous doctors medicines, but to no avail, I was induced to try your pills, and after using several boxes I began to improve, so kept on taking them for some time until now I can truthfully say I am in perfect health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cts. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Lady Missionary Tells Of Her Work in The Punjab

The W. A. Hold Meeting at St. John's—Miss Strickland, The Missionary Addresses Meeting

CHRISTIANITY FOR INDIA

Yesterday afternoon and evening the members of the four societies of the Woman's Auxiliary in and around Peterborough gathered in St. John's schoolhouse. The churches represented were All Saints', St. Luke's, Sunnyside, and St. John's. The reason for the gathering together of these societies was the result of the visit of Miss Strickland, the W. A. missionary in the Punjab, India, accompanied by Miss Jones, the diocesan secretary of the society.

The meeting was opened at three o'clock by Rev. Canon Davidson, who occupied the chair, with devotional exercises, followed by a brief address in which he welcomed all present, and laid the responsibility of the success of the meeting on each individual present. Mrs. Davidson was then elected, on motion of Mrs. Gaskin of St. Luke's Church, to act as presiding officer.

A supper was served in the basement at 5.30 for all the delegates, where the work of the W. A. was informally discussed. Miss Strickland had several curios from India on view, and Miss Jones had several articles from the supply department, Toronto, on exhibition.

During the afternoon, between the different addresses, Mrs. R. J. Devey sang, and the Misses English played a duet. In the evening Miss Ruth Dawson, Mrs. Seward and Miss Lancaster sang. The entertainment was very much enjoyed by all present.

Rev. Canon Davidson addressed both meetings. He said he was pleased to see such good feelings and pleasant associations among such an earnest body of women who are being trained in their different congregations to co-operate and encourage each other in this noble work. He trusted that every woman present would take a hearty interest in the proceedings, and made each one individually responsible for this meeting's success.

Miss Jones, the diocesan secretary, also made a few remarks about the work of the W.A. She dealt pointedly with the work of this society and made several suggestions about the carrying on of the work. She said the organization had a great missionary spirit behind it and was one of unselfish devotion. It was not a sewing society, this was only an incidental. The chief business was action of all kind in missionary work, and the gaining of information and the dissemination of the same all over the world. She closed her remarks by saying that the society required the faithful financial support of every member to help to carry on the work.

From the Punjab in India comes Miss Strickland, a woman who has for six years laboured amongst the the heathen women of three hundred villages in that district. Undaunted and not discouraged by the hardships she has had during the past six years of her life, she leaves at the end of a five months furlough, for the Punjab again; this time as the missionary supported by the W. A. She delivered her address yesterday and won the hearts of all present. Many of those present were brought to look at higher aims in life than in the past.

She told the people of the real home life of the poor in India, and what beauty and power Christianity had when placed side by side with the religions of India was very striking. The religions of India were producing great degradations among the inhabitants. She said that Christianity was the only thing that that would save India from going down. The people have their own caste and it is so hard to make them believe differently, but once the steps of the Indians were turned to Christ, she felt sure that they would never turn back to the narrow religion they had been following before conversion.

Following Miss Strickland's address Rev. Dr. Langfeldt spoke encouragingly of the splendid work being carried on and he assured those present that they had his warm support. Mrs. Nesbit moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speakers and all who took part in the programme which was seconded by Mrs. Gaskin, after which the meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.

DECORATED BUTTONS.

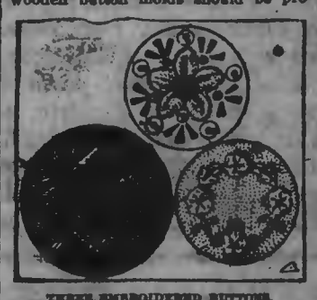
Enameled and Poker Work Buttons the Vogue Now.

Decorated buttons occupy a position of importance on the garments of today, and as these ornamental trifles, when incrusted with enamels, are by no means inexpensive items possessors of moderate dress allowances will do well to turn their attention to the embellishment of a set or two for themselves.

This is not difficult. So many ways of ornamenting buttons can be thought out and experimented upon, the tiny bits of work are so fascinating and the result so pleasing that it is no wonder that this branch of art work bids fair to become popular.

Among the fair sex nowadays are many skilled workers in enamels. This art appears to have superseded china painting. To these the task of designing and carrying out valuable and artistic buttons will be a labor of love, but it is rather in the regions of amateur art and embroidery that we would wander today, dropping a few hints for the benefit of the home worker.

On brown cloth costumes or coats large buttons done in poker work are new and effective. For these large wooden button molds should be procured. Those measuring one and one-half inches in diameter are handsome. These all have a hole through the center into which a tiny loop of string can be inserted from the back and firmly secured in place by a dab of Gesso composition, formed of powdered whitening and size, which also serves to fill the hole entirely up. When rubbed down with sandpaper to remove all roughness and excrescences the buttons should present an even surface, upon which the design must be carefully marked out. Some are done entirely in plain poker work and shaded, geometrical patterns being employed and fine points only made use of. Others have merely the outline burned in, the design being filled in with marquetrie stains. Yet others show a tracery of pierced work, highly decorative and uncommon. The holes are made with a triangular piercing point, kept at considerable heat. They must be planned out beforehand and the position of each one clearly indicated, remembering that accuracy is essential to success.



THREE EMBROIDERED BUTTONS.

Nothing makes a face so insipid as too scant eyebrows. The growth may be thickened by rubbing into them once a day some red vaseline. The white has been so refined that it has less strength.

A time and strength saving way to pick up pins and needles is to draw a magnet across the floor. The metal things that stick to it can be easily picked off without taking a step.

Neuralgia may very often be relieved by applying a cloth saturated with essence of peppermint to the seat of pain.

Denim Shoe Bags.

Denim shoe bags are most useful, and to make eight bags a yard and a quarter of material will be needed. Tear the thirty-six inch wide denim into twelve inch strips and cut each of the three strips into three pieces crosswise; double each piece over and sew the seams on the right side, trim them off closely, turn the bag and sew them on the wrong side so as to make a neat fell. When folding the material for the bag allow one side to be three inches longer than the other. This will serve as a flap. The flap should be neatly hemmed by hand and button over the opposite side of the bag with a button and buttonhole.

A HANDSOME NEW DELIVERY WAGON

"Mac's" Have One Supplied By American Tobacco Company

A very handsome delivery wagon has been added to the equipment of "Mac's" tobacco business. It is supplied by the American Tobacco Company, for which firm Mr. McDonough is one of the local consignees, and it will be used for delivering goods in different parts of the city and the surrounding country. The wagon is painted in attractive colours and with the advertisement of some of the well-known brands of tobacco manufactured by the firm, and bears Mr. McDonough's name on each side. The wagon attracted considerable attention Saturday when it was used for the first time.

MEMORIAL SERMON AT PARK STREET BAPTIST

The Park street Baptist church was crowded Sunday night with an interested audience to listen to the sermon in honour of the memory of the late Bro. J. A. McWilliams, of the Royal Black Preceptory, of which he was a distinguished member. The Orange True Blues, and 'Prentice Boys were all represented from the various Lodges as well as the different Orange lodges. The District Chaplain, Rev. A. H. Brace, preached the sermon from Job vii, 1, "Is there not an appointed time for man upon the earth, are not his also as the days of an hireling?"

After stating the deceased's standing in the order and the circumstances of his death, his church relationship, etc., he said the text showed man's present inheritance, the "earth;" that a man's exit from the earth was under divine control; that his exit was uncertain as to time, but certain as to precedent and to fact; and that the good man's hope was the resurrection.

DRESS AND FULL DRESS

Formal Dress Clothes Cost Less And Are Easier To Get

St. Andrew's Night marks the real opening of the social season in Canada. With the opening comes the question of formal evening dress. The broad lapels on the dress coat this season are silk-faced, and there is a well-defined dip in the front design of the coat. The black unfinished vicuna has long held sway, having displaced the worsted and worsted and broad cloth. For an outer garment, the silk faced Chesterfield is correct, although in extremely cold weather the heavier overcoats may be worn. Of course, Tuxedo Jackets are correct form at any evening gathering, where only gentlemen are present.

Full dress suits of good design, were at one time quite expensive, and and very difficult to get, but nowdays one can visit a Semi-ready store and get a dress suit of fine design, beautifully tailored, for $25 or $30. If for nothing else, one can be grateful to the Semi-ready tailors for their reduction in the cost of dress and frock coats.

The Semi-ready store advertise that they guarantee a correct fit on orders by telegraph.

LIVERPOOL TO LONDON IN ELEVEN DAYS

(London Daily Mail.)

To the Editor of the Overseas Daily Mail:—

Sir, — I attach a cutting from a local paper concerning some birds, which we had shipped out here the other day. Surely this achievement will require some beating?

Yours faithfully,

KNOWLES BROS.

Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, — To transfer goods from Liverpool, Eng., to Edmonton, Alberta, in 11 days is the record of the Dominion Express, in connection with a consignment of five Indian Game fowls, ordered by Knowles Bros., Edmonton. They were shipped in Liverpool on September 20 and arrived here on October 1st, beating a letter posted on the same day, which did not get here till the following day. The express goods came over by the Empress of Ireland, via Montreal, and the letter by the Lusitania, via New York. Both steamers left the same day."

BARBERS' ADVERTISING PAYS, AND THE PROOF

What a "Bargain Day" Adv. in Examiner Did For Mr. D. Hall

The barbers of Peterborough are not much inclined to take advantage of the benefits of advertising. But when they do, instances are not wanting where it has proved to be very helpful to their trade. A recent case in point is that of Mr. D. Hall, the well-known Snowden House barber on Charlotte street. A few days ago Mr. Hall announced that he would inaugurate two "bargain day" inducements for each week. The result has been such an increase in Mr. Hall's trade that he is in Toronto to-day negotiating for the purchase of an additional chair for his shop and the engagement of another first-class tonsorial artist.

The Philomathean Society Have Interesting Debate

Happiness in Past And Modern Times—The Negative Gets The Decision

A SPLENDID PROGRAMME

Yesterday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock the second fortnightly meeting of the Philomeathean Society of the local Collegiate Institute was held in the Y.M.C.A. assembly hall. There was a large attendance of the pupils and much enthusiasm was displayed on all sides. Mr. Michael O'Brien occupied the chair in his usual acceptable manner. The chief item of interest on the programme was a debate, Resolved, "That mediaeval times were more conducive to happiness than are modern." The affirmative was upheld by Mr. Cyril Moore and Miss Mayme Armstrong, and the negative by Mr. Donald Denham and Miss May Smith. The debaters showed great improvement and brought out many forcible arguments during the discussion. The judges, Mr. Stanley Pringle, Miss Annie Edgar and Miss Florence Hurley, finally gave their decision in favour of the negative, which was evidently the opinion of the majority of those present.

The other items on the programme were as follows:—

Minutes of last meeting... Miss G. Crane.
Piano solo..... .... Miss Grace Todd
Reading .... Miss Phyllis Dennis
Vocal solo ....Miss Pearl Morgan
Recitation .... Miss Mabel Pringle
Piano solo..... ... Mr. Chas. Ackerman
Criticism... ... . Mr. H R H Kennedy.

At the conclusion of the programme Mr. Harold Brown gave notice that at the next meeting he would bring in a motion which would exclude all 2nd Formers from attending the meetings of the Society. The motion will no doubt meet with strong opposition and there promises to be a warm discussion when the Society next meets.

The meeting dispersed with the singing of the National Anthem.

CONCERT FOR CHARITY ON FRIDAY

Will Be Given in St. Peter's School Hall

An event which should meet with the support of a large number of the people of the city is the concert which will be given in St. Peter's Hall on Friday night. It is under the auspices of the Catholic Order of Foresters and the proceeds are to be used for charity. As this is an easy method of doing something for the poor and the needy of the city there ought to be a large attendance. The programme promises to be an interesting one and should be enjoyed by all those who hear it.

A DOMESTIC SCIENCE CLASS

To Be Held in Y.W.C.A.—Choral Society To Be Formed

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the Y.W.C.A. was held yesterday afternoon. It was decided to commence Domestic Science Classes the first week in January. A Choral Society in connection with the Y.W.C.A. was decided upon and it will be under the direction of the Social and Musical Committee. The society will meet every Saturday after its organization.

KNOX CHURCH GUILD CONCERT

An enjoyable time was spent at Knox church last evening when a concert was given by the Young People's Guild. The feature of the evening was a guessing contest on what articles were contained inside envelopes. The prize for this was won by Miss F. Thompson. The programme was as follows:—

Solo—Miss Jessie Miller.
Piano solo—Miss Patton.
Recitation—Miss Barr.
Solo—Mr. Campbell.
Piano solo—Miss Geraldine Buyers.
Recitation—Miss Clifford.
Solo—Mr. Barr.
Humourous selection—Mr. McLean.

At the next meeting a debate will bee held, "Resolved that it is a man's duty to make his own breakfast," the affirmative to be taken by the ladies.

Y.M.C.A. SECRETARY AT MURRAY STREET

Addresses Young People on the Rewards For Faithfulness

The Young Peoples' meeting at the Murray street Baptist church last night was an interesting one. Mr. Horace C. Wright, the secretary of the Y.M.C.A., was present and was introduced to the young people of the Murray street church, who gave him a hearty welcome as one of the foremost religious workers of the city.

Mr. Wright gave an instructive address on the "Rewards for Faithfulness."

Miss Pilling sang a solo in pleasing style and a duet was rendered by Messrs. J. Ellis and A. J. Haddon.

At the close of the meeting an informal social evening was spent, refreshments being served.

From the interest Mr. Wright displayed in religious matters last night he promises to be an excellent leader of young men in the city for the raising to a higher level their morality.

Boys

Do you want to earn some money for Christmas? If you do, take a few hours off and get some customers for the Daily Examiner. We have a number of boys who are making around three dollars a week and losing no time.

Willie Taylor, who won the prize last week of two dollars, made, in addition, $2.20 on his regular customers, or $4.20 for the week. No boy wins a prize unless he secures new customers, and no one who buys customers from other boys is entitled to a prize.

The 18 prizes to be paid at New Year's for the boys who have secured the largest number of new subscribers are attracting the attention of all the newsboys.

The boy who secures the largest number gets $25.00.
The second, $15.00.
The third, $10.00.
The fourth, $5.00.
The fifth, $4.00.
The sixth, $3.00.
The seventh, $2.00.
And eleven prizes of $1.00 each.

The boy that works hard is going to win a prize of $25.00, and every one is on the same footing.

The Examiner is easy to sell. Start in without delay and win a prize.

Any information regarding the competition may be had at the Examiner Office.

IS IT CONSISTENT?

Peterborough is to be commended for its spontaneous enthusiasm, in its welcome to David Hartley, a well-deserved recognition of his services in doing credit to Peterborough, and connecting its name with an achievement which is the talk of the Dominion. No one will, for a moment, disparage, or fail to sympathise with, the proposed action to make the recognition substantial, a credit to our local patriotism, and our interest in sport. But, it might be suggested, that something is being forgotten, or ignored. The Peterborough team won the Rugby championship of Ontario, scoring through the season, a series of victories, broken by only one reverse. The matches on the local grounds, in which fame and good name were won for Peterborough, were so sparsely attended that the gate receipts — which are held to represent value received in the sport afforded by a rattling good Rugby game—fell far short of the expenses incurred in, practically, advertising Peterborough, as the home of champion Rugby. The local Rugby champions, in order to protect their good name and financial credit, are compelled to journey to Montreal to play a game, in which they may obtain as their share of the gate receipts, sufficient to pay their debts. In doing so, they incur the risk of defeat, and also a great risk, or, rather, certainty, of being professionalized by playing an outlawed team. The team is doing this reluctantly; but it is forced upon them — to save their financial credit. This is unfortunate, and a regrettable end to the team's brilliant season. It will be little credit to Peterborough, and to her reputation as a sporting centre that stands by its citizens, to have it go forth that Peterborough patronized its victorious Rugby team so poorly, that it closes the season in debt, and that there was nothing done to stave off the humiliation of playing a game for the mere sake of making money. The Examiner has no suggestion to make. A public that won't take a hint that so palpably obtrudes itself, would be very apt to decline to act upon a hint, if it were given.

NORWOOD HOCKEY TEAM ORGANIZES

Only Waiting For Ice To Get Into The Game

Examiner Special

Norwood, Nov. 25. — A meeting of the Norwood hockey club was held on Monday evening and the following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres. — F. Woolcombe.
President—Fred Fry.
Vice-President—Bert Hnycke.
Secretary—E. L. Frost.
Treasurer—M. J. Kennedy.
Executive Committee — Fred Fry, E. L. Frost, Chas. Pearce, F. Doherty, A. J. McKenty, and the captain.
Manager—A. J. McKenty.
Patron—John Finlay, M. P.
Patroness—Mrs. J. Finlay.

The election of a captain was left over until the next meeting.

Norwood has a strong team this year. With a number of the old players back to town and many juniors available this aggregation ought to make a strong showing in the city league this season.

MONTREAL GETTING INTO SHAPE

Have Not Been Practising and Juniors Showed Them Up Saturday

The senior Montreal team has a hard proposition on its hands in the approaching game. The boys had broken training for a couple of weeks adn some of them are evidently holding their prospective opponents far too cheaply. A good stiff practice was indulged in on Saturday afternoon at the M.A.A.A. grounds, and most of the boys were on hand. As usual, however, there were several absentees. One individual who sorely needs the work, was too interested in the game at Ottawa to get out, and "horse" it with his pals but showed that this horse is still in the game by watching the bulletin board for intermediate developments in the capital city.

It is a mighty big mistake on the part of anyone in the city to think that Peterborough will simply afford a workout. Montreal will have to be in just as good condition as in the last game with Ottawa here to make the visitors bite the dust. And moreover, the locals will have to earn every point for there is not a man on the team that can be relied on to kick a goal from the field. On the other hand Peterborough boasts a back who has this year kicked seven goals from the field in two games. And anyone who can negotiate four drop kicks in an afternoon is entitled to some credit. He can moreever kick goals from almost any angle.

Peterborough is not coming to Montreal for a lark. The boys of that town are confident that they can lower Montreal's colours. If they were not they would not come. And Montreal will have to buck up some this week. They lined up against the juniors at the St. Catherine street stamping ground Saturday afternoon, and the youngsters showed them up pretty badly. They negotiated a goal from the field, made several points by forcing the seniors to rouge and actually bucked through the heavy-weights' line for a touch down.

Now it is pretty safe to say that the juniors could not have done such a thing two weeks ago. All of which goes to show that the team has plenty of hard work in view of the coming week to get back into the best of form. Peterborough will be slightly stronger than the Montreal junior, or should be at any event.

It will therefore be a rather busy week in Montreal football circles with the three teams working to prepare themselves for next Saturday's contingencies.—Montreal Herald.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

Peterborough and Montreal will play off in Montreal on Saturday, for the Dominion Rugby championship. This was decided by the players and the executive of the local club on Saturday night, when a telegram was received from Montreal stating that the easterners would take their chances on the gate, and guarantee Peterborough $500 to go down, and the club decided, that in view of the financial necessities of the case to accept the offer, although they realise that by doing so, their amateur standing will be sacrificed, and that they will be out of the O. R. F. U. next year, although as the Toronto Telegram points out the O.R.F.U. will be in a bad position without them. Very few of the members of the team want to go to Montreal but they realize that it is the only way in which enough money can be raised to pull the club out of the financial hole, in which they are at present. It is likely that all the regular team will go. The team will be strengthened by the addition of Bill Meagher, one of the best wings several years ago, who has consented to turn out, and help the boys in their battle against Montreal.

* * * *

Toronto papers are frantically endeavouring to prevent the game arranged for next Saturday between Peterborough and Montreal for the Rugby championship of the Dominion. It is pointed out by the western dailies that the whole thing is a "dirty plot" on the part of Montreal to get thee Ontario Rugby champions in hot water with the C.A.A.U.

"Beware," they wail "that you fall not into temptation. Montreal is but setting a snare. After Peterborough has incurred the displeasure of the C. A.A.U. Montreal will but laugh up it's sleeve. There is absolutely no chance for Peterborough to get within the football fold again. The Ontario Rugby Union will no longer recognize you. Neither will there be any chance of your gaining membership in the Intercollegiate—(the team is not fast enough)—and the town will find itself next year without a chance to figure in any league. Beware the scheming Montrealers!"—Montreal Herald.

It looked at one time as if both Hartley and Reynolds would be compelled to walk home after their 12-hour grind, but they received sufficient eventually to pay for railway tickets and have a little change to spare.—Toronto Star.

Some of the young walkers would have difficulty in keeping up with David Hartley, the Peterborough pedestrian, who has a sprint like Bobby Kerr and the endurance of Tom Longboat.—Toronto Star.

The bowlers are requested to remember their smoker in the Charlotte street rink on the evening of Dec. 4th. A good programme has been arranged and the prizes won by the various bowlers during the season will be presented.

PRIZES PRESENTED AT PARK STREET

It was prize day on Sunday last at the Park street Baptist Sunday School. The ceremony of awarding them was performed by the superintendent, Miss M. Mann, Rev. A. H. Brace and Mr. T G Gillespie. Between thirty and forty books were placed in the hands of as many scholars, which will remain a cherished memory when their looks are gray. A very pleasing feature of the afternoon was that a bouquet of cut flowers were on a vote of the whole school sent to little Miss Libby who has been sick for several months.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BIBLE SOCIETY

It has been customary for many years in Peterborough to combine all the prayer meeting services in this public meeting, and it is earnestly hoped that a large and enthusiastic audience will greet the Rev. Mr. French.

WEDDING BELLS.

HANRAHAN-KENNEDY

St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, was the scene of a charming November wedding this morning, when two of Lakefield's most popular young people were united in the bonds of matrimony. The principals were Miss Mary Margaret Kennedy, daughter of the late Timothy Kennedy, and Mr. Austin Hanrahan, son of Mr. Jas. Hanrahan of Lakefield. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Phelan in the presence of a large number of the friends of the young couple. Mr. Thos. Hanrahan, brother of the groom, was the best man, and Miss Rose Keating of Hastings, the bride's cousin, was bridesmaid.

The popularity of the young couple was evidenced by the array of costly and beautiful wedding presents that was received. Mr. and Mrs. Hanrahan will leave to-night on a wedding trip to Toronto and western points.

LONG-McJIMPSIE

Rev. E. A. Pearson officiated at a quiet wedding yesterday evening at 7 o'clock at the George street Methodist parsonage, the principals being Gladys Louise, daughter of the late Robert McGimpsie, and Herbert Edward Long, son of Mr. Jno. H. Long, Auburn. The bride and groom were unattended. They will reside Auburn street, city.

JAPANESE INVASION WILL BE A BENEFIT TO OTHER NATIONS OF THE WORLD

Such Was The Expressed Opinion Of Rev. Dr. Talling in His Lecture At St. Pauls' Last Night—An Intelligent Discourse

HAD A LARGE ASSEMBLAGE

Japan, The Liberator, Educator, And Missionary of The Eastern People

"The Destiny of Japan," perhaps the most momentous subject that is before the minds of the Western world to-day, was the subject of Rev. Dr. Talling's lecture in St. Paul's school room last night. The manner in which he dealt with this question revealed the fact that he has given it his careful attention. Undoubtedly, it was manifested that Rev. Dr. Talling is a thinker and possessed a foresight which enables him to judge events and in connection with the Japanese question he has demonstrated his ability to forecast results. Some years ago he spoke and wrote on this subject, and subsequent events coincide in many respects with the statements he made at that time.

His Propositions

Last night Rev. Dr. Talling said in introducing the subject that he would formulate three propositions which he would endeavour to prove.

The first was that the Japanese are a peculiar people and in several respects wholly unique among the other nations of the world. Second, that the influence of the Japanese is a vital factor in the destinies of the Oriental people; and, third, that the western people will share in this influence.

The Japanese, he said in connection with the first premises, are an unmixed nation. They have an unbroken history extending back age after age to prehistoric times and they boast that their shores have never known the tread of a foreign conqueror. Again their sudden awakening has been unparalleled in history. They had the advantage of beginning with all the advances that the western people had made. They had abolished in one step the feudal system for the welfare of the state. Unlike other nations they were not compelled to fight and struggle for representative government but their autocratic emperor voluntarily gave it to them. They broke away from their old traditions and prejudices and adapted themselves to the modern scientific methods to their best advantage.

Their Influence

In dealing with this part of the lecture Rev. Dr. Talling said that until 1853 Japan was a hermit nation. He told how foreign trade was forced upon the Japanese in spite of their objections and when they tried the force of arms they found themselves rudely equipped and vastly inferior to their enemies. Four years of unrest followed during which time the conservative people contended with those who favoured modernism until the latter won out and Japan decided to fit herself to take a place with the leading nations of the world. To accomplish this Rev. Dr. Talling said she sent out her best minds to learn the science and the methods of the world, and to gain all the knowledge she could. She also invited skilful men who could teach her people what they required. Her educational system combines the methods of the Germans and the Americans and Rev. Dr. Talling unhesitatingly stated that the Japanese are destined to become a highly educated people. The methods she adopted have, when applied, brought about results that have caused the world to wonder.

Result of the War

Rev. Dr. Talling referred to the attempt of the powers to secure possession in the East, and Russia's sidering seizure of Manchuria, which brought on war with Japan. The result has been that Japan has become the reformer of the East, giving most thorough and judicious reforms as were ever granted a people. She is also the liberator of the East, providing a liberty not less than ours. She is also the educator of the East, and, the speaker said, is destined to become its leader and the minister of the Oriental people. All these statements Rev. Dr. Talling dealt with completely.

The Religion of Japan

He then took up the religion of Japan, and showed how the early Christian had been synthesized by the religions of Confussius and Buddah. The early ideas are now waning, the speaker said, and many of the Japanese have become Christians. Dr. Talling said that on believed the Japanese would need but little missionary influence. If they could form a better relation they would do so, and the Christian religion being the only true one, such would be impossible and their religion will be a form of Christianity.

The speaker said that he did not believe that the awakening of the Eastern people would result in race warfare. The Japanese are naturally peaceful, the altered economic conditions are bound up in peace, and the present military conditions are against war, which is, moreover, too expensive.

In conclusion, Rev. Dr. Talling said that no alarm need be felt about the advent of the Japanese. If they come, as they surely will, he said, we should be prepared for them. It will not be a war, but a competition of trade, education, science, etc., and if we wish to keep them out let us hold our position as first in the race, and be more skilled in our work and our arts, and they will not get the opportunity to supersede us. Great Britain rose from the lowest to the highest position, but the world received no detriment. The United States is manifesting a similar movement. If they come, Dr. Talling said, the result will be beneficial, "for they will lend a quickening impulse to the whole world."

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. J. D. Collins, and seconded by Mayor McWilliams, who referred to the occasion as being the last which the people of St. Paul's would have of hearing Rev. Dr. Talling. He had shown fine qualities of unusual intelligence and power of thought, and had provided many intellectual treats. Rev. Dr. Talling made a suitable reply.

The chairman of the evening was Mr. G. M. Roger, who filled the position most acceptably. Miss Helen Davies sang a pretty song in her finished style, and was accompanied by Mr. John Crane, who presided at the piano during the evening.

WALKS 1298 MILES IN TWENTY-FIVE DAYS

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 27.—Edward Payson Weston completed this morning the last lap of his cross-country tramp from Portland, Me. At 5 o'clock this morning he reached the Chicago Beach Hotel, six miles from the down-town district, and after a few hours' sleep, resumed his journey. An escort of automobiles, mounted police, and an immense crowd of pedestrians followed him into the city. At 12.25 Weston completed his long jaunt amid the greatest enthusiasm. In the 69th year of his life he travelled from Portland to Chicago, a distance of over 1,298 miles, in 25 days, and beats his own record made forty years ago, which was 26 days.

FIRE ALARM PROVED FALSE

Typical Peterborough Crowd Gathered In a Few Minutes

The fire brigade had a hurried call last night at 20 minutes to 8 o'clock. The manager of "Wonderland" had put some dry wood in the stove, heating up the place for the evening. From the blaze the pipes caught fire, and a dense smoke clouded from the chimney and blew into George street. From the appearance, one would have judged that the corner block was on fire. Someone sounded the alarm and the brigade answered in a very short time. A crowd gathered in a few minutes, but the corner properties were safe, and "Wonderland" was just about to begin its next presentation of the slides. So the pianist started up inside, and the canned notes were freely distributed on the outside and everything ran along as before.

SECRET OF SUCCESS THE SUBJECT

Splendid Lecture at St. Andrews by Mr. James Bennett

The meeting of the Young Man's Guild of St. Andrew's was largely attended last night to listen to a splendid address on the "Secret of Success," by Mr. Jas. Bennet, of the Canadian Cordage Company. The speaker gave a most instructive talk, which was a splendid word picture of the subject. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the speaker for his interesting discourse. Mr A. D. Menzies was present and gave a brief address.

HAD HIS COLLAR BONE FRACTURED

Little Gordon Portsmouth Injured a Week Ago is in Hospital

Gordon Portsmouth, the thirteen-year-old son of Mrs. Portsmouth, 169 Park street, is in the Nicholls Hospital, suffering from a broken collar bone. The little fellow was injured about a week ago, while playing with a number of companions at the King Edward school. He fell and struck his shoulder but did not appear to be badly injured and little was thought of the accident until a day or two ago when a medical examination revealed the fact that the collar bone had been fractured. He was operated on at the hospital, and is much better to-day.

TIME FOR ACTION

The new provinces begin housekeeping with many advantages; not the least is the ability to profit by the experiences, and even mistakes, of older provinces. Saskatchewan is contemplating a national park, and game preserve. This is the right time to begin, when there is game to preserve, not when game and forests are practically destroyed. If Saskatchewan and Alberta undertake the practice of practical forestry, they will by the time they are as old, or even half as old as Ontario, have valuable expanses of forest, instead of treeless wastes. The mistake of the present provincial government is that it is not devoting attention to state forestry undertakings — in fact it is doing nothing. We have great areas of tree-denuded Crown lands, which should be seeded to forest. There are lands from which the original forest—if there is such a thing, with continuously decaying and renewing natural conditions — has been removed, unfit for agriculture on a successful scale, which, if put to seed, or planted with seedling pine, spruce and other trees, would, within the space of a little more than a generation, yield merchantable crops of timber. This is a matter which, in the interests of our industrial and climatic future, brooks no delay. We may delay the development of our mineral resources and no great harm will be done. The minerals are there and will remain in unchanged condition. But, with forest planting, it must be done now to be of the greatest benefit. A tree planted to-day will, in the course of thirty or forty years, be fit for cutting. With continuous planting from year to year there would be a perpetual crop, the more recent plantings growing into commercial maturity as the more advanced are removed. There should be prompt government action. We can not expect much from private enterprise, from farm forestry. The present generation of farmers are prone to regard trees as their enemies, to be destroyed. That comes from their experience in pioneer days. It is not probable that, after spending the flower of their strength, in destroying trees to make place for cereal crops, they will enter, with any considerable enthusiasm, into the work of planting trees. If however they could be brought to see the advantages, they would act. Almost every farm has some waste land, which can only be put to profitable use in the growth of trees. It is the duty of the Government to undertake systematic forestry — planting, preservation, and prudent cutting. The idea of forestry operations involves much more than timber supply. There are other economic interests concerned. The industrial future, if it is to be great and flourishing, must depend upon water power, and the electric energy developed by its application. Our internal transportation depends for its effectiveness and permanence, for its maintenance, without expensive operations for deepening channels, upon water supply; and a regular, and sufficient water supply depends upon our tree growth. By the cutting away of our forests, the natural reservoirs, the natural feeders of our water systems, are destroyed. The consequences are that water from rains or melting snows, rush off in the race towards the sea, spending all their force in a short period, instead of being held back, in forest reservoirs, and more slowly filtering out during the season. Then, again, the presence of forest areas, or forest belts, distributed in settled areas, has a very important modifying influence upon climate, and climatic conditions, especially rainfall — making the climate more equable, and the rainfall more regular, and generally distributed. With all these advantages and disadvantages, and many others, which might be cited, involved in the question of forestry, systematic and persistent, the government cannot be freed from blame if it neglects to take action. A liberal portion of the money reaped from the destruction of forest areas, might well be used to remedy the injury, which, in the process of collection, has necessarily ensued, and also confer important positive advantages.

MONTREAL'S MILLION MARK

Other places in the Dominion have their 10,000 and 20,000 clubs organized to work for that number of population within a given period of time. Montreal, the commercial metropolis of Canada, has set the million population mark as its goal. The present population is near the half million, and the optimists are predicting a million within ten years. With due discounting of this enthusiasm, it is a fact that at the present and recent rate of progress, the population will be three-quarters of a million in the next ten years. Montreal's unique geographical position makes her the undisputed metropolis and business centre of Canada, and indicates a permanency of supremacy in these regards. She is the meeting place of ocean and inland navigation on the waterway that naturally drains the commercial watershed of the continent. Its access to unbounded water-power, and the new resources to be opened up by the transcontinental railway, emphasize her advantages. Through the Montreal Witness, the business and professional men of Montreal invite the attention of the world to the multifarious opportunities for wealth creation Montreal presents. The Witness, by an unique stroke of newspaper entreprise, presents this appeal by means of four pages of facsimile reproductions of the signatures of the business men and professional men who have signed the invitation. Bon voyage, Montreal, towards the million mark.

EDITORIAL NOTES

For the ten years ending March 31st, 1907, Canada"s exports of home manufactures increased from $10,470,749 to $26,279,049. This is a great showing in the face of greatly increased demands from a greatly widened and quickened home market.

The Ottawa Free Press points out that the Intercolonial has begun its winter mail service well. Its special with the mails from the Empress of Ireland made the run from Halifax to Montreal this last week in a little less than 23 hours. That is pretty good running. A distance of 836 miles in less than a day is something to be proud of.

The United States had the biggest rush of immigration in its history last year, but it is also having the biggest rush of immigrants back to Europe taking with them a great deal of the ready money that country needs so badly just now. In the month of August according to official records, 22,266 immigrants left the country and the stream has been flowing more largely since that time.

The West may inflate its chest in its young strength and great possibilities, but steady-going old Ontario is still the business centre of the Dominion. In the nine months covered by the Postmaster-General's return, Ontario wrote and sent 128,158,000 of the 273,071,000 letters written and sent in the whole of Canada in that time. Ontario also sent nearly eighteen millions of the twenty-eight million post cards sent out by the whole of Canada.

The interest of the Whitney Government in labour is shown by its dealing with the matter of convict labour. Before the last election, Hon. J. S. Hendrie in Hamilton promised in the name of the Government, that there were to be no more prison labour contracts, no more unlabelled prison-made goods, no more competition of convicts with honest labour. But one of the first acts after the elections was to make one of the worst prison labour contracts ever made, providing that goods produced by prison labour sold by the government for 3 cents per hour should go into competition, unlabelled, with the products of honest industry. Now as another election is in prospect before long we have new promises that, after the next election the products of Central Prison labour will not be put into competition with free labour. A government which has broken its promise, has made it easier to break another. It has had the benefit of practice.

Luckily the creek was not very deep in that spot and he succeeded in reaching shore in safety after breaking a considerable area of the ice.

Malt Beverages Have Real Food Value

Though mistaken zeal sometimes classes beer* with the intoxicants, common sense and medical knowledge will teach you its real worth as an item of daily diet.
For beer is four times as rich in food elements as potatoes, nearly as rich as fresh wheat bread, and its proteids (body-builders) reach the stomach in the form easiest digested.
The very small proportion of alcohol in Ontario beers helps the other food to digest quickly and easily.
Quit thinking of beer as an intoxicant—learn how valuable it is for people with weak stomachs or slack digestions.
*Beer is a term which covers lager, ales porter, and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, healthful beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley also best in the British malt, hops, and pure water.

THE RIGHT MEDICINE FOR PELVIC TROUBLES FOUND IN PE-RU-NA.

MRS. CAROLINE KRAMER, Fort Collins, Col., writes:

"The majority of women who are suffering from disordered periods and other pelvic troubles, have such strong faith in doctors that they allow them to experiment on them for kidney, liver or stomach troubles until they become completely discouraged and their money is gone.

"This was my unfortunate experience for nearly two years when my attention was called to Peruna.

"I hardly dared believe that at last I had found the right medicine, but as I kept on using it and was finally cured, I could only thank God and take courage.

"I have had most satisfying results from the use of your medicine and have advised dozens of women who were suffering with woman's ills to use Peruna and let the doctors alone.

"Those who followed my advice are better today and many are fully restored to health."

Mrs. Wilda Mooers, R. F. D., No. 1, Lents, Ore., writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe backaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that it was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties.

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna.

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman.

"All the praise is due to Peruna."

Evening Dress

THE COAT

Should always fit snugly and make the most of a man's figure. There is some little change in the cut of the "swallowtails" this season, but it is better not to follow the fads in evening dress. A narrow cuff finish is also put upon some evening coats this season.

THE TROUSERS

Should be moderately loose, so as to allow ease in dancing.

WHITE WAISTCOATS

Single or double breasted, are correct. Black waistcoats are seldom worn with evening clothes.

The Relation Of The Bible With The Modern Thought

Scriptures and Science Are Not In Conflict Says The Rev. Dr. Symonds

EVOLUTION OF RELIGION

The relations between Christianity and science, were discussed in an interesting manner by the Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, on Sunday evening, in the third of a series of sermons on the topic of "Christianity and Evolution."

The sermon dealt with the view which has been taken by many of the scientific leaders of the past and still finds acceptance with many, namely, that the discoveries of science effectually disposed of the Bible as an authentic record. One of the most striking phrases of the discourse was as follows:

"No one need find any antecedent objection to Christianity in the doctrine of evolution. I mean that no young man who becoming a student of science, finds all his text books teaching a theory of evolution—need forthwith say: 'I cannot help being convinced that evolution is true in some shape or form, and so I suppose I must give up my religion'—I think that still happens. But it need not happen."

Half a century ago the speaker explained, the views of Darwin, Haeckel and Herbert Spencer, attracted much attention and there were many who followed their beliefs and agnostics became rife. Recent years have changed this, however, said Dr. Symonds, and scientists, instead of proclaiming loudly views similar to those of their predecessors, have assumed an attitude of inquiry, and are earnestly seeking for the real truth, and the last word is yet to be spoken. Theologians, as well, now recognize that this theory of evolution, instead of being incompatible with the Biblical account of the creation, can be traced in the Bible itself, as one of the principles underlying the dealings of God with the world.

"It may safely be said," continued Dr. Symonds, "that this antagonism of science with faith is rapidly passing away. I do not know of any theologian of recognized standing who would assert that Christianity is irreconcilable with the doctrine of evolution. On the contrary, Christianity itself is being interpreted in terms of evolution.

Honest Doubters

"Nevertheless, I am sure, there are still a large number of people who are honest doubters, because they feel they cannot be both evolutionists and Christians. And it to them that I address myself this evening. There are various ways in which our subject might be treated. Of these that which seems to me likely to be most useful is to try and point out that there is nothing in the Bible, interpreted as a whole, or in Christianity, which is antagonistic to the conception or idea of development. The thought of development, and even a doctrine of development can be traced in the Bible. I do not of course, mean to affirm that Darwinism finds any foothold in the Bible. But the general idea of development of which Darwinism is one special application, is certainly not antagonistic to the Bible or Christian history."

Proceeding to show development in the history of Judaism, Dr. Symonds considered it as a factor in the growth of Christianity.

"Our Lord's teaching," said the preacher, "occasioned a great deal of perplexity. It was not like the teaching of the Scribes and Pharisees which was mainly a repetition of a tradition. But it was fresh, original and new. By and by people divided, as in such cases they usually do, into two camps. The Pharisees felt that here was teaching which cut across their teachings, and they adopted a position of antagonism. The laymen, as we should call them, who had less reverence for the traditions of the elders, heard him gladly. But neither party quite understood our Lord's actual position. And so in the sermon on the Mount He cried, "Think not that I am come to destroy, but to fulfil." Here, as it seems, we have a remarkable endorsement of the principle of development. Christ did not call the work destruction. He regards it as the fulfilment of what was implied in the Old Testament scriptures and laws. This is a fulfilment by development. The old law growing into the new law. Christianity, not an absolutely new religion, but the development to their highest and most fruitful point of what was all the time concealed in the Hebrew Law.

"Nor did Christ ever give in informal and unchangeable terms a creed. He compares his own teaching also to a seed sown in the world, there to take root, and itself to grow and develop."

Dr. Symonds pointed out that the main object of the Epistle to the Hebrews was to show the essential superiority of the revelation of the new covenant to that of the old. Nevertheless, the old was a real revelation, only it came through imperfect man, the prophets. The new is superior because it comes through a Son of God. Yet the author of the Epistle holds firmly that there is a continuity between the old and the new, and continuity with improvement implies development.

A New Conception

"I think you can see then," said Dr. Symonds, "that the principle of development is not foreign to the Christian religion as it is, for example, to Mohammedanism.

"If you will try and correlate evolution and Christianity you will find that it can be done, and that a new and striking conception of revelation of the Bible, of Christ, of the History of the Church will be yours. You will not have solved every difficulty, but you will have ground for faith, for an enthusiastic Christianity, and you may, if your mind runs to both science and religion, as is not seldom the case, find a stimulating and profitable (profitable to yourself and others), exercise in working out some one or other point in this relationship of Christianity to science."

With regard to the intellectual side of Christianity, Rev. Dr. Symonds said: "Christianity is not simply a thing of the emotions and of the will, but it is essentially a reasonable religion. We are bidden not only to love the Lord our God with all our heart and with all our strength, but with all our mind.

"But merely to remove obstacles or to make you feel that Christianity has something to say for itself from the viewpoint of intellect is very far from my end. From the bottom of my heart I hold that Christianity is a message from God, a message of eternal salvation. It is the universal religion, destined to overcome every obstacle and to draw all men to the feet of its Lord and Master, Jesus Christ."

GETTING INFORMATION ABOUT POWER

One of Engineers Of Hydro-Electric Commission in the City

Mr. H. G. Acres of Toronto, one of the engineers of the Hydro-Electric Commission, has been in the city for the past two days getting some information about the city's supply of electric power, for the benefit of the Commission. He met the special committee appointed by the Council to deal with the matter, composed of the Mayor and Ald. Bradburn and Stevenson, this morning, and an important consultation took place, the details of which it would be premature to publish just at present.

Pale, Anaemic, Sickly Girls

REGAIN COLOR, HEALTH, AND VIGOR WHEN THE BLOOD IS ENRICHED BY

Your mirror will tell you if you are anaemic, for the unnatural pallor of your gums, lips and eyelids will indicate the thinness and weakness of the blood.

Anaemia is most common among young women and is marked by pallor weakness, indigestion, irritability, spells of dizziness and fainting, heart palpitation, severe headaches and feelings of extreme exhaustion.

The blood is lacking in the elements which go to form energy, vigour and strength and demands such assistance as is best supplied by Dr Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure sharpens the appetite, invigorates the nerves which control the digestive fluids, strengthens the heart's action and naturally and gradually restores the sufferer from weak blood to health, strength and vigour.

The headaches and eyeaches of pale nervous school girls, of office girls, and of factory employees, are largely the result of thin, watery blood, and will disappear when the blood is enriched and the system built up by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. D. Hobbins, 420 Charlotte street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"My daughter was troubled with a weak fluttering heart. The least excitement seemed to aggravate her trouble, and at times she had severe racking headaches. She became so bad that it affected her nervous system and she felt miserable most of the time. Through the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food her condition is entirely changed. Her nerves are steady, the headaches are gone and the action of the heart is strong and regular. We have every reason to give the credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Put this great restorative to the test by noting your increase in weight while using it.

Dr Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

FIRST SOLID BRICK HOUSE MOVED

Mr. Allan McCarthy Performs a Feat of Which He is Proud

Mr. Allan McCarthy has finished the moving of the first solid brick house ever transported in its entirety in the city and is naturally somewhat elated over the exploit. The building in question was one of those on the line of the extension of Aylmer street and was moved several hundred feet unto a lot purchased by Mr. LaPlante. The moving of the heavy building was the labour of ten days, but it has been safely carried overland and deposited on its new resting place as good as ever. The family living in the house moved out while the operation of moving the building was going on, but Mr. McCarthy states that they could have lived in the house all the time and it could have made no difference in the result. Mr. McCarthy has recently added some improved and modern apparatus to his equipment and is now prepared for all kinds of contracts in the house moving line.

BROOMHALL'S WEEKLY REPORT

Seeding Going on at Various Places—Crops Favourable in Some Countries

(J. R. Heintz & Co. Special.)

Liverpool, Nov. 26. — Broomhall's weekly foreign crop summary says:

United Kingdom and Italy—Seeding is making good progress under good weather conditions.

France—Seeding is about finished: supplies are liberal.

Spain—The outlook for seeding continues favourable.

Germany—Various complaints are heard as a result of drought, vermin and cold weather, and supplies are only fair.

Austria and Hungary—As a result of the recent rains the outlook is more favourable.

Roumania—The weather is mild and rainy, which is favourable for wheat; stocks at the port and on barges are large, but in the interior stocks are practically exhausted.

Russia—There is no change in the outlook. Ports continue to sell wheat to the interior.

Argentine—Our agent reports that conditions in the north are less favourable, as dry weather is wanted.

Australia—Our agent at Sidney cables that a marked improvement has been noticed in the districts where wheat was planted late.

EQUIPMENT OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Address in North Monaghan by Inspector Lees on December 2nd

A combined meeting of the ratepayers of the four North Monaghan public schools will be held in the town hall of that township on Monday night, Dec. 2nd, to listen to an address by Inspector Richard Lees on the necessity for proper equipment in the schools. The inspector will point out the relationship of school equipment to the education of the children and show the benefits that might be derived by the parents by securing the proper equipment. He will also probably touch on the question of how assistance may be obtained from the Government in installing libraries.

NOTABLE MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Of Special Value to Many People Here in Peterborough

One of the most notable discoveries and one that undoubtedly appeals more than anything else to many people here in Peterborough is the combination of stomach remedies in the Mi-o-na treatment. This prescription has worked wonders, and there is now no excuse for anyone suffering with indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts specifically upon the muscles of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten. It also increases the flow of gastric joulces, thus getting from the food the nourishment that is necessary for health and energy.

The symptoms of indigestion are numerous, such as distress after eating, flatulence, heart-burn, sick headaches, dizziness and irritability. These are all dispelled by a few doses of Mi-o-na when the trouble is recent, but just as surely in long-standing and chronic cases if the treatment is followed for a reasonable length of time.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by Wm. Madill under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it should fail to cure.

THE RECEPTION WAS POSTPONED

On account of the illness of the president of St. Luke's A. Y. P. A., Mr. H. C. M. Potter, who is confined in the Nicholls Hopital with muscular rheumatism, the proposed reception of the young people of the congregation, which was to be held on Friday, December 6th, has been indefinitely postponed so that Mr. Potter might be able to be present.

Old Peterboro' Boy Back To Start Business in City

Mr. Ed. Jones Returns After Spending Nine Years in The West.— Conditions Bad There Just Now—Crops Were Poor

OPTIMISTIC FOR FUTURE

Mr. Ed. Jones, an old Peterborough boy and a brother-in-law of Mr. W. E. Wasson, has returned to the city after spending nine years in the Canadian Northwest, and will start in the livery business here in a short time, having purchased the business carried on by Mr. Bolan, Simcoe street. Mr. Jones is very well-known in the city and has a large number of friends who will gladly welcome him back to Peterborough.

Mr. Jones states that things are in bad shape in the West just now due to the fact of a part of the crops having failed, and also owing to the financial stringency. The banks refuse to lend any money and as a result a number of people are in trouble. Mr. Jones is, however, very optimistic of the future, and believes that next year will see a big improvement, and that the conditions will soon right themselves. He has been for the past three years in the livery business in Alameda, and he states that the crops in that neighbourhood were a failure this year. Early in the season the prospects were grand, but the crops were caught by the frost and ruined.

Mr. Jones intends to enlarge the plant of his new business by installing at least one new cab. He is bringing six horses from the West, some fine animals, which are expected to arrive to-day.

Last evening a social evening was held in the Salvation Army Hall, on Simcoe street, which proved to be a very enjoyable and profitable evening for the Band. Refreshments were served by the lady members of the Band, after which plans were made for the coming year. A year ago a meeting of a similar kind was held, and plans were set for this year; last night these plans were reviewed, and it was found that the Band had not only carried out the plans but had gone over the mark and has had a far more successful year than was anticipated. There have been many changes during the year, but the Band is in a better standing to-day than ever before, and Bandmaster Greene with the bandsmen is determined to make next year better than any previous.

This year no less than $1,000 has been spent on the band. The band has purchased 7 first-class new instruments besides having the whole set of instruments silver-plated. The band heartily appreciate the way in which the citizens have supported it in enabling it to spend this amount. Arrangements were made last night to go in for a new summer uniform for the band. This the men will purchase themselves.

It will be remembered that the band took a 10 day tour through Eastern Ontario last summer. This was such a large success that the band has been asked to make a prolonged tour next summer visiting Montreal, Ottawa and several of the large towns down east. Arrangements were also made for the Christmas serenading which always proves a great financial help to the band.

The band was pleased to welcome again to their midst Bro. T. Cunningham. He will take his place again as a bandsman and also Bro. W. Leadar, who will again take up his instrument after undergoing an operation for appendicitis. The money raised by the serenading effort this year will go towards clearing off the liabilities that are left for the silver plating of the instruments. After the meeting it was believed by all present that the band is on a better footing than ever, and Bandmaster Greene and the bandsmen are determined to make it better than ever before.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BROTHERHOOD

Officers Elected at St. Luke's Last Night —Reports Were Encouraging

The annual meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in connection with St. Luke's church was held last night. Mr. Arthur Kingdon the director, was in the chair. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt was present and opened the proceedings with devotional exercises. The annual report was presented by the director and was a resume of the year's work and showed many encouraging features of the year's work. After the regular routine business the election of officers was proceeded with resulting as follows:—

Director—Mr. Arthur Kingdon, re-elected.

Vice-Director—Mr. Jas. Ball.

Secretary-Treasurer —Mr. Herbert Gerrish.

It was decided that the regular meeting would be held every Wednesday evening after the week night service, instead of on Tuesday evenings as before.

GRAND DANCE HELD AT LINDSAY

Local People Attended a Most Successful Affair

A number of Peterborough people attended a very delightful dance held in Lindsay last night, the arrangements for which were made by two old Peterborough boys, Messrs. Jack Meehan and George Pope. The success of the affair reflected great credit upon the two young men who did everything in their power to make the function enjoyable, and they thoroughly succeeded, if the praises of the Peterborough contingent can be accepted as a criterion. The ball was held in the town council chambers, which makes an ideal hall, and some eighty couples were present tripping the light fantastic until an early hour this morning. Charming music was supplied by a capable Lindsay orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Ruenigk, the conductor of the Sylvester band, and their playing was much appreciated. During the evening a sumptuous supper was served. The arrangements made for the dance were so perfect, and were carried out so smoothly, that the affair was voted by everybody the success of the season.

PETERBORO' FRIENDS AT CELEBRATION

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson in Toronto

The bright little home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas Henderson, over the Imperial Bank, at 443 King street west was the scene of a happy gathering yesterday afternoon and evening, when the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The rooms were decorated with flowers. Friends and relatives were present from Rochester, Palmerston and Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Henderson were the recipients of a purse of gold from the employees of the Dominion Paper Box Company, where Mr. Henderson has been employed for the past ten years.

Mr. Henderson was born in Fifeshire, Scotland, 70 years ago and came to Canada while a young man. In 1857, the year of the Indian Mutiny, Mr. Henderson married the daughter of Mr. John Keith, a well-to-do farmer of Wellington county. The couple spent their honeymoon in Toronto, coming from Guelph to Streetsville by sleigh and thence to Toronto by stage.

Mr. Henderson's mother is still living near Guelph at the good old age of ninety-seven.

Those present included their entire family, which has the wonderful record of being unbroken, not a death having occurred in fifty years, and consists of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Henderson, of Russell Hill Drive, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Prosser; Miss Eva Prosser, Miss Jessie Prosser, Mr and Mrs. A. Henderson, Miss Jessie Henderson, and the youngest member, aged three, Miss Isabel Henderson.

Others present from out of town were Miss Britton, Brantford Mrs. (Dr.) Britton East Toronto; Miss Black, Palmerston; Mrs. E. M. Allen, Peterborough; Mr. F. Thompson, who was also one of the guests at the guests at the silver wedding.

Others living who were present at the marriage were Mrs. Ironside of Aberdeen, Scotland, and Miss Keith, sister of Mrs. Henderson, matron of the Boys' Home, who was three years old at the time.—Toronto Star.

"Skidoo Night" at the roller rink brought out a good crowd last night and the contests for the Skidoo prizes were the centre of interest. The band was present and rendered suitable music for the occasion. There was quite a number of contestants for the prizes, making the task of the judges not an easy one. Miss Irene Craig won the ladies' prize, and Mr. Walter Bellegham the gentleman's.

The judges were Maurice Lowry, Howard Robinson and W. Hagerman. There was a large crowd at the rink, as the season is drawing to a close. To-night the band will be present, and on Friday night a concert will be given.

"MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM"

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram," a dramatized laugh in three acts, which ran for 300 nights at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, three months at Powers' Theatre, Chicago, and two months at the Waldorf Theatre, London, Eng., will be seen here on Saturday night only, Nov. 30th.

It is a farce in the strictest sense of the word. There is not a dull moment in the play. It is all froth, and it bubbles continually. Once the machinery for complications is set in motion, it works to its fullest capacity, with the result that one ridiculous incident crowds another, and on several occasions that happiest success of a real farce, the creation of a ludicrous anticipation of what is coming next, is supplied. (We are so accustomed to farces having more or less risque since we have been borrowing most of them from the French, that we are more or less surprised when we meet one that is not. "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is purely a play of cross purposes and concerns the efforts of a husband to explain to his wife where he spent the previous night. The accident which kept him from home, and his conduct, are quite innocent; he wants to tell her the truth about it, and does. He was taking a ride in a Ferris wheel and the machinery got out of order so that he was poised in midair until the thing was able to move again. The truth, so very strange, does not convince his wife, and he tells her a lie which she accepts more readily; but she tries to prove to herself that he had told her the truth about staying with a friend and missing the last car, and from the little fib is developed a series of "whoppers" which grow appalling in size and intensity as the play proceeds. Finally, a very ample explanation and the assurance of the husband's friend's wife, satisfy everybody and they all go to dinner. The play is beautifully staged and the company presenting the farce is exceedingly clever and well balanced. The New York production will be presented.

DOCTORS AND DRUGS FAILED HER

ECZEMA TORTURED HER.

Then She Tried "Fruit-a-tives" and They Cured Her.

Skin disease is always due to impure blood. It is the duty of the skin, bowels and kidneys to rid the system of tissue waste. When there is anything wrong with the kidneys or bowels, the skin tries to do extra work and breaks down under the strain. Sometimes the skin is attacked by germs, which, because of its weakened condition, it is unable to resist. Ointments and lotions, and dusting powders, and medicated soaps are useless in Eczema, because they treat only the outside skin. "Fruit-a-tives" cure, because they go to the root of the trouble, they purify the blood. They act on the liver—regulate the kidneys and bowels—soothe and stimulate the skin—and so purify and enrich the blood that disease germs are thrown off—the itching, bleeding surfaces healed—and the whole system is built up and strengthened.

"I had dreadful Eczema on my face, arms and head. I was advised to take 'Fruit-a-tives' to purify the blood and I am very thankful that I took this medicine. When I had taken two bottles, the rash was entirely gone, the pain in the back left, and my complexion is clearer than it has been for years. Before I used this medicine, I had used many kinds of salves and took quantities of medicines, but these did me no good. But 'Fruit-a-tives' at once did me good—and they entirely took away the fearful rash." Mrs. F. Maillot, 24 Union Street, Ottawa, Ont. At druggists.

CHANCE FOR FRIENDS OF O.R.F.U. CHAMPIONS

The championship Rugby team is booked to go to Montreal on Saturday to play with the team of that city, Inter-Provincial champions.

This proposed jaunt is taken reluctantly and with the certainty of professionalizing the local team. It is regarded as a necessity—as the only means in sight by which the local team can close the season with a clear financial record. Owing to lack of local support during the season the team has a liability of about $200 to meet.

In order to save the sporting credit of the city and to show appreciation of the splendid record of the champions, the Examiner on its own responsibility, will accept, on behalf of the Club, any contributions intended to meet the financial obligations the Club rests under. Already public-spirited citizens, voluntarily and without solicitation, have pledged sums amounting to nearly $50. If between the present and to-morrow night, additional pledges to make up the required amount are received, the team will be informed and the amounts pledged placed at their disposal.

This step is taken without consultation with the Club and out of pure interest in their welfare and with a desire to give opportunity for the public of Peterborough to show their appreciation in a practical way and to save the sporting credit of the city.

HAS LAKEFIELD SOME "BLIND PIGS"?

It is Reported That 500 Gallons of Beer Were Imported Last Week

The efficiency of local option is estimated by the extent to which popular respect is paid to the prohibition it represents. Reports come from Lakefield that during last week ninety-two five-gallon kegs of beer, or, in round numbers, five hundred gallons, were imported into the village. Some of this, of course, was for private consumption, which, it is understood, the law permits, but it is asserted that no small proportion was distributed in some kind of a commercial way through the agency of what are commonly called "blind pigs."

Some Results of Torpid Liver

Headache, bad taste in the mouth, indigestion, feelings of fullness and discomfort, constipation, backache, kidney derangements and bodily pains, are some results of a torpid, sluggish liver. By their extraordinary influence on the liver Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively remove the cause of these ailments and disorders.

PIMPLES

ALTHOUGH, NOT A DANGEROUS DISEASE, ARE A VERY TROUBLESOME AND UNSIGHTLY AFFLICTION . . .

They are caused by either poverty or impurity of the blood and require the prompt use of a good blood medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters, for their eradication, which it speedily accomplishes, at the same time strengthening the entire system. Pimples also often arise from dyspepsia and constipation, and in these cases Burdock Blood Bitters has the double effect of removing the pimples together with their cause.

Mr. D. P. Samson, Cascade, Que., writes: "I was troubled with pimples all over my face and hands. I paid out money to doctors but they could do me no good. A friend suggested me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using two bottles the pimples vanished, and I have not been troubled with them since."

Burdock Blood Bitters may be procured at all Druggists and Dealers.

REPETITION OF WORK OF WANT AD. COLUMN

Another proof of the efficiency of the Examiner want ads. is now at hand. In last night's issue appeared an ad. referring to the loss of a lady's gold watch. It doesn't take much time to get back your time-piece, when a lost ad. is placed in the Examiner.

MURDERER REVEALED BY A DREAM

Police Unearth Fiendish Crime at Oakland, California.

BODY BURIED IN QUICKLIME

Husband Charged With Wife Murder —Made Advances to the Woman Whose Dream Led to His Arrest —Saw the Dead Woman's Body Lying in a Shed — Prisoner Offered Her Poisoned Water.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 27.—The police of Oakland Monday unearthed a most diabolical crime and have taken into custody M. A. Wilkins, a stationery engineer, and will charge him with the murder of his wife, whose body was found buried in quicklime underneath a shed in the yard of the Wilkins' home in Elmhurst, a suburb of Oakland.

It was shown that Mrs. Wilkins had given birth to a child, and Wilkins stated that she had gone to the home of her parents in the east.

A friend of the dead woman, Mrs. J. M. Anderson of San Francisco, had been staying at the Wilkins' home during the past few days and now asserts that Wilkins had endeavored to induce her to leave her husband and go with him. Her suspicions became aroused and Monday night in a dream she saw the body of her former friend lying on the ground, with the arms crossed over the breast. She returned to San Francisco and informed her husband, and the two told the story to the Oakland police. The result was the finding of the body in a trench under an old carpet in the shed, lying as described by Mrs. Anderson.

Wilkins at first said his wife had committed suicide. Later he asserted she had died during childbirth and that he had buried the body to save expense.

Mrs. Anderson says that she was awakened from her singular dream by Wilkins, who was standing over her with a knife in his hand. When she asked what he meant, he replied that she had been talking wildly in her sleep. He put away the knife and asked her to take a drink of water. She sipped some of the water, but did not swallow it, suspecting that it had been poisoned. This proved to be the fact.

JAPANESE IMMIGRATION.

Mr. Lemieux Receives Assurances From Hayashi as to Limit.

Tokio, Nov. 27.—Rodolphe Lemieux, Canadian Postmaster-General and Minister of Labor, yesterday had a conference lasting three hours with Minister of Foreign Affairs Hayashi, at which the emigration problem was discussed.

It is understood that he received assurances that the Japanese Government is now engaged in planning the limitation of emigration to Canada.

The opinion is entertained here that after the return of Kieki Yiro Ishii, chief of the Bureau of Commerce of the Foreign Office, the Government will announce its decision to limit the emigration of all classes of Japanese to America, pending the adjustment of the existing differences.

A meeting of the various emigration companies, at which the situation will be discussed, has been called to convene at the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday, Dec. 3.

Lost at Sea.

St. Pierre, Miq., Nov. 27.—Fears are entertained for the safety of the French fishing vessel Angler, which left St. Pierre two months ago for France. Aboard the vessel were 75 men, bound home, and since leaving port nothing had been heard of her.

PARTY NUMBERED ONLY NINE

Attacked Seaport Town of Brazil—Little Band Was Well Armed—Met by Police and Citizens Who Offered Desperate Resistance — One of Attacking Party Killed, Another Was Made Prisoner.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 27.—A Brazilian, Sebastine De Magali, who recently published in some American newspapers a proclamation inviting subscriptions to aid an expedition in overthrowing one of the states of Brazil, landed Sunday at Bahia and later embarked on a tugboat with four Canadians and four Englishmen for the town of Ilheos, a seaport about 125 miles distant from Bahia.

Arriving there, the little band, which was well armed, attacked the town, when a detachment of police and a number of inhabitants offered resistance.

One of the attacking party was killed and another made prisoner. The rest of the party fled after having cut the telegraph communications.

GERMAN BUDGET INCREASED.

Deficit Expected In Current Year—Prussian Diet Opens.

Berlin, Nov. 27.—The Prussian Diet opened yesterday in the White Hall of the palace. Prince Von Buelow, the Imperial Chancellor, in the Emperor's absence, read the speech from the throne, during which he declared that the growth of permanent expenditures had increased the budget by over $25,000,000.

The Chancellor said that a deficit is expected in the current year owing to the increased expenses in the railroad administration and that the Government would have to resort to a loan for extending the railroad system, the building of new roads, double-tracking of old lines and for the buying of additional rolling stock.

The speech foreshadows a bill authorizing the Government to acquire Polish estates by condemnation proceedings under the law of eminent domain. This measure, which was actively discussed some months ago, is expected to re-open the agitation over the Polish question in an acute form. The Government's project has been criticized by even the leading Conservative organs.

The speech from the throne expresses the Government's conviction that both Houses of the Diet will give active co-operation in the settling of this "grave national question."

Famine in Turkey.

New York, Nov. 27.—Famine prevails in Turkey, according to a cable despatch received by The Christian Herald from Secretary Peet, representative in Turkey of the American board of foreign missions, and made public yesterday.

The despatch comes from Philippopolis and reads: "Harvest generally light here and in neighboring countries. Advices show grain for winter and seed already exhausted in many places. Many people will die unless relief comes soon. (Signed) Peet."

20 YEARS ECZEMA CURED BY ZAM BUK

Mr. W. H. Lennon, of Wychwood, Ont., says: "For 20 years I suffered from Eczema. My body and legs were covered with spots which itched and irritated terribly. My legs down to the knee were like one mass of sores. These discharged and were very unpleasant apart from the pain. I had tried all kinds of remedies (salves, ointments and embrocations) and came to the conclusion there was no cure for me. A sample of ZAM-BUK was given to me one day, and I applied it to a small patch of the eczema. This did me some good and I obtained a full supply of the balm. The first box was a revelation to me as to ZAM-BUK'S power. It took away the smarting and reduced the irritation and itching. It took several boxes of ZAM-BUK to work a cure, and I am glad to say that in a few weeks it cured me completely. In my opinion, ZAM-BUK IS WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD."

All Skin Diseases yield to Zam-Buk Herpetic Sores, Burns and Bruises rapidly and Blood Poisoning, Piles, Rheumatism and Sciatica, Scratches, etc. disappear at ZAM-BUK'S touch. If it is "Well rubbed in," 50c a box at all druggists and stores.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $800 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $8000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

BASKET BALL GAMES TO-NIGHT

Two Good Matches Promised At The Y.M.C.A.—Tigers Team

To-night the first games in the Y. M.C.A. basketball league will be played and two lively games should result. The Arrows and Alerts will clash at 8 o"clock sharp, and the Tigers will meet the Harriers. Great interest is being taken in the games and no doubt a large gallery will follow the play.

The Tigers will line up as follows:
Forwards—Sutherland and Wallace.
Centre—H Staunton.
Backs—P Weatherston and F Hall.

JUNIOR TEAM ARE TO ORGANIZE

Will Form a League if The Plan Seems Feasible

There will be a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening of this week at 8 o"clock for the purpose of forming a junior city league and all teams whose average age is sixteen, are urgently asked to be represented. The following teams should be represented: Y.M.C.A., Invincibles, Northern Lights, Chieftains, Knox Church, All Saints', Grace Sunday school and any other teams wishing to enter are asked to be present.

OTONABEE HOCKEYISTS ORGANIZE

Will Enter Team in Junior City League —The Otonabee River is Their Rink

The hockey fever has now spread outside the city limits and has now reached Otonabee township, where a club known as the Otonabee hockey club, has been organized. The team will be composed of youthful members, and they will enter a team in the Junior City League, should one be formed on Friday night. The boys have had their first taste of the game on Boyler's creek, near the Locks bridge. The practice rink will be the Little Lake and the Otonabee River, so that they will have all kinds of speed by the time any games are on. Jimmy McMartin, who ran second in the Examiner road race, will be one of the players. The officers elected are as follows:

Hon. Pres., J. J. Howden.
Hon. Vice-Pres., W. G. Howden.
President, Jas. Rose.
1st Vice-Pres., A. Rose.
2nd Vice-Pres., Sylvester Shaughnessey.
Sec.-Treas., D. Rose.
Manager, B. T. Huston.

REYNOLDS COMING ON FRIDAY

Ready To Meet Hartley in Two Hour Walk—Tug Of War Between Painters And Barbers

Jimmy Reynolds, the Port Hope barber, will be here on Friday night, and ready to walk David Hartley for two hours in the Brock street rink. Reynolds is still game for another jaunts and thinks that he can defeat the local man. Mr. George Stevens, the East City manager of Hartley, has heard from Port Hope.

Arrangements are being made to have the barbers of the city and the band meet Jimmy at the station, and there will also be a tug of war between the barbers and the painters in the rink the night of the walk.

Samuel Brooks the fast Toronto walker, is also expected to be here, and may attempt to lower the colours of the other men.

HARTLEY DESERVED THE VICTORY

Port Hope Guide Says That Local Man Did Better Work

The big walking event between Hartley and Reynolds, which has been the topic of conversation for weeks, is over, and Hartley, the Peterborough man, carried off the honours, winning in the 12-hour contest by exactly one mile. This seems a lot on paper, but when it is considered that on the 12 hours it only means about ten minutes, the margin is very narrow. It was a close race and both men made an exceptionally fine walk. Hartley did the better work and is deserving of his victory, and the opinion of the Port Hopers is that he is a walking wonder. Reynolds is defeated, but by no means disgraced, and his many supporters are well pleased with the showing made.

The Toronto men in charge of the race used very poor judgment as to the admission fee. Standing room was placed at 50 cents and seats at 75 cents without the privilege of a pass out check. The result was that the gate receipts amounted to only $468. Of this amount 50 per cent. was equally divided between the two walkers, each receiving $117. Had the general admission been placed at 25 cents, and $1 with pass out checks, it is safe to say that Saturday's receipts would have been three times as large.—Port Hope Guide.

A RUGBY PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

Every Man is Expected to be Out At Riverside Park

The Peterborough Rugby Team had a good practice last night in the Y. M.C.A. gymnasium in preparation for the big game in Montreal on Saturday. The boys will be out to-night at the Riverside Park and every player must be on hand, as only hard practicing this week, will give the locals a chance against the Easterners. The Montreals have not been training as they did in the early part of the season, and they will not be keyed up to concert pitch when they go on the field on Saturday. If the Peterboroughs are in condition they may catch the homesters napping and pull out a victory. At any rate they will have more chance than they would have if they go down to Montreal not in shape.

KNOCKER CLUB WAS ORGANIZED

Will Play Independent Hockey This Winter

On Monday night the "Knocker" Hockey Club reorganized for the winter and decided to keep the same officers as last year. They are:

President—Bert Holland.
Treasurer—Bert Moncrief.
Manager—A. Cranfield.

A captain will be chosen at a later date. All of last year's team are expected to be out under the old colours, and the Knockers should have a strong independent team.

AUSTRALIANS WANT CANADIAN HEADACHE CURE

When the family of Mr. A. O. Norton, the Jack manufacturer of Boston, and owner of the King Copper Mine in this province, were travelling in Europe last year they met a party of people from Australia, several of whom were sufering during their travels from severe headaches. It appears also that Mr. Norton and his family also carry a supply of Zutoo Tablets, the well known Canadian headache cure, and that Miss Norton distributed some of these tablets amongst the Australians. Now she is receiving letters from people in Australia asking where they can get a supply of the Tablets which they found so effectual in curing their headaches, and, at the same time so harmless. We might add that these are the same Zutoo Tablets that are advertised in our columns.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

In another column will be found a notice to junior hockey teams to the effect that a meeting is to be held on Friday night for the purpose of organizing a Junior City Hockey League. The name of the organization is liable to cause confusion. The clubs interested want an age limit of 16 years put on, while another set of junior clubs a little older wish a limit of 18 years. It is suggested that the younger teams should call their league the Juvenile City League and the other might be called the Junior City League.

Mr. Alex. Hamilton, president of the Victorias of Toronto, whom Peterborough put out of the running for the O.R.F.U. championship, was in the city last night and watched the Peterborough team at signal practice in the Y.M.C.A. gym. He wished them every success in their game against Montreal on Saturday and expressed the hope that the locals might down the Easterners.

All the Y.M.C.A. Harriers who will take part in the big athletic meet next week are in active training for the event under the direction of Trainer "Dick" Baker. The team is in good shape, and the runners should more than make things interesting for the Irish-Canadians and other visiting contestants. McBurney of Havelock was up again last night for a spin in preparation for the mile race, and the other runners were out.

"There is a scheme on foot at the present, though it is a little early to be talking rugby for next season, to form a new rugby union to be composed of the Y. M. C. A. teams throughout Ontario. Teams will likely be formed in the West End "Y." and possibly the Central in Toronto; the Hamilton Y.M.C.A., runners up in this year's junior O. R. F. U., and an effort will be made to get teams in London, Peterborough, Dundas and Belleville, Brantford, and any other of the Y. M. C. A.'s that can be interested. It is intended to play in the junior class, and it is possible that it will be run as a branch of the O.R.F.U under separate management. Several good football men have signified their intention of pushing this thing along and everything points to a good union. A meeting will likely be called at an early date to get things under way."—Toronto Star.

The Toronto Y.M.C.A. runners are taking the greatest interest in the big athletic meet under the auspices of the Peterborough Harriers in the Brock street rink on Tuesday night, next. At the Central Y. M. C. A. there is the keenest rivalry among the men to see who will represent the Association in the three mile special and so anxious are the runners to go that the club has decided to hold a series of three mile races the winner of which will represent the Centrals in the match against West Ends, Irish-Canadians and Peterborough. The first contest took place on Monday night and the Star has the following to say of the contest:—

Central Y.M.C.A. track was the scene of an interesting little match race last night when Harry Smith and Bredin Galbraith ran three miles to decide who would go to the Peterborough indoor meet Dec. 3rd, for the three-mile event. Galbraith eliminated Smith, beating him 20 seconds. Galbraith's time was 16 minutes. Bert Goldsboro, J K Lister and W B Howard will run Wednesday night.

Mr. Jas. Reynolds returned home from Toronto last evening, and is feeling first class after his long 12-hour tramp against Hartley at the Mutual street rink. Jimmy says the undertaking was a tiresome one, and he prefers a straight away walk on the road. His leg, which he bruised badly in the Port Hope-Toronto walk, bothered him all the time, and at five o'clock on Saturday evening it was swollen and very sore. It kept him back considerably, but he does not wish to offer any excuses. Hartley, he says, is a clever, game walker, a first class opponent, and deserved the victory.—Port Hope Guide.

THE PLANETARIUM ILLUSTRATED

Splendid Meeting of The Royal Astronomical Society At Home of Mr. Collier

CLOUDY FOR TELESCOPE

The meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society at the home of Mr. Herbert Collier, Weller street, last evening, proved to be one of the most enjoyable in the history of the society. Though the weather was quite inclement, a large and very enthusiastic number of the amateur astronomers assembled in the parlours.

Through the very skilful leadership of the president, Dr. Marsh, many lively discussions took place, and dozens of questions covering a wide range of astronomy were answered in simple and lucid terms. The freedom of speech was remarkable, and led to the discovery and correction of a number of formerly wrong impressions of simple matters. This form of class study proved extremely beneficial to every person, whether a new student or one more advanced in the study. The night being cloudy it was found impossible to use the new telescope of the society, and this pleasure awaits the next meeting.

The demonstration of how the earth and moon and the other nearby planets revolve about the sun proved most instructive. By means of the Planetarium, Dr. Marsh was able to show, clearly, and all were able to see at a glance just how these heavenly bodies move. This unique mechanism seems more marvellous the better one understands how varied the motions of the planets are and how accurately these are shown. To be told that the earth travels around the sun at the rate of eighteen miles per second with never a bump or a jar, and that the moon is so kind as to accompany it in all this long journey, does not seem comprehensible until actually seen in the Planetarium.

The line of procedure lately followed by the society has been to encourage personal study at home and general discussion in the meetings, thus developing class work. This is being proven most interesting and much more beneficial. It is understood that the society will soon enter upon the practical work of "star-gazing," as the layman expressed it.

An invitation was extended to the society last evening to meet on Friday, December 13, in the green drawing-room of the Y.W.C.A.

ENTRY LIST CLOSES ON FRIDAY

Havelock will be well represented as one man has already asked for 25 reserved seats.

The entries are to be left with the secretary, E. M. Glover, at the Examiner office.

Music And Drama

THE BURGOMASTER

Gus Weinburg and dainty Ruth White, will head the big revival of "The Burgomaster," which Wm. Cullen will present at the Grand, Monday evening, December 2nd.

These two clever people are the originals in the roles of Peter Stuyvesant, governor of New Amsterdam, who sleeps for 200 years and awakes to find himself in modern New York, and of Willie, the gilded youth, who essays to show him round the town. The costumes for the revival are all new, and are the handsomest, it is said, of any musical comedy now touring. The scenery is all new, some of the scenes having been changed. "The Burgomaster" was the first of the Pixley & Luder's popular successes to gain favour. It is in a class with "Robin Hood," and the "Prince of Pilsen" for tunefulness, and many of the numbers have come to be known as classic. "The Tale of the Kangaroo," "I Love You," the famous Indian chorus, "The Rainy Daisies," and other songs, have a tilt that send the auditor from the theatre whistling merrily. Miss White has written a new song which the experts claim will be a large seller. The chorus, which is a very large one, has been selected especially for its singing and dancing ability. Mr. Cullen will be remembered as the producer of the Burgomaster, and the Tenderfoot.

Danger in Farming.

"Dollar Wheat" is fine for farmers, but they take long chances with their health in getting the wheat. Bad weather, lifting, straining, wrenched backs, lay the foundation for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble. There is a farmer, out Markham way, who was so busy making money that he did not realise he was making ill-health at the same time. He had headaches; often his back hurt so badly he could hardly stand, often the urine was highly colored and scalding. But he thought he was only "working too hard." One day he caught cold. The next day he had Rheumatism. This Markham farmer suffered 7 years with Rheumatism until chance brought a friend who told him about Bu-Ju. They relieved the excruciating pain, and cured him in three months.

MARKHAM, ONT.

"I had suffered almost continually for seven years with Kidney Trouble; could scarcely walk and was unable to attend to my farm duties. After taking the first few pills I felt much relieved, and after taking half a box was able to do a full day's work. I know one box of Bu-Ju saved me $50.00 Doctor's bill, and think they are the finest Pill made." JAMES ARNETT.

STARTLING DISCOVERY MADE BY POLICE OFFICER THIS MORNING; WOMAN DEAD FOR THREE DAYS

P. C. Newhall Breaks Open The Doors—Remains and Surroundings Viewed by Examiner Reporter—Death Due to Coal Gas

Within a few feet of busy George street, Mrs. Kerr, an aged woman, who has been earning her living by doing charwork in several of the local hotels, was found dead in bed, from asphyxiation, this morning, having lain there for at least twenty-four hours, and probably longer. She had not been seen since Monday by those for whom she worked, and may have been dead since Monday night. The fact that nothing had been seen of her during the week, aroused the suspicions of those for whom she worked that something was wrong, and they communicated the fact to the police, with the result that her lifeless body was discovered by P. C. Newhall a few minutes before noon, to-day, after that officer had forced in the doors of the room in which she had lived, over the rear of R. A. Dutton's store.

Missed Since Monday

The unfortunate woman had been living alone in the rooms, and during the day worked for several of the hotels, one of them being the American Hotel. It was from them that the information came that she was missing, and that it was feared that something was wrong. The message came into the police station, and P. C. Newhall hastened to the premises, which are entered by means of the lane in the rear. The officer found the door into the lane locked, but by breaking a pane of glass he was able to insert his hand, and turn the key, which had been left in the door, and ascend the stairs into the kitchen. Between that room and the sleeping apartment there was another door, also locked, and the officer had to force it in to get entrance into the room, where he found Mrs. Kerr lying dead on the bed. A glance was sufficient to tell the officer that she had passed away, and without disturbing any of the articles in the room, he telephoned to Coroner Grey, who was on the scene in a few minutes. An Examiner reporter was on hand when the coroner arrived, and accompanied that officer and P. C. Newhall on their inspection of the premises.

The woman was found lying on her back in the bed with the bed clothes still wrapped around her, appearing to indicate that she had passed away in her sleep without a struggle, although a stream of blood had issued from her mouth, some of which was still on the face, while the rest had flowed on to the pillow, forming a large stain. Coroner Gray however, accounted for this by explaining that it was caused by gas. The cause of death was plainly asphyxiation. As soon as the reporter entered the sleeping apartment he detected the odour of coal gas and called the attention of the officers to it. An examination of the room revealed the fact that the top lid of the coal stove in the centre of the apartment had been left open, presumably accidentally. The old woman had put fresh coal on the fire, and it was still smouldering when the coroner examined the stove. It is thought that Mrs. Kerr had attended to the stove just before retiring, and had gone to sleep and to death without noticing that she had neglected to close the lid. The odour of escaping gas was still very noticeable in the room, so much so that it was a relief when P. C. Newhall threw open one of the windows and let in a draft of fresh air.

The rooms were in a state of disorder, although there was nothing to indicate that the dead woman had been in needy circumstances. At the head of the stairs there was a supply of coal and wood, enough to last for a number of days, while in the kitchen there was a quantity of food, a basket of apples, another of vegetables, and other articles to eat being noticed by the reporter. Wearing apparel and bed clothes were strewn over the floor, and furniture of the bedroom and the room was in a very untidy state. There was not much furniture, the bed upon which the dead woman lay, a table, an old lounge, and a couple of chairs being the principal articles. On a chair near the window was the hat worn by the deceased with an umbrella leaning against the wall beside it.

In the kitchen there was an old cooking stove upon which a frying pan with the fragments of a meal still in it was placed, while a large table was about the only other article of furniture in the room.

The deceased had lived in Peterborough for a very long time and was well known to a large number of local people. One son, Walter, who resides on King street, Toronto, is also well known in Peterborough, especially among those who follow athletics. He is a vendor of ribbons and never failed to attend a game in which Peterborough teams were interested. He was notified early this afternoon by telegraph off the death of his mother, who was between fifty-fifive and sixty years of age. The coroner after consulting with Crown Attorney Wood, decided that an inquest was not necessary under the circumstances and that death was due to asphyxiation.

Mr. Murray was born in Scotland, 65 years ago, and came to Hamilton in 1860. He was for some years in the grocery business but in the seventies was appointed chief clerk in the Customs House, which position he held until 1903, when he was appointed Grand Secretary of the Masonic Order. Milkman Attacked By Two Highwaymen On Road To His Home

Isaac Hetherington of Smith Now Lies Injured at His Home—Money Reported to be Gone

DARING DEED PERFORMED

Attacked by two unknown men and badly beaten was the unpleasant experience of Isaac Hetherington, milk vendor, who resides on the Fife homestead, Smith township, just outside the city limits.

While returning home on Tuesday night after covering his route, according to the report, two strange characters suddenly appeared from the roadside and attacked him fiercely. Mr. Hetherington was badly beaten by the highwaymen and it is said that he was robbed of some money.

His milk route is now being taken by a substitute who states that Mr. Hetherington will not be able to work again for a month, so seriously was he injured by the robbers.

Such acts as this are somewhat foreign to Peterborough, and if possible the daring highwaymen should be made to answer for their villainous work.

Immigrants Hurry Back To The Atlantic To Catch The Steamer

Four Train Loads of Italians And Englishmen Passed Through Peterboro' Towards The East

BACK TO THE OLD LANDS

Apparently the emigration tide is on the ebb. Anyone who was at the C. P. R. Station this morning must have been surprised to see four trains of emigrants on their way to the eastern ports to catch the next steamers for the Old World. Three of the trains had the usual number of coaches, each of which was filled, but the fourth was a very long train for passenger service, there being nine coaches.

Among the people on the trains, two nationalities were represented. There were Englishmen and Italians. Nearly all were glad they were going back, and not a few stated that they would return to Canada. The Italians, at least the majority, were merely going home to spend the winter under the sunny skies of their ancient provinces.

THIRD SESSION OF THE TENTH PARLIAMENT

The third session of the Tenth Parliament of Canada was formally opened by the Right Honourable Earl Grey, G.C.M.G., to-day, when he read the Speech from the Throne, embodying the Eleventh Programme of Legislation, presented by the Laurier Government. It forecasts a large amount of practical legislation, and a session for work on the part of the Government and its supporters. The session, on the part of the Opposition, largely assumes a pink-tea aspect—a meeting to talk scandal.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gray left for Warsaw where they will reside in future.

THE WEATHER.

The first heavy snow fall of the season occurred last night and to-day and the ground is now covered with a deep mantle of the beautiful. A number of cutters were out this morning, but the sleighing can hardly be called good yet. This is about a week earlier than last year, and the snow fall on that occasion was followed by some decidedly cold weather, the thermometer going down to 18 degrees below zero. Montreal has had good sleighing for a week or two, and many places in the northern portions of the State of New York have been listening to the jingle of sleigh bells for some little time.

THE PULPWOOD PROBLEM

It is estimated that from 500,000 to 750,000 cords of pulpwood, in the log, are exported from Quebec every year. The exports of pulp wood from this province alone, represents a large loss to Canada — not only the depletion of the pulp wood forests to this amount, but a large loss in the employment of labour, and industrial capital. The value of a cord of pulp wood in the log is placed at $6.00. Thus the money realized, the money left in the country, will be from $3,000,000 to $4,500,000. If these cords of pulp wood had been converted into pulp, as would have been practically compulsory had they been cut on Ontario Crown lands, their export value would have been respectively $10,000,000 and $20,000,000. To elucidate further — if the process of manufacture of this pulp wood had been carried to its ultimate stage, paper, the export value of each cord of wood, would have been increased from $6 to $38. That is, labour at good wages, and all the advantages that implies, would have made the export value of the paper made from this pulp wood, $19,400000 and $28,400,000, respectively; or taking the larger quantity, the gain would have been $15,400,000. By exporting 750,000 cords of pulp wood in the rough, there was lost to this country nearly fifteen and a half millions of dollars, representing that much labour, and other expenditure incident to the process of manufacturing it into paper. If the late Government of Ontario, had not wisely limited the export of our pulp resources by providing that no pulp wood should be sent out of the province in an unmanufactured condition the loss to our supply, and to our labouring and industrial interests, would have been very greatly increased.

Since Quebec and New Brunswick seem to regard the matter of ready revenue as more important than the larger question of the general interests of the Dominion, the subject is deserving of prompt attention at the hands of the Federal Government. While there may be reasonable arguments against the imposition of a prohibitory export duty, it would seem that a reasonable compromise between such a duty and unrestricted export, would be the adoption of a moderate requirement like that now imposed by Ontario. That does not seem to be an unreasonable concession to the policy of Canada for the Canadians — the lion's share of the profits accruing from the exploitation of her national resources.

ALL SICK WOMEN SHOULD READ MISS SCHWALM'S LETTER
In All Parts of Canada Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Effected Similar Cures.

Many wonderful cures of female ills are continually coming to light which have been brought about by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and through the advice of Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., which is given to sick women absolutely free of charge.

The present Mrs. Pinkham has for twenty-five years made a study of the ills of her sex; she has consulted with and advised thousands of suffering women, who to-day owe not only their health but even life to her helpful advice.

Miss Annie E. Schwalm, of 326 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a specific for female weakness with which I have been troubled for years. I also had irregular and painful periods which affected my general health until last spring. I was only a wreck of my former self. In my affliction I was advised to use your Compound, and am so glad that I did so. I found that in a few short months there was no trace of female weakness, my strength gradually returned, and in a very short time I considered myself a perfectly well woman. I appreciate my good health, and beg to assure you that I am most grateful to you for discovering such a wonderful remedy for suffering woman."

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She asks nothing in return for her advice. It is absolutely free, and to thousands of women has proved to be more precious than gold.

THE SEEDS OF CHAOS

The United States would resent the insinuation or charge that it is not a Christian country. No doubt New York would also resent the idea that it is not a Christian city in a Christian country. Yet, through its commissioners, who control the public schools of that city, it has cast out Christ, the foundation of Christianity, from the schools. A Christmas carol, or the name of Christ, is banished, by decree, from the Christian schools of the city. History has repeated itself. In spirit, the doloroous drama of Calvary has been repeated. The School Board Pilates of New York have yielded to the same cry that echoed around the Roman judgment hall two thousand years ago—"Crucify Him!"—it is heard and heeded in Christian New York. In effect, Christ has been again crucified by the School Board of New York, after having been betrayed for thirty pieces of silver. There are, it is said, 800,000 Jews in New York, and it is to court their commercial and financial influence and goodwill and financial influence and good will that the Mammon-worshipping school controllers have, in answer to the demands of the Jews, de-Christianized the city. This action is the logical sequence of a national principle that excludes everything but the thought of gain—even Christ, and the principles He represents — from the thoughts of the daily lives of the masses; when the national motive of commerce and life is expressed in the question, "Will it pay?" not "Is it right?" The commissioners, in yielding to the demands of the Hebrews of New York, set a precedent for conceding a demand for the abolition of the Christian Sunday, and thus further Judaising the country. The constitutional and legislative recognition of Sunday may at first prevent it, but also even these may yield to the lure of the thirty pieces of silver. When men in authority sow the seeds of chaos, little skill is needed to tell what the harvest will be.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne will begin in Parliament on Monday next.

The Dominion bye-elections to fill vacancies in the representation of West York and Ottawa, made by the elevation of Messrs. Campbell and Belcourt to the Senate, will be held on December 23rd.

An Ottawa despatch to the Campbelltown, N.B., Graphic, states that if the Conservatives fail to win the next Dominion election Mr. Borden will resign the leadership. He might as well have his resignation ready.

Winnipeg is a swift city in many ways. The city has grown rapidly in every way in expansion as well as everything else. The rate of taxation has increased at the rate of $300,000 a year, but the expenditure has grown at a much faster rate—at the rate of $1,200,000 a year. The Western Metropolis will have a fairly respectable mortgage resting upon it if this state of things goes on a few years more. It has, however, a great and rapidly growing country behind it, and if it continues to grow even in the matter of debt it must be prepared to meet the demands made upon it as the commercial centre and chief distributing point of the West.

GREAT RISE IN THE STAR'S CIRCULATION

(From the Montreal Star.

We are enabled to announce one of the greatest increases in the circulation of the Montreal Star that has ever occurred since it was founded thirty-eight years ago.

In sixty-five days to date, seven hundred and twenty newsdealers have increased their sales, bringing the circulation up to 64,821. This increase in circulation has all the appearance of permanency, for we are flooded with letters in support of the Star's position and attitude on public affairs.

If the eight columns on each page of Saturday's Montreal Star were placed end to end they would cover a space of 3,530 miles, or from Montreal to Vancouver, and 635 miles out into the ocean.

CITY IS IN A CLASS BY ITSELF

In Regard To Electric Lighting, Says The Toronto Globe

A writer to the Toronto Globe gives the following information about Peterborough electric lights:—

In a prominent place in to-day's Globe you intimate that a rate of nine dollars a year for lighting is impossible. I beg to inform you that I had a contract for years with the Peterborough Light and Power Company to light my house with ten sixteen-candle-power lamps for $9 a year, less 10 per cent. for prompt payment. The rate netted me 67 cents per month for ten lights, an average of less than 7 cents a month for each light. Some of my neighbours, who used a larger number of lamps, had an even lower price. You see by this that such a rate is possible.

The Globe adds that it is looking for just such facts as are presented by the writer. Is there any other place in Ontario where ten lamps of 16 candle-power can be had for $6.70 a year? It would seem as if Peterborough has a rate in a class by itself.

BETTER THAN MEDICINE

Breathe Hyomei's Tonic Healing And Be Cured of Catarrah

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, a treatment which is far better than dosing the stomach with medicines.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicates the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the only natural remedy for it gives a curative air bath to the air passages that has just as powerful healing and antiseptic effect as that found in the mountains where the pine forests give off their healing and fragrant balsams.

Breathe the invigorating and healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrhal troubles. Mr. Madill has seen so many cures even of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing, that they feel warranted in selling Hyomei under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. He takes all the risk.

A COUGH COLD IS DANGEROUS.

There are different kinds of colds, and various ways in which they affect different people. Some constitutions will throw off a light cold, while to others it will stick tenaciously. There is one kind—the kind accompanied by a cough, the kind that turns to bronchitis, the kind that ends in consumption — that should never be neglected.

Many a life history would read different if, on the first appearance of a cough, it had been remedied with

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

This syrup contains all the virtues of the "Norway Pine Tree," combined with Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Mrs. E. S. Akerly, Akerly, N.B., writes: "My little boy had such a bad cough he could not sleep at nights. I tried several remedies but nothing seemed to relieve him until I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. From the first few doses he commenced to improve, and when he had taken one bottle he was completely cured."

Be careful in purchasing to see that you get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark. Price 25 cts.

Evening Dress

THE COAT

Should always fit snugly and make the most of a man's figure. There is some little change in the cut of the "swallowtails" this season but it is better not to follow the lads in evening dress. A narrow cuff finish is also put upon some evening coats this season.

THE TROUSERS

Should be moderately loose, so as to allow ease in dancing.

WHITE WAISTCOATS

Single or double breasted, are correct. White waistcoats are seldom worn with evening clothes.

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing, every hand writing.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memo—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and spa any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 50% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 50% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

50% easier to write with than those other complicated, intricate machines that require "hammering"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Those machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the Oliver. The Oliver Typewriter Building, Chicago, Illinois.

SMALL ACCIDENT CAUSES TROUBLE

Blood Poison Sets in And Druggist May Not Recover

A simple little accident to a Millbrook druggist, Mr. Alfred Lesoir the other day, has placed him in a very critical condition, and it is not expected that he will recover. Mr. Lesoir, in climbing the steps to his store, slipped on them and grated his shins against the corners.

Blood poison has got in which has reached his body, and he is lying in a very dangerous condition.

His many friends in Peterborough will regret to learn of his sudden illness, and hope for a speedy recovery.

C.P.R. ENGINE OFF THE TRACK

Jumped The Rails This Morning Near The Station

The first snow fall of the season, is believed to have been the cause of a slight accident in the C. P. R. yards at an early hour this morning. A freight train was going east, and when it arrived at the switch a few yards west of Townsend street, the engine jumped the rails and bumped over the ties for a distance of some fifteen yards. The switch was found to be in good order, and it is believed that the snow impeded its action thus causing the trouble. The accident occurred about five o'clock this morning, and it was fortunate that the train was not going at a high rate of speed.

The men of the section east of the city were called and the road cleared in good time. The only damage done was to the ties and sidewalk, the wheels cutting deeply and smashing the light boards of the crossing.

BACK TO MOTHER'S RECIPES

After having tried all the well advertised patent medicines the public are turning to the old household receipts for treatment of incipient diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and urinary organs, which if neglected too long are almost incurable. One old remedy that has come back to popular favour is the following simple prescription: Four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce compound vimosa, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre. Any druggist will fill this at a moderate cost, or you can buy the ingredients separately and mix at home. Take a dessert spoonful in a little water after meals and at bedtime. A few doses will drive out the trouble, and save you endless pain, and money.

LEG BROKEN STEPPING OFF SIDEWALK

Accident To Patrick Coursey of Chamberlen Street

Patrick Coursey of Chamberlen street, has met with a rather serious accident, which will prevent him from working for a few weeks. On leaving his residence to go to work at the packing house, he accidentally stepped off the high sidewalk, breaking his leg. He is now confined to his bed.

Pains and Aches Of The Aged

LARGELY DUE TO DERANGEMENTS OF THE LIVER, KIDNEYS AND BOWELS, WHICH ARE OVERCOME BY

You do not feel so young as you used to. The joints are a bit stiff. And you have dull, heavy pains in the back and limbs, with attacks of rheumatism, it may be.

It is possible you have found out that the cause of trouble rests with the sluggish action of the kidneys, liver and bowels, but if you have not used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you have not tested the effective treatment for these conditions.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a comfort to the aged largely because of their unique combined action on the whole excretory system.

Constipation and biliousness can no longer exist when the liver is enlivened to action by the use of this great medicine.

Kidney derangements and backache likewise disappear when the kidneys are invigourated, and an occasional dose of these pills ensures the elimination of uric acid from the system.

Almost daily we hear of aged people whose pains and aches have been overcome and whose lives have been made more comfortable and more happy by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. James Simpson, Newcomb Mills, Northumberland County, Ont., writes: "This is to certify that I was sick in bed the most of the time for three years with kidney disease. I took several boxes of pills—different kinds—and a great many other kinds of patent medicines; besides that I was under treatment by four different doctors during the time, and not able to work. I began to take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and since that time have been working every day, although a man nearly 70 years of age. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

In every family there is need of just such a medicine as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to cure constipation, backache, biliousness, indigestion, and prevent dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—6.

A NEW CURFEW BELL SUGGESTED

Better Than Singing "Where is my Wandering Boy To-night"

The following is a suggestion offered for a home-made curfew bell:—

Every family should have a curfew which should positively "ring to-night," and every night if needed. These curfews are inexpensive and can be home made. Take a piece of siding two feet long and whittle one end down to a handle; then take the child that needs the curfew and bend him over a barrel. Now take the piece of siding and use it for a clapper. Put it on hot. Divide the stroke evenly and see that none miss. Good for a boy or girl up to the age of sixteen and applications are warranted to cure the most pronounced cases of street loafing that exists. The music that the curfew makes is finer than singing "Where is my wandering boy to-night?"

WANTED DAMAGES FOR WINDOW

Proprietor of Restaurant Wants Some Compensation

C. Q. Woo, the proprietor of the Canadian-Chinese Union, at the corner of King and George streets, invaded the police station yesterday afternoon, and in the midst of a stream of "pigeon" English, the authorities at the station were enabled to grasp the idea that the Celestial wished compensation for a door in his store, which was broken a short time ago. The young man who did the damage appeared in the police court a few days ago, and was fined a certain sum and costs. The latter, Mr. Woo thought, was coming to him, and he accordingly dropped around to the police station to collect the amount. With difficulty P. C. Newhall made him understand that he would have to sue the young man if he wanted to collect damages from him, and directed the Oriental to the clerk of the Division Court, whereupon Mr. Woo departed in search of compensation, saying that the weather was too cold for a broken door.

THE FOG SIGNAL WAS EXPLODED

Prank of Mischievous Boy Caused Some Excitement

A prank, played, it is supposed, by some mischievous boy, woke up George street yesterday afternoon more thoroughly than it has been at any time this week, the night of the Hartley reception excluded. A fog signal such as is used on the railways to notify engineers of approaching danger, was placed on the street car tracks, and when a car ran over it there was an explosion as if a bomb had been thrown in front of the car. The motorman was seen to jump into the air, while the passengers leaped to their feet in alarm. People ran out of the stores in the neighbourhood, and there was great confusion for a while. P. C. McGinty was among the first on the scene, but could find no trace of the author of the job. He blames the small boy.

CURIOUS X-RAY RESULTS

One of the most curious results of the use of the X-rays is a form of burn over the place which is subjected to the rays.

Mr. C. R. Wilson of Toronto Junction says: "Some time ago I had occasion to use the X-rays on my hand. The rays burned the back of it and left the skin in a peculiar condition. During the winter one of the knuckles so affected cracked, and it would not heal. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and to my great pleasure this balm healed the crack very quickly. I praise this skin-healer very highly and have no objection to your publishing the result of my trial of it. It is a splendid healer.

Zam-Buk cures blood poison, cuts, bruises, old wounds, running sores, ulcers, boils, piles, eruptions, scalp sores, eczema, itch, chapped hands, barber's rash, burns, scalds, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc. Sold by all druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 3 boxes for $1.25. A free sample box will be sent on application. Enclose 1c. stamp for postage.

MEETING WILL BE HELD ON SATURDAY

Important Meeting of Life Underwriters' Association

An important meeting of the Executive of the Life Underwriters' Association of Central Ontario will hold a meeting on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the offices of the Great West Life Insurance Company. Ill Temper From a bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

CONCERT BY STRANGERS' CLUB

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Annual Meeting of The Bible Class Was Held

Interesting Address on The Work Of The Society Given By The Rev. W. H. French—Satisfactory Reports Were Given

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held last night in the schoolroom of St. John's was not as largely attended as usual, but the gathering was a representative one, most of the different churches of the city having some of their number present. The meeting was a most interesting and profitable one, being marked by an able and eloquent address by Rev. W. H. Freron, M.A., of Fenelon Falls, whose remarks were listened to with close attention by the audience. The president of the branch, Sheriff Hall, occupied the chair, and Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's, acted as secretary. Rev. Mr. Bright, who was elected to that position last year, having left the city in the interval.

The meeting was opened with the singing of a hymn, followed by devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's, and Rev. J. G. Potter.

Treasurer's Report.

Sheriff Hall's Address

Sheriff Hall, in the course of a short address, remarked that it was a few months more than seventy years ago that the Peterborough branch was organized. The first president was the Hon. Alex. Stewart, and some of the first officers were historical characters. Rev. Mr. Wade was the first vice-president, and other vice-presidents were Rev. Mr. Rogers and Rev. Mr. Gilmour, father of the Baptist Church in Peterborough. Other officers were the late Sheriff Hall and Robt. Reid. In that day the original Bible Society was very largely a laymen's movement, but at the present time he thought that the laymen were not taking the same interest. It was 68 years since the Society had met in the Anglican Church, and they were glad to be present at St. John's.

Rev. Mr. French

Rev. W. H. French of Fenelon Falls was then introduced and gave a splendid address, in which he brought out much interesting information concerning the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society and of the Canadian Society.

Rev. Mr. French in opening his remarks said that the work of the Bible Society merited the sympathy and assistance of the members of the church. He referred to the report made in connection with the work of the Society in the west which showed that the agents had not proved equal to the task, and had not spoken enough of the objects of the society.

The speaker spoke of the organizing of the Bible Society 100 years ago, telling the familiar, yet impressive story, of Mary Jones, the Welsh girl who was indirectly responsible for the forming of the organization. The Society was composed of men of all creeds as it was a thoroughly undenominational organization and its influence was being felt in the church union movement. The object of the Society was to distribute the Word of God throughout the world.

The Power of the Bible

The power of the Bible was illustrated by the speaker with a reference to the revolutionaying of Japan by the entrance of the Christian Bible the result of which was that the country was opened to Christianity. He told a story of a Bible floating into the shore of Japan and being picked up by a Japanese gentleman of high rank who was afterwards converted through reading it.

During the past year about five and one half millions of Bibles had been distributed making over 250 millions since the inception of the Society. There was an increase in the different languages in which the Bible was printed, it being published now in 400 languages, eight more than last year. "It has taken 1900 years" remarked the speaker, "to translate the Bible into one-fourth of the languages used in the world." The speaker referred to the difficulty expressed in translating the Bible into some of the foreign languages, a number of which were a series of "clicks, groans, grunts and hiccoughs." The Bible was indispensable to the missionary and the Bible Society was the indispensable distribution of the Bible. Reference was made to the great assistance rendered by the Bible Society in connection with missions in which it was necessary that the Bible should be translated into many different languages. All of these translations could be obtained from the British and Foreign Bible Society. The speaker also referred to the work of the colporteurs and Bible women of the Society.

The Canadian Work

The Canadian Society was closely allied to the work of the British Society and had sent $30,000 last year to England as well as helping Quebec. Rev. Mr. French pointed out the great work before the Society in Canada with the great flood of immigration into the Northwest, with Galicians, Hungarians, Swedes, etc., Bibles in forty-three different languages were needed in the Northwest. Eighty-five thousand Bibles had been distributed in Canada during the year, the colporteurs of the Society travelling all over Canada. The Society worked, through its branches, the interest being created at the annual meeting of the branches.

Rev. Mr. French closed his address with an earnest appeal to his hearers for a renewed interest and greater assistance on behalf of the Bible Society.

Vote of Thanks

Rev. J R Webb, of the Murray street Baptist church, moved a vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. French for his splendid address. In the course of his remarks he emphasized the need of supporting the work of the Bible Society. He hoped that the small audience was not an indication of interest on the part of the citizens of Peterborough.

Rev. E A Pearson, of the George street Methodist church, seconded the motion. In doing so he remarked that the report of the treasurer showed that materially the people of Peterborough had supported the Society.

The Officers

The following officers were elected:—

President—Sheriff Hall.
Vice-Presidents—The City Clergy.
Secretary—Rev. J R Webb.
Treasurer—Mr. John Crane.
Executive Committee—Messrs. Benj Shortly, D W Dumble, T F Matthews, R Lees, R J Dewey, J J Turner, Jr., G M Roger, J W Bennett, Wm Madill.

The meeting was brought to a close by the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Mr. French.

FIRST BIBLE SOCIETY IN THE CITY

Sheriff Hall Gives Some Interesting Information on Subject

In view of the fact that the annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held last night, some information in connection with the organizing of the Society in Peterborough should be of interest. Sheriff Hall, the president of the present Society, is one of the few, if not the only local citizen, that can remember the first Society, and has given the Examiner some interesting notes of the Society as it existed then.

The Society was organized in Peterborough in the year 1837, and the first officers were as follows:

President — Hon. Thomas A. Stewart.

Vice-Presidents — Rev. Mr. Wade, rector of St. John's Anglican church; Rev. John M. Roger, Presbyterian minister; Rev. John C. Gilmour, Baptist minister; Rev. Mr. Manley, Methodist minister.

Treasurer—Jas. Hall.
Secretary—Robt. Reid.
Depositary—Wm. Hall.
Committee—John Walton, James Harvey, John Dixon, Wm. Elliott, J. Wrighton, Isaac Milburn, Dr. Bird, John Haggart, Joseph Stalker, Robert Thompson and R. Moore.

St. John's was the only Protestant church existing then, in which a meeting of the Society was held nearly seventy years ago. It had been built two years previously.

THE MICROSCOPE

Proves That Parasites Cause Hair Loss

Nine-tenths of the diseases of the scalp and hair are caused by parasitic germs. The importance of this discovery by Professor Unna, of the Charity Hospital, Hamburg, Germany, can not be over-estimated. It explains why ordinary hair preparations, even of the most expensive character, fail to cure dandruff; because they do not and they can not kill the dandruff germs. The only hair preparation in the world that positively destroys the parasites that burrow up the scalp into scales called scurf or dandruff, is Newbro's Herpicide. In addition to its destroying the dandruff germ, Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. THE PARK COMMITTEE TO MEET

Will Take Up The Question of a Park in South End

A meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council will be held to-night at 7 o'clock when a number of accounts will be passed preparatory to the Council meeting on Monday night. The meeting will be followed by a joint meeting of the special committees appointed by the Board of Education and the Council to deal with the question of a park in the south end of the city. It will be remembered that at the last meeting of the Council the question was brought up of purchasing part of the property of the School Board in connection with the King Edward School, and a deputation waited upon the Board of Education to urge that a committee be appointed to take up the matter with a similar committee from the Council. The meeting to-night is the result of that consultation.

MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM

In connection with this production, which appeared at the Russel Theatre, Ottawa, last Saturday, the Free Press has the following to say:

The unprepossessing title, Mrs. Temple's Telegram, gave no indication of the delightful little farce at which a fair audience in the Russel Theatre last night laughed itself into tears. With no exaggeration it may be stated that it is one of the prettiest and most amusing laugh prescriptions that has appeared in the capital this season. His Excellency, Lady Evelyn Grey, and others of the Vice-Regal party, occupied a box, and many prominent people contributed to the mirth which rippled continuously from the rows of the seats throughout the course of the play.

To unravel the plot would prove as difficult to the critic as it did to the unfortunate Mrs. Temple, whose telegram formed the nucleus of some of the most ridiculous complications with which the modern comedy playwright has sought to win success. The dialogue was never forced, but was of the natural, refined drawing room repartee, the atmosphere of the entire production. In fact the comfortable drawing room of the Temple home remained as the scene for three acts. The curtain descended for two intervals, apparently for the sole purpose of enabling the audience to recuperate from the irrepressible laughter stimulated by the ludicrous situations in which the characters were involved. A many tangle was unravelled finally to mutual satisfaction.

The company has evidently been carefully selected. Upon the shoulders of Frank Fuller fell the burden of the comedy role. As a consummate liar the immaculate Mr. Muller was fully portrayed by Mr. Alan Murname. His work was entirely creditable. Mrs Jack Temple, a trying part, was well sustained by Miss Frances Gaunt. Carl Anthony's Jack Temple would be difficult to improve upon. Of the minor roles, none of which were weak, the butler taken by Alfred Hudson was predominant perhaps from the humorous lines in which the part is cast.

As a tonic its equal has not been staged at the Russel for some time.

At the Grand opera house Saturday night next.

WEDDING BELLS.

McFADDEN-RUTH

Yesterday evening at 7.30 o'clock a quiet marriage was celebrated at the George street Methodist parsonage, the principals in the event being Miss Mary Ruth, daughter of Mr. Jas. Ruth of Otonabee, and Mr. Frank McFadden of Peterborough, son of Mr. Jas. P. McFadden. The ceremony was performed by Rev E. A. Pearson, the bride and groom being unattended. Mr. and Mrs. McFadden will reside in Peterborough.

Peterborough An Important Point In Double Tracking

Proposed Doubling of C.P.R. From Montreal To Toronto — Will Come To Peterboro' in Any Event

THE INCREASING FACILITIES

Examiner Special

Montreal, November 28. — The Canadian Pacific management has still under consideration the question of whether it will build a double track all the way from Montreal to Toronto, or whether it will construct a second line to tap the principal centres of traffic along the north shore of the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario as far as Peterborough.

Various proposals have been under consideration and surveys have been made with a view to the development of this part of the system and to providing increased traffic facilities through the district between Smiths Falls and Peterborough. This, it is considered will be imperative when the new grain line from Georgian Bay to Peterborough is built.

Just what course the company will adopt is still a matter of doubt.

A prominent official in the construction department informed a newspaper man to-day that the matter was one of the most important that would be decided when the appropriations for the various divisions of the system came up for consideration in January. The double tracking to Toronto is a matter that would take some years. The double tracking between here and Smiths Falls has been in progress for two years.

Jail Is The Hope of Men Who Are Unemployed

Conversation That Was Overheard Yesterday Not a Very Hopeful One—Four Men Discuss Wintering in Goal

WOULD BE TREATED WELL

This morning a conversation was overheard which suggests the prevalence of an idea that should not exist. Four men were walking up George street between 8 and 9 o'clock, and even to a casual observer they showed unmistakable signs of belonging to the ranks of the unemployed. They were apparently discussing prospects for the winter, and their expressed hopes were not of the brightest.

The worst feature was that they were thinking of trying to obtain admission to the jail.

"Why, they treat a fellow fine up there," one of them said. "Every day you are taken out for a bit of exercise, and the work is not very hard."

That was all that could be heard, but the gist of the conversation was rather disquieting. If men are thinking of trying to gain admission to the jail something is wrong. They will first have to qualify, and this cannot portend any good for the city. This question, which is based on an actual occurrence, may well claim the attention of the authorities. At least, it may warn them to be on the lookout for any trouble, and candidates for the jail will not receive as pleasant a reception as they expect.

Interesting Recital At St. Peter's Hall Last Night

Pupils of the Sisters of St. Joseph Entertain Their Friends With Vocal and Instrumental Music

CREDITABLE PERFORMANCE

The pupils of the Sisters of St. Joseph entertained their friends at St. Peter's Hall last night at a recital of vocal and instrumental music which besides reflecting great credit upon themselves was also a tribute to the efficiency of the Sisters as teachers of both forms of music.

The Sisters and their pupils have many friends as was shown by the large number who attended the recital, comfortably filling the hall.

The programme was nicely selected and all the numbers were of a classic nature that required an intelligent interpretation and the pupils invariably showed that their training in this respect had not been neglected. There were three instrumental duets that were particularly well rendered and were among the most delightful numbers on the programme.

The vocal work was also splendidly done. In "Tarry With Me" Mrs. E. M. Tuck displayed a mellow soprano voice of pleasing clearness and range. She was ably supported by Misses P. Morgan and N. Hallihan. Moore's "Go Where Glory Waits Thee" was well rendered, the voice blending with a delightful effect.

The programme was as follows:—

Part I.

Chorus, "The Bees"..... .....Conte
Music Class.

Instrumental solo (a) "Polish Dance" .....Scharwenka
(b) "The Flatterer" .....Chaminade
Miss M Gorman.

Part I.

Inst. Duet, "Keel Row"..... ...Rockstro
Misses M. Gorman, K. O'Brien
Misses H. Pierce, S. Cleary
Accompanists—Misses E. Connor, L. Fife and B. Flynn.

"God Save the King."

Miss Bernice Giroux, on account of family affliction, was unable to take the part assigned to her. She had an instrumental solo, "Tarantelle," by Heller, and also a prominent part in the last duet, "Keel Row." Miss Marion Gorman, who took her place in this number, acquitted herself in a splendid manner. She had only seen the piece the day before, but nevertheless interpreted it without any trouble.

Prizes Presented

During the evening there was a presentation of prizes won by the convent pupils in music and at school. Miss Bernadette McDonald received a five-dollar gold piece for highest standing among the convent girls in the last Entrance examinations. It was donated by Mr. Jas. Lynch.

Miss Eva Lynch received a medal donated by Mr. Wm. Rudkins for the best pupil in Christian Doctrine.

Miss Lettie Hatrick received a medal donated by Mr. Wm. Pringle for writing.

Miss Hatrick also received first class honours in intermediate piano at the recent examinations.

Miss Harriet Pearce received highest standing and first-class honours in junior piano.

Miss Edith Connor received highest standing and first-class honours in senior rudiments.

The evening was closed on a programme of real interest to all those who had the pleasure of being invited.

At the conclusion of the recital Bishop O'Connor, Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father McColl gave brief addresses congratulating the pupils on their splendid showing and their musical abilities. The sisters of the convent desire to extend their thanks to the ushers of last night who were Messrs. F. Pope, A. Lehane, and Jas. Maher.

Canadian Pacific Railway Change in time commencing on Nov. 28th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

DEATH OF AN ESTEEMED CITIZEN

Mr. Jas. Dolan, Well Known Throughout The County Passes Away

At ten o'clock last night in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough lost one of her most highly esteemed and popular citizens in the person of Mr. James Dolan, whose sad death will be learned with sorrow by all who knew him, both in the city and surrounding districts.

The deceased gentleman was in his sixty-fifth year and has been suffering from Bright's disease for some time. On Thursday last he was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital to go under a special treatment for this disease, but his condition never improved and last night at ten o'clock he passed away.

His nieces, Sister Saint Ambrose of Milan; Misses Sadie and Marguerite Dolan, of Peterborough; his nephew, Mr. R E Dolan, New York, and Miss E L May, sister of his late wife, were gathered around him at the time of his death.

The deceased was born in Roscommon County, Ireland in the year 1842. He was educated in the National public school at Boyle, and upon graduating, went into the dry goods business, serving his apprenticeship of four years. At the age of 25 he immigrated to Canada with several other old Peterborough citizens and secured a position in Montreal with the Henry Morgan Drygoods Company. After working in Montreal for some time he came to Peterborough and worked in Doran & Gibbon's Drygoods store which was situated where Lang & Maher's store is now. With the money he had saved he started a dry goods store of his own at the corner of Simcoe and George streets, where the Kingan Hardware store now is situated, and was very successful in his business. He then went into partnership with a gentleman named Garvey, now in London, Ont. Upon Mr. Garvey's leaving the city the business passed into the hands of the deceased and he has never been actively connected with any business since.

The deceased gentleman was a nephew of Father Dolan, Ireland, and also had an uncle an excise officer in Ireland.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

PRICE OF BRICK LOWER IN TORONTO

On Account of The Slump in Building—Yards Are Overstocked

A prominent city contractor stated this morning that the price of building material was being reduced, owing to the slump in the building industry.

"I am getting my bricks to-day for a dollar a thousand less than I was a few months ago," he said. "The brick yards are overstocked with bricks, and the small makers can't afford to carry them over. The large dealers are holding out for the high price, but they will be compelled to meet the prices asked by the small dealers. Bricks that were $10.25 a thousand are now selling for $9.25 a thousand.

"The same cannot be said of lumber, however. The small dealers are dependent upon the large dealers and cannot reduce the price even if they want to."—Toronto Star.

NO MATINEE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is a High Class Production

There will be no matinee on Saturday afternoon in connection with the production of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The production belongs to the better class of the farce variety, something after the style of "The Lion and the Mouse," with which Peterborough opera goers are familiar. For this reason, if there was a matinee, the seats would have to sell at $1 high.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is an exceptionally good production, and it is rather unfortunate that it is coming here on Saturday night, as many wish to see it who will have to work.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;

One ounce Compound Salatone;

Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physicists to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary afflictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism.

The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these afflictions will no doubt be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended remedy.

FEARED THERE HAS BEEN A MASSACRE

Twenty-Four Villages Looted and Burned in Asia Minor.

GRAVE DANGER OF FAMINE

Turks and Armenians Victims of Kurdish Raids — Scarcity of Food and Fodder Everywhere—Foreign Embassies Urge Stringent Measures — Disaffection Against Government Very Strong.

Constantinople, Nov. 28.—The lawless activity of the Kurdish tribes in the Arkeno-Kurdish districts of Erzerum, Bitles, Van, Kharput and Diarbekir is causing lively concern at the Porte, particularly as the foreign embassies are urging that prompt measures be taken by the Government to prevent a possible massacre.

Under the protection of the notorious Ibrahim Pasha, who is known as the "Despot of Kurdistan," Kurdish horsemen are making raids without discrimination. Turkish villages suffering equally with Armenian homesteads on the plains around Diarbekir and Jezireh-Ibn-Omar. Sixteen villages have been pillaged and burned within the past month in these districts and eight villages in the Sert district have met with the same fate. Several of these villages were composed entirely of Moslems, and in most cases the lives of the inhabitants were spared, though they were deprived of all their possessions.

There is a scarcity of food and fodder everywhere. The missionaries are doing their best to mitigate the misery, but outside help is urgently needed if the danger of a severe famine is to be averted.

The movement in favor of autonomy is gaining ground in Asia Minor, as the popular disaffection against the Government is very strong. But at the same time there is a great degree of loyalty among the Moslems, and this constitutes a powerful support to the present regime. Mass meetings are being held at which the removal of Ibrahim Pasha is being demanded. At a meeting held at Van a denunciation of the "venal and corrupt government at Constantinople" and the suggestion that Asia Minor should declare its independence there has aroused great enthusiasm, and 25,000 Moslems and Christians in the audience are reported to have pledged their lives to the movement in favor of autonomy.

The Porte has ordered troops from Kharput and Aleppo against the refractory Kurds, and it will endeavor to induce Ibrahim Pasha, by friendly persuasion, to come into Aleppo. Some of Ibrahim's villages were shelled recently by Turkish troops and 60 Kurds were killed.

SHOWED BOYS A FORTUNE.

Clairvoyant Points Out Place Where $40,000 Lay Hidden.

San Francisco, Nov. 28.—Acting upon the knowledge imparted to them by a seeress, two small boys—Lee Thomas and John Freitas—journeyed from their home Tuesday to a lot a short distance away and dug for wealth supposed to be there.

After digging and scraping away the debris left by the fire of 1906 the lads came upon heaps of buried silver. In ecstacies over their lucky find, the youngsters packed as much as they could and carried it to their homes, making many trips, and finding in all as much as $40,000. The news spread quickly and by the time darkness had fallen not a space was vacant on the entire lot. This unusual sight attracted the attention of the police, who in arresting 24 men for trespassing obtained about $2,000 in coin.

The seeress who told the boys the secret of the hidden money is Mrs. Mary Murdock.

WIFE MET WITH HER RIVAL

Dramatic Scene Described at Trial of Mrs. Bradley.

QUESTION OF SANITY RAISED

Witnesses Declare She Had Always Seemed Perfectly Rational After the Murder—Mrs. Brown Attacked Prisoner on One Occasion—Attempted to Choke Her—Judge Rebukes Parents.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Throughout yesterday the testimony offered in the trial of Mrs. Annie Bradley, charged with having shot and killed former Senator Brown of Utah, in this city last December, was most damaging to the defendant. There were many witnesses who had seen her shortly after the shooting and others who had attended her while she was in jail here, but none of them had at any time doubted her sanity. These witnesses had been called by the Government in rebuttal. They included practically every one who had come in contact with Mrs. Bradley after the shooting of Senator Brown.

A dramatic feature of the day was the description by Soren S. Christensen of Salt Lake of an encounter between Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Brown at an hotel in Pocatello, Idaho, in the summer of 1906. On that occasion Mrs. Brown discovered Mrs. Bradley in the hotel with Senator Brown, and attacking her, attempted to choke her and asked to be allowed to kill her. Cries of Mrs. Bradley brought the Senator to her rescue, and then the entire party, including the witness, had an all-night discussion of the difficulty, during which Brown, turning fiercely upon his wife, denied that he was the father of her son, Max Brown, and at the same time admitted that he was the father of two of Mrs. Bradley's children.

An outburst of denunciation by Mrs. Brown of her husband and Mrs. Bradley followed, after which the Senator and the defendant went to another hotel, where they called for drinks.

Justice Stafford rebuked a couple of spectators, a man and a woman, who brought with them a girl about 11 years of age. When the justice saw the child he stopped the proceedings and ordered an attendant to escort the couple and child from the court room. The testimony yesterday, as on every day since the trial began, included many allusions unfit for the ear of a child.

KILLED BY CAPSTAN BAR.

W. H. Miller Receives Fatal Blow at Portage La Prairie.

Portage La Prairie, Man., Nov. 28.—A fatal accident occurred yesterday at the Assiniboine River, when W. H. Miller, a resident of the city, was killed. The victim of the accident was at work on the capstan being used to raise one of the scows out of the river and was engaged in winding the rope around the centre of the capstan. His team had just got nicely started and the full weight of the scow was on the cable, when the clevice on the doubletrees broke, and the long arm of the capstan, being suddenly released, swung back with terrible force, striking Miller across the right temple and crushing his skull.

Medical Reciprocity.

London, Nov. 28.—(C. A. P.)—In opening the 85th session of the General Medical Council, Dr. McAlister, president, said he expected before the executive committee met in February a further step would be taken in the direction of reciprocal recognition of medical qualifications granted in Britain and Canada.

He added that the recognition of colonial diplomas by Britain had the gratifying effect of improving conditions in medical education outside of the United Kingdom.

Got Drunk; Back to Prison.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 28.—The police Tuesday night arrested a man known as Jack Daly for being drunk and disorderly and found that he is out of Central Prison on parole. Daly was convicted in Windsor of theft and sent to the Central Prison for two years, but was recently paroled. His spree will cost him his liberty for he will be sent back to complete his term.

York, Pa., Nov. 28.—The York Silk Manufacturing Co., yesterday went into the hands of receivers. In a statement filed by the petitioners the assets are placed at $2,222,763, and the liabilities at $882,500.

REPULSE FOR THE FRENCH

After Bombarding Several Villages Were Forced to Retreat—Five More Tribes Join Battle—Soldiers May Be Annihilated — Armies of Rival Sultans Fight for Two Days — Situation Critical.

Paris, Nov. 28.—A despatch to The Matin from Nemours, Algeria, says that five more tribes have joined the Benis Nassen tribesmen and that the situation is becoming critical. It says also that if reinforcements are not sent immediately the French force now there will be in danger of annihilation.

Lalla, Maghnia, Nov. 28.—The French column which was engaged in a serious fight with the tribesmen Monday returned on Tuesday, after bombarding several villages. A French reconnoitering party was attacked by twenty thousand tribesmen and forced to retreat, having eight men wounded. The hostilities are the result of resentment of the tribesmen against French occupation of Oudja.

FATHER GAPON'S MONEY.

Property of Murdered Priest Is Handed to His Son.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—The last act in the "Gapon drama" was played in this city yesterday. Father Gapon was the priest who led the Russian people to the Winter Palace on "Red Sunday," Jan. 22, 1905. He subsequently deserted the workmen he had led to become a spy for the Government, and later he was murdered for his treachery. The court ordered that the property of the murdered priest be turned over to his son Alexis. This property includes the balance of the fund paid Gapon by the Government for his pacificatory propaganda among the workmen returning to Russia.

After the manifesto of Oct. 30, 1905, Father Gapon changed sides and endeavored to free the workmen from the influence of revolutionary agitators and induced them to abandon political strikes. For this he was condemned and executed by the Revolutionists. After his death the police obtained possession of his money, which he had put away in a safety deposit vault.

Russian Combines Lobbying.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—There has developed here a powerful lobby against the petition of the managers of the Russian volunteer fleet for special railroad tariffs to Libau in order to facilitate direct trade to New York. The opposition is led by the local oil combine. The principal articles it is desired to export are leather and raw materials, and it was proposed to import lubricating oils and typewriting machines.

Governor-General Dead.

Odessa, Nov. 28.—Gen. Novitsky, who last summer assumed the office of Governor-General and Prefect of Odessa, died suddenly in this city yesterday of paralysis of the heart.

Divorced in North Dakota.

Kingston, Nov. 28.—In the Divorce Court at Langdon, North Dakota, an absolute divorce was recently granted, dissolving the marriage between Albert Prinyer and Eva Prinyer, formerly of Bath, Ont.

PANDORA RANGE

Just a Minute or Two to Remove Grates

When the Pandora grates require removing don't send for the plumber. His kit of tools are not needed to take the stove to pieces in order to get out the grates, as was the case with your former ranges.

The Pandora is not constructed in the usual manner. The removal of a button with a hammer (many just use their fingers) allows the Pandora grates to be easily drawn out, as shown. Just a minute or two to do the trick. No plumber's mess to clean up. No bill to pay.

Notice, too, that the Pandora grates are stronger, will last longer, and are much heavier, Less to pay out for renewals.

Spaces between the Pandora triple grates are narrower than between ordinary double grates, which prevents good fuel slipping down with the ashes. Sifting Pandora ashes is wasted effort.

And that simple gearing arrangement on the Pandora makes the "rocking down" of the ashes just play compared to the heavy "shaking" necessary with ordinary ranges.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct to us for free booklet.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premiums that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

Canadian Athletic Team To Invade The States

Peterboro' Will be Represented by Three of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers —T. C. Flanagan Will Make The Arrangements

NEW YORK AND BOSTON

The chances are that the C.A.A.U. will follow up its invasion of the Federation stronghold at Montreal by a crack at the American Amateur Union in its own backyard, New York.

Tom C. Flanagan of the Irish-Canadians to-day received a proposition to run a strictly Canadain amateur athletic union meet in Madison Square Gardens, New York, and in Boston, and he will lay the matter before the C.A.A.U. officials.

"The proposition is this," said Mr. Flanagan to-day, "that I select a team of thirty men from Toronto and Ontario athletes and send them down to New York and Boston, the people behind the scheme to put up all expenses for the entire team and to hang up good prizes for a complete athletic programme at both places. "The idea I regard as an excellent one. It would be an incentive for the Canadian lads to remain in training and keep in shape for the British Olympiad, and it would show the Americans what we have here in the way of athletes. I would take down Longboat and let him run five or ten miles against the indoor paced records at both places, and send with him Hilton Green, Percy Sellen, W. F. Cumming, Tom Coley, Frank Osborne, A. W. Haddleton, Lou Marsh, and Tim O'Rourke, Joe Gray and J. W. Bowie of my own club; W. B. Galbraith, Greenwood, Bert Goldsboro, Knox, and other Central Y. M. C. A. men; Jack Tait, Frank Lawson, Ed Archibald, Fred Meadows, Chuck Skene, A. C. Jewell, I. J. Parkes, and others from the West End; Bobby Kerr and Geo. Adams, and maybe Jack Caffery of Hamilton; Fred Simpson, Ernie Wilson, of Peterborough Y.M.C.A.; Ben Howard, of Hiawatha; Mel. Brock, the London half-miler; Nick Bawlf, and Sandy Quinn, of Ottawa, and men of that calibre over, and we could give them a good programme of match and handicap events. The boys would have a great time. The proposition shows that Canadian athletes are attracting attention. Just think of the furore an Indian race, with Simpson, Green Longboat, Howard, and maybe this Black Cloud or Black Star Indian from Carlisle would create.—Toronto Star

HARTLEY TO GO AFTER RECORDS

Desires to Break American Record For 12 Hours—Will Give Exhibition Of Fast Walking

David Hartley will not likely take any more lengthy walks this season. It has been stated that he would travel the Port Hope-Toronto route again before the coming of winter, but he told the Examiner last night that unless his record for the 132 miles was broken he would not again attempt it.

Hartley's ambition for next spring is to break the American record for 12 hours. This was made in the Madison Square Gardens, New York, some time in the eighties, by a Yankee who covered 61 miles.

He will not walk on Friday night of this week, but if the public desire it he will give an exhibition of fast walking anytime.

SIMPSON WILL GO TO HAMILTON

Will Be Entered in The Ten Mile Road Race On Christmas Day

Fred Simpson of the Peterborough Harrier Club will, as far as can be seen at present, be entered in the 10 mile road race in Hamilton on Christmas Day. The race is run under the Herald newspaper, is an annual event and is of a high order. Simpson will no doubt make as good showing in Hamilton as he did the last time he visited that city.

ARROWS AND TIGERS FIRST GAMES

Harriers Only Two Points Behind The Winners—Many Fouls Made

The opening basketball games of the season were held last night and were hotly contested. The Harriers met the Arrows and the Alerts the Tigers, the former in each case meeting defeat.

The Arrows won the first game by the score of 46 to 44; the half time score being 23 to 22. The game was fast in spots, but too many fouls were made to call it a really scientific game. The Harriers were penalized 22 times for fouling and the Arrows 14. The former secured the greater number of baskets, but owing to their fondness for fouls. The combination honours probably went to the winners, but they were so closely checked that they seldom got opportunities to shoot for the basket.

For the winners Fred Cressman made most of the baskets. Ernie Best and McRae did the scoring for the Harriers. The best defence man in the game was Ray Best whose long reach gathered in many that might have tallied. Harvey Staunton handled the ball very efficiently.

The teams lined up one man short as follows:—

Arrows—Cressman, Miller, B. Gillespie, Darling.
Harriers—E Best, McRae, Bruce, R. Best.
Referee—Harvey Staunton.

Second Game

The Tiger-Alert game finished disastrously for the latter. The score at full time showed the Tigers ahead by the score of 26 to 11. Both teams fouled frequently and their playing indicated a lack of practice. However there is certainly good material in both line-ups and the next games will be more hotly contested.

The teams lined up as follows:
Tigers — Wallace, Weatherstone, Staunton, F. Hall, Dobson.
Alerts — Fitzgerald, Martin, Dobbin, Daly, Laing.

WALKING CONTEST IS POSTPONED

On Account of Other Events Reynolds Will Delay His Visit

Owing to the walking contest which was arranged for Friday night of this week conflicting with other events, Mr. Geo. Stevens, the East City manager of Hartley, has postponed the match. On Friday evening a concert is being held in the Conservatory of Music hall as well as other events, and the manager has consented to wait for another week.

Reynolds will therefore not be here until a week from Friday.

PETERBORO'S FIGHTING CHANCE

Will Not Be Out-Classed by Montreal In Saturday's Game

The Peterborough Rugby Club will leave on the midnight C. P. R. train to-morrow night for Montreal, arriving in the metropolis on Saturday morning at seven o'clock. The team is in splendid shape, and although they realize that they have a tremendous task before them in tackling the Inter-provincial champions, they are going into the game with the determination to show that they are worthy of a place in the big league, and to bring the honours back to Peterborough, if it is possible. The chances against them are not as big as some local people appear to think. The Easterners, it is said, are not in the same condition as they were when they played their last league game, while Peterborough, on the other hand, are in superb physical condition, and keyed up the hardest kind of a battle. The local wing line is as big, if not bigger, than that of the Easterners, and while the Montrealers may be a little faster and tackle more accurately yet they will have troubles of their own in protecting their backs from the assaults of the Peterborough forward division. Behind the line Montreal is handicapped, inasmuch as they have no reliable drop kicker. Goals from the field have played a prominent part in many games this year and Peterborough is very fortunate in that particular. It is, moreover, doubtful if Montreal has any one behind the line who is a better punter than Colledge or Crough. Tommy Stinson is the Easterners' best booter, and is not thought to have anything on the local men. The weather conditions will be against Jimmy Craig and the other speedy halves of the Montreal team. They will not be able to get away with the long runs that have been material factors in the champions' success this season.

All things considered Peterborough have a little more than a fighting chance to win. At any rate they will give a good account of themselves and prove to the eastern critics that the O.R.F.U. is not so far inferior as they appear to think.

Invalid Ladies

This Is For You.

There are thousands of females who suffer untold miseries common to their sex.

This is largely due to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then, too, the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood (the maiden, the wife, and the mother) have much to do with her sufferings, most of which are endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends.

To all such whose hollow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps, indicate nervousness, palpitation of the heart, weak, faint and dizzy spells, we would earnestly recommend a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Jos. Sharp, Brighton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, weak spells and nervous trouble, and found no relief until advised to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got one box and that helped me so much I sent and got five more. I am now cured completely."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THINK PETERBOROUGH IS RUBBING IT IN

Jimmy Reynolds Declines the Invitation To Walk Hartley

Jimmy Reynolds received an invitation from Paterborough for a two hours' exhibition walk in the Brock street rink against Hartley Friday night, but very wisely Reynolds has declined to accept. Reynolds has been over the Port Hope-Toronto trip twice, in addition to the 12-hour undertaking, in the last six weeks, and the Peterborough individual who is proposing another trip evidently thinks walking is only child's play. It looks as if Peterborough was not satisfied with last Saturday's victory and would like a chance now to "rub it in." Port Hopers will be pleased to know that Reynolds will not accept the invitation. — Port Hope Guide.

FAMILY PLACED INTO THE STREET

Were Ordered Out Shortly After Their Supper—Furniture Placed on Boulevard

A very pathetic incident happened on Park street last night which is causing much sympathy around the vicinity. It appears that a family of two sisters and two brothers living on Park street, where the street car line turns towards the Canadian General Electric Company were turned out of their home last night in the awful cold. The quartette had the house mortgaged after the death of their mother and have not paid back the debt. They have still $400.00 of their own money in the property, but are totally unable to pay rent.

The two boys have been out of work and have been trying to keep out of debt, and were always under the impression that the house was still theirs. No later than yesterday afternoon the boys were covering up the chinks in the roof, protecting their home against the cold blasts of the coming winter; they had no thought of being put out.

When the law officials arrived the family had just finished supper, and they were told that another family was about to move in and the officers began to carry the furniture out into the streets.

The two women are heart-broken over having to give up their dear old home and refuse to accept charity of any kind. The furniture is piled along the boulevard and a kind neighbour put some sheets over it to protect it from the snow. The citizens around that district were full of sympathy for them and are willing to keep the family until they get a suitable place to live.

Rev. Canon Davidson has a house in East City for the family and it is likely that, before long that they will be comfortably settled.

The annual meetings of the cheese boards of the district are being held and the plain fact is presenting itself, namely, that the cheese industry, and, thereby the dairy business, is one of the farmers' best assets.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME TO HIS LORDSHIP

Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Connor Pays Pastoral Visit to Port Hope on Sunday

Port Hope, Nov. 28.—His Lordship Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough celebrated the 8 o'clock mass on Sunday morning and administered first Communion to a small number of the children of the parish. At the close of the mass the bishop preached an edifying sermon, setting forth the necessity of the fear of God's judgment as portrayed in the gospel of the day, teh last Sunday of the ecclesiastical year.

At the close of the sermon the members of the C.M.B.A. approached the altar rail, and the president, Mr. Thos. O'Neil, on behalf of the branch, read an address of welcome to His Lordship, expressive of their devotion to their faith and of their gratitude to His Lordship for the interest he had manifested in their newly organized society.

In reply, Bishop O'Connor expressed his delight at being present and seeing such a manifestation of faith on the part of the members of the C.M.B.A. He praised the society as one that was calculated to aid its members, materially, intellectually, and above all, spiritually. He exhorted each member to be punctual in attendance at the meetings of the Branch, to take a personal interest in the work, and to be faithful to his religious duties. In this way the society would be a valuable assistance to the pastor in the material and spiritual work of the parish, and the members would realize the ideal of the apostolate of Catholic laymen.

FARMERS ALLOWING THE CATTLE TO STRAY

Many Complaints Reach Police—South End Resident Has Garden Ruined

In spite of the fines imposed upon different farmers around Peterborough for allowing their cattle to stray on the public highway there are still scores of complaints coming over the 'phones and by letter to the local police. The authorities are very much annoyed about this and warn all farmers and owners of cattle of any kind to keep them inside fields or they will be brought to justice.

The citizens of the south end are up in arms over this nuisance. One gentleman who keeps a market garden just north of the boundary claims that a Monaghan farmer allowed his cattle to stray into his garden, and they ruined everything with which they came in contact.

Canadian Pacific Railway Change in time commencing on Nov. 25th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

STEEL RAILS BEING LAID AT KEENE

Seventeen Car Loads Have Been There For The G.T.R.

Seventeen cars of steel rails have been received at Keene, and will replace the present rails. Work was begun to-day of laying them, and this will be continued on the G. T. R. east and west of Keene. These rails have been in use between Montreal and Brockville. They are of good quality and weigh 75 lbs. to the yard. The company is laying a rail on that line which registers 100 lbs. to the yard.

The rails that are being laid at Keene are the best that have ever been placed on that division. They are greatly superior to those that are now in use here, and will be an asset to this division.

STOLEN RING HIDDEN IN HER MOUTH

Detectives Had to Pry It Open—She Got Six Months in The Mercer

"I didn't steal the ring at all I picked it up on the floor of the cells," declared Ellen Clancy," who was charged with the theft of a gold ring from the finger of Ada Bartlay, a fellow prisoner, in the cells of the Court street police station.

Both women were arrested on the charge of being drunk and on being admitted to the cells Ada Bartlay fell asleep. When she awoke she looked down at her marriage finger, and lo! her ring was gone.

Several other prisoners testified to seeing the ring on the woman's finger when she was admitted to the cells, and Ellen Clancy was searched by the matron of the station. It was remarked that she spoke rather queerly, and she was asked to open her mouth. She refused to do so. It took three detectives to pry her mouth open so great was her determination. The ring was found snugly lodged over one of her teeth. One detective held the obdurate mouth open, while the other made a quick dab into the cavern and secured the treasure.

"Is this your ring?" asked Mr. Corley of Mrs. Bartlay, handing her the golden band.

The woman slipped it on, and from the way it fitted there seemed to be little reason to believe that it could fall off.

"If you found it in the cells why didn't you give it up when the matron asked you to?" inquired his worship.

"I wasn't going to give it up until I found out to whom it belonged," replied the prisoner tartly.

"Ah, I see," said Magistrate Denison; "well, I think that I'll send you down for six months hard labor in the Mercer Reformatory."

"The most unjust sentence that I ever got," pronounced the prisoner as she went slowly down the steps. "Don't I know whether I stole it or not? I—" The remainder of her protest was lost in the noise of the door closing after her. — Toronto Star.

A PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Sarah Kerr, Formerly of Douro, and Mr. Bernard Kennedy

IN LAWTON, NORTH DAKOTA

The Lawton Leader of Ramsey County, North Dakota, in a recent issue gives an interesting account of a pretty church wedding, in which the bride, Miss Sarah Kerr, was a former resident of Douro township. The best man was Mr. D. McManus, formerly of Douro, who is well-known in Peterborough, having attended the Business College here.

The Leader says:

The Catholic Church of Lakota, was handsomely decorated on Tuesday morning with potted plants in honour of the wedding which took place at 11 o'clock.

The contracting parties were Miss Sarah Kerr, and Mr. Bernard Kennedy, both prominent and well-known in the vicinity, and the wedding was performed by Rev. Father McDonald of Michigan, the ceremony being the nuptial high mass.

The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Hollcky and a few selections were sung by Miss Poukut.

The bride was handsomely attired in white silk mull with lace and ribbon trimmings while her travelling suit was of blue broadcloth. The bridesmaid, Miss Kate Kennedy, sister of the groom was in china silk with lace trimmings. The groom wore conventional black, and was attended by Mr. D. McManus, cousin of the bride of Peterborough, Ont.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the bridal party and invited guests went to the home of the groom's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kennedy, where a reception was given.

The bridal party returned to Lawton on the six o'clock train when a sumptuous supper was served at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. and Mrs. M. Kerr.

A reception and a dance was given at the school hall to about 150 invited guests which was enjoyed by everyone present. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy are both too well known to need any introduction to the people of this village. The congratulations on the happy event are numerous and the Leader is greatly pleased on this occasion to add its hearty good wishes to those being so freely extended.

The ladies of Lawton met at the home of Mrs. E. A. Lunde, on Monday evening. The occasion was in honour of Miss Sarah Kerr, it being her last day to use the word Miss.

Many useful presents were given. The feature of the occasion was the bringing of a small wagon load of parcels and presenting them to Miss Kerr.

After a few hours' enjoyment a dainty lunch was served and the guests returned to their homes to prepare for the wedding dance on Tuesday evening.

NO CHILDREN LEFT IN THE SHELTER

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Have Now Home To Take Care Of

The new Children's Shelter has been now thoroughly renovated, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry are in charge of the house on the Hilliard property. When the move was made the other day there was only one child at the Shelter, but since that date it has secured a home, so that at the present time the Shelter is empty so far as children are concerned.

PEOPLE'S BAND TAKE OBJECTION

The Statement Made by Mr. Roland Common in Reference to Bands

Some members of the People's Band which has recently been organized take exception to the statement made by Mr. Roland Common in Tuesday night's Examiner. They have written the Examiner, contradicting the statement that several attempts have been made to form a band and all have proved failures.

The People's Band desires to state that it is still an organized band and intends to continue as such.

ENCOURAGE ORIGINAL DRAWING

A Competition For Public School Pupils Under 16 Years

In order to cultivate a talent for original drawing, the Peterborough branch of the Woman's Art Association will offer a prize for the best original pencil drawing from objects, to be competed for by the pupils of the Peterborough Public Schools of 16 years of age or under. Drawings must be accompanied by a written guarantee from parent or teacher that the drawing is the unassisted work of the pupil. As a certain standard must be maintained the prize will not be awarded unless the drawing is worthy. The prize will be in the form of a medal, kindly donated by Mrs. J. R. Stratton. The competition will take place soon after the new year, when further particulars as to date, etc., will be given.

FEW DEATHS CAUSED BY GAS FUMES

Coroner Gray Does Not Recollect a Second Case

Peterborough has not suffered very much through fatalities caused by asphyxiation. Coroner Gray informed the Examiner that the death of Mrs. Kerr, reported yesterday, was the first caused by gas in the history of Peterborough, so far as he can remember. Gas is not so extensively used in this city as electricity, and this, together with the care taken with coal stoves, possibly accounts for the scarcity of fatalities caused by gas.

A Rock In the Baltic

By ROBERT BARR,

Copyright, 1906, by Robert Barr.

"The channel in the floor through which the water runs when the cell is empty and the tunnel at the ceiling through which the water flows when the cell is full give plenty of ventilation, no matter how tightly the door may be closed. The water rose very gradually until it reached the top outlet, then its level remained stationary. I floated on the top quite easily, with as little exertion as was necessary to keep me in that position. If I raised my head, my brow struck the ceiling. The next cell to mine, lower down, was possibly empty. I heard the water pour into it like a little cataract. The next cell above and indeed all the cells in that direction were flooded like my own.

"Of course it was no trouble for me to keep afloat. My only danger was that the intense coldness of the water would numb my body beyond recovery. Still I had been accustomed to hardships of that kind before now in the frozen north. At last the gentle roar of the waterfall ceased, and I realized my cell was emptying itself. When I reached my shelf again, I stretched my limbs back and forth as strenuously as I could and as silently, for I wished no sound to give any hint that I was still alive, if, indeed, sound could penetrate to the passage, which is unlikely. Even before the last of the water had run away from the cell I lay stretched out at full length on the floor, hoping I might have steadiness enough to remain death quiet when the men came in with the lantern. I need have had no fear. The door was opened, one of the men picked me up by the heels and, using my legs as if they were the shafts of a wheelbarrow, dragged me down the passage to the place where the stream emerged from the last cell, and into this torrent he flung me. There was one swift, brief moment of darkness, then I shot, feet first, into space and dropped down, down, down through the air like a plummet into the arms of my mother."

"Into what?" cried Dorothy, white and breathless, thinking the recital of these agonies had turned the man's brain.

"The Baltic, madam, is the Finlander's mother. It feeds him in life, carries him whither he wishes to go, and every true Finlander hopes to die in her arms. The Baltic seemed almost warm after what I had been through, and the taste of the salt on my lips was good. It was a beautiful starlight night in May, and I floated around the rock, for I knew that in a cove on the eastern side, concealed from all view of the sea, lay a Finland fishing boat, a craft that will weather any storm, and here in the water was a man who knew how to handle it. Prisoners are landed on the eastern side, and such advantage is taken of the natural conformation of this precipitous rock that a man climbing the steep zigzag stairway which leads to the inhabited portion is hidden from sight of any craft upon the water even 400 or 500 yards away." Nothing seen from the outside gives any token of habitation.

"The fishing boat, I suppose, is kept for cases of emergency, that the governor may communicate with the shore if necessary. I feared it might be moored so securely that I could not unfasten it. Security had made them careless, and the boat was tied merely by lines to rings in the rock, the object being to keep her from bruising her sides against the stone rather than to prevent any one taking her away. I pushed her out into the open, got quietly inside and floated with the swift tide, not caring to raise a sail until I was well out of gunshot distance. Once clear of the rock I spread canvas and by daybreak was long out of sight of land. I made for Stockholm, and there being no mark or name on the boat to denote that it belonged to the Russian government I had little difficulty in selling it. I told the authorities what was perfectly true—that I was a Finland sailor escaping from the tyrant of my country and anxious to get to America. As such events are happening practically every week along the Swedish coast I was not interfered with and got enough money from the sale of the boat to enable me to dress myself well and take passage to England, and from there first class to New York on a regular liner.

"Of course I could have shipped as a sailor from Stockholm easy enough, but I was tired of being a common sailor and expected, if I was respectably clothed, to get a better position than would otherwise be the case. This proved true, for crossing the ocean I became acquainted with Mr. Stockwell, and he engaged me as mate of his yacht. That's how I escaped from the Trogsmondoff, madam, and I think no one but a Finlander could have done it."

"I quite agree with you," said Dorothy. "You think these two men I have been making inquiry about have been sent to the Trogsmondoff?"

"The Russian may not be there, madam, but the Englishman is sure to be there."

"Is the cannon on the western side of the rock?"

"I don't know, madam. I never saw the western side by daylight. I noticed nothing on the eastern side as I was climbing the steps to show that any cannon was on the Trogsmondoff at all."

"I suppose you had an opportunity of finding out how many men garrison the rock."

"No, madam. I don't think the garrison is large. The place is so secure that it doesn't need many men to guard it. Prisoners are never taken out for exercise, and, as I told you, they are fed but once in four days."

"One of the men picked me up by the heels."

"How large a crew can the Walrus carry?"

"Oh, as many as you like, madam. The yacht is practically an ocean liner."

"Is there any landing stage on the eastern side of the rock?"

"Practically none, madam. The steamer stood out, and I was landed in the cove I spoke of at the foot of the stairway."

"It wouldn't be possible to bring a steamer like the Walrus alongside the rock, then?"

"It would be possible in calm weather, but very dangerous even then."

"Could you find that rock if you were in command of a ship sailing the Baltic?"

"Oh, yes, madam."

"If twenty or thirty determined men were landed on the stairway, do you think they could capture the garrison?"

"Yes, if they were landed secretly, but one or two soldiers at the top with repeating rifles might hold the stairway against an army while their ammunition lasted."

"But if a shell were fired from the steamer might not the attacking company get inside during the confusion among the defenders?"

"That is possible, madam, but a private steamer firing shells or, indeed, landing a hostile company runs danger of meeting the fate of a pirate."

"You would not care to try it, then?"

"I? Oh, I should be delighted to try it if you allow me to select the crew. I can easily get aboard the small arms and ammunition necessary, but I am not so sure about the cannon."

"Very good. I need not warn you to be extremely cautious regarding those you take into your confidence. Meanwhile I wish you to communicate with the official who is authorized to sell the yacht. I am expecting a gentleman tomorrow in whose name the vessel will probably be bought, and I am hoping he will accept the captaincy of it."

"Is he capable of filling that position, madam? Is he a sailor?"

"He was for many years captain in the United States navy. I offer you the position of mate, but I will give you captain's pay and a large bonus in addition if you faithfully carry out my plans, whether they prove successful or not. I wish you to come here at this hour tomorrow with whoever is authorized to sell or charter the steamer. You may say I am undecided whether to buy or charter. I must consult Captain Kempt on that point."

"Thank you, madam. I shall be here this time tomorrow."

CHAPTER XIII.

PRINCE IVAN LERMONTOFF came to consider the explosion one of the luckiest things that had ever occurred in his workshop. Its happening so soon after he reached St. Petersburg he looked upon as particularly fortunate, because this gave him time to follow the new trend of thought along which his mind had been deflected by such knowledge as the unexpected outcome of his experiment had disclosed to him. The material he had used as a catalytic agent was a new substance which he had read of in a scientific review and he had purchased a small quantity of it in London. If such a minute portion produced results so tremendous, he began to see that a man with an apparently innocent material in his waistcoat pocket might probably be able to destroy a naval harbor, so long as water and stone were in conjunction. There was also a possibility that a small quantity of osak, as the stuff was called, mixed with pure water, would form a reducing agent for limestone and perhaps for other minerals, which would work much quicker than if the liquid was merely impregnated with carbonic acid gas. He endeavored to purchase some osak from Mr. Kruger, the chemist on the English quay, but that good man had never heard of it, and a day's search persuaded him that it could not be got in St. Petersburg, so the prince induced Kruger to order half a pound of it from London or Paris, in which latter city it had been discovered. For the arrival of this order the prince waited with such patience as he could call to his command and visited poor Mr. Kruger every day in the hope of receiving it.

One afternoon he was delighted to hear that the box had come, although it had not yet been unpacked.

"I will send it to your house this evening," said the chemist. "There are a number of drugs in the box for your old friend Professor Potkin of the university, and he is even more impatient for his consignment than you are for yours. Ah, here he is," and as he spoke the venerable Potkin himself entered the shop.

He shook hands warmly with Lermontoff, who had always been a favorite pupil of his, and learned with interest that he had lately been to England and America.

"Cannot you dine with me this evening at half past 5?" asked the old man. "There are three or four friends coming to whom I shall be glad to introduce you."

"Truth to tell, professor," demurred the prince, "I have a friend staying with me, and I don't just like to leave him alone."

"Bring him with you, bring him with you," said the professor, "but in any case be sure you come yourself. I shall be expecting you. Make your excuses to your friend if he does not wish to endure what he might think dry discussion, because we shall talk nothing but chemistry and politics."

The prince promised to be there whether his friend came or no. The chemist here interrupted them and told the professor he might expect his materials within two hours.

"And your package," he said to the prince, "I shall send about the same time. I have been very busy and can trust no one to unpack this box but myself."

"You need not trouble to send it, and in any case I don't wish to run the risk of having it delivered at a wrong address by your messenger. I cannot afford to wait so long as would be necessary to duplicate the order. I am dining with the professor tonight, so will drive this way and take the parcel myself."

"Perhaps," said the chemist, "it would be more convenient if I sent your parcel to Professor Potkin's house?"

"No," said the prince decisively. "I shall call for it about 5 o'clock."

The professor laughed.

"We experimenters," he said, "never trust each other," so they shook hands and parted.

On returning to his workshop, Lermontoff bounded up the stairs and hailed his friend the lieutenant.

"I say, Drummond, I'm going to dine tonight with Professor Potkin of the university, my old teacher in chemistry. His hour is half past 5, and I've got an invitation for you. There will be several scientists present and no women. Will you come?"

"I'd a good deal rather not," said the Englishman. "I'm wiring into these books and studying strategy. Making plans for an attack upon Kronstadt."

"Well, you take my advice, Alan, and don't leave any of those plans around where the St. Petersburg police will find them. Such a line of study is carried on much safer in London than here. You'd be very welcome, Drummond, and the old boy would be glad to see you. You don't need to bother about evening togs—plain living and high thinking, you know. I'm merely going to put on a clean collar and a new tie as sufficient for the occasion."

"I'd rather not go, Jack, if you don't mind. It's there you'll all be trying to talk English or French, and so I'd feel myself rather a damper on the company. Besides, I don't know anything about science, and I'm trying to learn something about strategy. What time do you expect to be back?"

"Rather early. Ten or half past."

"Good. I'll wait up for you."

At 5 o'clock Jack was at the chemist's and received his package. On opening it he found the osak in two four-ounce glass stoppered bottles, and these he put in his pocket.

"Will you give me three spray syringes, as large a size as you have, rubber, glass and metal? I'm not sure but this stuff will attack one or other of them, and I don't want to spend the rest of my life running down to your shop."

Getting the syringes, he jumped into his cab and was driven to the professor's.

"You may call for me at 10," he said to the cabman.

There were three others besides the professor and himself, and they were all interested in learning the latest scientific news from New York and London.

It was a quarter past 10 when the company separated. Lermontoff stepped into his cab, and the driver went rattling up the street. In all the talk the prince had said nothing of his own discovery, and now when he found himself alone his mind reverted to the material in his pocket, and he was glad the cabman was galloping his horse that he might be the sooner in his workshop. Suddenly he noticed that they were dashing down a street which ended at the river.

"I say," he cried to the driver, "you've taken the wrong turning. This is a blind street. There's neither quay nor bridge down here. Turn back."

"I see that now," said the driver over his shoulder. "I'll turn round at the end where it is wider."

He did turn, but instead of coming up the street again dashed through an open archway which led into the courtyard of a large building fronting the Neva. The moment the carriage was inside the gates clanged shut.

"Now, what in the name of St. Peter do you mean by this?" demanded the prince angrily.

The cabman made no reply, but from a door to the right stepped a tall uniformed officer, who said:

"Orders, your highness, orders. The isvoshtchik is not to blame. May I beg of your highness to accompany me inside?"

"Who the devil are you?" demanded the annoyed nobleman.

"I am one who is called upon to perform a disagreeable duty, which your highness will make much easier by paying attention to my requests."

"Am I under arrest?"

"I have not said so, Prince Ivan."

"Then I demand that the gates be opened that I may return home, where more important business awaits me than talking to a stranger who refuses to reveal his identity."

"I hope you will pardon me, Prince Lermontoff. I act, as the isvoshtchik has acted, under compulsion. My identity is not in question. I ask you for the second time to accompany me."

"Then for the second time I inquire, am I under arrest? If so, show me your warrant and then I will go with you, merely protesting that whoever issued such a warrant has exceeded his authority."

"I have seen nothing of a warrant, your highness, and I think you are confusing your rights with those pertaining to individuals residing in certain countries you have recently visited."

"You have no warrant, then?"

"I have none. I act on my superior's word and do not presume to question it. May I hope that you will follow me without a further parley, which is embarrassing to me and quite unhelpful to yourself? I have been instructed to treat you with every courtesy, but nevertheless force has been placed at my disposal. I am even to take your word of honor that you are unarmed, and your highness is well aware that such leniency is seldom shown in St. Petersburg."

"Well, sir, even if my word of honor failed to disarm me your politeness would. I carry a revolver. Do you wish it?"

"If your highness will condescend to give it to me."

The prince held the weapon, butt forward, to the officer, who received it with a gracious salutation.

Marvelous case of Leo Corrigan which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

Since childhood, Leo Corrigan had been tortured with the burning agony and itching of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines—but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.

He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1905, I had another attack, and was advised to use Mira Ointment. (I thought this would be like the other remedies I had tried, and of no use to me). But, to my great delight, a few hours after the first application, I felt great relief.

I have used it, now, two and a-half months, and unhesitatingly state that it is the best remedy I ever used. It has worked wonders for me. Since using Mira Ointment I have been able to work every day—without irritation or pain—no stiffness of the limbs or soreness. I feel a new person.

From a state of great irritation and sometimes excruciating pains to freedom from all such, being capable of doing hard work every day, is a marvelous change. Mira Ointment has effected it.

I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day. 50c. —5 for $2.50. At drug-stores—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto. 16

SAID ALL THE DOCTORS

Half a dozen of the best physicians told Mr. Baker that he had Chronic Rheumatism, and would have it as long as he lived. One day Mr. Baker read in a paper of a man who had Rheumatism just like him—who had been told by doctors that his case was hopeless—and who had been completely cured by GIN PILLS.

The two cases were so much alike that Mr. Baker decided he would invest 50c in a box of GIN PILLS and give them a trial.

It was the best investment he ever made. Before the first box was taken, he felt better all over, so he got another. He took that and bought a third, getting better all the time.

Hinesville, May 8, 1906.

I have been greatly benefitted by your Gin Pills, and all who have used them in this neighborhood speak very highly of them.

One of my neighbors, Mr. X., who suffered for years with Rheumatism and who has spent hundreds of dollars with specialists without receiving the slightest benefit, was entirely cured by two boxes of Gin Pills. He is proclaiming their virtues from the "housetops."

Yours truly, D. L. BAKER.

We don't even ask you to buy Gin Pills—but to try them at our expense. Write us, mentioning this paper, and we will gladly send you a free sample of these wonderful Kidney Pills that cure Rheumatism. The Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man.

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. Morrow, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,
J. E. STRATTON.

A ROCK IN THE BALTIC

"You know nothing of the reason for this action?"

"Nothing whatever, your highness."

"Where are you going to take me?"

"A walk of less than three minutes will acquaint your highness with the spot."

The prince laughed.

"Oh, very well," he said. "May I write a note to a friend who is waiting up for me?"

"I regret, your highness, that no communication whatever can be allowed."

The prince stepped down from the vehicle, walked diagonally across a very dimly lighted courtyard with his guide, entered that section of the rectangular building which faced the Neva, passed along a hall with one gas jet burning, then outside again and immediately over a gangplank that brought him aboard a steamer. On the lower deck a passage ran down the center of the ship, and along this the conductor guided his prisoner, opened the door of a stateroom in which candles were burning and a comfortable bed turned down for occupancy.

"I think your highness will find everything here that you need. If anything further is required, the electric bell will summon an attendant, who will get it for you."

"Am I not to be confronted with whoever is responsible for my arrest?"

"I know nothing of that, your highness. My duty ends by escorting you here. I must ask if you have any other weapons upon you."

"No, I have not."

"Will you give me your parole that you will not attempt to escape?"

"I shall escape if I can, of course."

"Thank you, excellency," replied the officer as suavely as if Lermontoff had given his parole. Out of the darkness he called a tall, rough looking soldier, who carried a musket with a bayonet at the end of it. The soldier took his stand beside the door of the cabin.

"Anything else?" asked the prince.

"Nothing else, your highness, except good night."

"Oh, by the way, I forgot to pay my cabman. Of course it isn't his fault that he brought me here."

"I shall have pleasure in sending him to you, and again good night."

"Good night," said the prince.

He closed the door of his cabin, pulled out his notebook and rapidly wrote two letters, one of which he addressed to Drummond and the other to the czar. When the cabman came, he took him within the cabin and closed the door.

"Here," he said in a loud voice that the sentry could overhear if he liked, "how much do I owe you?"

The driver told him.

"That's too much, you scoundrel!" he cried aloud, but as he did so he placed three gold pieces in the palm of the driver's hand, together with the two letters, and whispered:

"Get these delivered safely, and I'll give you ten times this money if you call on Prince Lermontoff at the address on that note."

The man saluted, thanked him and retired. A moment later he heard the jingle of a bell and then the steady throb of an engine. There was no window to the stateroom, and he could not tell whether the steamer was going up or down the river—up, he surmised, and he suspected his destination was Schlusselburg, the fortress prison on an island at the source of the Neva. He determined to go on deck and solve the question of direction, but the soldier at the door brought down his gun and barred the passage.

"I am surely allowed to go on deck?"

"You cannot pass without an order from the captain."

"Well, send the captain to me, then."

"I dare not leave the door," said the soldier.

Lermontoff pressed the button, and presently an attendant came to learn what was wanted.

"Will you ask the captain to come here?"

The steward departed and shortly after returned with a big, bronzed, bearded man, whose bulk made the stateroom seem small.

"You sent for the captain, and I am here."

"So am I," said the prince jauntily. "My name is Lermontoff. Perhaps you have heard of me?"

The captain shook his shaggy head.

"I am a prince of Russia and by some mistake find myself your passenger instead of spending the night in my own house. Where are you taking me, captain?"

"It is forbidden that I should answer questions."

"Is it also forbidden that I should go on deck?"

"The general said you were not to be allowed to leave this stateroom, as you did not give your parole."

"How can I escape from a steamer in motion, captain?"

"It is easy to jump into the river and perhaps swim ashore."

"So he is a general, is he? Well, captain, I'll give you my parole that I shall not attempt to swim the Neva on so cold a night as this."

"I cannot allow you on deck now," said the captain, "but when we are in the gulf of Finland you may walk the deck with the sentry beside you."

"The gulf of Finland!" cried Lermontoff. "Then you are going down the river?"

The big captain looked at him with deep displeasure clouding his brow, feeling that he had been led to give away information which he should have kept to himself.

"You are not going up to Schlusselburg, then?"

"I told your highness that I am not allowed to answer questions. The general, however, has given me a letter for you, and perhaps it may contain all you may want to know."

"You sent for the captain, and I am here."

"The general has given you a letter, eh? Then why don't you let me have it?"

"He told me not to disturb you tonight, but place it before you at breakfast tomorrow."

"Oh, we're going to travel all night, are we?"

"Yes, excellency."

"Did the general say you should not allow me to see the letter tonight?"

"No, your excellency; he just said, 'Do not trouble his highness tonight, but give him this in the morning.'"

"In that case let me have it now."

The captain pulled a letter from his pocket and presented it to the prince. It contained merely the two notes which Lermontoff had written to Drummond and to the czar.

CHAPTER XIV.

AFTER the captain left him Lermontoff closed and bolted the door, then sat down upon the edge of his bed to meditate upon the situation. He heard distant bells ringing on shore somewhere and, looking at his watch, saw it was just 11 o'clock. It seemed incredible that three-quarters of an hour previously he had left the hospitable doors of a friend and now was churning his way in an unknown steamer to an unknown destination. It appeared impossible that so much could have happened in forty-five minutes. He wondered what Drummond was doing and what action he would take when he found his friend missing.

However, pondering over the matter brought no solution of the mystery, so, being a practical young man, he cast the subject from his mind, picked up his heavy overcoat, which he had flung on the bed, and hung it up on the hook attached to the door. As he did this his hand came in contact with a tube in one of the pockets, and for a moment he imagined it was his revolver, but he found it was the metal syringe he had purchased that evening from the chemist. This set his thoughts whirling in another direction. He took from an inside pocket one of the bottles of cask, examining it under the candle light, wishing he had a piece of rock with which to experiment. Then with a yawn he replaced the materials in his overcoat pocket, took off his boots and threw himself on the bed, thankful it was not an ordinary shelf bunk, but a generous and comfortable resting place. Now Katherine appeared before his closed eyes, and hand in hand they wandered into dreamland together.

When he awoke, it was pitch dark in his cabin. The candles, which he had neglected to extinguish, had burned themselves out. The short, jerky motion of the steamer indicated that he was aboard a small vessel and that this small vessel was out in the open sea. He believed that a noise of some kind had awakened him, and this was confirmed by a knock at his door which caused him to spring up and throw back the bolt. The steward was there, but in the dim light of the passage he saw nothing of the sentinel. He knew it was daylight outside.

"The captain, excellency, wishes to know if you will breakfast with him or take your meal in your room."

"Present my compliments to the captain and say I shall have great pleasure in breakfasting with him."

"It will be ready in a quarter of an hour, excellency."

"Very good. Come for me at that time, as I don't know my way about the boat."

The prince washed himself, smoothed out his rumpled clothes as well as he could and put on his boots. While engaged in the latter operation the door opened, and the big captain himself entered, inclosed in glistening oilskins.

"Hyvaa pyvaa, highness," said the captain. "Will you walk the deck before breakfast?"

"Good day to you," returned the prince, "and by your salutation I take you to be a Fin..."

"I am a native of Abo," replied the captain, "and, as you say, a Finn, but I differ from many of my countrymen, as I am a good Russian also."

"Well, there are not too many good Russians, and here is one who would rather have heard that you were a good Finn solely."

"It is to prevent any mistake," replied the captain almost roughly, "that I mention I am a good Russian."

"Right you are, captain, and as I am a good Russian also perhaps good Russian No. 1 can tell me to what part of the world he is conveying good Russian No. 2, a man guiltless of any crime and unwilling at this moment to take an enforced journey."

"We may both be good, but the day is not, highness. It has been raining during the night and is still drizzling. I advise you to put on your overcoat."

"Thanks, captain; I will."

The captain in most friendly manner took the overcoat from its hook, shook it out and held it ready to embrace its owner. Lermontoff shoved right arm, then left, into the sleeves, hunched the coat up into place and buttoned it at the throat.

"Again, captain, my thanks. Lead the way, and I will follow."

They emerged on deck into a dismal gray morning. No land or craft of any kind was in sight. The horizon formed a small, close circle round the ship. Clouds hung low, running before the wind and bringing intermittently little dashes of rain that seemed still further to compress the walls of horizon. The sea was not what could be called rough, but merely choppy and fretful, with short waves that would not have troubled a larger craft. The steamer proved to be a small, undistinguished, dingy looking boat, more like a commercial tramp than a government vessel. An officer, apparently the mate, stood on the bridge, sinewy hands grasping the rail, peering ahead into the white mist that was almost a fog. The promenade deck afforded no great scope for pedestrianism, but captain and prisoner walked back and forth over the restricted space, talking genially together as if they were old friends. Nevertheless there was a certain cautious guardedness in the captain's speech—the wary craft of an unready man who is in the presence of a person more subtle than himself. The bluff captain remembered he had been caught napping the night before when, after refusing to tell the prince the direction of the steamer, he had given himself away by mentioning the gulf of Finland. Lermontoff noticed this reluctance to plunge into the abyss of free conversation, and so, instead of reassuring him he would ask no more questions, he merely took upon his own shoulders the burden of the talk and related to the captain certain wonders of London and New York.

The steward advanced respectfully to the captain and announced breakfast ready, whereupon the two men followed him into a saloon not much larger than the stateroom Lermontoff had occupied the night before and not nearly so comfortably furnished. A plenteous breakfast was supplied, consisting principally of fish, steaming potatoes, black bread and very strong tea. The captain swallowed cup after cup of this scalding beverage, and it seemed to make him more and more genial, as if it had been wine. Indeed, as time went on he forgot that it was a prisoner who sat before him, for quite innocently he said to the steward who waited on them:

"Have the poor devils below had anything to eat?"

"No orders, sir," replied the steward.

"Oh, well, give them something—something hot. It may be their last meal," then turning, he met the gaze of the prince, demanded roughly another cup of tea, and explained:

"Three of the crew took too much vodka in St. Petersburg yesterday."

The prince nodded carelessly, as if he believed, and offered his open cigarette case to the captain, who shook his head.

"I smoke a pipe," he growled.

The captain rose with his lighted pipe, and together they went up on deck again. The prince saw nothing more of the tall sentinel who had been his guard the night before, so without asking permission he took it for granted that his movements, now they were in the open sea, were unrestricted, therefore he walked up and down the deck smoking cigarettes. At the stroke of a bell the captain mounted the bridge and the mate came down.

Suddenly out of the thickness ahead loomed up a great black British freighter making for St. Petersburg, as the prince supposed. The two steamers, big and little, were so close that each was compelled to sheer off a bit. Then the captain turned on the bridge and seemed for a moment uncertain what to do with his prisoner. A number of men were leaning over the bulwarks of the British ship, and it would have been quite possible for the persons on one boat to give a message to those on the other. The prince, understanding the captain's quandary, looked up at him and smiled, but made no attempt to take advantage of his predicament. Some one on board the English ship shouted and fluttered a handkerchief, whereupon the prince waved his cigarette in the air, and the big boat disappeared in the thickness of the east.

Lermontoff walked the deck, thinking very seriously about his situation and wondering where they intended to take him. If he were to be put in prison, it must be in some place of detention on the coast of Finland, which seemed strange, because he understood that the fortresses there were already filled with dissatisfied inhabitants of that disaffected land. His first impression had been that banishment was intended, and he had expected to be landed at some Swedish or German port, but a chance remark made by the captain at breakfast inclined him to believe that there were other prisoners on board not quite so favorably treated as himself. But why should he be sent out of Russia proper or even removed from St. Petersburg, which, he was well aware, suffered from no lack of jails? The continued voyage of the steamer through an open sea again aroused the hope that Stockholm was the objective point. If they landed him there, it merely meant a little temporary inconvenience, and, once ashore, he hoped to concoct a telegram so apparently innocent that it would win through to his friend and give Drummond at least the knowledge of his shifting place. The thought of Drummond aroused all his old fear that the Englishman was to be the real victim, and this enforced voyage was merely a convenient method of getting himself out of the way.

AN EATING ULCER.

Ulcers are a skin disease, and are more or less directly occasioned by a bad state of the blood, which produces acrid humors and corrupts the secretions.

No one can expect to have a skin free from disease when the blood is in a disordered condition and the stomach and bowels acting feebly in consequence.

Through its wonderful cleansing, purifying powers on the blood, and its renovating action on the entire system, Burdock Blood Bitters has made thousands of cures of different skin diseases during the past thirty years it has been on the market.

Mrs. Joseph Robinson, Hallerton, Que., writes: "I had an eating ulcer on my ankle. I took two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and it worked like a charm, cleaning out all the impurities from my system and improving my appetite. While taking the B.B.B. internally I used it externally to cleanse the sore, and it helped me fast."

BUTTONHOLES

Every collar with this buttonhole is worth to you three times as much as any other collar.

Because this buttonhole lasts as long as the collar does.

In other collars the buttonhole is the part that goes most quickly.

And, when the buttonhole goes, the collar is gone.

No other manufacturer of collars in Canada uses this buttonhole, as we have the only machine capable of making it.

That eyelet you see is heavily stitched with best 6 cord thread.

It's where the eyelet is that the strain on the buttonhole comes.

Buttonholes in all other collars are slit and tear easily.

This eyelet makes it easy for you to put on and take off your collar.

WILL BRITAIN INTERVENE.

Portugal Said to Desire Aid—Situation Extremely Difficult.

Lisbon, Nov. 28.—Preparations are being made here and at Oporto, Cuarda and other towns, to fete the victorious troops who will arrive here soon after a brilliant expedition against the Cunamatas in Portuguese West Africa.

According to the despatches, the Portuguese troops gained a sweeping victory on Aug. 27 last, over a force of Cunamatas numbering seven thousand. This military expedition was sent out from Lisbon last January to check a threatening uprising, and to hold the natives in control.

Forces Were Insufficient.

Paris, Nov. 28.—A special despatch from Madrid to the Echo de Paris says that the general in command of the Lisbon Municipal Guard resigned because the forces at his disposal, he claims, were insufficient to suppress possible disorders. The King thereupon authorized the calling out of the reserves and otherwise increased the power of the commandant, who withdrew his resignation.

The correspondent adds under reserve that it is stated that the Portuguese Government has made approaches to Great Britain with a view to her intervention in case the situation becomes worse.

Capital Outwardly Calm.

London, Nov. 28.—A special despatch to The Daily Telegraph from Lisbon, by way of the frontier, describes the capital as being outwardly calm as a result of the royal decree forbidding political gatherings and newspaper comments on the political situation, but, says the correspondent, it is extremely difficult to foresee what may happen.

"In my judgment," he adds, "the situation is grave, and a very difficult one, but the moment for a sanguinary revolution is remote unless, on account of some lack of foresight on the part of the King or the Premier, it is begun by the army or navy."

MANAGER'S CLEVER RUSE.

Saved Women From Burning Warehouse by Means of a Joke.

London, Nov. 28—Fire heavily damaged a big athletic outfitting establishment in Holborn Tuesday morning. There were 1,800 employes on the premises at the time, including 600 women and girls, but they all got out safely, thanks to a ruse employed by one of the managers.

The fire started in one of the upper stories. It was soon seen to be serious, and, realising the consequences of a panic, the manager conceived the expedient of emptying the building quickly by announcing to the women that the firm had decided to let them off to go out and see a passing parade. The manager hurried through the rooms calling out to the girls and women: "This way for the parade; this way to see the show!"

He got the women started toward the staircases, down which they were hurried and hustled. By the time they discovered the real cause of the rush they were in safety beyond the reach of the fire. The only person injured in any way was the secretary of the firm, whose whiskers were burned while saving the books.

London Defence Witnesses.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Fifty defence witnesses in the London bribery cases arrived here last night. Some are from Brockville, some from Ontario, and a score from London and Goderich, of which the majority are Liberal deputy returning officers.

Alex. Smith and Tom Lewis will be on hand to-day, but will probably not be called until late to-morrow night. The defendants will take the stand just before the defence closes.

Both counsel anticipate that the case will be finished Saturday morning at the latest.

Two Struck by Train.

Three Rivers, Que., Nov. 28.—Two men named Amedee Roch and Albert Panneton were found at 7 o'clock yesterday morning lying unconscious on the track of the St. Maurice Valley Railway near Villa Mon Repos. It is believed they were struck by the train that passed there at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. Amedee Roch died last evening and Panneton is still unconscious and not likely to recover.

Turned Back Runaways.

Chatham, Nov. 28.—Things in Galt were too slow to suit the tastes of Albert and Evan Viges, aged 11 and 12 years respectively, so they ran away yesterday and landed at Chatham in the afternoon. A telegram from the chief of police preceded their arrival.

The little chaps told the police that they were on their way to visit friends in Detroit.

Boyd a Quiet Prisoner.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—John Boyd, the condemned negro awaiting capital punishment at the Toronto jail, has settled down to meet his fate. He eats and sleeps well, and his guards say he is the best death prisoner over whom they ever watched.

Intimidation Charged.

Kingston, Nov. 28.—John Martin, a non-union tailor, has laid information against George Leader and W. J. Robinson, on a charge of intimidation. The two men accused are striking tailors.

"C.-B." Takes Rest Cure.

London, Nov. 28.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Premier, who has been in ill-health for some few weeks, has left here for Biarritz, where he will take the rest cure.

Concert Manager Arrested.

St. Thomas, Nov. 28.—Byron Blackstock, London, was arrested and brought here yesterday, charged with failing to provide the necessaries of life for Florence Baker, a 14-year-old girl, who was a member of a touring concert troupe, and whom the informant, George Burkholder, St. Thomas, the girl's brother-in-law, claims, was forced to sleep in depots and halls in West Elgin villages. The concert company came to grief at Rodney a few days ago.

Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—Fire broke out in the establishment of the Canadian Wadding Co., Visitation street, this mated at $20,000. When the first firemen arrived on the scene flames were bursting out of the windows and traveling rapidly in all directions. So fast did the fire spread that 40 employes narrowly escaped with their lives. As a result of the conflagration 40 hands will be temporarily thrown out of employment.

British Interests Threatened.

Pekin, Nov. 28.—On account of the failure of the Pekin syndicate, a British corporation holding the largest concessions China has ever given, and the officials of Shansi Province, to reach a compromise in the matter of "rights of recovery," violence is threatened in the province. At Tyaunfu, the people are renewing their demonstration against the syndicate.

Blaze in Sintaluta, Sask.

Sintaluta, Sask., Nov. 28.—A bad fire visited the village Tuesday evening, which destroyed Bell Bros.' store, the postoffice, Wilbur's boarding-house, and A. McKinney's residence. The furniture in the latter two buildings was saved, but the aggregate loss will be heavy.

NOTABLE MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Of Special Value to Many People Here in Peterborough

One of the most notable discoveries and one that undoubtedly appeals more than anything else to many people here in Peterborough is the combination of stomach remedies in the Mi-o-na treatment. This prescription has worked wonders, and there is now no excuse for anyone suffering with indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts specifically upon the muscles of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten. It also increases the flow of gastric jouices, thus getting from the food the nourishment that is necessary for health and energy.

The symptoms of indigestion are numerous, such as distress after eating, flatulence, heart-burn, sick headaches, dizziness and irritability. These are all dispelled by a few doses of Mi-o-na when the trouble is recent, but just as surely in long-standing and chronic cases if the treatment is followed for a reasonable length of time.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by Wm. Madill under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it should fail to cure.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Children Lose Their Lives at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Nov. 28.—There were three little victims of a fire about midnight, when the residence of William Danburg was burned.

The house was occupied by nine people, Mr. and Mrs. Danburg, Lena Danburg, aged 16; William, aged 13; Dodie, aged 11; Joseph, aged 9; Minnie, aged 7; Rachel, aged 3, and a hired man, Samuel Maetz.

When the fire first started the older people made a rush to get out to safety. Mrs. Danburg ran into the street, terror-stricken, and she was quickly followed by her eldest daughter, Lena, who seized the youngest child, Rachel, in her arms and carried her to safety.

Samuel Maetz endeavored to save the boy William and the girl Minnie, but on the way downstairs he was forced back into the flames.

The father was rendered insane by the tragedy.

Anti-German Feeling in Australia.

London, Nov. 28.—Sydney commercial community learns with astonishment that Germany saddles the agreement to arbitrate the outstanding claim relating to the Marshall Islands, with conditions respecting undefined German claims against Britain. This further delay is reviving the former anti-German feeling, and is likely considerably to harm German trade.

The Legislature at Melbourne is sitting 72 hours a week to complete the tariff before Christmas. A struggle is proceeding regarding the duties on machinery. Considerable reductions appear certain.

A Cage For Gold.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 28.—Since the big gold robberies on steamers plying on the Yukon River between Dawson and Fairbanks, many devices have been planned to safeguard the gold while it is being transported. The latest is a cage four feet long and the same in width and eight feet high, placed in the centre of the main passenger deck. It is believed that by placing the gold in plain view of all the passengers, no one will be bold enough to try to steal.

Fight on Mauretania.

New York, Nov. 28.—One hundred Italian coal shovelers who were engaged in loading the new Cunard liner Mauretania at her dock on the Hudson River yesterday, became involved in a riot in which a number of pistol shots were fired, and several of the rioters jumped into the river to escape the bullets. The quarrel is believed to have been between factions.

Tragedy Follows Failure.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 28.—Geo. C. Lyon of this city, president of the Caswell-Massey Co., druggists of New York City, which went into the hands of a receiver this month, died at his home here Tuesday night, from heart trouble following an attack of nervous prostration.

Weston Completes Great Walk.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Edward Payson Weston completed his 1,234-mile walk from Portland, Maine, at 12.15 yesterday. Weston broke by 1 day, 3 hours and 25 minutes a record made by him 40 years ago on a trip to this city over practically the same route.

Carried Over the Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Cornelia B. Loveridge, 302 Hudson street, Buffalo, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by jumping into the river from Green Island.

She left a letter which is to be opened by the coroner.

PUBLIC, NOT COUNSEL.

Judge's Pertinent Remarks in Reference to Halifax Case.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—In the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon the two appeals in the Halifax election case, Roche v. Hetherington, and Carney v. Hetherington, were called. The appeal was from an order made by the election judges, fixing the date for trial pursuant to a former judgment of the Supreme Court, directing that the trial should proceed, the judges having held that they were without jurisdiction.

The appellants, who were respondents in the election petitions, objected to the order, claiming that the petition had lapsed by non-prosecution immediately after the judgment of the Supreme Court given. Motion was made to quash the appeals on the ground that they were taken neither from the decision on the preliminary objections nor from the judgment or decision of the trial judges, who tried the petition. After hearing counsel, the court gave judgment quashing the appeal with costs.

This means that the election trials will be proceeded with on their merits at Halifax, but, as these cannot take place while the House is sitting, Messrs. Carney and Roche retain their seats during the present session.

When the cases were called the presiding judge, Justice Girouard, said: "I observe that these appeals have been placed at the foot of the Maritime Province list, and I understand from the registrar that was done by the consent of counsel. I desire to point out that in election cases, in which the whole public is interested, the convenience of counsel should not be considered and, speaking for the court and with the consent of the chief justice, I wish it to be understood that in future no election appeal will be placed anywhere except at the top of the whole list, unless otherwise specially ordered by the court or judge."

Baron Battersea Dead.

London, Nov. 28.—The death is announced of Cyril Flower, first Baron Battersea. He was born in 1843, and was Lord of the Treasury under Gladstone's last administration.

Hasn't Reformed Yet.

Strathroy, Nov. 28.—Aggie Thomas, who was tried at Wiarton for manslaughter not long ago, was arrested here yesterday for drunkenness on the street.

Netted Sixteen Thousand.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—The recent society bazaar in aid of the tuberculosis hospital, held at the Drill Hall, under the title of the Streets of Paris, will realize $16,500.

Accept Wage Reduction.

Rossland, B. C., Nov. 28.—Rossland Miners' Union by referendum vote yesterday consented to reduce the wage scale to that which was in effect prior to July 1.

Apple Dumplings.

Peel and core as many apples
As your appetite may wish.
Six or eight—perhaps a dozen—
That would be a generous dish.
Make a dough like butter biscuit,
Roll it thin with skill and care
Place an apple lightly on it;
Take your knife and cut it square—
Large enough to fold your fruit in—
Then within the vacant space
Of the core, a bit of butter,
Cinnamon and sugar place.
Draw your square up well together,
Pinch it gently on the top,
So your dough will be protected,
Lest the cooking juices pop.
When your apples are all covered
Take a fork and prick them through.
'Twill prove better in the baking.
Half a dozen times will do.
Bake them slowly and while cooking
Take of sugar just a cup
And a modest lump of butter
And with light hand cream them up,
Adding extract, and your hard sauce
Set on ice to harden more.
Lift your apples from the oven,
And your labors will be o'er.
Serve them hot—the sauce adds flavor,
And each dumpling, firm and brown,
Is a practical achievement,
Adds a jewel to your crown.

Stops Itching, Heals the Skin

AND FOR THIS REASON THERE IS NO CURE FOR ECZEMA SO SATISFACTORY AS

There is always a certain amount of mystery about all medicines that are taken internally, but not so when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied to raw or inflamed skin, for the benefits are self-evident.

It is because Dr. Chase's Ointment possesses in a remarkable degree the ability to stop itching and heal raw skin that it has become known the world over as the most successful treatment for such disease of the skin as eczema, salt rheum and psoriasis.

By all means tone up the system by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but also cure the eczema by the local application of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The wretched stinging, itching sensations will soon disappear under this treatment and gradually and naturally the raw sores will become smaller and smaller until they entirely disappear.

But there are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home, and especially so where there are children who suffer from teething eczema, chafing, insect bites, hives, poisoned skin or any form of skin irritation or eruption.

Mr. O Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about about a thorough and permanent cure. She had suffered for considerable time, and though we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Test Dr. Chase's Ointment in any case of itching skin or on a sore that refuses to heal, and you will be surprised at the results.

Mothers use Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing and skin troubles of their babies in preference to worthless pore-clogging powders; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A PLEASING STRIDE

"One of the 14"

Some women walk heavily and clumsily, while others have the pace of an "ambling nymph."

An unpleasing carriage may be due to many causes, but chiefly to awkward shoes.

This is why Dolly Vardens give "A Pleasing Stride."

Their narrow construction and newly devised steel arch support hold the foot at every point with gentle firmness. You can't walk pleasingly in loose harness.

Their Free Flat Tread guarantees that every step will come down "sure and firm set."

Their Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance throws the body into vertical athletic erectness.

Their Harmless High Heels and narrowness give a fascination to the stepping foot when viewed from the back.

Their Aristocratic Arch gives the steps smartness when viewed from the side or at right angles.

Their New Steel Arch Support and Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance strengthen the ankles by properly exercising the ankle muscles. Strong ankles are essential to pleasing carriage.

Being fatigue reducing the wearer won't tire; walks more and becomes more expert.

Purchasers or investigators equally welcome. $4.00 to $5.00 in Canada and the States. Every pair Goodyear welted.

WIFE SHOT WHILE SHE SLEPT

John Whitley Kills His Wife in Brooklyn Hotel.

THEN LEAPED FROM WINDOW

Plunged From Ninth Storey and Was Instantly Killed—Check Book Showed All Their Funds Were Exhausted—No Other Motive For Crime—Tried to Write a Message But Failed to Do So.

New York, Nov. 29.—John Whitley, one of the leading dealers in stoves, ranges and house-heating apparatus in Brooklyn, and vice-president of the Reliance Ball-Bearing Door Hanger Co., killed his wife with two pistol shots early yesterday as she lay sleeping in her room on the ninth floor of the Hotel Belleclaire, Broadway and 77th street, Manhattan. Whitley then leaped from the window into the street, being killed instantly by the fall. Whitley was 60 years old, and his wife 38. They had a home in the fashionable section in Brooklyn, but had been living temporarily at the Belleclaire.

No motive for the murder and suicide could be discovered. The police who endeavored to ascertain whether financial troubles may have been the cause, found in the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Whitley a check book on the Franklin Trust Co., showing that all the funds were exhausted, the last check having been drawn in payment of their hotel charges. The couple always lived lavishly, and there is no real evidence of any business reverses. A cab driver who saw Whitley's body, dressed only in pajamas, lying on the sidewalk, gave the first news of the tragedy. An immediate search of his apartment revealed the body of Mrs. Whitley stretched on the bed with two bullet holes through her head. She had evidently been shot while asleep, and there was nothing to indicate that she had ever regained consciousness. After the shooting, Whitley had apparently tried to write a note of explanation. On the dresser was found a blood-stained envelope, on which had been previously scrawled one or two words.

From the appearance of the rooms, it is believed that Whitley then attempted to send a bullet through his own brain, using a hand mirror to aid him in directing its course, but at the last minute lost his nerve and chose death in a dive to the street.

End of Chinese Puzzle.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—In the Supreme Court a motion was made for special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario affirming the judgment of the Divisional Court, which set aside a portion of a conviction on Ing Kong, for selling Chinese medicine containing alcohol in Toronto. Fixed Adjournment Proposed.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Aaron A. Wright, M. P., of South Renfrew, is the author of a proposal to come before Parliament at its present session, providing for a fixed hour of adjournment for the House of Commons. DEATH OF HUGH MURRAY.

Masonic Grand Secretary Passes Away Suddenly at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Nov. 29.—Hugh Murray, grand secretary of the Grand Lodge of Canada, A. F. & A. M., and one of the most prominent Masons in America, died unexpectedly at his home here about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. On Tuesday afternoon he suffered a slight stroke of apoplexy, but was thought to be recovering.

He was 65 years of age, and was born in Paisley, Scotland, coming to Hamilton in 1860. He was chief clerk in the Customs Department for a time, and in 1879 opposed J. M. Gibson in the Conservative interests in the Provincial election, being defeated. For twenty-five years he was a member of the Board of Education.

His Masonic connection was extensive. On Jan. 24, 1868, he was initiated into Acadia Lodge, No. 61, and was elected secretary in December of the same year. In 1873 he was appointed assistant grand secretary of the grand lodge; in 1874 was made grand junior warden; in 1877 was appointed D.D.G.M., and in 1882 was given the office of district grand master. In 1884-5 he was grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, and on the death of Edward Mitchell, grand treasurer in 1891, he succeeded to that position. In 1903 he succeeded to the grand secretaryship on the death of J. J. Mason. He was P.F.P. of St. John's Chapter, R.A.M., No. 6; P.T.P. of Godfrey de Bouilon Preceptory; K.T.G.M. of Murton Lodge of Perfection; P.M.W. Sov. Rose Croix Chapter, S. R.; P.G.M. of the Grand Lodge of Canada; past secretary of Grand Chapter of Canada; Lieut. G. C. of Moore Consistory, S.R.I.; grand secretary of the Supreme Council and grand chancellor of the Scottish Rite.

Mr. Murray was honorary president of the Tigers Football Club, and the game between the Tigers and Montreal, scheduled for Saturday, has been postponed.

The election was fought cleanly on both sides and good feeling existed, despite the strenuous character of the fight. The town of Truro gave Stanfield 305 majority, compared with 43 for the Conservative in 1904.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—The receipts of cheese at Montreal from May 1 to Nov. 24, were 2,089,005 boxes, compared with 2,315,116 boxes for the corresponding period of 1906, leaving a shortage for this season of 276,051 boxes into Montreal alone.

The total shipments from the ports of Montreal, Quebec and Portland from May 1 to Nov. 24, were 2,031,255 boxes as compared with 2,222,839 boxes for the corresponding period in 1906, making a shortage of 201,581 in the exports.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market since Tuesday, as reported by the railways, were 95 carloads, composed of 1319 cattle, 1873 hogs, 1755 sheep and lambs, 46 calves and 2 horses.

Exporters.

None offered and none apparently wanted.

Butchers.

George Rowntree, who bought 240 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company, reported prices as follows: Best on sale at $4 to $4.30; medium butchers and good cows, $3 to $3.70; common butchers and common cows, $2.25 to $2.75; canners, 75c to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a brisker trade for feeders and stockers at an advance in price, especially for cattle weighing from 1000 to 1100 pounds, as well as steers 800 to 900 pounds. The reason for the better prices and brisker trade is that many farmers have taken a notion at the eleventh hour to feed a few cattle, seeing that feed is coming down in price. The Messrs. Murby bought and sold 350 cattle during the week, of which they sold 200 to farmers on the market on Thursday. They quote prices as follows: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., at $3.50 to $3.90; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.00 to $3.50; best stockers, 800 to 900 lbs., at $2.85 to $3.15; best stockers, 600 to 800 lbs., at $2.40 to $2.75; common stockers, unchanged at $1.50 to $1.75.

Milkers and Springers.

The offerings of milkers and springers during the week was not as large nor the quality generally as good as last week. Trade was not as brisk nor prices as high owing to the fact that the requirements from Montreal were not as great. Prices ranged from $34 to $60. The bulk of the best sold from $40 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Trade fair, prices steady at $3 to $6 per cwt., with a very few at $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were fairly large, trade steady, with prices as follows: Sheep $4, lambs $4.50 to $5.15 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris got 1872 hogs, and quoted prices at $5 for selects, fed and watered; lights, $4.75; stores, $4.50 per cwt.

British Cattle Markets.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—London cables are firmer at 10½c to 11c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c per pound.

AUTOS KILL MAN.

But Occupants Drive on As If Nothing Had Happened.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 28.—During a race between two high-powered automobiles at an early hour yesterday, James F. Grinnel, colored, was struck and instantly killed by one of the machines. Neither one stopped after the accident, but continued on their course. The police later arrested young Brown and his chauffeur. The police were unable to find Elliott.

Young Student Drowned.

Winnipeg, Nov. 29.—Isaiah Jones, a young Welshman and theological student at Wesley College, 23 years of age, was drowned in the Y.M.C.A. swimming pool yesterday afternoon. Just how the accident occurred is not known, as there were no witnesses to the tragedy.

It is presumed Mr. Jones was swimming when he was seized with a cramp. He was found in the pool by a couple of boys.

SWIFT JUSTICE

[Original.]

"Will your excellency have a boat?" asked a soft voiced, soft eyed Italian of an Englishman on the bay of Naples.

The hour was sunset, the air balmy and the waters smooth. The Englishman hired the boat and was pulled out into the bay till the island of Ischia stood on the one hand and Capri on the other, while the broad Mediterranean stretched before him. He was thinking what a beautiful region and what a degraded people. Cavour had not at that time by statecraft welded the Italian states. Garibaldi had not risen like a rocket with his military achievements. The government of Naples was especially despicable. The Englishman, being too warm, took off his coat, laying it on a seat. When he had gone as far as he wished he directed the boatman to turn about and pull back. Then, when the shore was reached, he took up his coat and went his way.

An hour later he missed his purse. Certain that it had dropped from his coat pocket when he had laid it on the seat, he went to the shore. The boatman had just come in from another trip on the bay. He looked very much hurt out of his soft eyes when the Englishman told him that he had dropped his purse in the boat, saying that he had found no purse.

The Englishman did not doubt that the boatman had appropriated his purse and its contents, but had no proof of the theft and would not have proceeded against him in any event. What could be expected of a people living under such a government? He went to his hotel angry with himself at his carelessness and angry with the despotic sway that prevented the Neapolitans from getting an honest living. Meeting some countrymen of his own in the cafe where he dined, he told them of the circumstance of the loss of his purse, inveighing bitterly against the government.

"In a land oppressed by tyranny," he said, "it is impossible to have a prosperous people. A people who are not permitted to keep what they earn must steal. Here all they earn must go to the government. In our country our workingmen are lightly taxed, and when crime is committed there is a police force to ferret out the criminal and courts to administer punishment."

He spoke in English, not supposing that he was understood at any one of the neighboring tables even if overheard.

"Softly," interrupted one of his companions in an undertone. "That well dressed, gentlemanly Italian over there is listening, I'm sure."

"What makes you think so?"

"I have seen the color rise to his cheeks and his nostrils dilate. He is suppressing wrath. Look out for yourself during the rest of your stay here. Don't go through the narrow streets lest you get a stiletto in your back."

"They dare not murder an Englishman. At this time they don't wish to make an enemy of a powerful nation."

"Not openly. You will be missing. That is all."

The Englishman visited the buried cities near Naples and the volcano that buried them; then, the evening before his departure being fair, he took boat and visited Capri. When on returning he stepped ashore he was accosted by a gentleman whom he recognized as the one who had been suspected of listening to his conversation at dinner a few evenings before. The man spoke in English, with an Italian accent.

"You are Lord B., I believe," said the Italian.

The Englishman, who was traveling incognito, was surprised. He inclined his head in assent.

"And leader of the opposition in the British house of commons?"

Again the Englishman nodded his head.

"You lost a sum of money a few days ago?"

"I did."

"How much?"

"Eighty pounds."

"You are mistaken. There were £80 and 2 napoleons."

"I believe you are right."

"In what did you keep them?"

"In a silk purse."

"Of what color?"

"Different colors."

"The rings were"—

"Of gold."

"Where do you think you lost your purse?"

"In one of these boats while out on the bay."

"Do you suspect any one of taking it?"

"Possibly the boatman."

"Should you recognize him?"

"Certainly."

"Please step this way."

The Italian led the Englishman to one of the boats that lined the shore. It bore the name of the one in which he had lost his purse. Something lay in the bottom. It was covered with a dirty cloak. The Italian lifted the cloak, and there lay the man who had rowed Lord B. on the bay, dead. In his hand was the purse. The Italian took it from the cold fingers and handed it to the owner.

"Will you count it?"

"No," said Lord B., at last rebellious.

"Very well. I trust that when you return to your country, where you boast of your justice, you will not malign the government of Naples, where you have seen how swiftly punishment is meted out for crime. His majesty the king directs me to give you his compliments and say that, though so important a man, it would not be wise for you to again criticise his rule in his dominions."

The diamond does not appear to have been esteemed by men of the earliest times. This gem has not been found in the ruins of Nineveh or in the Etruscan sepulchers.

It is this section which not only serves to conceal the actual weight of the wearer, but successfully persuades the flesh to the hips, and reduces the abdomen very effectually.

No stout woman has ever yet reduced her abdomen with comfort and safely by the use of any corset except "D & A Form Training" style 575; Price $3.50.

You will find this style and various other corsets are sold, ranging in prices from $5.00 to $1.00.

SAYS THAT THE TALE IS FALSE

Witnesses Deny Any Crooked Work During London Election.

VANCE REFUTES PRITCHETT

Deputy Returning Officers Called For the Defence—Farr Was Sober When Famous Affidavit Was Signed—Vance Declares He Never Paid Pritchett Anything—Says He Saw No Ballot Switching.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—James Vance, famous in several elections as an active worker in the cause of Liberalism, was the chief witness yesterday for the defence in the London conspiracy case.

He admitted that he was with "Tom" Lewis, "Jack" O'Gorman, "Alex." Smith, "Billy" Brant, "Bill" Mulloy and "Dan" Wiley in North Waterloo, but he denied altogether the narrative of J. Garrett Pritchett.

Vance was the first man to couple Mulloy and Wiley up with any outside deals.

He also swore that Farr made his famous affidavit when he was sober, and because he wanted to make it.

He denied any crooked work at any time, and when Mr. Lynch-Staunton asked why he had never gone after the newspaper for libel for charging him with "these atrocious crimes," Vance said he didn't want to do that.

Vance said he was assistant Liberal organizer for the province for five years, commencing in 1898. In all bye-elections it was the rule to send outsiders into the constituency.

"Did you know of any wrongdoing by any one or yourself in the elections mentioned in this enquiry?" asked Mr. Johnston.

"No."

He knew Pritchett in North Hastings, where he had gone to witness and said that his name was Roberts and was sent to help in the election. He would not tell who sent him.

"Oh, another alias," broke in Mr. Johnston. "Did you use him?"

Witness said he hadn't, on the contrary, he had warned others against him. He had not seen him in North Ontario. No money had been "used" in Hastings, affirmed Mr. Vance.

Mr. Johnston read from Pritchett's evidence where the latter said that he was sent to Brooklin to meet Vance, but witness emphatically denied ever having seen him there at all. He also denied that he had instructed Pritchett to spoil ballots. He had never heard of switching or spoiling ballots in the Liberal ranks, then or since. "Pritchett never had any dealings with me whatever," declared Vance positively.

"Did you every pay Pritchett $1 in your life. He says he got $50 from you?" asked counsel.

"Not a cent. He had never had a conversation with Pritchett at the Walker House, either."

"When did you first come to know O'Gorman?" Mr. Johnston wanted to know and was told in North Waterloo.

"That is not evidence," broke in Mr. Staunton. "Nothing has been said about North Waterloo," but Mr. Johnston insisted there had been, and witness went on to say that he first met O'Gorman in 1899. He never knew O'Gorman to wear a moustache.

Witness knew nothing of any irregularity in West Huron in 1899. He had met Farr in Toronto, to get him to go to Ottawa to give evidence. Farr was afraid he would get in trouble and said he was going to Dakota.

"I suppose Pritchett has nothing against you?" asked Mr. Staunton.

"Our relations were not very pleasant in North Hastings," admitted Mr. Vance.

"Pritchett looked you up at Bancroft?"—"He did."

"There was a protest in South Ontario—was there any charge of stuffing ballots in that trial?"—"Not that know of."

"There was bribery on a large scale then and the election was voided?"—"Yes."

"Did you see O'Gorman there?"—"I don't recollect."

"Did you see Pritchett?"—"No."

The witness admitted that Alex. Smith was in charge of the Brockville election.

"You were in West Huron and there was a lot of ballot switching?"—"Yes."

Next to Vance, the most interesting witness of the day was Thomas Reid, brother of one of the defendants. He was examined by the defence counsel as to the affidavit which had been made by James Farr in reference to bribery and corruption in West Huron. Although Farr swore he was as "full as a fly" Reid swore that when Farr came to his office with Vance he was sober and knew everything he was doing. No inducements were held out to Farr to sign the statement.

Witness also told of Kelly, father-in-law of Ed. Sifton, coming to him and his brother, and threatening if Reid (the prisoner) did not pay up the money, he (Kelly) would bring back Sifton and "make it hot for the boys in London."

H. W. Bickle, a Toronto barrister, swore that he was present when Farr made his statement, and that he (Farr) was perfectly sober.

George King of Southwold, poll clerk at Middlemarch in West Elgin election, who acted under Pritchett, who was D. R. O., he had taken the oath and administered it to Pritchett.

William Coronon of London, a poll clerk in the Hyman-Gray bye-election, swore that everything was regular in his polling booth.

He admitted that he was paid $9.50 by "Jerry" Collins.

John M. McIntosh, deputy returning officer, knew of no crookedness in the London bye-elections. He had never been appointed by any of the defendants, or any one else about anything irregular. He received $80 or $90 for acting as clerk in three contests. He knew O'Gorman lived in the Liberal committee rooms, but never say anyone get any money there.

William Lynd, John A. MacDonald, Ernest Fitzgerald, George Bringhart, Benjamin Tripp and a score of other returning officers, one and all, swore that they did not know O'Gorman and that as far as they were aware there was no crookedness in the London bye-election.

FATAL BRIDGE ACCIDENT.

Collapse of Steel Girder in London Causes Two Deaths.

London, Nov. 29.—A 20-ton steel girder, upon being placed in its position yesterday, in connection with the widening of Blackfriars' Bridge, collapsed and carried down with it the surrounding staging.

Twenty workmen were plunged into the river. Several were pinned down in the water under the wreckage. All, however, were rescued except two, and these lost their lives. Several of the men were seriously injured.

Moors Invade Algeria.

Paris, Nov. 29.—Official advices received here from Oran, Algeria, declare that a portion of the Moroccan army invaded Algeria Wednesday. The French were forced to retreat and in the fighting they lost 11 men killed and 15 men wounded. Later, however, they were reinforced and succeeded in driving the Arabs back across the frontier.

Directors Were Ashamed.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—It was at the request of the directors of the Y. M. C. A. that the local press made no mention of Sir Frederick Borden's address when he contributed $1,000 to the association. Since then The Calgary Eye-Opener's charges have been given publicity, and the directors had hoped the engagement would be cancelled. It wasn't.

Found Forty Snakes.

Galt, Nov. 29.—A gang of Bell telephone men, who were working in the Collegiate grounds, uprooted an old telephone post and saw close upon 40 snakes lying snugly in the ground.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

Earl Grey Opens Session With All Due Ceremonial—Makes Reference to Colonial Conference — Treaty With France — Fisheries Question—Extension of Boundaries —New Members Introduced.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—With all the usual pomp and ceremony Parliament was opened yesterday.

The floor and gallery of the Senate chamber wer taxed to their utmost to accommodate those who wished to witness the function.

Through the stained glass tiles of the ceiling the light shone in soft and subduing tints on the brilliant scene.

His Excellency the Governor-General, Earl Grey, occupied the throne, on the left of which sat Countess Grey and her daughters, while on the right was Lady Laurier and other distinguished guests.

His Excellency wore the uniform of a Privy Councillor, his breast glittering with orders.

The chamber presented a varied and animated scene. The rich and gorgeous gowns of the ladies, the brilliant scarlet robes of the Supreme Court judges, the silken gowns and lace ruffles of the law clerks, together with the gay uniforms of the many officers attending the ceremony, all went to make up a brilliant tout ensemble only to be witnessed at rare intervals.

The Governor-General arrived in a superb equipage drawn by four horses, and attended by his aides-de-camp and a squadron of cavalry.

He was received with the national anthem, the guard of honor in front of the tower presenting arms as His Excellency descended from the carriage amid the booming of the artillery at Nepean Point.

Earl Grey at once proceeded to the Senate chamber and Black Rod was despatched to summon the Lower House to hear the speech from the throne.

Speech From Throne.

The speech outlined the principal items of legislation to be gone into and expressed congratulation on the remarkable extension of trade, far exceeding any previous year, the result being that the revenue has been ufficient to cover all charges of every kind, including a heavy outlay for the National Transcontinental Railway and leaving a surplus of over three millions to be applied to the reduction of the public debt. Gratification was also expressed at the large number of immigrants coming from the British Isles, and reference made to the important results of the recent Colonial Conference. It was announced that Parliament will be asked to give sanction to the new Franco-Canadian trade treaty, and also that Canada will join with Newfoundland in referring the international fisheries disputes on the Atlantic coast to The Hague tribunal. Mention was made of Hon. Mr. Lemieux's mission to Japan, and the satisfactory progress being made toward the settlement of the question of Oriental immigration; of the good progress being made on the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway, and of the rapidly-increasing revenues of the Postoffice Department, the surplus earnings of which will be devoted to bettering the service.

The Quebec disaster was also referred to, and the intention of the Government to proceed with the completion of the bridge within a reasonable time was announced.

The speech went on to say that the time has arrived when the public requires telegraph and telephone companies holding Federal franchises to be placed under Government control. A bill will be introduced for that purpose.

Among the measures to be submitted is a bill for the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba and of other provinces, also a bill to provide for the issue of Government annuities for old age, a bill respecting insurance and bills to amend the Election Act and the Dominion Lands Act.

This done the Commons returned to their own chamber, and were then in readiness for the business of the session.

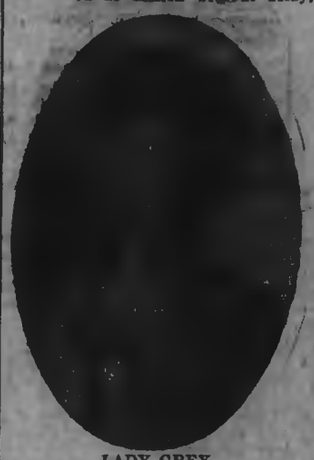
Five Members Introduced.

Five new members were introduced. The Government had three new supporters to present to Mr. Speaker, while the Opposition had two. The entry of these, after the return of the Commons from the Red Chamber giving occasion for some enthusiasm on both sides.

Hon. Dr. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, came in between Sir Wilfrid and Hon. Mr. Fielding, and Hon. George P. Graham between Hon. William Paterson and W. S. Calvert. Then Mr. Borden introduced Major Beattie of London, and C. L. Owen of London, F. D. Monk and W. B. Northrup, assisting. The last to be brought in was A. M. Martin, who keeps North Wellington in the Liberal column, Sir Wilfrid and H. H. Miller were his sponsors.

Debate on Monday.

Sir Wilfrid moved that the address in reply to the speech be taken into consideration on Monday, and a committee to strike the standing committees was named by the Premier. Sir Wilfrid, in reply to Mr. Borden, expressed the hope that the committee would be named without delay.



LADY GREY.

in order to facilitate the close of the session, informed the House that early next week the names would be submitted.

The convention respecting commercial relations between Canada and France was laid on the table by the Finance Minister, and public accounts for the nine months ended March 31, were brought down.

ANOTHER STATION ROBBERY.

Gang Tie Up Night Staff and Secure Cash at Prescott.

Prescott, Nov. 29.—A bold hold-up at the G. T. R. depot took place at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Two masked men threw rocks through the ticket-office window and then covered Night Operator Gamble and Night Baggageman Tyner, who were in the office at the time, with a revolver.

After gaining admission to the office, the men were tied and the till rifled. They got about $47 and escaped, leaving the two victims tied. Operator Gamble succeeded in releasing Tyner by untying the ropes with his teeth.

It is supposed the men belong to an organized gang who have been working east in the Province of Quebec. On Tuesday night the store of C. H. Thompson was entered by burglars.

Five Drowned In Collision.

New York, Nov. 29.—The Herald has received the following cable despatch from Cartagena: A fatal collision occurred last Thursday evening 25 miles east of Gibraltar, between the Cap Negro, a Belgian coal steamer, bound for Marseilles from Sunderland, and the Helvetia, an Italian steamer, bound for Lisbon from Marseilles. The Belgian vessel's bow crashed into the Helvetia's starboard side, sinking her. Four of her crew succeeded in jumping on board the Cap Negro, and subsequently the Helvetia's captain and nine men were picked up, while the boatswain, three sailors and a woman passenger, Adile Sala, 22 years old, of Lisbon, were drowned.

Arm Terribly Mangled.

London, Nov. 29.—Alexander Southam, a young man 17 years of age, living at 2 Dundas street, met with a very painful accident while feeding a press at the London Printing and Lithographing Co.'s works yesterday morning.

Young Southam in some way while feeding the paper into the press got his elbow caught in some gearwheels, and although his partner reversed the machine at once, Southam had practically all the skin and muscles torn from one side of his arm for a distance of about eight inches above and below the elbow.

Killed Finance Minister.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—The despatch received here eight days ago from Bokhara, Central Asia, relating that the treasury, there had been robbed was mistaken in some of its details. It now appears, according to more complete reports, that a number of bandits attacked the palace of the Ameer, killed the Minister of Finance and made their escape on horseback, with a sum of money equal to $90,000. Cavalry men pursued the robbers and captured one of them, who proved to be a soldier attached to the railway battalion.

Thrown From Cutter.

Montreal, Nov. 29.—While out driving Wednesday evening Mr. F. H. Mathewson, manager of the Montreal branch of the Bank of Commerce, was thrown from his cutter and severely injured. He drove home later, but shortly after reaching there complained of pains in the region of his heart. A doctor was summoned, and last night he stated that his patient was in a most precarious condition. Mr. Mathewson has been a constant sufferer from heart trouble.

Emigration Reforms.

London, Nov. 29.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Gilbert Parker, speaking to the Victoria League, urged the establishment of an organization for emigration to the colonies, in which British officials should be placed to meet the emigrants arriving.

CRUELTY TO A HORSE

Animal Made Draw Ton and a Half Of Flour Up The Hill—It Was Poorly Shod

THREATENED WITH ARREST

Another case of cruelty to animals, is reported by a prominent citizen of Peterborough, whose interest in the humane treatment of the dumb beasts caused a cessation, for the time being, at least, of the wrongs done to a horse. The animal was being driven up the hill on Hunter street, near the Hunter street bridge, drawing 3,000 lbs. of coal by its own strength, in addition to the wagon.

The load was undoubtedly too heavy for the horse, yet the driver used the butt-end of the whip on the animal's flanks. Its shoes were dull, to add to the discomfiture.

The driver was threatened with arrest if he continued to be abusive to the horse. He ceased immediately, but his profane language would scarcely be proper at a pink tea.

GARBAGE BY-LAW TO GO TO PEOPLE

Property Committee Will Consider The Question This Afternoon

The Property Committee of the city council will meet this afternoon to consider the question of what is the best course to pursue in connection with Ald. Elliott's garbage bylaw, about which nothing has been heard for some months. It will be remembered that the matter was left over until the end of the year, to be submitted to the people.

The committee this afternoon will decide upon the best way of doing this, whether to have the bylaw pass its first and second readings by the council, and then be submitted to the people as a bylaw or whether to put it before the people as a plebiscite, in which they will be asked to answer yes or not to the question of whether they are in favour of a garbage bylaw.

The majority of the committee, it is said, are of the opinion that the latter scheme is the better one, and it is altogether likely that the people will be asked to state their opinion on the subject without it being submitted to them as a bylaw.

The Manufacturers' Committee is also meeting this afternoon to consider the request of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company for a fixed assessment on their plant. It is not likely that the question will have advanced far enough this afternoon to submit a report to the council at Monday night's meeting.

BOWLING ALLEYS FOR THE Y.M.C.A.

Board of Directors Decide on This Feature Last Night

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. last night it was unanimously decided to instal two bowling alleys at once. A committee was appointed to receive estimates for the alleys and push the work forward as rapidly as possible. Mr. Fletcher, representing the Brunswick Balke Collender Company of Toronto, was present and gave some information regarding the alleys they put in. It is expected that the alleys will be ready for use early in the new year.

The agent here to-day from Toronto, however, states that the room selected by the Board for the installation of the alleys is not large enough, and it may be that it will be impossible to get them in, although the management is quite willing to do so.

PLENTY OF POULTRY FOR XMAS

One Big Flock of Fowl in The Country at Any Rate

A local gentleman who has returned from a visit to friends in the country returns with an account of a flock of poultry that will do much to assure local house keepers that there will not be such a dearth of fowl for Christmas market as has been anticipated. The gentleman in question paid a visit to the farm of Stark Bros., near Bethany, and states that the Messrs. Stark have 77 turkeys, 20 geese and 200 chickens ready for Christmas and some very fine birds are in the flock. Some of the young turkey gobblers weigh as high as 20 pounds, while the chickens are all big birds and will bring high prices.

THREE MEN FOUND GUILTY OF PICKING POCKETS HERE ON CIRCUS DAY SEEK RELEASE

Bradford, Goldfarb and Phelps Do Not Like The Central Prison in Toronto

ARE MAKING APPLICATION

Peterborough citizens will remember well the capture, trial and sentence of the three New York young men who were found guilty of picking pockets at the circus here last summer. The men were Bradford, Goldfarb and Phelps, and each were given eighteen months in the Central Prison, Toronto, to make amends for their guilt. Lewis, the fourth man captured through the detective work of P. C. Newhall, was discharged, but has since, according to reports, been arrested and sentenced to prison in the United States.

It was stated to-day in police court circles that the three men are anxious to get out of the Central Prison. Their reasons are possibly that the work in that institution is more strenuous than they desire.

At any rate, the men are making application to the Minister of Justice for their release, after serving only a few months of their year-and-a-half sentence. It is a well-known fact that prisoners, as a rule, do not fall in love with the conditions of the interior of the Central, and the trio of light-fingered gentry are no exception to the rule. The work there is usually hard, so that it would be vastly different to the life led on the outside of the prison walls by these young men.

Whether the application will be granted or not by the Minister of justice is mere speculation.

THE LINDSAY CHIEF RETURNS

No Trace of the Abductress Yet But He Expects Child Will Be Returned

THEY HUNT IN MONTREAL

Examiner Special

Lindsay, Nov. 29.—Chief of Police Vincent, who has been in Montreal since Sunday morning last prosecuting a search for Mrs. Cooroy, alias Mrs. Marvis, the abductor of little Dorothy Marion, is again on duty on Kent street, having returned from Montreal this morning.

Chief Vincent reports that upon reaching Montreal he repaired along with Mr. Marion to the office of Chief of Police Carpenter, who, after hearing a brief statement of the case and examining the warrant issued for the arrest of the woman, instructed Detective Riopel to accompany them and render every assistance in the search on which they were bent.

Monday and Tuesday they devoted to a systematic house to house visitation, covering eight streets in the western part of the city. They heard of the woman in a number of places, she appearing to be well known as a dissolute character, but no one had seen her recently nor knew her present whereabouts.

Return of the Child

The thorough character of the search being carried on seems to have alarmed some friends of the woman. Yesterday morning Mr. Marion and the Chief were approached by an Advocate who claimed to be acting for Mrs. Marvis, and from the admissions made by him and subsequent negotiations Chief Vincent feels confident of the return of the child, and perhaps the surrender of the woman to the authorities in the course of a week. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Marion will join in hoping the Chief may prove to be a true prophet in this instance, at least.

PAINTER'S JOURNAL ON THE WIN

Speaks in Complimentary Terms Of Mr. David Hartley

The current issue of the Painters' and Decorators' Journal contains an excellent photograph of Mr. David Hartley, accompanied by an article giving his record and referring in complimentary terms to the credit which he has brought upon the craft by his exploits. The Journal speaks of the record made by Mr. Hartley in walking from Oshawa to Toronto and then to Peterborough by way of Port Hope in a little more than 34 hours, and also to his victory over Jimmy Reynolds in Toronto on Saturday last both of which is considered most creditable.

The "At-Home" at St. Peter's T.A.S. rooms last night, like the former one, was a success. The rooms were comfortably filled and a happy crowd spent the evening at cards and music. Refreshments were served, and as pleasant a time as has been enjoyed at the rooms was concluded. The winners of the prizes in the euchre games were Miss Koster and Mr. R. Gilmen.

Was Afraid Of New Coal Stove

The death of Mrs. Kerr, whose body was discovered in an upper room yesterday morning, by P. C. Newhall, has recalled to the mind of a Peterborough doctor a somewhat amusing circumstance which occurred just a few days ago ago. In the north end of the city, a young woman, who was boarding at a private house, became frightened at the fumes of gas from the new coal stove, which had just been installed, which were being wafted throughout the house. It was the first coal stove the family had been acquainted with, so that they did not understand the uses of the various draughts and slides. The young woman valued her life very highly, and at mid-night left her downy couch, and came down to the centre of the city to a doctor's residence. There she related the incident to the medical man in the middle of the night. She refused to go back, and, for two days, remained at the doctor's residence, before returning to her former boarding house, which she left so suddenly. By that time the stove was running in a very much improved fashion.

LITERARY SOCIETY GETS MONEY

Twenty-five Dollars For The Collegiate Philomathean Society

BOYS MADE SPEECHES

If the pupils of the Collegiate Institute could have heard the addresses made by two of their fellow students, Colin Leon and Stanley Pringle, before the members of the Board of Education last night they would have been justly proud of them. These boys were appointed by the executive of the Literary Society to appeal to the Board for a guarantee of $25 for the publication of the school journal, "The Collegiate Echoes." They stated that their expenses were rather high and they did not seem it advisable to issue the paper this year unless they were assured that the Board would grant them $25 to meet any deficit, should such result.

Both boys explained the circumstances in a businesslike manner and at the same time with rare tact. They had always noticed that the Board gave its hearty support to anything that was a benefit to the schools or the scholars. The "Echoes" gave the students of the Collegiate a good training in literary work, and they asked that the Board might see fit to make them the desired grant.

The Board treated the boys as an indulgent father would, and to say that they were delighted with the addresses made by the boys is expressing it very lightly. All the members were "tickled" with the speeches, and the boys could easily have got more money. The opinion of the Board was that if the Literary Society was doing such good work for the pupils it was worthy of their support.

If the students had heard the praise that their society received, likewise their paper, everyone of them would vie with each other in enthusiastic support. The two boys spoke well and deserve credit. The Board unanimously granted them their request and congratulated the boys on their addresses and the society on its work. All the members are interested in the "Echoes," and should be stirred to even better work.

OPPORTUNITIES WERE GIVEN

The Park Street Family Allowed Plenty Of Time to Vacate Premises

In yesterday's issue mention was made of the eviction of a family of four on Park street, named Fry. Since then some particulars have been received which place a different aspect on the affair.

On July 6 the executors of the late N. McDonald estate, who held a mortgage on the property, decided to sell it by auction. This was done and the purchaser was Mr. John Craig. That was the second occasion the property was put up for sale, there being many attempting the purchase.

Since that time the owner has notified the four occupants on several occasions to leave the house, and by no means were they evicted without notice. The sheriff also states that he has been visiting the house two or three times a week during the present month to attempt to get the occupants out. There were no harsh measures used and every opportunity was given the family to leave long ago.

FARMERS AFFECTED BY THE SUDDEN DROP IN THE PRICE OF ORDINARY FARM GRAINS

Dissatisfaction Among The Farmers At The Rapid Decline in Prices Of Wheat, Oats, Barley And Peas—The Cause

BOTTOM OUT OF MARKET

"The bottom is out of the grain market," was the bad news that the farmers heard to-day, and great was their disappointment that they had not brought in their grain before.

The prices prevailing formerly and to-day were as follows:

	Before.	Now
Fall wheat, per bush..	$1.05 to	98c
Spring wheat...	$1	88 to 90
Oats...	55	42 to 45
Barley...	55	50 to 60
Peas...	90c to $1	85 to 90

Market Overstocked

The reason for the decline is reported to be due to the supply exceeding the demand. One Montreal firm is said to have 90,000 bushels of wheat, when last year at this time they had only 45,000 bushels.

A farmer said to-day "I'm sorry I did not bring in my oats last week, instead of finishing up my fall-ploughing. I was just going to begin drawing them in. I suppose," he sighed, "I'll have to keep what I have got until the prices get better. I'm not going to lose $24 on my oats. If I sold them now, I'd just lose $12 a ton." This and other stories were going the rounds to-day at the farmers' congregating places.

A grain merchant stated to-day that he believed the cause to be from the fact that there was an over supply of grain. At his factory the farmers were liberally bringing in grain in fact more freely than in the past.

The Result

If this condition of the price of wheat continues, the likelihood is that flour will be cheaper and although the farmers may suffer a little the city people will be able to get bread a little cheaper. Any movement in this direction will please those who are affected mostly by it and the city residents are as badly situated as the farmers.

It is no. known how long this will last or whether the decline will be more marked but the decrease in grain is not a very good sign for when the farmers are affected the whole country suffers. A farmer stated that he thought it would be a month or two until the prices regained their strength when the over supply had been diminished.

Mr. R. J. Wolstenholm Lost His Case Against McGee

At Division Court yesterday quite a number of the cases of a week ago were settled. Among them that of Wolstenholm vs. McGee was of special interest. Judgment with costs was given by His Honour Judge Weller in favour of the defendant McGee. R. F. McWilliams for plaintiff. F. D. Kerr for defendant. The case concerned a horse belonging to Wolstenholm which the complainant hired, but which "passed away" while McGee was driving it.

Castings Will Be Bought For City By Tender in Future

Finance Committee Decides To Recommend That Step to City Council—Will Save Considerable Money it is Expected

A DEBENTURE BY-LAW

The Finance Committee of the City Council at its meeting last evening passed an important motion which it is expected will save the city a considerable amount of money in the future if the Council decides to follow the recommendation of the committee. The members of the committee were of the opinion that the city is being charged outside prices for a large number of articles which have to be purchased, and it was felt that wherever possible these things should be purchased by tender. The committee therefore decided to recommend to the Council that in future tenders be called for the supply of iron castings for use in street and bridge work. This was one thing in which the committee was of the opinion that a saving could be made by having the castings purchased by tender instead of buying them as they are needed. A number of other things for which it was thought that the city was paying too much are used in such small quantities that it would be advisable to call for tenders.

The City Solicitor was also instructed to prepare a bylaw for the raising of debentures to pay the cost of enlarging the North Ward School.

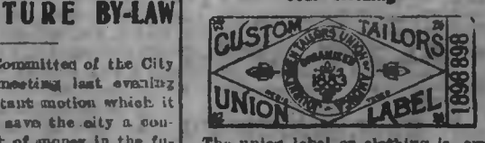
There were present Ald. Tovey, chairman; the Mayor, Ald. Phelan, and Ald. Wilson.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are only local, for, as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, and stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes, stubborn disease.

THE TAILORS AND THE UNION LABEL

What It Means to Have The Emblem On Your Clothing



The union label on clothing is emblematic of skill in tailoring, and entails no extra cost on the wearer.

It makes business, it brings business.

It guarantees that the tailor is paid sufficient wages.

You can order it on your tailoring without extra cost. It ensures good sanitary workrooms, and cleanly conditions.

It also ensures good wages.

It is a guarantee of superior workmanship.

It represents a high type of the brotherhood of man.

It is used by the shops doing the best tailoring.

Certain shops in the city have been in the habit of taking orders for tailored clothing and sending the work out of the city to be done by sweat shop methods. The work, of course, is poorly done, and of a very inferior grade. Always demand the union label on your clothing, and you will stamp out this imposition.

THE RUGBY CLUB IS GRATEFUL

The Examiner is requested by the management of the Peterborough Rugby Club, O.R.F.U. champions, to express the most sincere thanks of the club to those who so kindly contributed to the fund by which it was proposed to pay off the deficit, and thereby relieve the club of the necessity of playing Montreal, with the result of being professionalized. While the fund fell considerably below what was required yet the effort made was appreciated by the club, who are grateful for the effort made, and glad to learn that there are so many good friends of the team in the city. The club hopes that while they are compelled to lose their amateur standing by playing Montreal to-morrow that they will not lose any of their friends by so doing.

ARE BURNING VILLAGES

Examiner Special.

Oran, Algiers, Nov. 29. — [illegible] French reinforcements have been thrown into the field and [illegible] fighting is in progress to-day along the frontier again. The Beniguasil tribesmen who, after capturing a French outpost at Beludane yesterday, met with a subsequent repulse and retreated across the border, have again invaded Algeria. They have begun burning villages, and are depending on the Gallis forces to attack them. Losses on both sides are estimated at between two and three hundred.

LADY FALLS AND BREAKS HER ARM

Slipped on Ice in Front of H. Adams' Store

While on her way up George street yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock Mrs. Boates, a well-known citizen slipped on a piece of ice in front of Harry Adams' store and fell on the cement pavement.

Two young ladies who were passing at the time helped Mrs. Boates to get up, and she told them she thought she had hurt her arm, as she could not move it. They then took Mrs. Boates into Madill's drug store, where they telephoned for Dr. Cameron, and after he had examined the arm he found that it was broken below the elbow.

The lady was taken home in a cab and the arm was set immediately. To-day Mrs. Boates is feeling much better after her fall, but the arm is still very painful.

OBITUARY

MRS. CHARLES RANNEY

At her home, 345 Rubidge street, Agnes Grimsh Young, widow of the late Charles Ranney, passed away this morning at 3 o'clock, after a lingering illness of one year. The deceased was born in Picton and lived some time in Ottawa. She came here twenty-five years ago with her husband, who passed away two years after his arrival in the city. Mrs. Ranney was a member of St. John's church. She leaves to mourn her loss her mother, Mrs. A R V Young, and a brother, Charles Henry Young, of Norwood. The funeral will take place from her late residence, 345 Rubidge street, at 10 o'clock Monday, to Little Lake Cemetery.

ROBERT FREDERICK TATE

Very many persons in Peterborough will learn with keen regret of the death of a former and deservedly popular resident, Mr. R F Tate, C.E., who died suddenly at the Western Hospital, Toronto, on Thursday, from blood poisoning following a minor operation. Mr. Tate was well known in Peterborough. His last professional position was as Toronto resident engineer for Messrs. MacKenzie & Mann. Mr. Tate was a son of the late John Tate, C.E., a former resident of the city and a brother of Mr. John Tate, C.E. He was employed as engineer with the Midland Railway, when its offices were in Peterborough, and while a resident he won a large circle of friends who loved him for his genial, gentlemanly qualities and honoured him for his staunch integrity and thorough honesty of character and life. As an engineer his professional attainments and ability won the admiration of his professional brethren. He was married to a Miss Pringle, of Cornwall, a niece of Mrs. J E Aylmer, city, and leaves a wife and six children. He was fifty-three years of age. The funeral will take place in Toronto on Saturday and Mr. J E Belcher, C.E., among others from the city will attend it.

JAMES WILSON

Word was received here to-day from Toronto of the death of Mr. James Wilson of Lakefield, the sad news of which will be learned with regret by all who knew him.

The deceased had been ill for about two months and went to Toronto last Monday to undergo special treatment for his illness, but his condition never improved, and he passed away last night.

The deceased gentleman leaves behind him one sister, Mrs. James Easton.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock from the residence of Mr. J. McLarty, 67 Victoria avenue, to Lakefield Cemetery.

MR. BORDEN'S PRUDENCE

Last session of Parliament, the Conservative Opposition, led by Mr. Borden, carried on a campaign of scandal, which largely consisted of vague insinuations, unsupported by proof. Though Mr. Borden may not have had a conspicuous share in the relating of these scandals, leaving such unsavoury work to subordinates, he was willing to politically profit by them, and to make use of them in his speeches upon his touring platforms; that is, where they could be safely employed — where there was no local knowledge to confront their falsity or lack of foundation. These yarns did duty in his Ontario addresses, but as he went west, the enormity of these scandals took a diminished importance. These unworthy tactics, on the part of the Sir Galahad of politics, the leader of the great Conservative party, have been exposed by Hon. Sidney Fisher, in a recent series of addresses. He showed that Mr. Borden's recklessness, in making charges in respect of crooked land transactions, lessened, or disappeared, when he spoke in the west, where the site of these mainly mystical administrative crimes, are said to have been placed.

Mr. Fisher instanced the Robbin's land deal and, as pointed out by the London Advertiser, showed this was a matter concerning which all sorts of insinuations have been made by Conservative orators and writers in Ontario and the Eastern Provinces. The scene of this exploded scandal is near Medicine Hat and one would suppose the Opposition leader would grow eloquent on this subject at his meeting there. But, no; he made not the slightest reference to it. Neither did he at Saskatoon mention the Saskatchewan Valley Land Company transaction, out of which he and his lieutenants have been labouring so hard to make political capital in the east.

That the transactions referred to were in the public interest Mr. Fisher clearly shows and in this respect they stand in marked contrast to the policy of the Conservative governments, which gave away to friends immense areas of public lands. In all the Conservatives distributed among railway companies no less than 30,000,000 acres, and gave to other corporations 1,500,000 acres, while 8,500,000 acres was the total area granted to settlers during the eighteen years Mr. Borden's political friends were in office.

With the advent of the Liberal Government there came an end to land grants to railways. Not one acre has been so granted during the eleven years Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been in office, though, of course, it has been found necessary to make good obligations entered into by its predecessors. Since 1896 two million acres have been granted to various companies such as the Alberta Company, which secured half a million acres, and the Saskatchewan Valley Land Company, a quarter of a million acres, while during the eleven years settlers have been granted twenty million acres.

With all the land grants 3,918 miles of railway were built during the eighteen years of Conservative rule, while, without granting an acre of land to any railway company the Liberals during the past eleven years have been instrumental in having no less than 4,928 miles of railway built or placed under contract.

The results of the Conservative land policy are seen and felt in the west to-day. Most of the fertile belt in the odd-numbered sections has been practically locked up, while settlers going on the even numbers for homesteads, find themselves surrounded by land belonging to a railway grant, and held by the railway company free of taxation, until land values increase, leaving to the homesteader the payment of taxes and other burdens of a country in process of development. Is it any wonder that Mr. Borden is mum on the land question, when addressing western audiences? In connection with these matters, Mr. Borden's prudence calls for more admiration than his openness and honesty.

Hamilton is said to be contemplating an application to parliament for a change of name—its name is too suggestive of the proper name for Toronto, Ham-town. Toronto Star please notice that this brass storm is copyrighted.

When the Toronto News joins hands for law reform with Hon. Mr. McKay and criticises the Whitney Government for neglecting in this matter its pledges given in Opposition, we are tempted to face with a mild revolution. When Mr. Whitney is smitten in the house of his friends, then appears the handwriting on the wall, etc.

HERE WORDS

Many persons complained of, or regretted, the action of the championship Rugby team, as implied in their going to Montreal to play a professionalized team. Some of these had the courage of their sentiments, and meant what they said; but many others, who profess a keen interest in sport, and in the local team, especially, confined themselves to mere words. An opportunity was presented to those who felt that the local team had not received adequate support, through the season to make amends. But only a few took a practical view of the matter, and put their feelings into action, by contributing, or pledging, about $80 out of the $200 necessary, to enable the team to close the season, with a clean balance sheet, without making a long jaunt to Montreal, and meeting the penalty of being professionalized. Will it be fair to say that the team at Montreal will represent Peterborough? They represent themselves, and a few public-spirited gentlemen, who were willing to help them, and not a large class of our citizens, who take an interest in sport, represented by failure to accord liberal support through the season, and, when the real test comes, further fail to implement their professed interest by action. Of course these persons are under no responsibility, or obligation; they act within their rights; but now that the team has gone to Montreal, it is "up to" them to hereafter hold their peace in regard to blaming the team for the the course it was compelled to take, both for its good name and the good name of Peterborough — in default of receiving the support they should have received.

POLITICAL BIGOTRY

One witness in the conspiracy trial at Toronto swore that Conservatives were offering $15 for votes in Brockville. Another one professed to know that Conservative money was spent freely in the same riding. The White-Comstock election took place some years ago, but no earlier than the period covered by Pritchett's story. If the Ontario Government were as anxious to expose corruption as to smirch the Liberal party it would do as it did in London—send detectives to Brockville to ferret out evidence. Its partizan objects are written over the whole proceedings at Toronto.

To-day the Free Press has the impudence to accuse the Toronto Globe and other newspapers of brazenly slandering Mr. George Taylor, M.P., because they suggested that he should be called to refute the story of a witness who had heard that Mr. Taylor was handling money in Brockville. What sort of treatment is the Free Press meting out to the defendants in the present trial? In to-day's issue there is a screaming and scurrilous headline, "George M. Reid Sanctioned Opening of Ballot Box." Readers are told that "Reid appeared disturbed and ill at ease." and that "he rocked nervously back and forth on his chair, and apparently was troubled inwardly." Sifton is described editorially as "a prominent young citizen" of financial substance, who has told "a story of political corruption that surpasses anything ever told in the annals of Canada." The whole intent and purport of this is to prejudice Mr. Reid before he has had an opportunity to disprove Sifton's allegations or throw light on Sifton's motives.

The Free Press is the last journal in Canada that has a right to talk of slander, or whine about fair play. —London Advertiser.

And it is only a type of a large class of Conservative journals, of which the Mail and Empire is a shining example.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A snow fall in Ottawa timed itself to the opening of Parliament. To the Government party its show matter, but to the Opposition it seems a frost.

There were five new members introduced into parliament yesterday. They will get a good initiation for some seem to think that the session will last till June.

France is likely to find Morocco binding for the history of its colonial wars expensive. There is still fierce fighting in Morocco. The Moors won't stay "licked."

The Toronto Star is guilty of saying that lack of transportation for apples is "enough to give any apple lover, appleplexy." And yet there are those who advocate the abolition of capital punishment.

Before a municipality can consistently contemplate undertaking public ownership and operation—a new and untamiliar enterprise—it must show its ability to efficiently operate routine services with which it has had experience and training for years. It must show its ability to manage a city's streets, which present few problems, beyond common sense and common care, before it can hope to successfully manage complicated commercial and industrial enterprises.

During eighteen years the Conservatives were in power at Ottawa they alienated no less than 29,000 square miles, or 18,560,000 acres, of timber lands, and of this immense area 23,000 square miles, or 14,720,000 acres was granted without any competition, and without any payment of any kind whatsoever. In contrast with this not a single mile of timber has been granted by the Liberal Government except in open competition, where the bidding was open to all the world.

CURED AT HOME

Your physician will tell you that if his patients used a little precaution and attended to their ailments in time his profession would not have so many wealthy members. Those pains in the back denote kidney trouble, the liver is out of order, or the urinary organs are affected. The following prescription, which you can make at home, very inexpensively, would relieve all such ailments with a few doses. Get at your drug store one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of compound vimosa, and four ounces syrup rhubarb. Mix and take in dessert spoonful doses in a little water after meals and at bedtime.—6.

CHEESE FACTORIES ARE STRONG

Reports Show Good Balance For Past Summer's Work

The annual meeting of Trewerya cheese factory was held Wednesday afternoon and showed that the farmers in that vicinity have made a splendid profit from the cow. Mr. N G. Sommerville of Brookville was present and with Mr. Ward gave interesting addresses. Mr. G A Gillespie of the city was also present. Mr. G W Mann, President of the factory Factory Board was chairman. The following report was presented:—

Amount of milk received — 1,531,080 lbs.
Amount of cheese made—140,080 lbs.
Money received—$16,208.21.
Cheese sold to patrons—$247.69.
Gross value of cheese—$16,456.90.
Interest on Bank account.—$24.69.
Average number of lbs of milk to one lb of cheese—10.81.
Average amount per 100 lbs. received—97 cents.
Total number of patrons—53.

This factory has been equipped with a cool curing room for the season of 1907 and the benefits derived in saving in shrinkage amounted to 1-4 lb. less milk on every 100 lbs. of cheese. At the average price of cheese this will amount in a saving to the patrons of $200.00.

Lakefield Factory

In the evening the annual meeting of the Lakefield Cheese Factory Board met at tea which was served from 6 o'clock until 8 o'clock. Afterwards the President, Mr. Andrew Fairburn, called the meeting to order when the following report was read:

Average number of lbs. of milk to 1 lb of cheese—10.76.
Average price of cheese—11.70.
Average price per cwt. to patrons—91.3 cents.

Messrs. Somerville, Ward and Gillespie were also present at the Lakefield meeting.

SHEEP INDUSTRY IS WANING

Interesting Article Dealing With The Sheep Industry of Ontario

PETERBOROUGH IS BEHIND

Bulletin 161 of the Ontario Department of Agriculture dealing with the sheep industry in Ontario contains many interesting articles regarding this county. If all the counties in the province only five counties show an increase in the number of sheep owned by farmers. They are Prince Edward, Prescott, Muskoka, Nipissing and the combined counties of Algoma, Thunder Bay and Rainy River. All the others have decreased, among them Peterborough, which has gone back 25.4 per cent. The statement was prepared from the report of the number of sheep on hand in the five years between 1901 and 1905 inclusive.

The percentage of farmers who keep sheep in this county is 31, while Haliburton is highest with 85 per cent. The average number of sheep in the breeding flock for the county is 12, while Renfrew is highest with 23 per cent.

The report gives the following interesting remarks:—

The figures were not complete enough from some of the counties and districts to allow of their being used. It will be noticed that for the whole Province 34 per cent., or about one-third, of the farmers keep sheep, and the average size of the breeding flock is thirteen sheep. For the whole province 40 per cent. of the correspondents consider sheep more profitable than horses; 39 per cent. say that the profits are about the same, and 21 per cent. say that sheep are not so profitable as horses. Forty-two per cent. considered the profits from sheep greater than those from cattle; 28 per cent. considered that they give the same profit, and 29 per cent. think that the profits are less. In comparing the profits from sheep and swine 39 per cent. of the correspondents say that sheep are more profitable; 26 per cent. consider them equal, and 23 per cent. say that swine are more profitable than sheep.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE

Will Chronic Coughs Need Vinol—It Stops the Cough and Cures Cause

This is the season for coughs and colds, and for the benefit of Peterborough people our local druggists McDermid & Jury, tell them the best means for a cure.

They say: "Take Vinol, our real cod liver preparation without oil. It does not upset the stomach like cough syrups, and it is much more effective Vinol is not a palliative but a curative."

This is because Vinol contains in a highly concentrated form all of the healing, strength creating and medicinal elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, with all the useless, nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron added. It tastes fine, and cannot upset the weakest stomach, hence its wonderful power to cure.

We ask every person in Peterborough who has a chronic cough or hard cold to try Vinol on our guarantee. McDermid & Jury, druggists, Peterborough; also the Market Drug Store.

THIEVES OPERATING IN HAVELOCK

Poultry, Woodpiles and Clothes From The Lines Are Missing

Judging from reports from all parts of town, and from complaints handed in at this office, a gang of petty thieves are operating in Havelock. Nearly every night some one's poultry house is broken into and the feathered birds extracted. Woodpiles are also diminishing rapidly, and in some cases clothes have disappeared from the line. Some organized effort should be made to catch these offenders and a heavy penalty inflicted. Is it not up to the town council to provide some sort of police protection to our citizens?—Standard.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days, or money refunded. 50c.

Peterboro' Seniors Defeat Port Hope in Basketball

A Large Crowd Witnessed The Game—Many Fouls On Both Sides—Score 35-19 in Favour Of Peterboro'

GAME A POOR EXHIBITION

The first outside game of the season was played last night in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium between the Peterborough seniors and the senior team of Port Hope. The game was a very poor exhibition of basketball, the Port Hope boys being lost when it came to shooting.

The first half began with Peterborough scoring from a throw from the side, and from that on the locals scored continually until half-time, when the score was 27-1 in favour of the locals, the visitors scoring one from a foul. Cressman showed up in good style in the first half, and only once did he face the net on a foul shot and fail to place it in the net. Staunton, tall, lanky form at centre was so much for "Bill" Rankin, the only Port Hope man who opposed Staunton in the middle of the floor. Darling made some pretty shots from the side and centre that made the visitors stand up. The boys from the south seemed a little nervous during the first half and had a number of opportunities to score on a foul, but were too anxious to get it into the net.

The second half was just the reverse of the first. The local team played a fumbling game, while the visitors felt right at home, their combination was good and they scored at every opportunity. The last half was very much faster than the first, but the checking on the part of the visitors was rank. Three of their number were continually tagging after Cressman, but "Freddie" kept them all guessing and once in a while managed to get a look in. The rest of the local team seemed to have lost the steam they started out with and played a very poor game. The score at the close of the second half was 35-19 in favour of Peterborough.

The teams lined up as follows:—

Peterborough — Dobson, Darling, Staunton, Miller, Cressman.

Port Hope—Rankin, Jewell, Thompson, Davis, Garnet.

Referee—Dobbin of Peterborough, and F. B. Steer of Port Hope.

Between the first and second halves Mr. T. Daly, the local acrobat, went to the middle of the floor in the guise of a "Weary Willie" and entertained the audience with a few stunts they had never seen before in the tumbling line.

Many Entries Received For Harriers' Big Meet

GREAT PROGRAMME

The welcome news was received st night from Hamilton that Adms, the crack ten-miler and five-iler of the Hamilton Y.M.C.A. Harers, will be here for the special hree-mile race which will h eone of he features of the athletic meet to e held in the Brock street rink on Tuesday night. Adams holds the Canadian ten-mile record, winning it at St. Catharines on last New Year's Day. Adams was a prominent factor in the Hamilton Herald race, leading the bunch for over ten miles at a record-breaking trip. He also ran a great race in the recent Independent Harriers' meet in Montreal, finishing second to Tom Longboat.

President Best was in telephone communication with Mr. Astley, physical director of the West End Y. M.C.A., Toronto, who stated that the West Ends would be represented by Jack Tait, who was third in the Montreal race. There is keen rivalry between Adams and Tait, and they will be able to settle the question of who is the better man on Tuesday night.

The Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, after a series of three-mile races, has selected Bredin Galbraith to represent it. He has made the best time in the trials, and is confident of winning the event. The race will be worth the price of admission alone. Peterborough will be represented by Ernie Wilson, who is in grand condition, and intending to show the Toronto people that his recent victory over Coley was not a fluke. With Wilson, Tait, Adams Galbraith, Sellen or Coley battling for the honours, the race will have one of the most classy fields ever got together.

The entries close at six o'clock this evening and the handicaps will be made to-night. It is likely that there will be a number of other outside entries, including Frank Osborne, of the Irish Canadians, of whom the Star last night says:

"Frank Osborne, the I.C.A.C. all-round man, will go with the team to Peterborough on Tuesday. His ankle, which he sprained two weeks ago, has so improved the doctor says, that he will be able to jump."

Tom Longboat will be on hand to start the three mile special race, while T. C. Flanagan of the Irish-Canadians, will act as starter in the other events.

CHAUCER HAS A NEW TRICK PLAY

Will Work It Against Peterborough To-morrow

The Montreal team will be out this evening for their final practice in the gymnasium, when Coach Chaucer Elliott will put on the finishing touches. He has devised a new play that he thinks is the best he has taught the Montrealers this season, and is suited to a heavy ground, and should be effective, as the M.A.A.A. field on Saturday is bound to be soft underfoot, unless a decided change in the weather takes place.

The snow will be scraped off the grounds, and the field marked out with chalk lines. Poles will be placed indicating the whereabouts of the yard, touch and goal lines, in case it snows before the match.

The Montreal players are all confident of downing Peterborough.

Dr. Irvine does not express the same degree of hopefulness. "I think that we will beat them," said the doctor, "but we will have a hard game. Peterborough are stronger than we think, and on a wet ground they should make us go all the way."

Tickets are going fast for the game.—Montreal Star.

SKIPS APPOINTED LAST NIGHT

Curlers Waiting For The Ice; Have Their Tams and Brooms Already

THE FEES WERE INCREASED

The meeting of the curlers last night, for the appointment of skips, was a very enthusiastic one the prospects for a good season are excellent.

President C. N. Brown was in the chair, and a large number of the curlers were present.

Among other things that were discussed was the question of the fees for the year. It was decided to increase them to $7 per year.

The members are very enthusiastic over the old game and are anxiously awaiting Mr. MacIntosh's first efforts for the year. Ice is expected sometime next week, and in any event it will not be long before the rink resounds with shouts and the reports of colliding stones.

The following skips were appointed: Messrs W. G. Ferguson, S. Ray, C. N. Brown, T. Rutherford, J. H. Connal, D. Davidson, D. Cameron, W. Greer, C. Rutherford, W. G. Morrow, R. Neil, R. M. Waddell, T. F. Matthews, S. Clegg, S. T. Medd, Thos. Brightman, D. Belleghem, G. Fitzgerald, R. Hicks, W. J. Thompson, E. B. Clegg, D. Hall, H. R. H. Kenner, R. J. Winch, Jas. Bogue, W. E. Talbot, C. E. Frost, Dr. Wightman, A. Moore, H. Foote, W. McIlroy.

LEAVE FOR MONTREAL TO-NIGHT

Peterboros Meet the Inter-provincial Champions To-morrow Afternoon

The Peterborough rugby team will leave to-night on the midnight C.P.R. train for Montreal, where they will meet the Montreal team to-morrow afternoon in a sudden death game for the Dominion rugby title. The team has secured a special car which will be attached to the sleeper. Only a couple of supporters in addition to the team and Secretary McDonough will make the trip. The team finished its training for the game last night with a signal practice in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, and the players are in good condition for the hard battle which is before them and should make a creditable showing in their biggest game of the year.

The following players will make the trip: Mulhern, Quinlan, Colledge, Crough, Lundy, Clarke, Desmarais, O'Brien, Dickson, Fitzgerald, O'Connor, Dillon, Hartubise, Crowley, Cassiff, and Davidson. Word was received last night from Montreal to the effect that it would be impossible to secure the services of Phil. McKenzie of Montreal as umpire, and suggesting Mr. Burland of Montreal. The locals wired back that they would accept any competent official.

HARRIERS EXECUTIVE TO MEET

Important Meeting To-night to Arrange For Meet on Tuesday

There will be an important meeting of the executive and officers of the Y.M.C.A.. Harrierrs Club at the Examiner office not later than 8.30 o'clock to-night. Every member is urgently requested to be on hand, as the handicapping for the big athletic meet to be held on Tuesday night will have to be done, and other arrangements made for the programme the details of which have not been arranged yet. It is important that the members should be on hand early as the work of handicapping the entries in the three handicaps will likely take some time.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The rugby team had a great practice last night at Riverside Park in preparation for the game in Montreal on Saturday. Seventeen men were out in uniform and the practice was of the liveliest nature. The snow arrived in the midst of the workout, but the men did not allow the flakes to interfere with the practice, and they cavorted around in the snow for an hour, finishing up with a run over to town. The practice was the best held for some time and the team is in grand condition. Another practice will be held to-night in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium at 7 o'clock, and every man is expected out for a workout in the signals.

The Committee Could Not Agree Upon Price For Park

Board of Education and Council Representatives Discussed The Matter Last Night—The Board Wanted $3000 For Lot

THE CITY OFFERED $2500

The joint meeting of committees from the Board of Education and the City Council last night in reference to the new park which it is proposed to establish in the south end of the city, failed to come to any decision in the matter there being a dispute over the price which the council should pay the Board for the lot upon which it was proposed to locate the park. The Council was represented by the Mayor, and Ald. Tovey and Wilson, while the interests of the Board were looked after by Messrs. R. Fair, D W Dumble and Dr. Morrison.

The School Board's committee were authorized to sell the property in question for $3,000, whereas the Council's committee had decided to offer $2,500 and guarantee an expenditure of $500 in putting the ground in shape for park accommodation.

The Mayor thought the Council's committe were offering a fair price for the grounds, the whole of which cost the School Board but $4,000. There is, he contended, practically no difference between the two halves—that on which the King Edward is built, and that sought after by the city council—and any increase in value since the board's purchase has been engendered by the city opening up George and Aylmer streets at a very heavy expenditure. "We are prepared to go to the extent of $3,000 for this park in the south end; the board paid $4,000 for the whole lot, and by us paying them $2,500 for one half they will get the actual cost of that half back, together with $500 with which to improve the King Edward grounds. And we will guarantee to spend $500 in park work."

Mr. Dumble offered that the board are not seeking private gain; the $3,000 paid by the city would be used in paying for needed improvement to the King Edward school beyond contract provision. "This sale would save us going to the people for the cost of such improvements."

The price asked by the board for this property figures out at $10 a foot.

Mr. Dumble also contended that in opening up Aylmer and George streets, the city made commensurate value with cost of same in returns from increased assessment.

Mr. Fair argued that the board's price was below value; Mr. Ackerman had stated that he could find a purchaser for the property at $4,000.

Mr. Dumble said he could safely say that the board will expend $500 in making their school grounds in keeping with the proposed park.

Ald. Duncan being absent, the Council's committee could not commit themselves one way or the other. The Board's committee could not see their way clear to accept less than $3,000 for the property, and the meting adjourned, understanding that this matter will be further considered by the Council's committee and some sort of recommendation made at Monday night's council meeting.

Re-union of Past Grands At The Oddfellows' Lodge

Team of Past Grands Confer Initiatary Degree — A Pleasant Evening Spent

GIVEN VETERAN'S JEWEL

The Oddfellows' Hall last night was the scene of much gaity and interest on the annual occasion of conferring the Initiatory Degree by a team of Past Grands of Peterborough Lodge No. 111. There was a large attendance of Past Grands and others present, and it was somewhat difficult to get accommodation for all. Speeches were made during the evening by most of the visiting Oddfellows, and the event also included a musical and literary programme.

Another pleasing incident was the presentation of a Veteran's Jewel to Bro. H. C. Stabler. This jewel is only presented to Oddfellows who have belonged to the Order for 25 years. Bro. Andrew McFarlane, on behalf of the lodge made the presentation, accompanied by a verbal address. Last night several of the Past Grands wore the Veteran's Jewel.

After refreshments were served a toast list was run off, with Bro. R. F. Morrow, P.G., presiding. After the health of the King was drunk, the Grand Lodge of Ontario was proposed by Bro. William Hill, P.D., D.G.M., and responde to by P. G.'s A. McFarlane, T. C. Elliott, W. J. Green, Thos McFadden and Jas. Brownlee.

The "Visiting Brethren" toast was proposed by Bro. Morrow and responded to by Bros. Birchard, Collier, Garrow, Moore, Robinson and Valblaricom. A reading was given by Mr. D. Moore, a recitation by Mr. Wm. McLaren, and a quartette consisting of Messrs. Hill, Allan, Kelder and Thornton, rendered a selection in splendid style.

Sewer To King Edward School Ordered To Be Repaired

Board of Education Incensed At Work Done On The Street And Will Be Certain That School Portion is Properly Laid

DEBENTURES THE SAME

The sewerage system of the King Edward School was the most important question that occupied the attention of the members of the Board of Education at a special meeting held last night. In reference to a communication received from the city engineer, Mr. T A S Hay, it was moved by Mr. W S Robinson, seconded by Mr. D W Dumble, that the chairman of the King Edward school building committee be authorized to arrange for the fixing of the sewer between the school and Aylmer street and also for the provision of temporary closets should the sewer be put out of commission for repairs.

The Discussion

The following members were present, Mr. Robert Fair, chairman; Mr. W G Morrow, secretary, Messrs. Dumble, Pringle, Hill, Hayes, Robinson and Dr. Burnham and Dr. Morrison. Inspector Mowat was also present.

Regarding the question of the sewer, Mr. Hay's letter was to the effect that since the main sewer had been flushed the sand in the manhole had been forced out, but more was noticed to be coming down. In the event of the sewer having to be closed for the time, Mr. Hay said that something should be done to meet any such emergency.

One of the members stated that he was of the opinion that an attempt was being made to lay the blame for the trouble in the condition of the sewer upon the Board. Mr. Pringle stated that he has asked Messrs. MacGregor & Reid, contractors for the school section of the sewer to investigate the matter but no report had been yet received regarding the matter. Mr. Blackwell had told him that he did not consider that there was sufficient sand in that part of the sewer to block it. The janitor, Mr. Pringle said, was not satisfied that the sediment is coming from the school portion but the trouble was in it not getting away in the main sewer.

Hard Words

Mr. Robinson stated that he had seen the work that is being done now and that the pipes in many cases are 3 and 4 inches apart. "They had tried to close it up by banking each connection with sod," he stated, and that when the men had dug down in the trenches instead of finding the pipes they had to dig three feet farther to the west. He was of the opinion that the school section of the sewer was as bad as that on the streets. He thought the Board should look to the work on the school soon and do it themselves and provide temporary closets for the interim.

A Resignation

A communication was received from Mr. R Barker, tendering his resignation as caretaker of the North Ward School. The matter was briefly discussed and on motion was referred to the property committee for investigation and that they report at the next meeting.

Debentures the Same

Regarding a communication from the City Clark regarding the Collegiate Institute debentures, it was moved by Mr. Hayes and seconded by Mr. Hill, that the debentures be the same as originally intended and that the interest be at the rate of 5 per cent.

They were issued as installment debentures but the Board wished to have them changed to straight debentures which was found to be impossible.

ALL HALLOWS IN DOURO CHURCH

Services in St. Joseph's Church On That Occasion Written by Viator

HAD SPLENDID SERVICES

Viator, in the Catholic Register gives the following account of the services in St. Joseph's church, Douro, on Hallowe'en:—

Hallowe'en is always observed in the Catholic Church as a day of fast and abstinence. Its observance was prescribed in the year of grace 1022. In the middle ages no food was taken until sundown. In St. Joseph's church, Douro, the services morning and evening were attended by large numbers of devout worshippers. Rev. Father O'Reilly, a Redemptorist from Toronto, who was assisting the pastor, preached in the morning from II. Cor., xi., 27: "In fastings often," and in the evening from St. Matt., vi. 17: "But thou when thou fastest." 1: The following day—All Hallows—dates from the beginning of the VII's Century. In pagan times among the many temples in Rome was one dedicated to all the Gods—built some years before the Christian era. It was named Pantheon. Early in the VI. Century it was blessed by Pope Boniface IV., who caused to be conveyed thither from the Catacombs the relics of a great number of martyrs and dedicated it to the service of God under the name of Our Lady of the Martyrs. Afterwards Pope Gregory IV. in the IX. century, dedicated one of the chapels in the Basilica of St. Peter in honour of All Saints'. This was the beginning of All Hallow's, which soon afterwards was observed in Germany, then in France and finally all over the world—Nov. 1st.

On this day also the Douro church was crowded and the Rev. Father preached in the morning from St. Luke, vi., 22: Blessed shall you be when men shall hate you and when they shall separate you and shall reproach you and cast out your name as evil for the Son of man's sake," and in the evening from St. Luke, vi., 24: "But woe to you that are rich, for you have your consolation."

On November 2 the Douro church was again crowded to concur the festival of the commemoration of all the faithful departed. In the morning the Rev. Father preached from I. Cor. iii., 5,—"If any man's work burn he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved yet so as by fire." In the evening he preached from St. Matt. v., 26,—"Amen I say to thee, thou shalt not go out from thence till thou repay the last farthing."

On the following day, Sunday, the Rev. Father preached in the morning from St. Luke, vi., 20, — "Blessed are ye poor, for years in the kingdom of God," and in the evening from St. Luke vi., 21, "Blessed are ye that weep now, for you shall laugh."

The Rev. Father left for Toronto on Monday evening. During his stay over 500 people had the happiness to approach the Sacraments.

Father O'Reilly, C.SS.R., is sure to do a lot of good wherever he goes. Father Kelly was delighted with the amount of good done in his parish in such a short space of time.

AN ENTERTAINMENT AT OMEMEE

Inhabitants of The Village Are Busy With Social Events

Examiner Special.

Omemee, Nov. 25. — A large number of our farmers and citizens attended the Peterborough market on last Saturday.

About two dozen of our citizens attended the entertainment at the fourth line of Smith on Tuesday evening. The entertainment was under the auspices of the Presbyterian church there and was thoroughly enjoyed. Those who were present speak very highly of the Peterborough talent who contributed to the programme, including Mrs. Greenstock, Misses Stacey, Messrs. Telford, Campbell and others. Our home talent held their own, against such advantages as Peterborough possesses.

Ed. Sam Hughes attended the L. O. L. entertainment at East Emily, Bethel, and gave a short address. Besides this there was a long programme of debates recitations, etc.

Rev. Mr. Peckover occupied the pulpit of Rev. Mr. McDonald, Keene on Sunday, whilst the Presbyterian anniversary services at Mount Pleasant were very acceptably conducted by the Rev. Mr. McDonald, of Keene.

There will be a fowl supper on Monday evening which will likely be largely attended.

That the times are good here with the farmers is evidenced by our Division Court Clerk reporting that there is not one disputed suit for the sixth of December sittings.

Percy Parnis is improving his skating rink and is getting in the electric light.

The hockey club here will re-organize.

Local option is the topic of the day and may possibly carry. Notwithstanding that fact we have one of the best conducted hotels in the Dominion of Canada.

Number Twenty Seven

The magnificent response to Semi-anniversary Celebration last Saturday proves these events have grown to be so important a part of this store's business trend, that it would be really hard to discontinue them.

Our stocks were never in better shape — odd sizes, broken lines are hard to find here; as soon as any put in their appearance they are immediately gathered up, their prices clipped and they quickly disappear under the magic—

MODERN BUSINESS HOUSE

Frim of Adamson and Dobbin, Plumbers, Invite Public to New Building

OPPOSITE FORMER STORE

As the city grows, her foremost most business houses keep pace and many enlarged and improved stores have been recently noticed on the main streets. The firm of Adamson & Dobbin, plumbers, tinsmiths, etc., has not been remiss in this respect and have now moved into their new building, thus beginning a new era in their work.

In April, 1904, Mr. W P Adamson and Mr. L. G. Dobbin formed a partnership entering business on the north side of Simcoe street. Their business has rapidly grown on account of the satisfaction that they have universally given.

Their new quarters are in the western section of the new three-storey building of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company. They have plenty of room arranged as follows—Front show room on the ground floor, where the usula stock is kept, large workshop on ground floor behind front room, and behind it again a store room for heavy stock with large door facing yard, making it easy to unload. In the cellar plumber's heavy stock including, lead, pipes and fittings. On the second floor is a spacious well lighted show room which will be used to exhibit baths, sinks, closets of all sizes and furnaces as they are put up in dwellings.

Customers can call and see the fittings of their bath as they would desire it, or a modern furnace ready for use. The top flat is used to light stock, nearly all being tinware.

Mr. Albert Throop is in charge of the office and front shop, Mr. Adamson supervises all the tinsmith's work and Mr. Dobbin the plumbing and heating. Both men are experienced in the work and have climbed the ladder by most satisfactory work.

The store is fitted with an elevator of the Otis Fensom type manufactured in Toronto. The firm invites the Peterborough people to their new rooms and they will guarantee genuine satisfaction with the stock.

WIFE DESERTION IS NOW THE CHARGE

Mrs. McCrea Will Not Get Support For Herself And Child

The case of non-support of his wife and child against Wm. McCrea which was tried last week was brought up again this morning before Magistrate Dumble. Mr. McCrea did not appear, but was represented by his counsel, Mr. G. Gordon, while His Worship Mayor McWilliams represented Mrs. McCrea, who was in court.

The magistrate had reviewed the evidence, and according to the statements made by Mr. McCrea, saw no possible hope for a peaceable reconciliation.

Mr. McWilliams said that if the woman was in want her husband must pay for her keep or go to jail, while if she did not want, or if she was prevented from wanting by the help of her father, the husband would not have to pay, and as this could not be clearly proven the non-support case could not be upheld.

The case was then dismissed, but Mrs. McCrea, through her counsel, will lay an information against McCrea for wife desertion.

ST. ANDREWS' DAY TO BE OBSERVED

In The Anglican Communion—Is a Day Of Intercession For Missions

To-morrow, Saturday, St. Andrew's Day, will be observed in the Anglican Communion as a day of intercession for missions. The Toronto Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary have asked that as far as possible continuous intercession be offered by their members in the churches on that day. At St. John's a warm invitation is offered, not only to members of the auxiliary, but to all others, both men and women who can make time to spend even a few minutes in quiet prayer in the church for the coming of God's kingdom at home and abroad, the increase of workers, and other needs.

Persons may enter and leave the church when they wish.

These personal intercessions will end with a short public service at 5 p.m., instead of at 4 p.m., the hour first chosen.

A PLEASANT SOCIAL EVENING

The Tool Makers' Assembly Held in The Conservatory of Music Hall

The Tool Makers' assembly held yesterday evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall was a delightful event. There were about 55 couples in attendance and the event was successful in every respect. The music was supplied in a capable manner by the Opera House Orchestra and the committee in charge are very grateful also to Miss Katie Graham for supplying piano music in the intervals of the orchestra.

The floor was in splendid condition for dancing but the features of the evening was the new Valeta waltz introduced by Mr. M. Greenhalgh. Altogether the assembly was a very enjoyable one.

WOMAN WAS TAKEN TO MIMICO

County Constable Cochrane was in Toronto yesterday in charge of Mrs. Preston of Park street who was taken to Mimico.

Mr. Cochrane states that the weather in Toronto is somewhat different to that which we are experiencing here. There has yet been no snow in Toronto and that the Queen City has no idea what the downfall of the beautiful looks like this autumn.

MR. KIPLING'S CANADIAN TOUR

Ontario and all Eastern Canada is deeply disappointed that Mr. Kipling, upon the occasion of his recent visit to Canada, should have only seen "The West from a Car Window" and the East not at all. The older provinces are always proud and never jealous of the West, into which they are sending their shekels and their sons. With all his powers as a word painter, it is hardly to be expected that Mr. Kipling can do justice to all of Canada. He has not seen the thriving cities and towns of Ontario, with its splendid railways, mills and manufacturing industries. He had only a fleeting glimpse of Toronto, and saw nothing of the score or more other industrial centres of the Dominion. It is too bad, Canadians believe, that he should have spent the most of the time which he was able to give to the study of conditions in the Dominion to the troubled shores of the Pacific. With no desire to minimize the seriousness of the labour disturbances out there, or to disguise the fact that Canada is in sore need of more men to carry forward the work in hand, Canadians would have been proud of some pen pictures by Mr. Kipling of the industrial East, where the people are prosperous and happy. This conviction is by no means local—it is widespread, universal. ("Canada," London, Eng., Nov. 16th, 1907.)

Edmonton With a Century Of History, Yet a City of To-day

Story of the Fur Trade on The Silver Saskatchewan Told by Angus Dean Cameron

AN INTERESTING TALE

Detailed Description of Life of The North West Indians With Their Manners and Customs

When you listen to the Russian Doukhobor talking proso to a Scottish halfbreed outside a real estate office with a French name kept by an Irishman from Jamaica you acknowledge that Edmonton on the Silver Saskatchewan, eight hundred miles north of Winnipeg, is cosmopolitan. When the vociferous jehu at the railway station yells, accommodatingly, "Drive you to any hotel or any tent in town for a dollar!" you realize that the city is growing and growing apace. When you read the sign, "The Honourable Hudson's Bay Company, established 1670" you remember that here was "The Last House" spoken of by the few missionaries and explorers who passed this way a hundred years ago, partakers from post to post of the hospitality of the Ancient Company.

Seeking Edmonton to-day the traveler arrives luxuriously in a parlour car dazzled somewhat with the panorama of new raw towns and intervening stretches of wheat which mark the whole stretch from Winnipeg.

Edmonton is unique. Street cars and electric lights and automobiles and Worth gowns, and, in equal evidence with these, the Stetson hat of the cowboy and beaded moccasin of the Blackfoot. There are four-storey public buildings of stone and down in the coulee fifty families are living in tents because carpenters and builders cannot keep pace with immigration. The whole thing is a bit disconcerting. When you stop to listen to the strains of the Moonlight Sonata drifting out from a tent and see the owner of a lean-to shack step from his shabby roof-tree into a five-thousand dollar auto, you rub your eyes and wonder if you have found Topsy-Turvey Land.

A Fascinating Story

The city sits high up on the north bank of the North Saskatchewan down whose widestream, to barter at her gates, trader and trapper have floated their furs for a century.

For many decades Edmonton was the end of the trail; at this outpost of Empire the Hudson Bay Co., acting as middlemen, passed the products of the chase from Cree to Christian, the products of civilization from Christian to Cree. Up to her front door came trader and adventurer. Away from her back door once a year groaned the wooden wheels of the Red River ox-cart as their grand voyage into an unknown North. This beautiful, and perhaps the most progressive, of the cities of Western Canada has a history ancient and a legacy of romance. Old are the trails that lead to her doors. An honourable daughter of the Hudson's Bay Co., and the greatest of its raw fur centres, the history of Edmonton cannot well be studied apart from that of the parent company, the world's oldest existing chartered trading concern.

Fascinating is the story of their use of the fur traders.

In these old fur days the trade between Edmonton and Winnipeg, the present bustling capital of Manitoba, was by buil train. Freighters left Edmonton as soon as the grass was green, and the oxen, with their dumpy red River carts, took two months to leisurely cover the eight or nine hundred miles to Winnipeg.

These carts, forerunners of the palatial parlour cars, were run by the halfbreeds, of oak, and no iron entered into their construction; the wheels were without tires, an extra axle being lashed neath the car by shaganappi (rawhide after the fashion of the extra wheel of the automobilist now. One ox could drag half a ton fifteen mile a day, in one of these creaking carts, and often May, June, July, August and September were occupied in the round trip from Edmonton to Winnipeg and back to Edmonton again.

Inside the old fort incredible numbers of buffalo robes were bought from Blackfoot and Cree, who warred and hunted on the great plains, while the Wood Indians of the Peace and Athabasca brought in princely packs of fox, fisher, marten, lynx, beaver and bear skins.

From the mighty waterways of the far north those precious pels were carried on snowshoe in dog sleighs and by canal and river portage to the gates of Old Edmonton, thence down the Saskatchewan in York boats by lake and river to Hudson Bay and the company's sailing ships to London—a far call from the Mackenzie mouth within the Arctic Circle to old Father Thames from the back of a silver fox to the back of a dowager duchess.

In Autumn Days

In the bronze and green days of early autumn still, as of old, the Indian trapper with his wife and dogs and babies, his winter's provisions and his household goods, turns his paddle northward to match for half a year his cunning and endurance with that of the furry brothers of the place.

Outfitting is a family affair; the squaw assists her spouse to wisely choose bacon and beans and blankets, big traps for the bear and little ones for the muskrat and even the brown-faced, big-eyed babies have a voice in the yearly purchase. All this the storekeeper furnishes on the credit of the furs that are to come. The Indian's promissory note is the uncaught fox, the endorsement his recorded skill as a mighty hunter.

Poling, paddling, packing, up lonely rivers they go, scudding before the wind across unnamed lakes and making portage from water to water, to reach the fur country just as winter is solidifying the marshes. The six fathom or north canoes of the old days held three tons each and on starting out were loaded to the gunwhales with flour and tents and guns and babies, not forgetting gum and spruce roots for hurried repairs to a crack in the birch bark.

It is but a thin sheeting between Indian and water, and even the babies learn to tread gently. When the earliest frosts crimping the lakes and rivers make a knife-edge that menaces the birch-bark the canoes are discarded for snowshoes and sleighs and the long journey is continued. Arrived in the fur country, wigwams are built, and from these domestic and strategic centres the trapper works. As the beaver dams and fox trails play out, the family altar shifts to fresh woods and pastures now, and within the wigwam the precious pile of skins, the Indian bank account, adds to golden numbers.

So the winter wears away, and the summer sun slants strong among the pines; the rills and river sing again the anthem of the free; it is time to turn south to Edmonton.

Sled and snowshoes are cast aside, the old carole brought out of winter cache and the homeward journey begins, the journey toward the Fort, where summer pleasures succeed winter vigils and the trapper reaps for skin of marten and beaver, all the tawdry sweets of civilized life.

A Lonesome Work

No trapper ever is induced to give up his work for the tamer toils of civilization. Trapping is hazardous and lonely, and tries the soul of a man, but it has the perpetual charm of the element of chance, and looking at traps is like looking at the tapes of a ticker. Every pearl-diver dreams of finding the wonderful pink pearl, so every trapper cherishes visions of a silver fox that will bring to him kudos and riches. Every great World's Fair gives an impetus to the fur trade. One dealer paid $3,000 for a Canadian silver fox two and a half feet in length for the Paris Exposition. The fact was chronicled by the press of two continents and sent the heart of the trapper beating in excitement and anticipation. Might not he rope to find a skin to rival this?

But the good old days are going, the days when an Indian runner could kill his 700 or 800 beavers in a season, carrying only the choicest to the doors of the trader, using some as rugs and mats, and piously hanging a quota on the trees to commemorate the death of parent or child.

The beaver was always the unit of trade value. In 1742, according to Joseph la France, the Hudson's Bay actor gave two fish-hooks for one beaver, an axe or a pound of gunpowder for four beavers, a checked shirt or a common straw hat for seven beavers, a gain of two thousand per cent.

BEGAN TO PRAY IN UNKNOWN TONGUES

Gift of Tongues Believed to be Obtained At Church in Ottawa

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—Religiously disposed people of the Glebe, the southwestern residential section of Ottawa, are earnestly discussing some phenomena which have recently been manifested among them, and which many believe to be the "gift of tongues" frequently referred to in the New Testament. The demonstrations have occurred in connection with the Second Congregational Church on Third avenue, of which Rev. H. J. Horsey, chairman of committee of Torrey-Alexander meetings, is the pastor.

At a prayer meeting in the church one Sunday morning in which some ten or twelve persons participated, a gentleman identified casually with the congregation, but well-known to all present, suddenly began to pray in an unknown tongue. He did this fluently and with a musical intonation. There was nothing whatever of an emotional sentiment shown at the meeting, and the service throughout was marked with cordialness and calm. Nor did any excitement follow the demonstration, but at the close of the meeting the gentleman explained that this gift of tongues had come to him some time before in Toronto. At intervals, quite unexpectedly, it had been manifested.

This was, however, but the commencement of similar phenomena on the Glebe. A week of two later the same gift came to a devout and well-known lady in the congregation. At several meetings in the church, and at meetings held privately, she has both spoken and sung in a strange tongue.

A great religious awakening is predicted as a result of these manifestations.

CHILDHOOD ILLS

Almost all the ills of babyhood and childhood are due to disorders of the stomach or bowels. Set them right, and the little one will be well and happy. No other medicine can do this so promptly and so safely as Baby's Own Tablets. Mrs. Ulric Dalisle, Cap Sante, Que., says: "My baby suffered greatly from constipation and stomach troubles and nothing helped her until I gave her Baby's Own Tablets. The change they made in her condition was simply marvellous, and I strongly recommend the Tablets to all mothers. The mother using these Tablets has the guarantee of a Government analyst that they do not contain one particle of opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. SETTLING OF THE NORTH WEST

Sales of Land, Immigration Figures And Land Values Combine To Make Satisfactory Statement

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES LESS

The annual report of the Minister of the Interior, published for presentation to Parliament, shows that the general result of the operations of the last fiscal period, both from a financial standpoint and as regards the opening up and settlement of the vast lands of the Canadian west, have been highly satisfactory. The total receipts of the department were $2,272,340, an increase of $752,233, as compared with the corresponding nine months of the preceding year. The homestead entries for the nine months were 21,640, a decrease as compared with the previous year. Basing an estimate of the total number of entries during the twelve months ending June 30 of this year upon the monthly ratio of the previous nine months, the result would be 28,854 entries, as compared with 41,444 during the year ending June 30, 1906.

The falling off in homestead entries is largely accounted for by the late arrival of the spring and the lack of transportation facilities in the early part of the year. There had been a decrease also in the area of lands disposed of by the railway companies during the year as compared with 1906, but there has been a steady advance in value since 1901, when it was $3.46 per acre, to this year when it is $6.20 per acre. The value of the land is generally accepted as an indication of the prosperity of the country, this advance is very satisfactory, when considered in connection with the general development of the western country.

Commenting on the immigration statistics of the past year, the Deputy Minister observes that "viewed in the light of past events, the immigration methods followed by the department would appear to have been productive of the most beneficial results, and until it can be demonstrated that no other means could with advantage to Canada be devised and adopted to foster the Anglo-American immigration to this country, I would not recommend that any change be made in the policy now in force."

The sales of Manitoba school lands totalled 74,085 acres, at $1,335,080, an average price of $12.29 per acre. In Saskatchewan the average price was $14.47 per acre. There were no school lands sold in Alberta during this year.

BOVRIL

Contains the life-sustaining elements of

BEEF

Beef extracts contain only the flavor and stimulating elements of beef—the nutritive values are lost in the making. Baron Liebig, the inventor of beef extracts, admitted that. He said "It is but a condiment and stimulant, containing no matter capable of sustaining life."

That is where BOVRIL differs from beef extracts.

BOVRIL does contain the nourishment and life-sustaining elements of beef as well as its rich flavor.

BOVRIL gives strength and nourishment to the invalid. With its help you can make left-over scraps into delicious consommes, bouillons and soups with very little trouble.

BOVRIL is the true economist in the home kitchen.

A FEW WORDS IN CONFIDENCE.

King Palmetto Compound is a distinct product of the twentieth Century conditions. It is not a secret or patent nostrum, on the contrary the formula is plainly printed on the wrapper. It is the result of the modern investigations into the cause and cure of all disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys.

Science has demonstrated that ninety per cent. of the diseases to which the body is subject have their origin in the retaining of waste and poisonous matter in the system, and that if the bowels and kidneys are properly performing their respective functions, all the other organs and the nerves will continue in a condition of abounding health. King Palmetto Compound is a kidney and liver tonic and blood purifier of wonderful virtue, and the diseases which arise from impure blood and sluggish liver and kidneys are quickly cured by its use, as cystitis, catarrh of the bladder, nervous prostration, general debility and rheumatism.

One dose a day. Pleasant and convenient to take. It contains no dangerous poisons and no narcotics, but just pure vegetable remedies of universally acknowledged efficacy.

Price $1.00 a Bottle.

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;

One ounce compound salatone;

Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action. The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost.

This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

We heard him getting into his boots again and buckling on his baldric. Then we listened to the turning of a key; a lid was raised and banged down again and the lock refastened. It was the box once more. M. Etienne and I looked at each other.

At length Peyrot opened the door and surveyed us.

"What, two friends of Bernet, ventre bleu!" But he allowed us to enter.

He drew back before us with a flourishing bow, his hand resting lightly on his belt, in which was stuck a brace of pistols. Any idea of doing violence on the person of M. Peyrot we dismissed for the present.

Our eyes traveled from his pistols over the rest of him. He was small, lean and wiry, with dark, sharp face and deep-set, twinkling eyes. One moment's glance gave us to know that Peyrot was no fool.

My lord closed the door after him and went straight to the point.

"M. Peyrot, you were engaged last night in an attack on the Duke of St. Quentin. You did not succeed in slaying him, but you did kill his man, and you took from him a packet. I come to buy it."

He looked at us a little dazed, not understanding, I deem, how we knew this. Certes it had been to dark in the lane for his face to be seen, and he had doubtless made sure that he was not followed home. He said directly:

"You are the Comte de Mar."

"Even so, M. Peyrot. I did not care to have the whole stair know it, but to you I have no hesitation in confiding that I am M. de Mar."

M. Peyrot swept a bow till his head almost touched the floor.

"My poor apartment is honored."

As he louted low I made a spring forward; I thought to pin him before he could rise. But he was up with the lightness of a bird from the bough and standing three yards away from me, where I crouched on the spring like a foiled cat. He grinned at me in open enjoyment.

"Monsieur desired?" he asked sympathetically.

"No, it is I who desire," said M. Etienne, clearing himself a place to sit on the corner of the table. "I desire that packet, monsieur. You know the little expedition of yours to-night was something of a failure. When you report to the general-duke he will not be in the best of humors. He does not like failures, the general; he will not incline to reward you dear. While I am in the very best humor in the world."

He smiled to prove it. Nor do I think his complaisance altogether feigned. The temper of our host amused him.

As for friend Peyrot, he still looked dazed. I thought it was because he had not yet made up his mind what line to take; but had I viewed him with neutral eyes I might easily have deemed his bewilderment genuine.

"Perhaps we should get on better if I could understand what monsieur is driving at?" he suggested. "Monsieur's remarks about his noble father and the general-duke are interesting, but humble Jean Peyrot, who does not move in court circles, is at a loss to translate them. In other words, I have no notion what you are talking about."

"Oh, come," M. Etienne cried, "no shuffling, Peyrot. We know as well as you where you were before dawn."

"Before dawn? Marry, I was sleeping the sleep of the virtuous."

M. Etienne slipped across the room as quickly as Peyrot's self might have done, lifted up a heavy curtain hanging before an alcove and disclosed the bed folded smooth, the pillow undisturbed. He turned with a triumphant grin on the owner, who showed all his teeth pleasantly in answer, no whit abashed.

"For all you are a count, monsieur, you have the worst manners ever came inside these walls."

M. le Comte, with no attempt at mending them, went on a tour about the room, examining with smiling interest all its furniture, even to the dishes and tankards on the table. Peyrot, leaning against the wall by the window, regarded him steadily, with impassive face. At length M. Etienne walked over to the chest by the chimneypiece and deliberately put his hand on the key.

Instantly Peyrot's voice rang out, "Stop!" M. Etienne, turning, looked into his pistol barrel.

My lord stood exactly as he was, bent over the chest, his fingers on the key, looking over his shoulder at the bravo with raised, protesting eyebrows and laughing mouth. But though he laughed he stood still.

"If you make a movement I do not like, M. de Mar, I will shoot you as I would a rat. Your side is down and mine is up; I have no fear to kill you. It will be painful to me, but if necessary I shall do it."

M. Etienne sat down on the chest and smiled more amiably than ever.

"Why have I never known you before, Peyrot?"

"One moment, monsieur." The nose of the pistol pointed around to me. "Go over there to the door, you."

I retreated, covered by the shining muzzle, to a spot that pleased him.

"Now are we more comfortable," Peyrot observed, pulling a chair over against the wall and seating him, the pistol on his knee. "Monsieur was saying?"

Monsieur crossed his legs, as if of all seats in the world he liked his present one the best. He had brought none of the airs of the noble into this business, realizing shrewdly that they would but hamper him as lace ruffles hamper a duellist. Peyrot, treeless adventurer, living by his sharp sword and sharp wits, reverenced a count no more than a hod-carrier. His occasional mocking deference was more insulting than outright rudeness; but M. Etienne bore it unruffled. Possibly he schooled himself so to hear it, but I think rather that he felt so easily secure on the height of his gentlehood that Peyrot's impudence merely tickled him.

"I was wondering," he answered pleasantly, "how long you have dwelt in this town and I not known it. You are from Guienne, methinks."

"Carcassonne way," the other said indifferently. Then memory bringing a deep twinkle to his eye he added: "What think you, monsieur? I was left a week-old babe on the monastery step; was reared up in holiness within its sacred walls; chorister at ten, novice at eighteen, full-fledged friar, fasting and singing misereres, exhorting dying saints and living sinners at twenty."

"A very pretty brotherhood, you for sample."

"Nay, I am one. Else I might have stayed. But one night I took leg bail, lived in the woods till my hair grew and struck out for Paris. And never regretted it, neither."

He leaned his head back, his eyes fixed contemplatively on the ceiling, and burst into song, in voice as melodious as a lark's:

Piety and Grace and Gloom,
For such like guests I have no room!
Piety and Gloom and Grace,
I bang my door shut in your face!
Gloom and Grace and Piety
I set my dog on such as ye.

Finishing his stave he continued to beat time with his heel on the floor and to gaze upon the ceiling. But I think we could not have twitched a finger without his noting it. M. Etienne rose and leaned across the table toward him.

"M. Peyrot has made his fortune in Paris? Monsieur rolls in wealth, of course?"

Peyrot shrugged his shoulders, his eyes leaving the ceiling and making a mocking pilgrimage of the room, resting finally on his own rusty clothing.

"Do I look it?" he answered.

"Oh," said M. Etienne slowly, as one who digests an entirely new idea. "I supposed monsieur must be as rich as a Lombard, he is so cold on the subject of turning an honest penny."

Peyrot's roving eye condescended to meet his visitor's.

"Say on," he permitted lazily.

"I offer twenty pistoles for a packet, seal unbroken, taken at dawn from the person of M. de St. Quentin's squire."

"Now you are talking sensibly," the scamp said, as if M. Etienne had been the shuffler. "That is a fair offer and demands a fair answer. Moreover, such zeal as you display deserves success. I will look about a bit this morning among my friends and see if I can get wind of your packet. I will meet you at dinner time at the inn of the Bonne Femme."

"Dinner time is far hence. You forget, M. Peyrot that you are risen earlier than usual. I will go out and sit on the stair for five minutes while you consult your friends."

Peyrot grinned cheerfully.

"M. de Mar doesn't seem able to get it through his head that I know nothing whatever of this affair."

"No, I certainly don't get that through my head."

Peyrot regarded him with an air ill-used yet compassionate, such as he might in his monkish days have employed toward one who could not be convinced, for instance, of the efficacy of prayer.

"M. de Mar," quoth he plaintively, in pity half for himself so misunderstood, half for his interlocutor so wilfully blind, "I do solemnly assure you, once and for all, that I know nothing of this affair of yours. Till you so asserted I had no knowledge that monsieur, your honored father, had been set on, and deeply am I pained to hear it. These be evil days when such things can happen. As for your packet, I learn of it only through your word, having no more to do with this deplorable business than a babe unborn."

I declare I was almost shaken, almost thought we had wronged him. But M. Etienne gauged him otherwise.

"Your words please me," he began. "The contemplation of virtue," the rascal droned with down-drawn lips in pulpit tone, "is always uplifting to the spirit."

"You have boasted," M. Etienne went on, "that your side was up and mine down. Did you not reflect that soon my side may be up and yours down you would hardly be at such pains to deny that you ever bared blade against the Duke of St. Quentin."

"I have made my declaration in the presence of two witnesses, far too honorable to falsify, that I know nothing of the attack on the duke." Peyrot repeated with apparent satisfaction. "But of course it is possible that by scouring Paris I might get on the scent of your packet. Twenty pistoles, though. That is not much."

M. Etienne stood silent, drumming tattoos on the table, not pleased with the turn of the matter, not seeing how to better it. Had we been sure of our suspicions we would have charged him, pistol or no pistol, trusting that our quickness would prevent his shooting, or that the powder would miss fire, or that the ball would fly wide, or that we should be hit in no vital part; trusting, in short, that God was with us and would in some fashion save us. But we could not be sure that the packet was with Peyrot. What we had heard him lock in the chest might have been these very pistols that he had afterward taken out again. Three men had fled from M. de Mirabeau's alley; we had no means of knowing whether this Peyrot were he who ran as we came up, he whom I had encountered or he who had engaged M. Etienne. And did we know, that would not tell us which of the three had stabbed and plundered Huguet. Peyrot might have the packet or he might know who had it, or he might be in honest ignorance of its existence. If he had it, it were a crying shame to pay out honest money for what we might take by force; to buy your own goods from a thief were a sin. But supposing he had it not? If we could seize upon him, disarm him, bind him, threaten him, beat him, rack him, would he—granted he knew—reveal its whereabouts? Writ large in his face was every manner of roguery, but not one iota of cowardice. He might very well hold us baffled, hour on hour, while the papers went to Mayenne. Even should he tell we had the business to begin again from the very beginning, with some other knave mayhap worse than this.

Plainly the game was in Peyrot's hands; we could play only to his lead.

"If you will put the packet into my hands, seal unbroken, this day at 11, I engage to meet you with twenty pistoles," M. Etienne said.

"Twenty pistoles were a fair price for the packet. But monsieur forgets the wear and tear on my conscience incurred for him. I must be reimbursed for that."

"Conscience, quotha!"

"Certainly, monsieur. I am in my way as honest a man as you in yours. I have never been false to the hand that fed me. If, therefore, I divert to you a certain packet which of right goes elsewhere, my sin must be made worth my while. My conscience will sting me sorely, but with the aid of a glass and a lass I may contrive to forget the pain.

Merit, my love, and Folly dear,
Baggages, you're welcome here!

I fix the injury to my conscience at thirty pistoles, M. le Comte. Fifty in all will bring the packet to your hand."

It had been a pleasure to M. le Comte to fling a tankard in the fellow's face. But the steadfast determination to win the papers for monsieur and possibly respect for Peyrot's weapon withheld him.

—very well, then. In the cabaret of the Bonne Femme at 11. You may do as you like about appearing; I shall be there with my fifty pistoles."

"What guarantee have I that you will deal fairly with me?"

"The word of a St. Quentin."

"Sufficient, of course."

"Well, I have not the word of a gentleman to offer you, but I give you the opinion of Jean Peyrot, sometime Father Ambrosius, that he and the packet will be there. This has been a delightful call, monsieur, and I am loath to let you go. But it is time I was free to look for that packet."

M. Etienne's eyes went over to the chest.

"I wish you all success in your arduous search."

"It is like to be, in truth, a long and weary search," Peyrot sighed. "My ignorance of the perpetrators of the outrage makes my task difficult indeed. But rest assured, monsieur, that I shall question every man in Paris if need be. I shall leave no stone unturned."

M. Etienne still pensively regarded the chest.

"If you leave no key unturned 'twill be more to the purpose."

"You appear yet to nurse the belief that I have the packet. But as a matter of fact, monsieur, I have not."

I studied his grave face, and could not for the life of me make out whether he were lying. M. Etienne said merely:

"Come, Felix."

"You'll drink a glass before you go?" Peyrot cried hospitably, running to fill a goblet muddy with his last pouring. But M. Etienne drew back.

"Well, I don't blame you. I wouldn't drink it myself if I were a count," Peyrot said, setting the draught to his own lips. "After this noon I shall drink it no more all summer. I shall live like a king.

Kiss me, Folly; hug me, Mirth;
Life without you's nothing worth!

Monsieur, can I lend you a hat?"

I had already opened the door and was holding it for my master to pass, when Peyrot picked up from the floor and held out to him a battered and dirty toque, with its draggled feather hanging forlornly over the side. Chafed as he was, M. Etienne could not deny a laugh to the rascal's impudence.

"I cannot rob monsieur," he said.

"M. le Comte need have no scruple. I shall buy me better out of his fifty pistoles."

But M. Etienne was out in the passage, I following, banging the door after me. We went down the stair in time to Peyrot's last carrolling:

Mirth I'll keep, though riches fly,
While Folly's sure to linger by!

"Think you we'll get the packet?" I asked.

"Aye. I think he wants his fifty pistoles. Mordieu! it's galling to let this dog set the terms."

"Monsieur," I cried, "perhaps he'll not stir out at once. I'll run home for Vigo and his men, and we'll make the rascal disgorge."

"Now are you more zealous than honest, boy."

I was silent, abashed, and he added:

"I had not been afraid to try conclusions with him, pistols or not, were I sure that he had the packet. I believe he has, yet there is the chance that, after all, in this one particular he speaks truth. I cannot take any chances; I must get those papers for monsieur."

"Yes, we could not have done otherwise, M. Etienne. But, monsieur, will you dare go to this inn? M. le Comte is a man in jeopardy; he may not keep rendezvous of the enemy's choosing."

"I might not keep one of Lucas's choosing. Though," he added with a smile, "natheless, I think I should. But it is not likely this fellow knows of the warrant against me. Paris is a big place; news does not travel all over town as quickly as at St. Quentin. I think friend Peyrot has more to gain by playing fair than playing false, and appointing the cabaret of the Bonne Femme has a very open, pleasing sound. Did he mean to brain me he would scarce have set that place."

"It was not Peyrot alone I meant. But monsieur is so well known. In the streets or at the dinner hour some one may see you who knows Mayenne is after you."

"Oh, of that I must take my chance," he made answer, no whit troubled by the warning. "I go home now for the ransom, and I will e'en be at the pains to doff this gear for something darker."

"Monsieur," I pleaded, "why not stay at home to get your dues of sleep? Vigo will bring the gold; he and I will put the matter through."

"I ask not your advice," he cried haughtily; then with instant softening: "Nay, this is my affair, Felix. I have taken it upon myself to recover monsieur his papers. I must carry it through myself to the very omega."

Miss Strickland spent the few days with Miss Traill at "Westove" while Miss Jones was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham. They both left by the morning train on Monday for Peterborough where they were to deliver addresses both in the afternoon and evening.

It has the same power to-day. Boys and girls who are pale and weak get food and energy out of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It makes children grow.

All Druggists; 50c. and $1.00.

The late Mrs. Starr was the only sister of Mr. T. McMillan of this place. Two daughters survive, viz., Mrs. Howson of Norwood, and Mrs. J. R. Chisholm, of Toronto Junction. The deceased was a life long member of the Methodist church and one of the oldest members of the W. M. S. The funeral took place on Monday from her late residence, Queen street, to the Norwood cemetery.

The many friends of Mr. Thomas Fraser, of Calgary, and formerly of Norwood, will regret to hear of his serious illness as the result of a paralytic stroke.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 61, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child; the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN NORTH SMITH

The Man Injured by a Bull is Making Favourable Progress

DEER HUNTERS' RETURN

North Smith, Nov. 28. — Sunday, Nov. 17th, was a memorable day in the history of the Wesley Methodist church of North Smith. Re-opening services were conducted both morning and evening, at both of which appropriate and eloquent sermons were preached by Rev. M. E. Wilson, M. A., of Dunsford, who 25 years ago was the pastor of this church, which at that time was a mission field in connection with Chandos.

After a few complimentary remarks and comparing the appearance of the church to-day, with that of 25 years ago, the speaker was led to believe that the cause of Christ was ably sustained in this place. He spoke of the pleasure it was for him to be present on this occasion, after an absence of a quarter of a century.

The reverend gentlemen took for his text the 19th and 20th verses of the 118th Psalm, from which he preached an eloquent and instructive sermon, setting forth the blessings to be derived from the church, to the nation, to the community, and to the people, and said that all the blessings of life we owed them to the Gospel.

In the evening his text was Phil. iii., 13 and 14. The gist of his sermon might be termed "Ideals in Life."

The church choir furnished suitable music for the occasion.

On the Tuesday evening following, tea was served in the hall. After ample justice had been done the inner man with the good things provided by the ladies, the large crowd repaired to the church where an excellent programme was in store for them, consisting of vocal and instrumental music and addresses. Rev. C. E. Mark, the pastor of the church, made an efficient chairman.

Rev. Dr. Metzler, of Bridgenorth, gave an excellent address on Character Building. Rev. H. C. Garbutt of Apsley, a former pastor, also gave a short address. The proceeds were about $60.

Sunday last was observed as missionary Sunday on the Wesley Circuit. Sermons suitable to the occasion were preached by the pastor, Rev. C. E. Mark.

Mr. D. W. Blewett, who was so badly bruised and shaken up by a bull, as reported in the Examiner two weeks ago, is able to be about his duties again. The deer hunters have all returned to their homes. They report having had a good time but a little shy of venison.

PANDORA RANGE

A Strikingly Handsome Range

The owner of a Pandora is always proud of the impression this strikingly handsome range makes upon her neighbors.

The solid, compact appearance of the smoothly finished body, the bold, large pattern of the carving, and the brilliance of the heavy nickel coating, combine to produce an effect that is distinctly pleasing to the eye of the most critical observer.

The Pandora Castings undergo a "special process" to make them easily and quickly take a lustrous shine.

The Nickeling is done with extraordinary care—will not chip and crack like the nickeling on ordinary stoves, but will retain its smoothness and brightness for years.

Because of the absence of any fine, fancy carving, which catches and holds the dust, the Pandora is much more easy to polish and will remain clean longer.

Altogether, the Pandora is a very superior range.

ENGLAND

A fine specimen of that ancient instrument of torture, the "scold's chair," changed hands at an auction sale in London recently. The seat is worked by a lever from behind, and the sitter is locked in by falling arched bars in front. The canopy is inscribed, "Presented to Archibald Acheson, Earl of Gosford," and bears these lines:

"If you have a wife who scolds,
Life indeed is bitter.
So in this chair you'd better sit her,
Then go out to take your pleasure;
Come back, release her at your leisure,
And after all, too light a measure."

The Scold's Chair was an article in common use in England up to the early part of the 18th century, but as late as 1801 one was used at Kingston-on-Thames. Like the parish pump, the "scold's chair" was provided out of the rates, and the ceremony of ducking was a public one.

A gang of Great Northern Railway engineers and plate-layers one recent Sunday gave a remarkable display of rapid bridge-building. A bridge outside Harringay Station over the Midland Railway's line had to be widened, and two enormous girders were constructed. During the week supports for the girders were built under the old bridge, and as soon as the heavy traffic of the Saturday night had been dealt with, gangs of men working in relays pulled up the rails, demolished the old bridge and carted the debris away. By 8 p.m. both girders had been hoisted into position, and at midnight the permanent way was in order again.

At a recent sale of books from the library of Mr. Macready, the eminent tragedian, a presentation copy of the first edition of "Martin Chuzzlewit" with Mr. Dickens' "My Father as I Recall Him," was offered for sale and brought £10 5s. An inscribed presentation copy of the first edition of Browning's "Paracelsus" realized £8, while Macready's copy of "The Two Gentlemen of Verona," corrected for the stage, brought five guineas; and a number of Macready's manuscripts on Shakspere, £6. A copy of "Reynard the Fox," presented to the tragedian by Jane Carlyle, was sold for £1 7s. 2d.

Devonshire police are on the track of highwaymen who laid the plan to rob the mails at Brixam at dead of night. They threw across the road gates, pipes, buckets, hurdles and bricks round a bend at the bottom of a hill so as to overturn the mail cart, and they skulked into hiding whence they could rush out and secure the mail bags. Their plans, however, were defeated by the driver of the mail cart, who skilfully avoided the trap laid for him and galloped off to the police station. The men escaped before the police could reach the spot.

Alderman Hamilton of Preston, Lancs., who was asked to become mayor five years ago, and consented on the distinct understanding that he would not pay the usual state visits to church, has now accepted a second invitation, and made it clear that he will neither attend the parish church nor his own Baptist chapel. By a majority, his name was approved. He objects altogether to state visits, and the attitude he has adopted has aroused considerable feeling among church people. They have asked him to receive a deputation but he has declined.

The Nelson column in Trafalgar Square was recently decorated with wreaths for the anniversary of Trafalgar, one of the wreaths being "From descendants of officers who fought at Trafalgar." These included Mrs. E. C. Symonds, daughter of the late Commander John Pollard, who was signal midshipman to Lord Nelson on board the Victory. He was known as the "Avenger of Nelson," and shot from the poop of the Victory the man in the mizzen-top of the Redoubtable who fired the shot which killed the great English commander.

SCOTLAND

The announcement was recently made that gold had been found in paying quantities in the neighbourhood of Ardrishaig, Argyllshire, and the subsequent investigations tend to confirm this report. So far there has been no rush to Ardrishaig, but the natives are confident that the gold mining will at least give employment to a fair number of the inhabitants. The gold has been found on the Stronachuilin estate, on the west side of Loch Gilp, and is situated about four miles from Ardrishaig. In the same locality about half a century ago, operations were begun for the extraction of lead and copper, both of which metals exist in considerable quantities and richness. A visit to the spot shows clear evidences of these old workings. A narrow tunnel may be seen on the side of the hill. But the miners of fifty years ago seem to have had no idea of the existence of the richer metal, and the copper and lead workings, owing to the expense and the distance from the market, could not be made to pay, and were stopped. And, now, after the lapse of half a century this old mine attracted the attention of the owner, who determined to have the workings examined, and if so advised, to have them re-opened. Then it was found that the gold was present in the quartz. It was not a small, isolated deposit, such as is frequently found in Scotland, but a reef or lode of gold bearing quartz stretching, it may be, for miles. The reef extends across the three or four miles of water to the estate of Shirvan, on the other side, and here former mine workings have also been found. The quartz here also is found to contain gold.

A peculiar case of breach of promise, involving one of the longest engagements on record, was disclosed recently when Lord Guthrie, in the Edinburgh Court of Session, closed the record and ordered issued for trial of an action, in which Margaret Hastie of Pitlochry, sues Alexander Lumsden, superintendent of Tay Fisheries, Perth, for damages. It was stated that the plaintiff was 52 years of age and was first engaged when she was 18. Counsel said tha if all the letters that had passed between the parties were put into process and copied an enormous expense would be involved. Thousands would have to be copied.

An omewhat unusual occurrence took place at Hillend range, the other day. While a number of the members of the local corps of Volunteers, Seventh Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, were shooting, three young heifers belonging to Mr Kinross, farmer, of Hillend, were shot, two of the animals being actually riddled with bullets, while the third was wounded about the legs. It is not known whether the affair was caused by reckless firing or by the animal straying in the line of fire.

It has just been discovered that Jos. Kane, a Dundee labourer, had an unenviable record as a wife beater. He had been three times married, and so far the procurator-fiscal remembers thirteen previous convictions for assaults against Kane at the instance of his wives. Recently, Kane added another to the list, when he was sentenced to forty days in jail. Mrs. Kane had been fearfully battered; indeed, when the case was in charge of the police the trial had to be continued for a week to see how the woman would get on.

It has recently transpired that Rutherglen has in its midst a society which is 250 years old. This is the incorporation of Tailors, whose seal was granted by the Magistrates on the first day of December, 1657. Interesting fact was drawn attention to at the annual meeting which has just taken place, and it was unanimously remitted to the Master Court to take such action as they thought fit to suitably commemorate the 250th anniversary of the ancient Incorporation.

IRELAND

The Glasgow four-masted ship Marion Josiah, of 2,120 tons (Captain Grant,) from Portland, Oregon, arrived at Queenstown recently in a battered condition, the crew having had a terrible experience off the Irish coast during the prevalence of a west-south-west hurricane, during which the vessel narrowly escaped foundering, the chief officer being killed by a heavy sea, and two seamen washed overboard and drowned, while six others of the crew were dashed along the deck and picked up with broken limbs and bleeding wounds about the head and face. The wind was blowing with hurricane force from the west-south-west, with tremendous high seas running, and the ship was under small sail in consequence. About eight o'clock one evening the vessel shipped an enormous sea, which swept the three men off the poop and demolished the wheel. Chief Officer Mason was hurled with terrific force down on to the main deck and instantly killed. One of the men at the wheel, named Rout, was swept overboard and lost, and the second man was, like the mate, dashed on to the main deck, where he was subsequently picked up in an unconscious state, bruised and bleeding. When all hands were mustered later, seaman Young was missing, and it became evident that he, too, had been washed overboard. Five other seamen were also struck by the huge wave, and were swept from one end of the deck to the other, all sustaining injuries more or less severe. The sea, which practically submerged the vessel for a time, burst in the forecastle bulkhead and gutted the forecastle, flooded the cabin, smashed to pieces the lifeboats, carried away ladders and rails, and swept everything movable off the deck.

A pretty plot against insurance companies is alleged against three women at Dublin. Claims have been sent in for the payment of policies on the death of a man who was found to be alive in prison. According to the prosecuting solicitor, Mrs. Mary O'Neill had in her possession seventeen policies on the lives of different people. She had a family of four or five children, all of whom were insured and only two of these children were left. At the police court, Mrs. O'Neill, Mrs. Bridget Kearney, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hannaberry were charged with unlawfully conspiring to obtain from Mr. Thomas Ryan, Dublin manager of the Scottish Legal Life Assurance Society, the sum of £34, the amount of two policies of insurance, payable on the death of William O'Neill by falsely representing that O'Neill, who was the husband of the first-named prisoner, died on October 15. As a matter of fact he was alive and in Mountjoy prison, undergoing imprisonment for assault. The prosecuting solicitor, said Mrs. O'Neill had a child named William O'Neill, which was under the care of a doctor. The child died and a medical certificate was obtained giving the age of the child as three years. The prosecution alleged that Mrs. O'Neill inserted after the figure 3 the figure 7, and proceeded with the certificate, purporting to refer to the death of her husband, to obtain money on certain insurance policies. She made her way to several offices, including the Refuge, the Prudential, the Royal Liver Society, the British Workmen's Society, and the Scottish Legal, where the manager made inquiries and stopped payment; in the other cases she got the money.

The funeral took place recently of James Murtaugh, of Middletown, County Armagh, who celebrated his 102nd birthday a few weeks ago. Until recently he was able to assist in light work about the farmhouse.

Power of Imagination.

Illustrating the strange power of the imagination, E. F. Benson, author of "Dodo," tells this incident: A doctor he knew had found it necessary to give a patient for many evenings an injection of morphia to enable him to get some sleep. After awhile the doctor thought it advisable to stop the morphia, and for two nights his patient was unable to sleep, owing to great pain. On the third night the doctor, being still unwilling to administer morphia, injected plain water instead. The man slept perfectly and awoke in the morning with what is known as a morphine mouth.

SHAPED OVER FOOT SCULPTURED LASTS

Improvement Number Ten

The way Foot-rite Foot-Sculptured Lasts are Made

Foot-rite lasts are a revolution in last making. They're shaped to overcome the foot outset curse. They're a study in sculpture.

Explanation:

The most handsome and ideally formed feet known to orthopedic experts are the feet of athletes. Without perfect feet no prize-fighter could side-step, no runner could sprint, no footballer could dash, etc. Ideal athletic feet of all shapes from all over America, Canada and England were selected as Foot-rite models. These were reproduced in wood without the smallest change by well-known sculptors. These sculptured wood shapes were then graded into all sizes. Over these model athletic lasts Foot-rite shoes are moulded. What does this mean? It means that Foot-rite interiors are shaped like the human foot. It means that no matter what the shape of your foot, any Foot-rite store contains a shoe interior that's the same shape and size as your foot. It means that there's comfort in a Foot-rite Shoe such as you never found in other shoes. And it means that the Foot-rite Shoe, being shaped like the handsome and ideally formed feet of athletes, is certain to please both the eye and the feeling.

Try on a pair of Foot-rites. You'll admit that we've done something unusual to the form of their insides.

The same prices in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.50, $5.00, $5.50 and $6.00. Every pair Goodyear Welted.

BRIBERY CASE IS NOW ENDED

Four London Defendants Were Found Guilty of Conspiracy.

WILL GO TO APPEAL COURT

Sentence Is Deferred—Men Released on Heavy Bail—Vance, Smith and Preston Give Pritchett the Lie—Judge Sums Up Evidence—The Question of Jurisdiction Again Argued by Counsel.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—To the astonishment and dismay of the defence in the London election bribery conspiracy case His Honor Judge Winchester late yesterday afternoon found that all four of the defendants were guilty. The decision was given soon after the defence suddenly terminated its case. His honor granted an application for appeal to the higher courts, and sentence was not passed, the defendants, Reid, O'Gorman, Wiley and Mulloy, being allowed their freedom on $5,000 bail each.

His honor spoke for twenty minutes. Just after he had read the indictments, he intimated that, as Mr. Johnston had argued well in the matter of the court's jurisdiction, he would allow the case to go to the Court of Appeal.

The faces of the four accused men immediately became grave. Reid and Wiley were plainly agitated. Reid spoke a word or two to O'Gorman, who sat next him.

"Considering all the evidence," said his honor in conclusion, "I think the evidence has established a general conspiracy. I find the four defendants guilty of forming a conspiracy to defraud the electors of this province."

The defendants looked askance at each other. O'Gorman seemed cool. Reid smiled. Wiley turned pale, and Mulloy appeared as if he did not understand what it all meant. The defendants had expected to go free, though there had been a feeling that O'Gorman might be fined. They left for London on the 7.30 p. m. train, declining to discuss the matter.

Mr. Johnston renewed his objections that the case was not within the jurisdiction of his honor and that the crown had not proven conspiracy or any overt act in connection with any conspiracy which may have taken place in Toronto. Mr. Johnston asked his honor to totally disbelieve the evidence of Pritchett and Farr who should be arrested for perjury.

The crown had no right to advance them as credible witnesses. The oath of a perjurer, unsupported by any one of the booths. He had been contradicted on every hand.

There was no evidence, he held, that Reid had anything to do with any conspiracy, while Mulloy and Wiley had nothing to do with the alleged conspiracy in Toronto, and were connected with the London bribery only by the statement of Jerry Collins.

Judge's Address.

His honor then summed up the case. As to the charges against Reid, Mulloy and Wiley, of a conspiracy in Toronto, no evidence had been brought out. The evidence against O'Gorman must necessarily come from men who had no moral sense of their duty. Against O'Gorman the crown had only the evidence of Pritchett to rely upon, and he had been contradicted in several material points by men whom the judge had no reason to doubt. His honor believed that Vance was telling the truth in reference to Pritchett's arrival at Bancroft. He also believed Alex. Smith.

In the face of such evidence as this, it was difficult to decide, but in many instances Pritchett's evidence had been fully corroborated. It was a fact that he was at Brockville, and he was substantiated by many witnesses, and it has been shown that illegal acts were attempted. He was also in West Huron and West Elgin, and there was ample evidence that O'Gorman was connected with Pritchett, and that Pritchett did act illegally.

"With reference to London," said his honor, "while voters were bribed right and left in West London, I am glad to say that there was no evidence of general bribery. Money was being expended openly. A most disgraceful state of affairs was shown to have existed. There were men who were willing to go into any evil doings. We find Collins anxious to turn over a dishonest penny. He got money from O'Gorman and Mulloy and spent it illegally."

His honor reviewed Sifton's evidence regarding Reid, and considered Reid's attitude as showing himself part of a general scheme. He had no faith in Wiley's alibi. He could not depend on Farr's statement, and he believed Thomas Reid in this connection.

He then declared his finding of guilty.

Vance and Smith Testify.

The evidence during the day was in no way sensational.

In the morning James Vance took the stand again and denied that he got any more money than his expenses. He knew of no improper procedure in North Waterloo.

Alex. Smith, formerly Liberal organizer for the province, swore that he never was a party to any improper or corrupt act in any election. He knew nothing of ballot switching or bribery.

He knew O'Gorman, but he had never seen Pritchett in his life. He emphatically denied meeting O'Gorman and Pritchett in the Walker House. Never in his life had he given Pritchett money or paid his hotel bills. He knew of no arrangement between O'Gorman and Pritchett.

Led by Mr. Johnston over all the bye-elections concerned in the case, Mr. Smith gave Pritchett the lie in every instance.

Dr. W. J. Stevenson of London swore that Wiley was sick at home the night that Collins said he was paying out the voters in Tom Lewis' hotel.

After objections from Crown Counsel W. T. R. Preston's evidence, which was taken by A. G. McG. Helmsley at Sydney, New South Wales, and sworn to by Charles W. Hallen, was read. The affidavit went to show that Preston had worked in the bye-elections in South Ontario, Lennox, Halton and Nipissing, where he acted as organizer. He did not know J. G. Pritchett nor had he ever given him $40 in the Commercial Hotel at Whitby, nor at any other time. He had never met O'Gorman in any election. He had discussed political work with Alex. Smith and Jim Vance, but there was no suggestion as to corrupt practices. Mr. Preston swore positively that the meeting in the Walker House, Toronto, at which Pritchett said he was present, never took place.

The Police Court evidence of W. L. Harton of Goderich was also read.

GRAHAM CHEERED IN THE COMMONS

New Minister Presents Report of Railway Commission.

SITTING WAS VERY BRIEF

Debate on Address Will Begin Monday—Insurance Bill to Be Brought In Next Week—Scheme For Old Age Annuities In Definite Shape—The Franco-Canadian Treaty Is to Be Ratified by Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—Parliament sat just eight minutes yesterday afternoon, during which time H. S. Clements (Kent) improved the opportunity by presenting a batch of petitions from 500 farmers of Western Ontario for an amendment to the meat inspection act, abolishing regulations which, it was set out, placed the farmers at the mercy of the packers and restricted the sale of live hogs.

Other things were done. Hon. G. P. Graham was applauded by Liberal members when he laid on the table huge bundles of documents, the tumult arising from the fact that it was the Minister's first break into the real business of the Federal House. Mr. Graham's report covered the operations of the Railway Commission for Canada, the National Transcontinental Commission and the Department of Railways and Canals.

Railway Commission's Report.

The Railway Commission has had 63 public sittings and heard 21 applications, and of the amount appropriated by Parliament, $74,250, there is a balance of $5,585. The commissioners and secretary get $21,750. Four hundred and sixty persons were killed and 603 injured. Forty-two of the killed were passengers and 212 employes. Forty-one were killed at level crossings and 22 injured; trespassing, 95 killed, 32 injured; derailment, 15 and 102; working on track, 46 and 29; head-on collisions, 44 and 109; collision with street cars, 1 and 17; found on track, 61; switching, 29.

Eight Millions Expended.

The third report of the transcontinental Railway Commission covers the fiscal period of nine months ended March 31, 1907. The total expenditure for work done under the commission was $8,147,494.63, of which $5,537,867.50 is credited to the fiscal period covered by the report. The cost of the headquarters staff was $166,191.03; for the location of the line, $555,896.24; for transport service, $225,920.59, and for actual construction, $4,589,359.64.

In district F., north of Kenora, 17 persons were killed and 26 injured. District Engineer Hodgins reporting that the accidents were mainly due to carelessness of the men in handling dynamite and to some extent to liquor being in the camps. The portions approved and covering which contracts have been awarded are: New Brunswick, 112 miles; Quebec, 417; Ontario, 238; Manitoba, 84; total, 959 miles.

Ralph Smith (Nanaimo, B. C.), has given notice of a resolution that in the opinion of this House steps should be taken to restrict the influx of Oriental immigrants into Canada, and inasmuch as the policy of the Government concerning immigration has been entirely satisfactory, a definite policy should be immediately put into operation looking to the accomplishment of equally satisfactory results with regard to all other Oriental immigrants.

Cheered the Winner.

The Conservative members held their first caucus of the session yesterday morning, when the program for the session was discussed and C. L. Owen, the new member for East Northumberland, presided. The result of the bye-election in Colchester, which was announced by John Baptiste Morin, cheered the members and the feeling was that the session will be a fighting one.

Hon. W. S. Fielding will bring down the new Insurance Bill early next week, a notice to that effect having been given yesterday afternoon. He has also given notice of an act to authorize the issue of Government annuities for old age. The resolution to ratify the French treaty will also be taken up early.

The Annuity Bill.

The bill in regard to old age annuities is about the same as that Sir Richard Cartwright laid before the Senate last session. The object of the bill is to encourage the opening up of savings accounts by the working classes, so that they may have provision for old age, say at the age of 60. If a man begins paying at 20 years an annual contribution of $13, he will be entitled to $120 a year when he reaches 60, or if the payment is deferred until he reaches 65, then he can have $200 a year. Payments will be made for annuities in the local postoffice, and the Government will allow interest thereon, compounded half-yearly at 3 1-2 or 4 per cent.

The Government will undertake the business of management, and payment of annuities will be guaranteed by the whole credit of the Dominion. The annuities will not be subject to seizure for debt or any other cause and will not be transferable. No annuity can be taken for more than $400 a year.

Tried to Wreck Train.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Wm. Leflair, Edward Fry and Ben Roberts, aged, respectively, 20, 14 and 18 years, was held yesterday for the grand jury, charged with having attempted to wreck a New York Central passenger train at a curve a mile east of the city. A section hand flagged the train after he had discovered that railroad spikes had been driven between the rail joints.

Tom Moore Wrote of Her.

Kingston, Nov. 30.—Miss Agnes Cunningham, a music teacher, died while calling at Mrs. Muckler's, Union street. She entered, sat down and expired from heart failure. She was over 60 years of age.

Tom Moore, the Irish poet, once stayed at her home here, and in his poems referred to the beauty and grace of her home.

Sensational Kidnapping of Wealthy Italian Marquis.

WAS TORTURED AND FROZEN

King of Italy's Cousin Carried to a Grotto—Five Hundred Dollars Demanded For His Release—Forced to Send Letter to Wife Asking For Money—Received Horrible Treatment—May Not Recover.

Naples, Nov. 30.—A dramatic and sensational kidnapping has occurred here, the victim being Marquis Guiseppe Cito, a member of the most ancient aristocracy and a cousin and aide of the King.

The marquis was seized and carried off to a grotto, where he was tortured, and a letter to the marchioness demanding $500 extorted from him. He was found half-frozen and badly injured, and his condition is now considered desperate. One of his assailants was disguised as a policeman.

The kidnapping of Marquis Guiseppe Cito has caused great astonishment through the discovery that the organizer of the plot is in reality a policeman. On being arrested he confessed. The British Embassy is interested in the case, as Marquis Cito is a trusted antiquarian for several sovereigns, including King Edward.

HON. C. S. HYMAN'S RETURN.

Says Japanese Have No Hard Feelings Against Canadians.

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 30.—Returning to his home in London, Ont., from a tour in China and Japan, Charles Smith Hyman, former Canadian Minister of Public Works, arrived here Thursday on the steamer Korea. He said that Japan had no hard feelings against the Canadians for their treatment of the Japanese at Vancouver a few months ago.

"I heard very few expressions of hostility against either Canada or the United States," he said. "Some of the newspapers printed rather inflammatory articles, but the mass of the people did not seem to attach any seriousness to the various race outbreaks."

He was inclined to think that Lemieux's mission was largely an experimental one, the Canadian Government having no definite idea of what it was prepared to grant and what it would accede to.

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY NOVEMBER 30 1907

PETERBOROUGH VISITOR TELLS OF DISCOVERY OF IMMENSE NATURAL GAS WELL ON HIS OWN PROPERTY IN THE TOWN OF WAYNESBURG, PA.

Estimated That No Less Than 50,000,000 Feet of Gas Will Be The Output Per Day on Mr. Hoge's Farm

VISITED ALDERMAN LEARY

The Town Excited Over The Great Find and Big Companies Are After It—An Interesting Story

Peterborough would do well if a natural gas well were struck in this vicinity such as has been told of to the Examiner by Mr. Samuel Hoge, who may, with good reason be called the "Gas King" of Waynesburg, Pa. Mr. Hoge has often visited Ald. R. H. Leary and it was only a few days ago since he left Peterborough for his home. He is well acquainted in this city, having visited very extensively in his various visits.

Recently an oil well was found on Mr. Hoge's property capable of producing 50,000,000 feet of gas per day. Speaking of the find Mr. Hoge stated that the well was discovered on his farm near Oak Forest. The well has blowed itself in, and is many times larger than it was when found. The flow is so large and the pressure so great that with present appliances, the company is unable to harness the product. A practical gas man visited it, and gave it as his opinion that the well is putting out from fifty to sixty million feet of gas per day. It is the largest well that was ever struck in Greene county in the history of the oil and gas development, and there have been some very fine wells. For instance, a few years ago the Philadelphia Co. obtained several fine wells on the W. J. Bayard farm, and the manager in speaking of their value stated that the wells were worth a million dollars a piece.

For Manufactures

The striking of this well means much to Waynesburg. It means that the town will have a supply of gas for years, and in abundance. It means more than a mere supply of gas to local consumers, but it puts the company in a position to make overtures to manufacturers who might want to locate there, and supply them with cheap gas. The strike is a great boon for every person in that section. It takes from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 feet of gas a day to meet Waynesburg's consumption. The good fortune of Mr. Hoge means cheap gas and an abundant supply for the people.

Three of the big companies have been after the company to purchase the well and territory, but the offers were refused. However, the company will meet part of the product to one of the old companies, as the pressure is entirely too great and the product too large to be turned into the lines of the local company—it demands a 10-inch pipe.

Duding Overtures

Disposing of part of the product to one of the old companies, which they can readily do, will possibly allow a part of the output to be turned into the Home Company's lines. The Home Company has heretofore declined all overtures to sell their plant, which, if they had done, Waynesburg would be paying more than double the gross they are paying now for gas. Hence Waynesburg people can thank the Home Company for cheap gas, and rejoice with them over the valuable strike made in the well.

UNUSUAL GRIT DISPLAYED BY APSLEY BOY WITH BROKEN ARM

Examiner Special.

Apsley, Nov. 30.—An incident occurred here yesterday, which is causing great commendation on behalf of the villagers, about a young lad named Oscar Jones, who displayed more than the ordinary amount of grit for a lad his size.

The plucky boy was taking two horses down to the creek to water and was riding astride one of them. Upon nearing the water the hog gave the horse a tap with a rod he carried, and the animal plunged forward. The lad was riding bare back and the sudden plunge threw him from the horse's back and he fell heavily on the hard ground.

The little fellow was rather stunned after his fall and his arm hung limp by his side. The brave boy held up the injured arm and walked over to Dr. Waldigan's residence to have the arm fixed. The doctor upon examining the left arm found that it was fractured below the shoulder. The doctor set the arm and did everything to ease the boy's pain, and the lad started out for his home again.

The brave boy deserves much credit for his grit; most boys of his age would have made for home, but the lad desired to have the arm fixed before he went home to his mother. The doctor said he never saw the like of the boy's bravery and during the setting of the arm he never raised a whimper.

GUN STOLEN NINE YEARS AGO FOUND BY SURVEYOR TO-DAY

Examiner Special.

Apsley, Nov. 30.—A rifle stolen nine years ago from Mr. Webster's store in this village was found a few days ago in a brush heap where it was undoubtedly left by the person who stole it. The circumstances connected with the affair are of an interesting nature, and substantiate the old belief that crime will out, even if it is only a theft.

Nine years ago Mr. Robt. Hales left a rifle at Mr. Webster's store for the sake of convenience, but it was stolen from the store, and the proprietor nor Mr. Hales could never find any clue to the thief. This week Mr. T. Wilkins, provincial land surveyor, who resides in Norwood, was surveying in Apsley and pulled over a brush heap beside the little stream that runs through the hamlet, and there he found an old rusty gun, according to the despatch. It was weather beaten, and as good, or rather as bad, as the rusty flint made famous by the story of Rip Van Winkle.

A little investigation and consideration resulted, and from the make of the gun it was conclusively decided that it was the one that had been stolen a decade ago from the store. Of course, it was of no use, it will be hung up as a memento of the event, and with it will be linked the story of its disappearance and discovery.

OLD LADY FALLS IN DEAD FAINT

Was Carried Across to the National Hotel And Was Able To Walk Home

An old lady was passing along Charlotte street this morning, just at the time the market was at its best, and fell down in a fainting spell in the midst of the roadway that leads to the market square. Several ladies who were passing picked the old lady up and carried her into a near-by hotel. The clerk of the hotel gave the lady a little brandy, and she came around all right and was able to walk home.

HAVING WEATHER IN DAWSON CITY

Just think of 28 degrees below zero on November 31 Such was the state of the weather in Dawson City on that date, according to a postal card which has reached the Examiner office from Mr. R. Morris Saunders of the Bank of Commerce there, and formerly of the local branch. It was a bright, sunny day with a thick mantle of snow on the ground, and by no means conducive to the playing of golf, the favourite game of Mr. Saunders.

Many Matters For The Council

Meeting on Monday Night—Hartley Fund And Garbage Question

There will be a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council on Monday night when various items are slated for the consideration of the alderman. Possibly the most important question will be the preparing of the Garbage Bylaw to be voted upon at the municipal elections, and which come up before the Property Committee yesterday.

Among other questions will be the grant to David Hartley; the recommendation of the Board of Health to proceed with the erection of an isolation hospital; a bylaw providing for the taking of a vote on the proposal of the Water Commissioners to impose a frontage tax on all vacant property past which the water service runs. The council will decide what steps will be taken to enforce the bylaw regarding cleaning snow off the sidewalks and will also make provision for the publishing of a list of the revised numbers on the houses.

AXES AND WHIPS ARE MENTIONED IN THE VENTILATION OF EXCITING ASSAULT CASE IN THIS MORNING'S POLICE COURT

Evidence Showed That When Woman Went After The Axe She Was Struck Across Face With a Whip

A FENCE CAUSED TROUBLE

Possibly a Game of Spite Between The Two Parties—Man Fined $20 Together With Costs

One of the most exciting cases of assault that has occurred in Peterborough for some time, was aired in the police court this morning. The charge was laid against George Jamieson, city, for having assaulted Mrs. Arthur Killenbeck, of 293 Townsend street.

The testimony of Mrs. Killenbeck was first heard. She told of how they had lived in their present house for four years and had never had a row before. The house was situated next to Jamieson's, and his house next to the lane, so that to get to the lane and thence to Sherbrooke street, they had to cross over Jamieson's yard, which was not at first divided from Killenbeck's by a fence. Yesterday Jamieson started to put up a fence between the two yards, for the purpose of keeping the Killenbecks from going and coming in the back way. She sallied out and told Mr. Jamieson to pull down the fence, or she would. He still went on nailing it up. She then went to the woodshed to get an axe to tear it down, but as soon as she hit the fence Jamieson struck her over the face with a horse whip twice.

Alfred, her son, also testified that his mother went out and asked Jamieson to stop nailing up the fence, but he gave her the "Ha-ha." Next he saw his mother going at the fence with an axe. He also saw Jamieson strike her twice over the face with a whip. He then ran into the yard and carried his mother into the house.

Jamieson wore a constant smile on his face, and took the proceedings very coolly. He said that he had struck Mrs. Killenbeck in self-defence. He said that he had received orders from Mr. Hooper to build a fence across the property, which orders he was endeavouring to carry out. He said the Killenbecks carried all the mud in from the lane, and scraped it off on his walk, and he wanted it stopped. This was the cause of the fence going up. While nailing up the boards Mrs. Killenbeck came out and ordered him to stop, but he went right on with his work. He next saw her go to the woodshed, and he "was on to her game." At the same time he went to the kitchen for a horse whip Mrs. Killenbeck aimed a blow at his head, but he drew it away, and struck her twice, one over the face and once across her shoulders.

The evidence of Mr. Thos. Hooper completed the case. He said that he thought that it was a game of spite between the two families. He had told Mrs. Killenbeck that if she did not like a fence being put up, she could get another house.

His Worship censured Mr. Hooper for his action. He said Mr. Hooper should have got rid of the tenant before putting up his fence.

His Worship, after reviewing the evidence fined Jamieson $20.00 and costs or ten days in gaol, for assaulting Mrs. Killenbeck.

STAGE DRIVER CATCHES HORSE BEFORE IT CAN BREAK AWAY

After a week passing harmoniously by, unaccompanied by accidents of the runaway variety, Dummer folk are again in trouble. The latest mishap occurred this morning about 9.30 this morning, at the five corners, on this side the Maple Leaf cheese factory, and those who passed through the ordeal were Mr. Norman Payne and his sister, Miss Dora, with Mr. Joseph Crowe, the Warsaw stage driver as the only witness.

Mr. Crowe noticed the cutter coming behind and beckoned the driver to pass but in doing so it was overturned, and the occupants thrown into the ditch, as the road was somewhat narrow at that point.

The stage driver was too quick for Mr. Payne's horse. Before the animal could break away, Mr. Crowe was on the road and had a strong hold on the reins. The occupants, fortunately, were not seriously injured but some damage was done to the cutter and harness. Mr. Payne and his sister evidently had a narrow escape.

A FLOCK OF TURKEYS IN DUMMER ARE WINNERS IN EVERY RESPECT

While stories are being told of the supply of turkeys that the farmers have ready for Christmas, a Dummer farmer named William Fitzpatrick, must carry off the palm for the premier flock in the country. Mr. Gilbert Thompson, a local cattle dealer, who is frequently among the farmers, is authority for the description of this flock.

Mr. William Fitzpatrick lives in Dummer with his two brothers, but he is really the owner of the turkeys. Mr. Thompson says there must be four hundred turkeys in the flock. They are these large bronze turkeys, which will average forty pounds or more. They are not old ones, either, but all this year's fowl. These turkeys should sell for ten cents a pound, live weight, at least; thus it is merely a little mathematical problem to find out what Mr. Fitzpatrick should receive for the flock.

Grasshoppers Plentiful

The circumstances connected with the establishing of such a flock are quite interesting. About four years ago a dry summer was experienced and the grasshoppers flew around in clouds, to the dismay of the farmers, whose green fields suffered. Several hundred acres of the Fitzpatrick farm is barren on account of its rocky nature, and was left uncultivated. At the time mentioned the grasshoppers were found on this farm in large numbers and were more plentiful there than anywhere in the vicinity. The "hoppers" very soon ate up the short grass, and started out to get more eatable on the adjoining fields. As a result, the standing grain suffered badly, and the farmers lost considerable money from the ravages of the pests.

Flock of Turkeys

It was decided to raise turkeys, and Mr. William Fitzpatrick was among those who had a large flock next spring. He turned them out on the uncultivated fields that the grasshoppers hopped in, and nearly all summer they throve on the pests that formerly did only harm.

That was the first year of the Fitzpatrick flock, which has since grown to such large proportions. When the autumn came the turkeys were fattened for Christmas and are as good as can be bought.

Mr. Thompson says that Mr. Fitzpatrick gives the turkeys his entire attention during the summer, and may be seen watching them in the fields, or caring for them as they require attention.

PETER HAMILTON CO'S OFFICE ENTERED EARLY THIS MORNING

About 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Ned. Finnie, the city nightwatchman, was passing the offices of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company on George street, when he heard the noise of a breaking window. It aroused his suspicions and he ran to the door, but it was locked. He then ran to the Hamilton residence and awoke Mr. Hamilton, who was quickly over to the office.

On entry no robber was found, but a window was broken, and it is believed that someone had been in the office. Nothing was missing, but the man could have gone out by the back door into the store room. Such is what is believed to have been done and it is lucky that Mr. Finnie happened along at the time.

A ROMANCE OF SUCCESS

Ontario's preeminence, as an agricultural state, the foremost in advanced methods, and conspicuously important results, is due to a variety of causes. The native energy, industry and enterprise of her people, conjoined with favourable natural conditions of soil and climate, are leading causes; but the force which has organized these resources, and combined them to an end, is very largely represented by one man, who has been able to enlist the enthusiasm of the generous, and convince the minds of the doubting, and that man is Prof. Robertson, late of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, well known from his visits and addresses to many advanced farmers in this county. Thousands, who have profited by his work, who have learned to admire his work and who have responded to the enthusiasm that he has created, know to what extent, Ontario and Canada at large, are indebted to him. Mr. George Iles, in an appreciative, and elaborately illustrated article, in the Review of Reviews, writes of "Dr. Robertson's work for the Training of Canadian Farmers." The story as told by Mr. Iles, reads like a romance of success. Dr. Robertson, who has well earned the title and position of a leader in this work, first opened his eyes upon his fifty years of fruitful life, in Dunlop, Scotland, in 1851. At the age of 18 years with a necessarily limited scholastic education, he came to Canada, with his father. He assisted the latter upon a farm, near London, Ont., from which produce was shipped to the old country. Young Robertson soon noticed that Ontario cheese and butter, of prime qualities, were in demand in the British markets. At that time he resolved that, as far as he was concerned, the making of inferior grades should cease. He took service at thirteen dollars a month in a cheese factory near Ingersoll, to learn how the best cheese could be made. His employer falling ill, young Robertson was given charge of the place. "His management was a success from the beginning; he had uncommon ability, energy and conscience; he turned out products which won the respect of his farming critics." Before long, at Cotswold, Wellington county, not far away, he took charge of a factory for a joint stock company of farmers, but it was not big enough to keep him busy. In a few months, he was looking after eight similar factories, and doing well by them all. His talent for initiative, for administration, which have been prominent factors in his success, were always in evidence. Then from many dairymen, whose output was second rate, came questions as to his working methods. In winter evenings he told them, first in groups of a dozen, or twenty, then in assemblies of one hundred or more. He laid stress upon conditions that in modified and extended form, are at the root of the unequalled success of Ontario cheese dairying to-day. He demonstrated simple tests for the quality of milk, etc., etc. Not long before he had shared the ignorance and perplexities of his hearers; but he had found out, and told what he had found; he rejoiced to tell them the way out, that they might exchange a lean wage for a decent profit. Mr. Iles says: "in dexterity and information Robertson has his peers; in good will, in the passion to have his neighbour thrive as himself, I know not his equal."

Here we have Dr. Robertson moulding the beginnings of the great cheese industry of Canada. His work and the knowledge and appreciation of it spread from the farmers to their parliamentary representatives and from them to the Government of Ontario, and in 1895 he became professor of dairy husbandry at the Agricultural College, Guelph. Under his guiding the missionary work became strenuous; the staff of the college went the length and breadth of Ontario addressing the Farmers' Institutes which Mr. Iles says, "flourish there (in Ontario) as nowhere else on the continent." He visited the Old Country, he brought home knowledge of improved strains of cattle and swine and the best method of housing and feeding and the best dairy appliances. He learned the best conditions of shipment to please the overseas markets. He provided that these should be no weak, nor wanting link between a farmer or factory in Ontario and a shop counter in Liverpool or Leeds. With persistence and address he carried these projects to adoption; he had studied the situation as a whole, he persuaded all concerned. Soon Canadian farmers, dairymen, railway managers and steamship owners joined hands to develop a trade which grew fast to stupendous proportions. The dairy exports of Canada which in 1890 were but $9,000,000, rose in 1900 to $25,000,000 and in 1906 to $31,500,000. The man whose spirit working through the people of Canada wrought these great results, was Dr. Robertson, who, less than a generation ago as a mere boy, ignorant of everything save the value of thoroughness, began his work in a humble cheese factory at $13 per month.

In 1890 Dr. Robertson shifted the centre of his activities from Guelph to Ottawa, receiving the appointment of Dairy Commissioner for the Dominion. In 1895 he was appointed Commissioner of Dairying—"Loyally did he discharge his trusts. From ocean to ocean he lifted farming and dairying to new excellence, until his ambition to see their methods at the highest level seems fast approaching fulfilment." These methods reach approximate culmination, at a moment when the agricultural possibilities of Canada, with the opening of the boundless west open upon a future of infinite greatness. When one reflects that the approaching machinery for such accomplishment had its origin in the cool room of a petty cheese factory, only 30 years ago, it is no mere figure of speech to describe Dr. Robertson's association with the starting point and the intermediate stages of progress to the present point of high achievement, a romance of success."

WOULD IT BE BETTER?

When one sees the melancholy muddle often made in the application of representative institutions, faith in their relative ability is weakened. We exchange a vote at large for the ward system, and the results suggest longings for a return to the ward plan of selecting representatives. Perhaps representative government is like strychnine, only safe or safer when taken in small doses. It sometimes seems that our legislative bodies, national, provincial and municipal, are too large, too unwieldy — as one would take a battle-axe to fashion a skewer. It sometimes seems as if thirteen aldermen to manage the affairs of Peterborough are a case of too many cooks spoiling the broth; too minute a division of responsibility; too much diffusion of energy to be effective; too great vanity of opinion to admit of unanimity upon a matured policy and workable system; too large a surface exposed to the aim of seekers for special favours.

Citizens and ratepayers have thought of these things, have quietly discussed them, perhaps without reaching any definite result, other other than a feeling more or less vague that, judged by results, it would not be unwise to try something else. To such persons there is a certain force of appeal in the fact that three business men of good ability manage a large and important enterprise, like our waterworks system, as a business undertaking, prudently, successfully and, of course, satisfactorily. They do this without any of the heartrending exhibitions of incapacity and recklessness and perfunctory service that attend municipal management, as too often employed to-day, which would be ludicrous if they were not so costly.

Ratepayers are inclined to inquire why the affairs of the city might not be managed upon a principle similar to that obtaining in connection with the waterworks, and with similar good results. In answer to such a query, it might be mentioned, not so much by way of suggestion as for information, that a system of municipal administration, similar in principle and practice is in apparently successful and satisfactory operation in two large cities in the United States, Galveston, Texas, in September, 1900, had been partially swept away by a tidal wave, with a destruction of 16,000 lives and seventeen millions of property, the citizens remaining set themselves bravely to rebuild their fallen city, materially and municipally. In course of the task they discovered the uselessness of the old system of municipal government. They abolished councils and committees and ward boundaries, and evolved a commission plan. Under this system four commissioners are elected, as our water commissioners are, by the people, and, in that land of multifarious election, these are the only officials elected. All power is vested in this quartette; they are Mayor Council and all the Boards—corresponding to our committees, conjointly. They are responsible to the people alone. One is president and, in a sense, Mayor; another has charge of the streets and public properties; a third has control of revenue and finances and the fourth looks after waterworks and sewerage. This system works well in Galveston, as well as in Des Moines, Iowa. If such a system works well—as it does in respect of our water works—in two cities of 31,000 and 75,000, respectively, why should it not work well, say, in Peterborough? Will any one say or show that it could be any more unsatisfactory than the present system as we see it and feel it? Would it be better than what we now have?

A CONFIDENT SMILE

Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, can face Parliament with a smile of confidence and a jaunty front. At the opening sitting he "laid on thee table" the public accounts of the last fiscal period of nine months. These show the receipts to have been $67,969,328, and the expenditure $51,542,161, leaving a surplus of $16,427,127. Of the expenditures $11,329,143 are charged to capital account. Of this surplus, the sum of $3,371,117 has been applied to a reduction of the public debt. It was not so in the good old days of Conservative rule when the dreary procession of annual deficits wound up at the accumulating pile of public debt. The financial stringency so much prated about does not seem to have any depressing effect upon the commercial life and popular prosperity as represented by so overflowing a volume of customs receipts.

GOOD BLOOD FOR BAD

That is What Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People Always Give—They Never Fail

Good blood is the one thing necessary for perfect health. If the blood is good disease cannot exist—if it is bad disease is bound to appear. There are dozens of maladies caused by bad blood. Among them are anaemia rheumatism, heart palpitation, headache and backache, indigestion and the special ailments of women and growing girls. If you suffer from any of these troubles, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure you — because they make new, red, health-giving blood. They succeed where doctors sometimes fail. In proof of this Mrs. Sarah Jane Duce, Desaronto, Ont., says: "In 1905 I became weak and sickly. I was all run down; I found housework a burden — sometimes I could not do it at all; the least effort made me tired. I consulted a doctor who told me he might help me some but could not cure me permanently on account of my age. I am over fifty. His treatment did not help me and I gradually grew worse; even my friends began to despair. Four different doctors told me my case was hopeless. My suffering was intense. Sores broke out around my mouth and I was unable to eat. I consulted a specialist who told me my trouble was anaemia and that he had little hopes for my recovery. I was in despair and decided it was useless to spend any more money on doctors. One day my husband urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After a few weeks use of the Pills I was convinced that I had found the right medicine. I took twelve boxes and they completely cured me, and I am now in excellent health. I gladly recommend them to all sufferers, for they cured me when doctors had failed and my friends were expecting death to end my suffering."

Unless the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is printed on the wrapper around each box don't take 'em—any other so-called pink pill is a fraud intended to deceive you and may do you harm. If your medicine dealer has not got the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People they will be sent to you direct at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HEART METER A NEW INVENTION

Person Can See His Internal Organs At Work—Named the Orthodiagraph

SCIENTIFIC WONDER

The human heart is fast losing its mystery. You can actually see it nowadays—or rather, you can observe its movements in a shadow picture by means of the Rontgen rays. The fact is now new but the facilities for applying the idea to medical science have developed wonderfully, and the authorities of one of the great English hospitals are proud of the latest addition to their electrical department, which will be opened probably in the near future. It is called an "orthodiagraph" because it gives a tracing of the object disclosed in exact relative dimensions.

The apparatus has four arms, one of which holds a small circular greenish-yellow screen, one a wire black ring, one a wooden case, and the other the little reservoir that acts as a pencil for the tracing. Against a tall canvas screen in the dark stands the person who wants his internal organs to be seen at work. The arms of the machine are lowered until the greenish-yellow screen appears in front. There is heard the faint crackle of electricity, a circle of light appears, and the motion of the heart, reflected on the screen, may be followed. Attached to the front of the machine is a bulb. This is in association with the "pencil" behind, and as it is pressed a drawing of the heart is traced in little blue dots upon another white screen at the back.

The novelty of this machine is the perfection to which it has been brought. It may be worked by a finger.

Great value is attached to the use of the orthodiagraph, which will enable accurate and reliable records of the state of patients' hearts to be obtained. At present, however, only the outlines and the movements can be observed. It is not possible as yet to see the structure of the heart. The orthodiagraph was made at Nauheim, Germany.

BEER* IS GOOD FOR MOST FOLKS
(HARDLY ANOTHER BEVERAGE FEEDS SO WELL)

BEER really excels milk as a food-drink for most grown people. And many, many people cannot digest milk easily, because it is so lacking in solid food-contents. Moreover, milk is so liable to contagion that it is seldom pure when we get it in the cities. But Ontario-brewed beer is really pure,—brewed in cleanliness, of sound materials, in a sanitary way, and brought to the user in the same fit-to-drink state.

Beer Is No Stimulant

Drink beer with meals and at bedtime, as an item of diet that will help the stomach do its work better, and will feed the body besides. Don't choose beer as a stimulant, though,—it does not contain enough alcohol for that. Use it as a food-drink that induces lazy stomachs to do their work well, and so helps them get more good out of all food.

Beer Makes Better Nerves

Ontario beer is not only deliciously appetising and refreshing, because brewed of pure malt and hops only; but, besides, all the power that hops possess to repair nerve waste is kept in these brews. That is what makes beer so particularly good for women to drink regularly. Ask your own doctor what he thinks of beer for your household.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops and pure water. 301

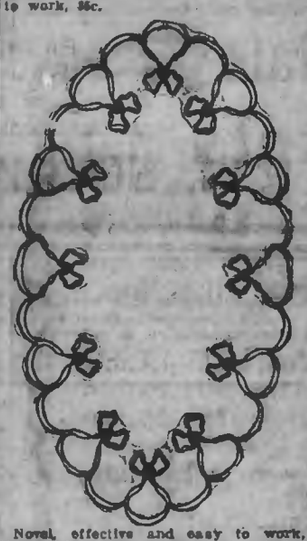
NEEDLEWORK PATTERNS FOR EXAMINER READERS

Though baby's garments are doubly pleasing when hand embroidered it is seldom so unique a part of dress is offered for handwork as bootees. The design, a pretty flower spray, may be worked either in eyelet or solid embroidery. If flannel is too fine a fabric to be used, the bootees may be had already stamped on heavy white felt of the best quality, or in a perforated pattern, which is simple to use and includes complete materials and full directions for stamping. The prices are: perforation, 15c; stamped on extra fine white French flannel, 35c; on white felt, 25c; material to work, 15c.

Counted as one of women's own articles, the pin cushion, especially when adorned with a touch of handiwork, becomes a highly treasured possession. The design here shown is stamped on either lawn or linen and includes enough stamped edge for a liberal ruffle. A bureau scarf, 18x34 in., including full ruffle, may also be had in this pattern at prices quoted upon request. The prices for the plain cushion are: perforation, 25c; stamped on lawn, including ruffle, 45c; on linen, including ruffle, 70c; material to work, 35c.



Novel, effective and easy to work, this design presents a most suitable subject for the busy needlewoman; work teal heavy in white, a handsome effect is to be had. This pattern is also made in 20 and 30 in. round centerpieces, the prices of which will be quoted on request. The prices of the tray cloth as shown are: perforation, 15c; stamped on heavy white linen, 55c; stamped on extra fine tan linen, 40c; material, 45c.

More appreciated because of the personal endeavour expended upon them, little novelties with a touch of handwork make the most ideal gifts for the holidays; when such articles are of actual use in a home they are doubly valuable. The accompanying cut shows a holly design for a whisk-broom holder to be worked in the outline of long and short stitch; the holder is made by fastening two round discs of cardboard together with ribbon after they have been covered with the embroidered linen. The holder is suspended from two ribbon ties. The prices are: perforation, 15; stamped on heavy white linen, 15c; stamped on tan linen, 20c; materials to work, 15c.

Can a more suggestive theme be conceived for the Christmas holidays than a ribbon bowknot gracefully draped and holding up a swinging bell pealing the new year in, while the ends of the ribbon hold several sprays of holly? Carrying with it an unusual amount of meaning, this cushion top must be exceeded to be an appropriate gift, especially when embroidered in with blended colours. It is to be embroidered in the outline stitch, and, when finished, presents an odd and still attractively handsome appearance. The prices of the different materials are: perforation, 25c; stamped on tan ticking, 25c; on extra fine tan linen, 60c; materials to work, 40c.

Strange to say, there is seldom a piece of embroidery seen that is composed of two styles of needlework. And less seldom are the lace insertion and new but well known wallachian work combined. The shirtwaist here shown was designed wide at the top, so that it could be tucked in the yoke, which gives it a very dainty and pretty effect. The prices are: perforated pattern, complete, 25c; stamped on 2 1-2 yards of sheer lawn, 75c; on heavy white linen, $1.85; materials to work, 25c.

"I Want The Proof" You Say

WHEN TOLD THAT NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND PROSTRATION ARE THOROUGHLY CURED BY

What is more discouraging and disheartening than trying to cure nervous exhaustion and prostration by means of ordinary treatments? Because you do not look sick and are suffering great pain, and because they cannot realise your feelings of weakness, helplessness and discouragement, your friends fail to show much sympathy for you, and most doctors are simply helpless in the face of exhausted nerves.

Of course you need not expect Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to work a miracle and cure you in a day or a week, but you can be absolutely sure that you will be benefitted, to at least some extent, by every dose of this great restorative that is taken into the system.

The dreadful weakness and helplessness which makes life miserable to you and leads to all sorts of dark forebodings, will gradually and certainly give way to strength and vigour under this treatment, headaches will disappear, your appetite will improve, you will sleep and rest better and you will find that day by day your nervous system is being built up to health and strength.

That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is actually bringing about just such cures is proven in thousands of cases of which records are kept on file in these offices. The invigorating, upbuilding influence of this great medicine will surprise you if you only persist in its use.

Mrs. D. O'Connor, 278 Simcoe street, Peterborough, Ont., states: —. "My heart has given me a great deal of trouble lately. The least undue exertion affected it, and brought on weakness and fainting spells. My nerves were also very unsteady, and I became so bad that I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which was highly recommended to me. Now I am happy to be able to say that I am completely restored to health. My nerves are strong and steady, the action of my heart regular and the dizzy spells have ceased to trouble me."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

HOME-MADE BLOOD REMEDY

Cures the Kidneys and Makes Them Filter Poisons From the Blood

YOU MIX THIS YOURSELF

A leading health journal, in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood," prints in a recent issue the following:—Fluid Extract of Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known local druggist who is familiar with this prescription, states that it is harmless, being composed of simple ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

It cleans the blood of all impurities and nourishes the blood. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigour and energy into run-down, debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Kargon and Extract Dandelion works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

This prescription is better than the usual patent medicines, which are in the most part alcoholic concoctions. The ingredients cost but little and are easily mixed at home. Every man and woman here should make some up and try it if they feel their system requires a good blood medicine and tonic.

The Kargon to clean the kidneys and vitalize them so they can clean the blood, Sarsaparilla to make new rich blood, and Dandelion to tone the stomach, clean the liver and make it active and relieve constipation, is the way the prescription acts, and so mildly and gently that one does not consider they are taking a medicine. No. 7.

PROGRESS ON GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Vice-president Morse Well Pleased With The Work—Returns After Three Months' Trip

IS THOROUGHLY SATISFIED

Mr. Frank W. Morse, Vice-President and General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has returned to Montreal after a three months' trip through western Canada. During this trip Mr. Morse has made a thorough inspection of every part of the Grand Trunk under construction, and has returned to Montreal thoroughly pleased with the progress that is being made in the work of building this great transcontinental line.

"There is not much I can tell about the trip," says Mr. Morse, "except that it was a thoroughly satisfactory one in every way, and I am very much pleased with the progress that is being made in the construction work at the different points throughout the west. All all points it is being pushed ahead as rapidly as can be expected, and we have no reason to be disappointed with the results so far obtained. It would not be worth while for me to make any statement as to how far the work is advanced, as newspapers have anticipated me in this, and the public now knows about as well as I do how much work has been done."

Asked if any additional plans for the future had been formulated as a result of his trip, Mr. Morse replied that as yet it was too early to speak on this point. The object of the trip was simply one of inspection, and his inspection had proved very satisfactory.

Charity Concert Returned Large Sums To Foresters

Catholic Order of Foresters Gave Entertainment at St. Peters' Hall Last Night—Proceeds To Go To Charity

HAD A LARGE ATTENDANCE

The Charity Concert given at St. Peter's Hall last night under the auspices of the local branch of the Catholic Order of Foresters was a decided success. The manner in which the people turned out and attended the concert was most commendable for financially the affair returned a large sum which will be used in dispensing charity.

The answer to the announcement that the concert was going to be given was almost spontaneous for within a few days 500 tickets were sold and standing room was even at a premium.

Rev. Father Galvin acted as chairman and complimented the Foresters upon their thoughtfulness in undertaking a concert for charitable purposes. The programme was as follows:—

Instrumental duet — The Misses Doris.
Vocal solo—Mr. E Crowe.
Instrumental duet, two pianos — Misses M Gorman, K O'Brien, H. Pierce and C. Cleary.
Reading—Miss M. Durocher.
Banjo solo—Mr. Frank Clark.
Mandolin trio—Messrs. Holland, Brightman and Cranfield.
Vocal solo—Miss Lavina Hallighan.
Instrumental duet, Spanish Dance—Misses A Sullivan, E Morrow, M Leahy, B Picard.
Step Dance—Mr. Dave Quinlan.
Vocal solo—Wm McLaren.
Monologue—Geo. Lynch.

All the performers acquitted themselves well and many encores were received. Particular mention is due to Miss Lavina Hallighan upon her vocal solo which was rendered in a perfect manner.

The Foresters wish to thank all those who assisted in the programme. Members of the society looked after all the arrangements which were carried out without a hitch.

Mr. McLaren and Mr. Geo. Lynch proved themselves excellent humourists and each received several recalls. The accompanists of the evening were Miss Doherty and Messrs. Bennet, Kane and Theobald.

ST. LUKE'S MISSION BAND ANNUAL

Secretary's Report Showed Excellent Work—A Fine Programme Presented

The monthly meeting of St. Luke's Mission Band was held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. W. J. Scott, the superintendent, being in the chair. After the devotional exercises, Miss Lillian Rogers, the secretary, presented the annual report, which showed much good work done during the year, with an average attendance of 26 members at each meeting. Miss Edith Scott read the treasurer's report. During the year the Mission Band raised $101 for missionary purposes. At the meeting yesterday, $10 was voted to the Northwest missions, $5 to the Children's Aid Society, and $5 to special work in the Canadian mission field. Mrs. W. J. Scott called on the rector to address the children. He paid a glowing tribute to the energetic work of Mrs. Scott and her assistant, Mrs. G. R. Browning, and said that at no time had the Mission Band showed such marked progress in all departments as it did just now. He urged the children to do their work for the sake and in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. This motive alone could make their work successful.

A programme consisting of the following numbers was then presented:
Piano solo, Miss Alice Neil.
Vocal solo, Miss Prudence Long.
Reading, Miss Reta Gaskins.
Recitation, Miss Alma Curtis.
Piano solo, Miss Marjorie Kennedy.
Recitation, Miss Eunice Curtis.
Song, Miss Marjorie Kennedy.
Recitation, Miss Wilhelmine Gaskins.

Mrs. Gaskins, president of the W. A., and Mrs. Browning, both added some words of encouragement. Refreshments were served and a pleasant hour spent.

The meetings will be resumed again the third Friday in January.

Everything Will be in Full Swing By Christmas

There will be no refreshment stand or box-ball alley at Jackson Park this winter, according to the statement made by Mr. J. H. He did not expect that this snow would last long, and did not entertain any hopes of beginning the toboggan slide and skating rink much before Christmas. But if the weather continues he will have the toboggan slide in shape pretty soon.

Music and Drama

JAMERSON LEE FINNEY IN "THE MAN ON THE BOX"

The date for the appearance of Jameson Lee Finney, under the direction of Walter N. Lawrence, as the star in the amusing comedy, "The Man on the Box," has been arranged, and he will be seen here at the Grand on Wednesday, December 4, which will be his initial visit here in this most-written-about comedy. The scenes of the comedy are located in Washington, D. C. The hero of the play is a young lieutenant in the U. S. Army. The author has made him do a great many humourous things, chief of which is that of taking his place on the box of a carriage, and for the time being acting as a coachman for his best girl. The young woman in the case is a typical representative of one of the most fashionable families. This is the beginning of the romance, but it is the humourous manner in which the author tells the story that has given the comedy such high popularity. An army officer is always an interesting central character, no matter where he may be stationed, but it is the goal of every officer's ambitions to spend as much of his time as possible at Washington, where, if he is young and handsome, he will be shown many favours by the fair sex, who may lay their snares for him. Miss Elsie Leslie, Mr. Finney's leading woman, first came into prominence when quite a young girl, in creating and playing the title role of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," in which she made probably the greatest reputation that was ever achieved by a child actress in the United States. She has played many important roles since reaching womanhood, and was for several years associated with the late Joseph Jefferson.

WEDDING BELLS.

McBRIEN-HARPER

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday in Toronto, of interest to Peterborough. It was the nuptials of Miss Alice Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harper, Sherbrooke street, to Mr. Norton McBrien, an employee here on the construction work of the Bell Telephone Company. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Gudrey at his parsonage in Toronto. After the honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. McBrien will go to Lindsay to reside.

GARBUTT-NICHOLS

A wedding of much more than ordinary interest to an unusually large circle of friends, took place at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Young, of Smith, on Wednesday evening last at 7 o'clock, the bride and groom being two of the best known and popular young people of Smith. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Eva Mae Nichols to Mr. Norman Bruce Garbutt, son of Mr. Robert Garbutt of Lakefield. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Ethel Quinn, of Peterborough. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. W. C. Garbutt, of the Traders Bank, Lakefield. Miss Janet Quinn, of Peterborough, played the wedding march from Mendelssohn. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the Lakefield Presbyterian church, Rev. S. Sutherland Burns. The numerous, costly and beautiful gifts received by the bride, testifying to the high esteem in which the young people are held, included a couple of substantial cheques, one from the groom's father and the other from a cousin of the bride in the west. Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt will reside in Smith and their many friends wish for them a long and happy wedded life.

Hastings County To Be a Veritable Eldorado

Iron, Nickel and Copper Found in Various Places—The "Golden Fleece" and "Diamond" Gold Mines

SOME SHIPMENTS MADE

Examiner Special.

At last there seems to be a fair prospect for the supply of cheap power to the mines in the Hastings mining region, as, owing to the extinction of the lumbering industry about the head waters of the Moira and on some of the Trent tributaries, the lumbermen are now offering to sell their dams and other improvements at a reasonable figure. In consequence a committee composed of gentlemen resident in Belleville, Tweed and other parts of this district have the matter in hand and good progress is being made.

The Nicholls Company, who spent a million dollars or more in establishing a plant near Tweed, have been very successful so far, and are likely to double the capacity of their works, which is now sixteen tons of acid per day. They are mining mundic on a large scale, and are purchasing the product of other mines. This branch of mineral production promises to become one of the most important in this part of the country.

Mr. L. W. Spear, of Toronto, managing director of Spear's Canadian Mining Institute, has received word from Superintendent George R. Rogers, relating to the development of certain mining properties of the syndicate in Hastings County.

Contract Closed

Mr. Spear has just closed a contract for the development of the Rogerton Mine, in Dungannon Township, Hastings County. The property consists of 100 acres, and it is one mile from a railway station. No. 1 vein has a high percentage of nickel and copper, and at a depth of 100 feet it will prove to be a rich copper and nickel lode from 20 to 100 feet wide. No. 2 vein is four feet wide, and it has a rich showing of niccodierite. No. 3 vein is three feet wide, and it contains silver, nickel and gold.

On the east end of the property there is a large lode of mica, 40 feet wide, and, apparently, carrying little iron.

The company who were operating the copper mine at Eldorado have made their last payment and work is likely to be resumed in the near future.

After operating the Golden Fleece gold mine near Flinton for several months, the party of New York capitalists, who held an option on the mine, some time ago completed their purchase. The shaft is now eighty feet in depth.

The Gold Mines

The "Diamond" gold mine, near Queensboro, has been sold to New York and Boston parties under option. Operations on a large scale will shortly be commenced.

A shipment of fifteen carloads was recently made from the talc mine near Madoc.

Arrangements have been made with the Colonial Iron Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., for the operation of the Selkirk iron mine in Apsley.

The Farnum iron mine, near Bancroft, has been making large shipments by rail.

Mr. D. E. K. Stewart, of Madoc, is operating a vein of mundic twenty-five feet wide in that township.

FIRST MEETING OF THE W.C.T.U.

Drafted Work For The Winter—The Departments and Their Superintendents

The W. C. T. U. held its first regular meeting yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, for the use of which they are indebted to the kindness of the board. Owing to a mistake in the announcement of the hour of meeting the attendance was small. The union decided to meet the last Friday in each month at three o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Many of the Christian women of this city are impressed with the need of some form of gospel temperance work, and decided to make this the leading department of the union, which will be under the supervision of Mrs. James Kendry.

Other departments to be taken up are:

Scientific Temperance Instruction, Dr. Jessie Birnie, superintendent.

Press Work and Literature — Miss Bryant.

Proportionate and Systematic Giving —Mrs. A. R. Campbell.

Prison and Reformatory Work and Work in Sunday Schools, for which superintendents are to be appointed.

The topic for the next meeting is, "How the Liquor Traffic Affects Foreign Missions." Mrs. T. Ackerman will have charge of the music.

FAKE HAIR PREPARATIONS

Do Hair no Good, But Often Cause it to Fall out.

Many hair preparations are "fake" because they are merely scalp irritants. They often cause a dryness, making the hair brittle and finally lifeless. Dandruff is the cause of all trouble with hair. It is a germ disease. The germs makes cuticle scales as it digs to the root of the hair, where it destroys the hair's vitality, causing it to fall out. To cure dandruff the germ must be killed. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ, thereby leaving the hair to grow luxuriantly. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes — 50c and $1. The Market Drug Store, Special Agents.

"FAIRYLAND" OPENS FOR THE CHRISTMAS SEASON

Peterboro' Book Store Dons It's Holiday Garb — Additional Premises Leased For a Rush Sale of a Carload Of Christmas Goods Bought at 50c On The Dollar

The Peterborough Bookstore is gradually assuming the appearance of a grand and dazzling "Fairyland." A few days more and the flood gates will be fully open for the incoming rush of Christmas goods. Every department is destined to be so overcrowded that there will not be room for all. To meet the emergency, Mr. Stratton has secured an additional store at No. 432 George street, being the premises used by the Automatic Vaudeville Amusement. These premises will be opened up next Saturday with a $3,000 stock of bewitching Christmas goods purchased at fifty cents on the dollar. Owing to the failure of a firm, these goods were stopped in transit and purchased by Mr. Stratton at one-half their real value. With unmatched stocks, unequalled pricing, and extensive varieties of Christmas gifts, this store, with the Peterborough Bookstore, will combine to make a veritable "Fairyland." Watch eagerly for further announcements.

CONGRATULATIONS CAME TOO FAST

And a Lakefield Man Got Tired Answering Telephone

An amusing incident is related of a young man who resides a short distance from Lakefield, and who, on Wednesday, became a happy father for the fifth time. The young man's friends kept the telephone busy during the day asking what the stork had brought to his home. Becoming a little weary of the repeated inquiries, he requested a young lady to tell a certain party, if she made any further inquiries, that the new arrival was twins. Needless to say the report spread quickly and the happy father was the recipient of many congratulations on the additions to his family.

APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE FOR CLOTHING

If Left With Representative of Salvation Army Will be Distributed

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—A severe winter and hundreds of people out of work, is the prospects held out to us here in Peterborough, by those who profess to know. And if this is so, something ought to be done—at once,—to meet it. Last year by the generosity of the public we were enabled to provide so much warm clothing for many poor families, that I would like to appeal to your readers to help us in this matter again. If they have any cast-off clothing, or bed clothes or pieces of carpet, a post card sent to our address will bring a messenger for them.

Thanking you in anticipation.

MAN ATTEMPTS TO BLOW HIS BRAINS OUT

Was Remanded for a Week—Wife Breaks Down in Witness Box

"It is hard to testify against your husband," were the words of a mother who appeared against her husband on a charge of attempted suicide. The woman sat on the bench with a beautiful child in her arms and another little girl by her side. Her husband, his face bloated, and clothes in a dilapidated condition, sat in the dock and faced his Worship for trying to blow his brains out with a revolver.

The evidence of the wife was all that was taken, and as she stepped into the witness-box her mouth quivered, and she broke down, saying between her sobs, "It is hard to testify against your husband." Then she went on and told how he had brought home the revolver and was about to shoot himself. She became afraid that he would do something, and sent for the police to prevent her husband from shooting. His Worship enlarged the case for a week.

SON WILL PREACH FOR FATHER

Rev. A. J. Brace to be at Park Street Church To-morrow

(Trooper) Rev. A. J. Brace, son of the pastor of the Park street church, Park street, will preach for his father to-morrow. He was a delegate to the International Y. M. C. A. convention at Washington, and is paying a flying visit to Peterborough returning to Victoria, B. C.

MR. DAN McMILLAN IN THE CITY

Will be Here For About Ten Days in the Interests of G.T.R.

Mr. Dan. McMillan of the G.T.R arrived in the city this morning from Lindsay and will remain about ten days. He came down on the special instruction car and will give a series of instructions to the G. T. R. trainmen who make Peterborough their headquarters.

The company required all its men in the train service to pass written examinations, bearing upon all the necessary knowledge which every competent employee should possess.

This is done with a view to eliminating accidents as much as possible. They believe that the more thoroughly the men are acquainted with their duties and with the details of their work, the better service they can give the company.

Mr. McMillan will conduct the instructions, and also the examinations.

This morning Mr. W. G. Brownlee, general transportation manager of the G.T.R., and Mr. M. S. Blaiklock, chief civil engineer of the road; Mr. J. Irwin, trainmaster, and Mr. Brownlee's private secretary paid an official visit to the city to-day. They came in the special car Algonquin and inspected the yards, accompanied by Mr. Sandy, the local station agent. The visit was merely one of inspection, and nothing official was given out. They left with the regular Belleville train.

REASONABLE PRICES FOR TURKEYS

Good Market This Morning—No Eggs For Sale

As the Saturday market comes around every week to those who never miss a week the study of the changes is an interesting one. To-day fine weather, good roads, and large crowds made a successful market. The feature to-day was the scarcity of eggs. Practically there were none. Those that were offered were quickly bought at a fairly good price, 30 cents per doz. The hens have apparently quit laying and the farmers are holding back their packed eggs until the price soars as it is fully expected it will. The majority of the citizens, however, cannot afford to treat themselves to eggs when the farmers want more than 30 per.

However, there is some consolation in the fact that there is an abundance of meat both beef and pork with a small offering of lamb. The prices are rather good too.

Apples, potatoes and poultry are quoted at favourable prices and many buyers were out for there different articles. The prices were as follows:—

Dressed Hogs	6 50
Live Hogs	5 25
Hay, bale		to	20 00
Hay, per ton	18 00	to	20 00
Straw	6 00	to	7 00
Potatoes, per bag	80	to	85
Apples, per bag	50	to	1 00
Pork, per lb	9	to	10
Lamb	12	to	13
Chickens, per pair	45	to	65
Geese, each	90	to	1 00
Ducks, per pair	80	to	1 00
Turkey, each	1 00	to	1 50
Beef	4½	to	5

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

CHANDOS OFFICIAL SEES DEER

Amuses Himself by Throwing Stones at Them—Had Poor Hunting Season

Apsley, Nov. 30.—The villagers are enjoying a splendid joke at the expense of one of the Chandos township officials. The official has been back shooting this autumn, and returned without his limit. He filled the ears of the villagers with all kinds of hard luck stories, saying that very few deer were taken from the woods this year, and all that kind of talk.

The gentleman was walking on the road two miles out of the village, when he came across three deer and, as a farmer who saw him says, he was throwing stones at the fleet-footed kings of the forest just for amusement. The farmer also says that the official was praying at the same time of or a gun so that he might have a little venison to bring home.

SALTED A DIAMOND MINE.

Pittsburg's Society Broker an Ex-Convict.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 30.—Reginald Spaulding, or Oscar F. Spate, or George Frederick Spate, the man who proposed to introduce Pittsburg rich people at the court of St. James, is still in jail. There were developments yesterday which caused the police to hold him. Pittsburgers who wined and dined Spaulding a few days ago will be horrified when they learn that he was at once time a convict in South Africa. But they can take some consolation out of another report, that he is really the son-in-law of Lady Sunfield, the woman whom he asserted would bring about the introductions.

A communication reached the Pittsburg police yesterday from a source which they will not divulge, to the effect that Spaulding, under the name of George Frederick Spate, in 1903 was married to Harriet, daughter of Lord and Lady Sunfield, who left her home in London because of a difference with her parents, and went to South Africa during the Boer war as a Red Cross nurse. In consequence her parents disowned her, and her name was removed from the records of the British nobility.

Spate is alleged to have then interested his wife in a diamond mine, which he had "salted," and finally sold the mine to her and some others for a large sum. Before the discovery was made that the mine was "salted" Spate is alleged to have taken his wife into the interior of Africa, where he deserted her in the land of the Zulu chief, Mosilikapze.

If the report of Spaulding's marriage is true, his wife would be a sister of Hon. Charles Harbord, who was A. D. C. to the Marquis of Lorne in Canada, and of Hon. Mrs. Derek Keppel, who was extra lady-in-waiting to the Princess of Wales during her tour of the colonies.

FIVE PASSENGERS KILLED.

Trolley Car Loaded With Factory Employes Struck by Train.

Waterbury, Conn., Nov. 30.—A shocking accident in which five factory employes were killed occurred yesterday at the West Main street crossing over the Highland division tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & N. E. Railroad, when an extra Hartford-bound freight train crashed into a trolley car containing 25 passengers bound for the pin factories in Oakville. The car was struck with great force at right angles, directly in the middle, and the dead persons were all badly mangled. Six others were badly injured, and had to be carried to their homes.

The dead are: Sarah Ryan, 26 years old; Annie Corcorry, 24 years old; Robert French, 20 years old; Jane Kelly, 42 years old, and Walter Hayes, aged 23.

It is not yet known whether any of the persons injured will die.

A hurried investigation by the coroner resulted in the arrest of Flagman John Flavin and Conductor John Dillon of the trolley car. The motorman, Charles Leonard, was not held.

MINISTER'S HEROISM.

Gives His Life's Blood In Dangerous Operation.

New York, Nov. 30.—Announcement of a fine fortitude on the part of Rev. Dr. John Lewis Clark of Brooklyn, who married William Ellis Corey and Mabel Gilman last summer, was made yesterday.

To save the life of one of his parishioners, Mrs. Julia Ladson, he permitted one of the small arteries to be opened last Wednesday so that his blood could replace hers, while her right leg was amputated in the Bushwick Hospital, in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Ladson was suffering from blood poisoning, and Dr. Clark was warned that if the smallest drop of her blood passed into his system it might prove fatal to him, but he took the risk.

The operation was successful, and yesterday Dr. Clark was informed that Mrs. Ladson would live.

Jake Sunfield's Case.

Hamilton, Nov. 30.—Jake Sunfield's lawyer is reported as having little hope of obtaining a new trial. That means that the sentence of hanging will be carried out on Dec. 20, unless executive clemency is obtained.

CZAR TO REMAIN AUTOCRAT.

Sole Guarantee of Russia's Security Says Premier Stolypin.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 30.—The declaration of the Government read by Premier Stolypin before the Douma yesterday was received with dismay by the Octobrists and the Constitutional Democrats, and with open exaltation by the members of the right party.

The keynote of the address was reiteration of the idea of the autocratic power of the Emperor as the sole guarantee of security and welfare in an era of disorder. The announcement was made also that the Douma is expected to take its cue from the Administration in the matter of legislation, and the Premier outlined what future legislation was expected.

He excoriated the Radical parties as fosterers of crime and sedition, and he said their excesses would no longer be tolerated in Russia. This statement is taken to show that the Administration looks with disfavor upon any alliance between the Octobrists and the Constitutional Democrats.

The Premier was constantly interrupted by applause from members of the Right party, but at the conclusion of his address there was scarcely a handclap from the Octobrists ranks.

HERR BEBEL'S TIRADE.

Declares German Ships Are For Purpose of Attacking England.

Berlin, Nov. 30.—In the Reichstag yesterday, Herr Bebel, Socialist, said that official inquiry made among the teachers in the public schools of Berlin showed that the number of children who never got dinner had risen to 4,841, while a large number of children have only bread and coffee for dinner.

Referring to the proposed changes in naval legislation the Socialist leader offered to wager that the Government would come forward with a new navy construction bill within three years, and he asked against what country this bill would be directed. The fleet society was agitating against Great Britain, he said, and agitation for war against this country could be observed on all sides. The naval cadets had even put this idea into verse and occasionally would give expression in song.

Governor-General's Birthday.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—About 100 guests attended the state dinner at Government House Thursday night. After the toasts to the King had been honored Sir Wilfrid Laurier drew attention to the fact that the day was His Excellency's Birthday. He therefore proposed the health of Earl Grey, which was drunk with enthusiasm.

WAS BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Earl and Countess Grey Hold Reception In Senate Chamber.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—The vice-regal drawing-room last night was a brilliant and largely-attended affair. It was held a day earlier than usual on account of the large number of visitors in the capital, many of whom leave for home for the week-end. The entire central block was given up to the function. The privy councillors, consuls-general and headquarters officers were in full uniform. Earl and Countess Grey, with Lady Sybil Grey and Lady Evelyn Grey, received from the throne in the Senate chamber. Mr. and Mrs. Choate of Washington attended.

Denounced Employment Bureaus.

Newcastle, Nov. 30.—In scathing terms Magistrate Maltby yesterday denounced all employment bureaus. He was trying the case of Bulgarian laborers, who had been brought here from Toronto and set to work. The Bulgarians could not talk English, so no written agreement was made with them beforehand. They were starving when, after many complaints, the authorities interfered. Employers of the men paid their wages to the agency, which, it is alleged, held it back from the laborers. J. Henry Stanford of the Interior Department came here and held an investigation.

Franco-Canadian Treaty.

London, Nov. 30.—(C. A. P.)—The Foreign Office has issued the Franco-Canadian treaty tariff and the Reform papers publish it fully and comment lengthily, paying a tribute to its statesmanlike features, but pointing out its significance to the Mother Country.

The Morning Post remarks on the significance of the fact that a British dominion obtains from a foreign nation a preference the Mother Country is refused. The Standard emphasizes the danger of extension of such treaties leading to British commercial isolation.

The German Entente.

Berlin, Nov. 30.—In connection with Emperor William's visit to England, Prince Von Buelow amid loud applause, expressed the greatest satisfaction in the Reichstag yesterday. He believed, he said, the future would show that the strained relations between Germany and Great Britain were founded on misunderstandings. Speaking in the name of the Reichstag, he declared that the friendliness displayed by the English people was reciprocated in Germany.

Another Japanese Complaint.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—Japanese Consul-General Nosse complained to the Immigration Department yesterday that a number of Japanese holding passports would not be allowed to land in Victoria.

As the privilege of allowing diseased immigrants to land at Victoria for treatment was abused, the Government have stopped it.

Business Section Destroyed.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 30.—A telephone message from Cody, Wyoming, says that practically the entire business portion of the town was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The loss is roughly estimated at $100,000.

Japs Object to the Expense.

Victoria, Nov. 30.—Advices received from Japan state that several Japanese newspapers are calling for a reduction of Japanese armament on the ground that it is too expensive.

Bank Manager Dead.

Montreal, Nov. 30.—F. H. Matthewson, manager of the Bank of Commerce here, who was injured in a runaway mishap, died yesterday morning from heart trouble.

Colorado Town Threatened.

Leadville, Colo., Nov. 30.—Fire started by the overturning of a lamp Thursday night in a barber shop may cause the destruction of Granite, a town of about 250 inhabitants, 20 miles east of this city. Four buildings are already in ruins, and the efforts of the volunteer firemen are being given to saving of nearby buildings. Communication with Granite has been shut off.

Dragging For the Bodies.

St. Catharines, Nov. 30.—Three tugs and thirty-five or forty men left Port Dalhousie at daybreak to try and find the bodies of the two Dunlops and Christmas, victims of Saturday night's marine disaster. There was a diver with them. It is related that Capt. Hovey of the tug Ben Harrison the night before the collision dreamed of the collision almost as it did happen.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

German Diplomat Accused of Stealing Legation Funds.

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 30.—Felix Daehne, chancellor of the German Legation, who acted several times as charge d'affaires during the Minister's absence, was arrested Thursday night by a detective at the office of the Legation, following a request from the German Minister to the State Department. Daehne is closely watched at police headquarters, for yesterday morning he attempted to commit suicide, which was prevented by the timely interference of a detective.

The charge against Daehne is the alleged embezzlement of more than $1,600 of the funds of the Legation. He will be sent to Germany for trial, the alleged crime having been committed within the German Legation.

Boy's Feet Frozen.

Flesherton, Nov. 30.—Last Sunday morning, a little home boy, 10 years old, living with a farmer near here, strayed or ran away. No trace of him was found until Thursday evening, when two searchers found him lying in a fence corner and within sight of his own house. Both feet were frozen, and it feared they will have to be amputated so bad is his condition.

The boy has disappeared a couple of time previously, but always in warm weather.

Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity.

Yours very truly,
J. R. STRATTON.

Any person contemplating taking out Life Insurance will find it to his advantage to secure our rates before placing the risk.

The Piano Loved by Musicians

There are pianos, living on their past reputation. There are others that do not enjoy the same reputation in Canada that they are supposed to hold in other lands.

The New Scale Williams is no such piano. It is loved for itself.

The ratifying tone, in all its glorious sweetness, sympathy and volume—the sensitive, sympathetic touch—the power and responsiveness of this magnificent instrument—make it the delight of the artist, the proudest possession of the home.

The builders of the New Scale Williams make price the last consideration. It is solely a question of superiority at every stage of the work.

The New Scale Williams Piano

is unmistakably and architecturally perfect. Not a question from wood and metal is the work of master hands, direct from the dawn of the art of piano building.

It is, beyond question, Canada's finest piano, and one of the world's masterpieces. It is the virtuoso's preference—the singer's greatest assistant—the choice of the teacher—the joy of the amateur.

Fill in the coupon below—take to your local dealer or send to us—and receive, absolutely free, several booklets issued by us—all beautifully illustrated and wonderfully interesting to anyone contemplating the purchase of a piano.

MAY PLAY LINDSAY ROLLER TEAM

May Close Skating Season by a Game in Lindsay

While to-day is the closing day at the roller rink, the season will not be considered finished until the senior roller team goes to Lindsay. The proposal is to send a team to Lindsay probably on Wednesday night. The Lindsay rink has developed some good skaters and they are anxious to have the local team play them. The Peterborough boys have had more practice than the northerners and believe that they can defeat them. The team has not been chosen yet, but a test seven can easily be obtained.

WAS A TOTAL WRECK FROM HEART FAILURE.

Heart, disease is characterized by its stealthy approach and its variety of forms, yet in all its forms nature gives unmistakable signals which warn us of its presence.

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again there may be the most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. You may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief, such speedy restoration to health that no one need suffer.

Mr. Darius Carr, Geary, N.B., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you a few lines to let you know the great blessing your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been to me. I was a total wreck from heart failure, my wife advised me to take your pills, and, after using two boxes I was restored to perfect health. I am now sixty-two years old and feel almost as well as I did at twenty."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The friends and admirers of Dave Hartley, who has brought such renown to Peterborough by his recent wonderful feats, are indignant over the "fake" telegram scheme as revealed by the Toronto Star last night. Hartley's friends do not believe that he deserves such a treatment.

• • • •

Among the prize winners at the ski'doo carnival in the Lindsay roller rink on Tuesday evening were a number of Peterborough skaters. Mr. Parrington of Peterborough with Miss Sheridan of Lindsay won the contest for ladies and gentlemen in couples, and Master G. Parrington captured one end of the boys in couples. About 200 pairs of skates were taken up from the local rink.

• • • •

A. W. Hedleton of the I.C.A.C, will have his work cut out for him in Peterborough Tuesday where he will meet Ray Best, McBurney, and Chas. Thorpe in the half-mile handicap and mile open. Percy Sellen and Hilton Green have been put on scratch in the three-mile handicap. Tim O'Rourke will give an exhibition of shot-putting.—Toronto Star.

• • • •

Willard Irwin of Toronto, through the columns of the Star last night is anxious to meet Hartley in a 12-hour walk. The latter states that he is quite willing to negotiate with the Toronto man at any time, the date and place to be arranged when the match is decided upon.

CITIZEN WRITES OF PARK SCHEME

Why Not Use The Money Set Apart From Nicholls' Estate to Purchase Park, He Asks

QUOTES FROM THE WILL

To the Editor of the Examiner.—

Sir, — I notice in your last night's issue that the city council is endeavouring to purchase a portion of the King Edward school grounds for a park. This question then naturally presents itself: Why does not the council request the executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls to purchase this property? Evidently all the money donated by her for park purposes has not been expended.

In her will, Mrs. Nicholls says:

"I direct my trustees to set aside the sum of sixty thousand dollars, for the purpose of purchasing and improving public parks, and recreation grounds, in the said town of Peterborough, and I authorise and direct them out of the said fund from time to time, and at such times, as they deem expedient to do so, to purchase in different portions of the said town of Peterborough, suitable land for such parks, and recreation grounds, and to lay out, plant and render fit for the purpose intended, and to hold them in trust for the inhabitants of the said town for ever, and to give them such names as shall perpetuate the memory of my late husband and myself, in the said town, and to invest the surplus of the said fund, not immediately required for the purchase of said parks and recreation grounds, and the laying out and beautifying the same, and apply the income derived from such investments in the meantime in the improvement and maintenance of the parks and recreation ground already purchased, or towards the purchase of further land for a similar purpose."

There must still remain a considerable portion of the sixty thousand dollars in the hands of the trustees, and, no doubt, they will be only too pleased to purchase the desired portion of the King Edward school grounds provided the city council will request them to do so.

Now, the only portion of the city, in which there is no park is the south, and it seems only right and proper, that this portion of the city should receive the benefits accruing from the benevolence of the late Mrs. Nicholls, as well as the other parts, especially as that is evidently the intention of the testatrix.

A CITIZEN.

Lakefield, Nov. 30.—A very enthusiastic meeting of the supporters of hockey was held in the firehall on Wednesday evening last. After the business laid over from last year had been cleared up, the following officers were elected for the ensuing season:

Honourary President — F. A. Kilbourne.

Secretary-Treasurer — W. W. Leonard.
Manager—W. L. Hurl.

Pe-ru-na Promptly Relieves Severe Cold and La Grippe.

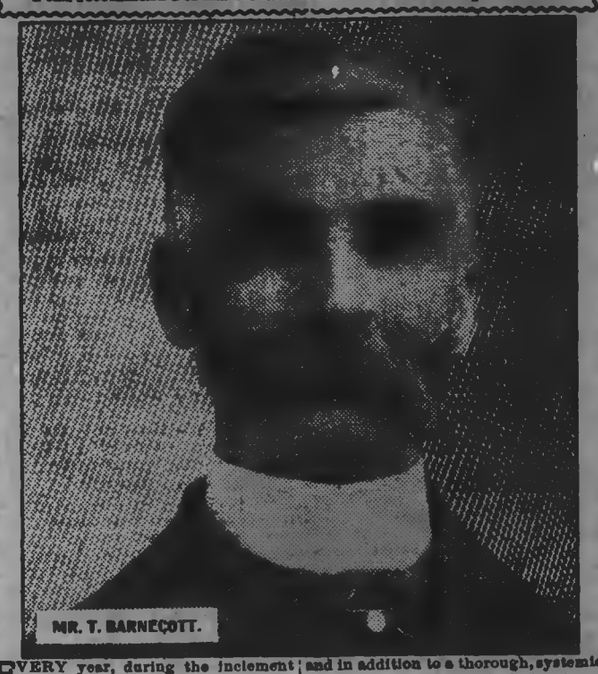
Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time and at little expense. Every time I take a cold, I take some Peruna, which makes me well again.

"I also advised it for my daughter who was so ill with prostration that she could not follow her trade of dressmaking. A bottle of Peruna made such a change in her that she has been able to follow her business ever since.

"I also induced a young lady, who was all rundown and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring.

"I can recommend Peruna for all such who are ill and require a tonic."



MR. T. BARNECOTT.

EVERY year, during the inclement weather of winter, there is an epidemic of catarrh. The disease is really catarrhal in nature, but from the form it assumes, has been commonly termed the 'grip.'

Splendid Remedy For La Grippe.

Mr. Frank H. Fielder, 213 Pleasant Ave., Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe and a good tonic for building up the system."

La grippe is very tenacious when it once gets a firm hold upon the system, and in addition to a thorough, systemic catarrh remedy, a great deal of patience and persistence in the treatment are required to eradicate the disease.

Peruna, an internal catarrh remedy, is one of the best medicines ever devised to meet the exigencies of these cases. The large number of commendatory letters received by Dr. Hartman, the inventor of Peruna, in behalf of his remedy is proof sufficient of its value as a reliable medicine for the 'grip.'

Prompt Relief.

Mr. Frank Bauer, Minnetaka, Minn., writes: "I suffered with la grippe. I took Peruna and in four days I was able to go out."

WANTS A POSITION ON POLICE FORCE

Ex-Convict After Spending Three Months in Jail Wants Job as Policeman

A young man, who has recently completed a three months' term in Castle Nesbitt, confined there on a charge of theft, came to the police station this afternoon to see about a job.

"Is the chief in?" asked the young ex-convict.

"No, he is not; he is home to-day," said an officer.

"Well, perhaps you will do. I want to see if I can't get a position on the force here. I think you are a nice bunch of fellows and I would like to be a policeman again. I was a policeman in Toronto for some time, but I did not like it up there, but at the same time I have the experience necessary."

"Well, you won't do there," said the officer; "we don't use the jail as a recruiting ground for our force."

The man made all kinds of promises to be good if he could get the job and will likely take his application to the head of the police department.

THREE EXTENSIONS OF ST. PAUL ROAD

Three new divisions on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway will be opened for train service early in December.

Two of these divisions were constructed recently, and the other, a short line in Minnesota, was purchased. The combined additions comprise 424 miles, giving the St. Paul system a total mileage of 7,639.

The longest of these branches runs 260 miles through the White River valley, from Chamberlain, S. D., to Rapid City, S.D. This will be known as the Black Hills division, and close connection will be made at Chamberlain with through service to Dubuque and Chicago. Train service will be established over it on Dec. 1.

On the same date the company will begin operating the Duluth, St. Cloud, Glencoe, and Mankato railway, recently purchased, known as the "Alphabet road." This line, which runs forty miles from Albert Lea to St. Clair, Minn., will be known as the St. Clair branch of the southern Minnesota division.

The most important opening, however, will be the first section of the first section of the Pacific Coast extension. Train service will be established on Dec. 2, from Belridge, S.D., the point where the St. Paul crosses the Missouri river, to Bowman, N.D., a distance of 165 miles. This division will have twenty-five out of the eighty-five stations to be located on the extension east of Butte, Mont.

It is announced that 200 miles of rails have been laid and much of the grading already completed as far as the Montana line. The town of Bowman, the terminus of the line this winter, was formally opened on Nov. 21, and, despite the prevailing hard times, the lot sales are declared to have compared favourably with those of towns opened earlier in the year. —Chicago Tribune.

BOYS BRING CUTTER TO POLICE STATION

Horse Sprinted Away While Farmer Makes Deposit in Local Bank

Farmers coming into the city had better place halters on their horses when they leave them standing on the road side, or else tie them to a post. An incident happened this morning which serves to show that the boys of this city will take advantage of every opportunity to have a sleigh drive.

A farmer named Thompson went into the Dominion Bank this morning and left his horse standing by the roadside. The horse began to move away from the sidewalk, and as soon as it got into motionabout ten boys leapt into the vehicle and endeavoured to guide the horse through the streets. The boys were standing on the sides, five of them squeezed into the seat, and one lad wanted to ride the horse. The horse pulled the boys around several of the streets and finally stopped at the water tank outside the police station for a drink. The owner had been out looking for the outfit and saw the boys outside the station. They told Mr. Thompson they found the horse in the middle of the street and had brought it over to the police station.

SPENCE-STRACHAN SCOTCH CONCERT

In all ages the Scotch race has shown that it can answer for itself, and no one can claim any right of reproof for the failure of the Scottish element of the city to patronise the excellent essentially Scottish concert programme presented at the Conservatory of Music Hall last night. There was a very sparse attendance, a fact the more remarkable, since there was no function in honour of the day to withdraw attention from the concert. Last night's programme consisted almost entirely of song and story and in these matters Mr. Gavin Spence and Miss Nannie Strachan have few superiors. Miss Strachan has a voice of great power and considerable sweetness and her rendition of the songs of Auld Scotia roused great enthusiasm. "Oller Herring," especially Scottish, "Bluebells" and "Comin' Thro the Rye" were some of her numbers that called forth enthusiastic applause from the audience. Mr. Spence has few peers as an entertainer. Both in song and story he excells and in "W' a Hundred Pipers" and "A. Jessie's Dream," and "Killiecrankie" he won golden opinions from his audience. Two of the best numbers on the programme were two duets by Miss Strachan and Mr. Spence, "The Crooked Bawbee" and "When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie." They were given in splendid style and with sympathetic spirit. Miss Newcombe, who acted as accompanist, in addition to giving two 'cello solos, both of which were encored, was a great favourite with the audience. Her finished and expressive playing of difficult numbers made it plain that she has artistic temperament as well as splendid technical ability. The regret was that she did not appear more often.

Miss Pollock, of the Conservatory of Music staff, assisted as accompanist in a most acceptable manner.

The concert closed with "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

If the Spence-Strachan-Newcombe combination appears in Peterborough again it should be greeted by a bumper house, such as last night's concert deserved, but did not get.

HORSE BADLY CUT IN A RUNAWAY

Boy Thrown From a Cutter But Was Only Slightly Hurt

An affair that might easily have resulted in a serious accident occurred at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets at 3 o'clock this afternoon. A cutter was crossing Charlotte street when the horse slipped and fell with the sleigh on the track, as the Jackson Park and C. G. E. cars were approaching. The conductor of the park car quickly brought his car to a standstill and undoubtedly prevented a more or less serious accident. He had to wall in hastily and made a nice stop. A crowd quickly gathered but no harm was done.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

FUNERAL OF ESTEEMED CITIZEN

James Dolan Laid to Rest—A Large Funeral and Many Floral Tributes

The funeral of the late James Dolan took place this morning at nine o'clock from his late residence on George street. The funeral was largely attended, and a great many floral tributes of varied designs, showed the esteem in which the late gentleman was held. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. LeBrun, B. Morrow, John Maloney, Martin Connors, Harry Rush, sr., and Mr. McNamara.

Requiem mass was sung at St. Peter's cathedral by Rev. Father Kelly, and Rev. Father Galvin conducted the services at the grave.

ACCIDENT PREVENTED BY CONDUCTOR

In a runaway last night on Rink street about five o'clock a young lad named Main was thrown from the cutter and the horse was badly cut about the legs.

The boy was a little bruised but is able to attend to his work to-day. He says as the horse was passing Aylmer street it took fright at a young lad who passed in front of it in a sleigh drawn by a dog. The horse bolted and the sleigh struck the curb and upset, throwing him out on the road.

EMBROIDERED BOOK COVERS.

They Are Useful Presents—How They Are Made.

Small address books, bridge score books, magazine covers, etc., make charming gifts at Christmas time or card prizes, and in the illustrations are shown two designs which may be utilized by the home worker with good results.

Both the designs shown in the cuts were worked on brownish linen, which affords an excellent background for silks and cottons of rich colorings. Gold thread is also often used in combination with the embroidery silks, and on some of the more elaborate sparkling beads or spangles are sometimes worked into the design.

A very fine cord is also most effective for outlining the design, especially when the book to be covered is rather a large one.

The prospective owner's monogram or initials used in the upper left corner or in the center, as shown in the first sketch, often add much to the effect, the letters being embroidered in one and over stitch after being padded. It is often more effective to throw the lettering into more prominence by using a contrasting shade in a darker tone than was used for the decorative embroidery, black, dark brown and dark green and red all being excellent used in this way when the cover is of brown or dark ecru linen, the flower form being done in old rose, dull reds or yellowish tones, with the leaves in soft grayish greens. When there is a background worked as shown in the second design a darning stitch may be used or a seeding stitch—that is, two stitches taken in the same place.

Many boys and girls leave school sooner than they should, because they are under the impression they cannot learn, this places them at a disadvantage, all through life. Now we know that every intelligent boy or girl can learn if taught in the proper way. Class instruction may answer for the bright pupil, but fails dismally with the dull student. Individual instruction when the Teacher personally explains to, and reasons with the pupils, is the only safe way. This is why our pupils get along so well. MEMBER FOR WEST PETERBOROUGH MAKES ELOQUENT SPEECH IN MOVING ADDRESS IN REPLY TO SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

Reviews Canada's Trade Advances During the Past Twenty-nine Years—A Remarkable Era.

TRIBUTE TO THE PREMIER

A Compliment to the Constituency of West Peterborough—Wonderful Progress of Transportation Facilities.

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—Parliament went into session this afternoon at 3 o'clock when after the receiving of petitions and the introduction of Bills, the principal event of the day occurred—the moving of the adoption of the address in reply to the speech from the throne by Mr. R. R Hall, the energetic member for West Peterborough constituency. Mr. Hall's address was a fluent and very forcible one which commanded the undivided attention of every member of the House of Commons. The features of it were the setting forth of the high position Canadians hold in the commercial world and the rapid strides made by the Dominion of Canada in her growth and development and in the advancement of her trade and commerce.

Mr. Hall on rising before the House was greeted with loud applause. He thanked Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the honour conferred on him in granting him the privilege to move the adoption of the speech from the Throne. He did not take it as a personal honour but rather as a compliment to the constituency of West Peterborough which he had the honour of representing in the parliament of Canada. Although Peterborough as a city only ranked 26th in size in the Dominion, in the matter of trade it held the proud position of 6th and the additional fact that the butter and cheese produced by the County of Peterborough and sent to the British market, are among the finest in the world, constituted another reason why the honour mentioned was conferred upon the humble representative of Peterborough.

A Vast Increase

In discussing the rapid increase of the trade of the Dominion of Canada, Mr. Hall reviewed the progress made since the year 1878—the year that Sir John MacDonald took charge of the destinies of the country — tracing the advance made between 1896 and 1907, during the years that Sir Wilfrid Laurier controlled the destiny of our great Dominion. In 1878 the total trade was $172,405,454; in 1896 it was $260,085,360, and in 1907, the present year it is $617,-000,952. By easy calculations we are able to see that during the first 18 years the increase was $86,619,906 and that during the last 11 years under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier the increase had been $876,939,592.

The expansion of Canada's trade Great Britain and Ireland in the last 11 years is also enormous. Between the years 1878 and 1896 it increased from $89,000,000 to $99,000,000 but during the last 11 years it increased to $216,000,000. The Canadian trade with the U.S. showed the same results. In 1878 it was $73,000,000; in 1896 it was $103,000,000 and in the present year it is over $319,000,000. Also the latest trade returns show that during the four months ending Oct. 31st, 1907, Canada's trade amounted to $215,130,190 and that during the corresponding four months of this year it was $246,592,497 an increase of over $31,000,000.

No Retiring Ebb

The immense increase in the trade of Canada gives proud satisfaction over the impulsive flow of Canadian prosperity which feels no retiring ebb. The reason for this advance is plain. Canada's rich and fertile lands are attracting immigration, her illimitable resources are attracting capital and her Government is a stable one. Some of the direct causes for wonderful expansion are the result of wise and prudent administrations; the development of our resources; the peopling of the North West; the increasing of our transportation facilities; the improvement of our canals and harbours; the deepening of our waterways; the improvement of our St. Lawrence ship channel; the improvement in the transportation of our perishable goods; the improving of our terminal facilities; the improving of our ocean steamship service; the general transportation manager of establishment of the trade commissioners service outside of Canada on a business-like basis. Fielding, and Mr. Hall, are some of the reasons for our trade expansion.

This great growth had been accom-

YOUNG HOUND LOST IN THE WOODS DAYS AGO FOLLOWS SCENT TO THE CITY

The lanky form of a young hound, which, presumably, had travelled all the way from the hunting grounds of the north, to the city, was seen yesterday evening wending its way slowly and painfully down a city street. The dog had been lost in the woods, when the hunters were north, and had only made its way home yesterday. The poor animal travelled along with its nose to the ground, apparently following a scent which it had taken up forty or fifty miles away. Its anatomy looked as if it had not eaten anything for weeks. Its ribs were protruding outwards in a horrible fashion, as it came slowly and irregularly down the street. Whether it arrived home safely or not, or whether it is going yet, is not known.

Everything Is Ready For The Big Athletic Meet

Secretary of the C. A. A. U. Will Attend — Local Citizens Have Donated the Prizes for the Occasion.

THE BAND TO BE THERE

All the arrangements have been completed for the big athletic meet in the Brock street rink to-morrow night, and indications point to the greatest evening's sport ever seen in Peterborough. With every event filled up with entries, and three or four heats in each of the sprints, there will always be something doing, and the presence of so many renowned outside athletes should attract a monster crowd. In addition to those taking part, Tim O'Rourke, the Irish-Canadian's great shot-putter, will give an exhibition, and the great Tom Longboat will be on hand to start the three-mile special race, and to give the crowd a chance to see the celebrated Indian.

The following local gentlemen have very kindly donated the good medals for the first prizes in the events, and the Harriers are very grateful to them for their generous action, which is appreciated by the club and its supporters: Messrs. V. Eastwood, Lang and Maher, M. R. H. Konner, Hon. J. R. Stratton, R. M. Roy and T. E. Bradburn. Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton will present the prizes to the winners immediately before the start of the three-mile special race, which will be the last event on the programme.

Mr. N. H. Crowe, the secretary of the C.A.A.U., will be one of the many outside visitors who will be present. All the towns in the neighbourhood will send big delegations, over 90 coming from Havelock alone.

The 57th Band will be present and will render a choice programme during the evening, and this feature will no doubt be appreciated.

Programmes are being printed, giving the list of events, the names of the contestants, and their numbers and handicaps, and in this way the audience will be enabled to follow the events without difficulty. They will be distributed free of charge. The rush seats for the west side of the rink are on sale now at Sanderson's and may be obtained at any time.

HAS GONE HOME FOR WINTER

Tom Colledge, Centre Half of the Peterboroughs, Leaves for Iowa

Tom Colledge, the clever centre half of the Peterborough Rugby club left this afternoon for his home in Le Mars, Iowa, where he will spend the winter. He has been a most valuable man to the locals this season, and to his great punting and drop kicking much of the success of the team in the O.R.F.U. has been due. He has been most popular with his fellow players and with the enthusiasts generally, and the announcement that he has left the city will be received with regret. In social circles he will also be greatly missed as during the months in which he has resided in Peterborough he has made a large number of friends.

Ill Temper From a bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

DECEMBER MEETING OF THE COUNCIL

Many Matters to be Taken Up This Evening by City Fathers

At the December meeting of the City Council to be held to-night, a large number of small matters are to come up for consideration and there is every probability of their being a long and busy session. There will be a meeting of the committee of the whole for an hour first and the council will meet at 9 o'clock. Among the matters that are to come up is the proposed grant to David Hartley, the garbage bylaw, the question of the lease of boat houses along the Otonabee, the trouble over the drain through Mr. Rogers property and a number of other things that have to be cleared off the slate.

MR. A. J. M'CLELLAN'S DOG IS STOLEN

Bull Terrier Stolen on Friday Evening—Was Worth $50.00

Mr. A. J. McClellan, president of the Ontario Coal Company, is mourning the loss of his dog to-day. He took the dog home to his residence, 48 Gilmour street, Friday evening, and on Saturday the dog was missing. Mr. McClellan thought the dog would come home either on Saturday or Sunday, but it is still missing. He is under the impression now that the dog was stolen, as it never wandered away from home before. The dog was a bull terrier and was almost completely white, except two black spots above the eye. The dog was bought a few months ago from a friend of Mr. McClellan's, and it is valued at $50.00.

OLD-AGE ANNUITIES

The Government bill to authorize the issue and sale by the Government of old age annuities is in practically the same terms as that which Sir Richard Cartwright introduced in the Senate last year. Its purpose is to encourage thrift and saving among the working classes of the country, and to assure the beneficiaries of an annual income after they have reached the age of sixty or sixty-five years, sufficient to keep them from want. For an annual contribution of thirteen dollars, beginning at the age of twenty, the beneficiary will become entitled, after he has reached the age of sixty, to an annuity of $120 per year thereafter as long as he lives. If the annuitant prefers to wait for his annuity until he has reached the age of sixty-five, he will then be entitled to $200 yearly.

The contributors' savings will be paid into the local postoffices wherever they may reside. These savings will then be given compound interest half yearly from then.

The Government annuity shall not be made in favour of any person other than the actual annuitant, nor for any larger amount than four hundred dollars a year. No annuities will be paid until the beneficiary has attained the age of sixty.

These Government annuities will be absolutely inalienable, that is to say, they cannot be capitalized or sold to anyone else, and the law provides that the money that a family derives from them cannot be seized for any reason whatever.

The Government undertakes the management of the annuity fund, and payment of the annuities will be guaranteed by the Dominion Government.

If any annuitant is either unable or unwilling to keep up his payments until he has reached the age of sixty, he will be allowed to withdraw whatever money he has paid in, to which the Dominion Government will add interest at the rate of three per cent. The Government annuity, of course, will cease with the death of the beneficiary in exactly the same way as it would if his contracts had been made with any annuity company

EDITORIAL NOTES

As was to be expected the Mail and Empire grows hysterical over the result of the Colchester bye-election in which a Conservative was returned, the only representative of that stripe in parliament from that province. It declares in letters the size of a baby's hand that a "staggering blow" has been struck at the Laurier Government. What is all the fuss about? A Conservative was elected in a constituency which has been Conservative for thirty years, giving a majority for the candidate of that party, in 1891, of 803. A Liberal was elected in 1905. No one will grudge the Conservatives the possession of one little ewe lamb in all the parliamentary flock of Nova Scotia. The metaphor is fitting for it is a case of a "great cry and little wool."

Work on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is progressing, at a good rate. Of course the difficulty of securing labour is handicapping construction considerably. Upon the Government portion of the railway, from Moncton to Winnipeg, nearly half the distance is under construction. Though Conservative journals have complained that the Government section would be slow of construction, some going so far as to say that it would never be built, it is not risky wagering that the 1800-odd miles, will be built before the extension of the Ontario Government Railway, from New Liskeard to the junction with the Transcontinental at Abittibi. The Ross Government built the whole line from North Bay in two years, a year less than the Whitney Government has spent upon the extension, which is not yet completed.

BEER BUILDS BODIES

PURITY

Ontario beers are pure, above all else—far more pure than most of the milk sold in cities, because made under conditions of absolute hygiene.

FOOD-VALUE

Boiled potatoes contain not nearly the nutriment that is in pure beer; milk will not feed most folks so well, nor digest so thoroughly.

LAZY stomachs mean poor digestions—they don't work hard enough to extract the good of one's food.

Beer is a food-drink that makes the stomach do its work better, because it increases the flow of the digestive juices and gives the stomach muscles more strength to do their work.

Beer is better for run-down people than medicine; and for thin-blooded people nothing else will enrich the blood so surely and quickly.

Ask your own doctor if you hadn't better drink beer with your meals.

"BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter, and stout; and, in the opinion of Ontario brewers, Canadian beverages made under local conditions, from Ontario barley, are best in the world; malt, hops, and pure water."

THE MEMBER FOR WEST PETERBORO' MAKES ADDRESS

plished, too, without a corresponding increase in the debt. During the years between 1896 and 1907 it had only increased about $5,000,000. During the eighteen years before 1896, the debt increased $115,000,000, while the trade only increased over $66,000,000. The annual expenditure has of course increased, but so has the revenue. The money spent before 1896 had less results but since that time greater results have been achieved, on account of the judicious expenditure.

The Cheese Trade

Our trade with Mexico is another example of the advance. Since 1896 it has increased over $1,100,000, and during the last two years alone it has advanced six-fold. In July, 1905, a steamship service on the Atlantic was instituted, and in 1907 another was added on the Pacific. Mr. Hall also illustrated the increase by the improvement of the transportation facilities, and the excellent work of the Department of Agriculture. In the year 1896, Canada exported about $14,000,000 worth of cheese, and in the year 1907, over $25,000,000 worth, or over three times as much as was sent to Great Britain from Canada, as went from Holland and the United States combined. The cold storage at the railway terminals, and on the steamships for the preservation of butter, fruit and other perishable goods, is also a feature of the advancement.

The increase in the postal facilities was next touched upon by the speaker. In the year 1896, there was a deficit of $700,000, but in the year 1907 we have a surplus of no less than $1,000,000. All this has occurred in the face of the reduction of the postal rates; the great development in the west, which has secured increased mail service, and many new post offices; the increase in the salaries to the postmasters of ten per cent., by Sir William Mulock, and a further increase this year by the Postmaster-General; better and cheaper postal facilities between Canada and Great Britain; the establishment of free postal delivery in cities with populations over 10,000.

Our Railways

Canada's railways are also an asset, of which we should be justly proud. In the year 1896, the Dominion possessed 16,220 miles of railway, and in 1906 no less than 21,353 miles. In the former year there were 24,266,825 tons of freight carried, and in 1906 there were 59,966,713, making a substantial and gratifying increase. The number of passengers carried has increased from 14,810,400 in 1896, to 27,989,782 in 1906. The earnings of course have kept pace with the advance in freight and passengers carried, and increased about $75,000,000.

The construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the national transcontinental railway, is well in hand. West of Winnipeg 300 miles have been completed, and grain is now being carried over it. Five hundred miles remain under contract between Winnipeg and Edmonton, and the mountain section has been surveyed, and tenders will soon be invited for it. Between Winnipeg and Moncton 861 miles are under contract, with 946 miles yet to be let.

The proud position Canada occupies among the commercial nations of the world was another reason why we should feel gratified. In the increase of trade she takes second to none but Japan. Since 1895 Canada's trade has increased 170 per cent., while Japan's is 213 per cent. Canada's is greater, however, by $54,000,000, and is due directly to the trade in articles to be consumed or used in times of peace, while Japan's advance is largely attributed to her trade in munitions for war.

With Canada's vast wheat lands of the West, and her shipping facilities on the coast of British Columbia, she is fast working up an immense trade with the Orient.

The French Treaty

France's total trade is $2,100,000,000, or the fourth greatest in the world, but Canada's trade with that country is only about $11,000,000, and it is strange that it is not greater. United States has a trade with France amounting to $300,000,000, and there is no reason why the trade between the two great commercial countries — Canada and France — should not grow. On account of such a small trade, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. L. P. Brodeur went to France some time ago and were given plenipotentiary power to act on behalf of the Government of Great Britain to negotiate a treaty between Canada and France. This will no doubt give a broader field for the advancement of the exporting of the products of the forest, the farm, the mine, and the lakes and rivers.

Tribute to the Premier

Mr. Hall said that he would not dwell upon the Imperial Conference recently held in London, and the variety of the great Imperial questions discussed there. He would only venture to say, however, that no living Imperial statesman had done more than the Rt. Hon. the Premier to set in motion the forces to bind together by every possible human tie the British possessions in all parts of the globe to the British Isles.

Before concluding his eloquent address the speaker congratulated Sir Wilfrid Laurier on attaining his 66th birthday in the full vigour of his health and strength. His advancing years had but brought to him increasing honours and more widely extended fame, as his great work for Canada has been to secure for her people unity and progress at home and respect abroad.

SPOKE ON THE GREATNESS OF CANADA

The Services at St. Luke's Church Yesterday—Series of Advent Sermons Begun

Rev. Dr. Tucker preached at St. Luke's yesterday morning and gave a most eloquent sermon on the greatness of Canada, from the text: "Go and possess the land." The burden of his sermon was the problem of the West, the enormous immigration, and how to build up a nation upon moral principles.

At the children's service he spoke to the Sunday school children.

Promotions took place at the Sunday School yesterday, and new classes were formed. Dr. Langfeldt began a series of Advent sermons last night on 'Strong Foundations."

THIRTY DOLLARS LOST AND FOUND

Man Astonished Market People by His Searching

In the crush on the market on Saturday a stranger had a narrow escape from losing his pocketbook containing $30. He had not gone very far when he discovered the loss, and was apparently certain that he had not gone far from the spot where he dropped it. He turned quickly, to the astonishment of the people, and with his head bent towards the sidewalk, started through the crowd like Jimmy Craig through the Peterborough rugby team. He called to the people to let him pass, and quickly made his way for about twenty feet, until he got a glimpse of the elusive leather package. He picked it up from in front of another man's foot and heaved a sigh of satisfaction as he carefully brushed off the snow and slipped it into his coat pocket. "I never thought I'd get it," he said. "It's lucky no one saw it."

THINKS GROUND SMALL FOR A PARK

Southender Expresses His Views on Council's Proposal

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I notice that our City Council is going to purchase a small piece of ground in the south end for a park. This I think is a waste of money, as the piece of ground is too small. Besides, it is bounded on the north side by stables and sheds, and will be the same after a while on the south, as no doubt Mr. Best will sell his property in small lots.

Now, before our City Council purchases this small piece of ground from the School Board, they should see Mr. Best, and also buy from him if he would sell. I have never spoken to Mr. Best about the matter. Then we would have a park bounded on the south by a street, instead of perhaps a lot of unsightly sheds and stables.

Yours truly,
A SOUTH ENDER.

The Skin in Winter.

The condition of the skin during the cold weather has an important bearing on the general health. The skin is more than a mere covering for the body. By means of tiny pores it helps to purify the system, and unless cared for, the damp, raw days of winter will impair its functions, cause cracking and chaps, and sow the first seeds of skin disease.

Evening Dress

THE COAT

Should always fit snugly and make the most of a man's figure. There is some little change in the cut of the "swallowtails" this season but it is better not to follow the fads in evening dress. A narrow cuff finish is also put upon some evening coats this season.

THE TROUSERS

Should be moderately loose, so as to allow ease in dancing.

WHITE WAISTCOATS

Single or double breasted, are correct. Black waistcoats are seldom worn with evening clothes.

JAP LABOR WAS FOR C. P. R.

Reason Disclosed For Rush of Asiatics to Canada.

Vancouver, Dec. 2.—Drafts of five-year contracts now in force between Gotch and six corporations for the supply of Japanese labor were presented at the closing session Saturday of Commissioner King's investigation.

The two principal ones were those signed by Governor James Dunsmuir for the Wellington Coal Co. and that of the C. P. R. The others were: Macdonell, Gnowski & Co., British Columbia General Contract Co. and two saw mills. Gotch made a hard fight against the presentation of these contracts, but it was urged that unless he presented them Governor Dunsmuir, Marpole, for the C. P. R., and others would be called to testify.

In the contract of the Wellington colliery, 500 miners are to be employed, the total wages being paid to the Canadian Nippon Co., at a rate from $1.35 to $1.80 per day. The Canadian Nippon Co. is to receive $5 for each man supplied. An agreement with the C. P. R. is similar, lasting till 1919, at similar wages, the Japs being entitled to free transportation and low freight rates. Here is a summary of the results of the investigation, although Commissioner King's report probably will not be ready for a week.

That no one is promoting a Chinese or Hindu invasion; the Japs' Boarding-house Association is responsible for the influx from Hawaii; the Canadian Nippon Co. frankly admits having brought in 1,400 laborers, 40 being supplied to the Wellington Colliery Co., 15 to the British Columbia General Contracting Co., and over one thousand to the C. P. R.

Thawing Dynamite.

Cobalt, Dec. 2.—P. M. Mallory, employed with the Davis Silver Mining Co., came down from Englehart on Saturday, and brought some details of a serious blasting accident, which happened on Friday at Bell's Cut, about four miles north of Boston station. Three Italians, engaged on rock work there, were thawing dynamite when it exploded, killing one man instantly and fatally injuring another. The third was also badly injured, but was able to walk.

GREATER OTTAWA.

Eight Thousand People Will Be Added to the Capital.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—The boundaries of Ottawa will be largely extended in the near future. Ottawa East has just agreed upon annexation with the city on terms of fixed assessment for eight years, and no taxation of improvements. Rideauville and Ottawa South decided Saturday upon annexation if the same terms can be arranged. To-day Hintonburg will pass upon the question, and there is little doubt that it will be carried.

The additional population to the city will be about 8,000, but these suburbs are remarkably progressive, and have been growing fast this last few years.

ARE NOT IN REVOLT.

Reports of Civil War In Portugal Without Foundation.

Lisbon, Dec. 2.—The baseless character of the alarmist rumors representing that Portugal was on the eve of civil war, and revolution has been fully established by the independent investigation of a staff correspondent of the Associated Press.

There never seems to have been the slightest excuse for the stories circulated from the frontier that the King was a prisoner in the castle, that the crown prince had been banished, and that the navy had mutinied.

A strong suspicion exists that such reports were part of a campaign of Premier Franco's enemies, instituted in order to create distrust abroad in the country's financial position, and thus discredit and bring about the downfall of the Premier at home.

Nothing could be more peaceful than the appearance of the country through which the Associated Press correspondent traveled from Madrid to Lisbon. Not the remotest evidence of popular excitement or agitation was observable.

In Lisbon business moves on in the traditional dreamy Portuguese fashion. The King drives and walks daily unattended, and Saturday night occupied his box at the opera. Franco, "the dictator," also goes abroad unmolested.

REDMOND PRAISES CANADA.

Says Ireland Needs System of Self-Government That Exists Here.

London, Dec. 2.—(C. A. P.)—John Redmond, speaking at Glasgow, drew a direct analogy between the political position of Canada and Ireland. The remedy which made the Dominion prosperous and happy was that which Ireland needed, he said. He pointed out the divergence between the French and British in Canada was much greater than between the Catholics and Unionists in Ireland, yet Sir Wilfrid Laurier enjoyed the confidence of both the former to a remarkable degree. He expressed his appreciation of Canadian support of home rule for Ireland.

Cunard Line to Canada.

London, Dec. 2.—A correspondent of the Canadian Associated Press, wiring from Liverpool, says it is more than probable that the Cunard Co. in the very near future will secure a share of the emigration traffic to Canada, as it is understood negotiations are now going on regarding the Cunard line running steamers direct to Canada. It is believed that the traffic the Cunard Co. seek a share of is continental.

A Melbourne cable says that Premier Deakin, speaking at the Imperial Federation League, said a solution of the question of the adjustment of relations between the Mother Country and the dominions overseas is necessary and would no doubt be reasonably dealt with. In the meantime it was desirable that principles should be laid down.

Fell Dead In Quarrel.

Quebec, Dec. 2.—Theodore Tanguay, an engineer, 60 years old, residing on Wolfe street, Levis, went into a young men's club at Levis Saturday night, about 11 o'clock, and quarrelled with a man named Wagner. During the quarrel he fell heavily on the ground with Wagner upon him, and when Wagner got up they found that Tanguay was dead.

Zulu Chief Murdered.

Pietermaritzburg, Natal, Dec. 2.—Murders and outrages, including the killing in Zululand of two chiefs who were friendly to Great Britain, are causing uneasiness throughout Natal, and particularly in the border settlements. The governor has issued a proclamation directing that the forces now in Zululand be strengthened and calling on all persons to render assistance, if required in the work of restoring order.

BOILERS EXPLODED.

Two Men Killed and Railway Station Wrecked.

Brunswick, Me., Dec. 2.—The boilers of the heating apparatus at the Maine Central Railroad station exploded early yesterday, blowing the roof entirely off the station and reducing the building to a mass of wreckage. The bodies of Walter Harris, car inspector, and William B. Woodworth, night baggagemaster, were found in the ruins. The station was of brick and stone, and was built eight years ago at a cost of about $20,000. The explosion occurred while Woodworth was attending to a hot water heater in the basement. The exact cause of the explosion is not known.

Japan Receives Report.

Tokio, Dec. 2.—Baron Ishii, chief of the Bureau of Commerce of the Japanese Foreign Office, who visited the United States and Canada for the purpose of investigating the immigration problem, arrived in Tokio yesterday and conferred with the officials of the Foreign Office, with whom he engaged in a thorough canvass of the situation for the coming week. In an interview, Baron Ishii said:

"My visit to the United States and Canada convinced me that the opposition to the Japanese is based partly upon race prejudice, though considerable of it is due to labor troubles instituted by agitators. I found Japanese residents in the United States and Canada who resent the incoming of their countrymen from the Hawaiian Islands and Mexico, which is disliked. While it is proper for Japanese to conserve the interests of the Japanese now residing abroad, many of whom are prospering and living peacefully in America, in my opinion, it will be necessary, in order to keep absolute faith with the United States to prevent immigration of laborers thereto also either, because an exclusion act would be disagreeable. We should send laborers to Canada in great moderation."

The Foreign Office is now engaged in investigating the representations of the United States ambassador concerning the character and number of emigrants.

The indications are that the Japanese Government will give formal but verbal assurances of a future rigid exclusion of all that can be termed strictly labor immigration to the United States, being careful also in limiting the number moving for Canada.

Kidney Troubles From the Liver

COMPLICATED CASES WHICH LED TO THE DISCOVERY OF THAT GREAT MEDICINE

In his study of kidney disease, Dr. Chase found that fully 90 per cent. of the cases arose as a direct result of liver and bowel disorders, and it was working on this idea that led to the discovery of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Through over-eating, irregular meals, or food that does not agree the liver is deranged, poisonous bile is left in the blood, and the digestive system is upset. Headaches, biliousness, pains in the back and limbs, ill-temper, and general out-of-sort feelings result.

These are among the symptoms of liver complaint, but during such attacks the kidneys are overworked and after a while there is pain and smarting when passing water, the urine is highly coloured and contains deposits, the pains in the back become more severe, you have rheumatic pains it may be, and are gradually falling a victim of Bright's disease of the kidneys.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were prepared for the express purpose of effecting cures in every stage of such cases. They enliven the liver, regulate the action of the bowels, and invigorate the kidneys.

In this regard they are entirely different to any treatment you ever used, and are successful in complicated cases in which ordinary kidney medicines have little or no effect. There are people in every neighbourhood in Canada ready to certify to this statement.

Mrs. John Shanahan, 319 McDonel street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—"I was troubled with pains in the back, and dropsy, and was subject to fluttering and palpitation of the heart. In order to set my kidneys right I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food at the same time.

"The combined use of these two preparations has done me a world of good. I used to have rush of blood to the head, dizziness, and headache, but I am thankful to say that all these symptoms have disappeared, and I have been cured by Dr. Chase's remedies."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose: 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—5.

Plea For Ideal Conditions In Canadian National Life

Rev. Canon Tucker Preached at St. Luke's Church in the Morning and All Saints' at Night—A Forcible Address.

GREAT FUTURE FOR CANADA

The cession of the visit of the Rev. Canon Tucker, M.A., LL.D., to All Saints' Church was a stirring sermon at the evening service, in which he made an earnest appeal for the cultivation of the highest ideals in Canadian national life. Particularly denunciatory were his remarks in which he stated we read of citizens, "yes, Canadians, and British subjects, who will take their right of citizenship and sell it for ten dollars." Men, he said, would barter their vote for the price of a sheep or one quarter the price of a bullock. Rev. Canon Tucker said that he hoped to see the day when such actions would be impossible, and when men guilty of buying or selling a vote would be branded like a criminal and ostracised.

"What we want," he emphatically said, "are men of strong British principle, men of the old stock, men of blood and character, who will do the right and speak the right."

Canada's New Life

"Now, the Lord had said unto Abraham, get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee;

"And I will make of thee a great nation, etc." Genesis 12, 1 and 2.

Missionary work, the speaker began, is a many-sided question, but that he intended to deal with the national side, and would try to explain the meaning of the term, "Our Canadian mission field." He first dealt with the growth of Ontario to the position of premier rank in the Dominion; of how the Ottawa Valley had yielded its millions of dollars worth of timber. Afterwards, when the stumps were cleared away a fertile agricultural land was given to the people, and this district has become one of the pillars of our national life.

New Ontario, Rev. Canon Tucker said, was the Ottawa Valley on a larger scale. It extended west from the Ottawa river and north from the height of land in New Ontario. The land was immensely rich in minerals, and, extending westward, presented a rich clay belt that will produce grain to feed the multitudes. New Ontario, the speaker said, would make Old Ontario practically double, an empire province in an imperial state.

Consolidates Canada

New Ontario forms the connecting link between the east and the west, and thus making Canada a unit, increases her strength and power. Rev. Canon Tucker next portrayed the wealth of British Columbia and the commercial future that is before that province. He then stated that the time was coming when strife would not be excited along commercial and industrial lines. "Men will go back to common sense and beat their swords into ploughshares." Great developments will take place, to some extent on the eastern coast of America, but more especially on the western coast, and a trade will spring up on the Pacific to equal that of the rest of the world.

The speaker laid stress on the great things that God has done for Canada, but said that as the West grows, so will the whole country, and the prospect that is before us is beyond our conception.

True National Greatness

A great nation, Rev. Canon Tucker said, was not made merely by increased trade, or the piling up of money, or the webbing of the land with railways. A nation was beyond these material things. "It was the most sacred thing in the world. It was like an enlarged family, he said, and then explained what Englishmen had done for their national life. He graphically described the struggles, the battles, the bloodshed that England had suffered, and this glorious heritage has been handed down to us here, even in Canada. It was at this stage that the speaker soared heavily by stating that these rights were bartered for a paultry sum of ten dollars. His advice was to train the children properly, keep Canada a nation following the Word of God, with the people manifesting their allegiance to Him in the churches, and His day, the bulwark of all His institutions, being kept sacred and holy. "These fundamental qualities," Rev. Canon Tucker concluded, "are the essences of national life, and without them I would not give that"—here he snapped his fingers—"for the Dominion of Canada."

MAIL CLERK MEETS WITH ACCIDENT

Has His Foot Run Over While Crossing G. T. R. Platform

While crossing the platform of the G.T.R. station this morning a very painful accident befell Mr. Holgate, mail clerk on the Toronto train.

As the train pulled into Peterborough Holgate leaped from it, mail bag in hand, to collect the letters in the box. On his return, the unfortunate official had his right foot run over by a mail truck which was wending its way up the platform to the door of the mail car. The truck was heavily loaded with mail bags, and it must have crushed Mr. Holgates foot very badly.

He was assisted into the train by some of the men standing around, but he said he would be able to look after everything until he reached Toronto.

MILL CONCLUDES GOOD SEASON

Over 7,000,000 Feet Cut by Peterborough Lumber Company This Year

After a very successful season, the Peterborough Lumber Company's mills closed down last Friday for the season. They began operations on April 14th and have since been operating continuously. The season's cut amounted to over seven million feet in pine, hemlock, spruce, basswood and cedar. Besides, the sawmill, the shingle, lath and planing mills were also operated continuously all season.

The company employed over one hundred men, part of whom have, or are, going back to the camps in Methuen and Burleigh townships. The drives of the company will come down in the spring by way of Jacks Creek and Stony Lake. Between 6,000,000 and 7,000,00 feet are cut each year by the Peterborough Lumber Company.

Canadian Pacific Railway Change in time commencing on Nov. 25th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 6.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

ROLLER SKATING RINK CLOSED

Management Thanked the Patrons and the Band

The roller skating rink closed its season on Saturday afternoon, when the band played its last waltz, and the skaters rolled around, both to bid farewell to the fascinating motion. The management before the close publicly thanked their patrons for their patronage. They also thanked the band for their kindness and willingness to meet the demands of the skaters.

The rink will probably be used next fall, but in the meantime the curlers will hold away.

A SERMON TO THE YOUNG MEN

Rev. J. G. Potter Speaks of the First St. Andrew's Guild—Influence of the Young Men

THE AIMS OF THE GUILD

At St. Andrew's church last night Rev. J. G. Potter preached a stirring sermon to the Young Men's Guild last night in which he set forth the work of that institution by comparing it to the first St. Andrew's Guild instituted centuries ago by Andrew, one of the Apostles. Mr. Potter took for his text St. John I; 40—42, in which are the words, "One of the two which heard John speak and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peters brother. He first findeth his own brother Simon and saith unto him. We have found the Messias which is being interpreted, the Christ. And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him He said, Thou art Simon the son of Jonah; thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone."

The day, said Mr. Potter, meant a good deal to the young men of St. Andrew's, and should carry a good deal of influence all over the world wherever Scotchmen were celebrating. It was a compliment to Scotland that the Brotherhood of St. Andrew were named after the Patron Saint. St. Andrew's Brotherhoods and Guilds stand for personal efforts on the part of each of the members just as they did in the time of Andrew of old when the first Guild was formed.

The heart of Christ spake to Andrew inspiringly and drew him from the fishing nets to go and influence his brother to bring him within the influence of Christ. The two-fold purpose of the Guild is prayer and service. Each must devote his attention to a young man who has not yet been brought in touch with the Christian church.

"There is no power so great among young men," said Mr. Potter, "as the young men themselves."

The influence of men is even greater than that of any preacher or teacher. It is the experience of young men and women that the hardest work is in their own homes. The spirit of the Christian man is the highest when it is willing to take the lowest place. Andrew was satisfied to be the means of bringing others to Christ rather than be exalted and the world to-day owes much to the life of St. Andrew who influenced his companions to attain a God-like spirit.

The greatest place in life is the place where Christ can use us the most. The strong minds, as a great philosopher has said, often suffer without complaint but weak minds often complain without suffering.

RHEUMATIC RELIEF

Many people suffer from rheumatism, and more particularly at this time of the year. Such sufferers may get relief by observing the following instructions: Wear warm clothing, particularly about the knees, ankles and hands. Drink lots of water and abstain from all liquors or acid products. To eradicate the uric acid in the blood, get your druggist to mix you the following doctor's prescription: four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce compound vimosa. Take a dessertspoonful in water after meals and at bedtime. Take lots of sleep, and exercise as much as possible.—7.

BOUGHT TURKEYS BUT LEFT THEM AT MARKET

Man Paid Three Dollars for Two Turkeys But That Was All

In the vernacular of the boys on the street, a man was "stung" on the market on Saturday. He purchased two turkeys at $1.50 each, and gave a woman $3 for the two. He left them on the table where they were, either to look around to buy others, or as it is believed, he forgot them. He did not return to the market until two o'clock in the afternoon, and asked if they had been left with the market clerk. They had disappeared, however, and the three dollars worth of Sunday turkey had either been resold or taken back to the country.

The Annex

What It Was
What It Is What It Will Be

The "Annex", or as it was originally termed the "Wednesday Bargain Annex" but through constant publicity the people of Peterboro' have termed it simply the "Annex", is a solid feature of this business.

It was in the beginning a Wednesday sale of moderate proportions, but gradually through the efforts of our buyer, became a looked for mid-week event—people began to notice the wonderful saving that was in store for them each week—at last, not only the people noticed it, but the wholesale houses, manufacturers and large jobbers began to see that it meant a great turn over of their goods if they secured the supplying of this department. until in a very short time the goods that were bought at such extremely low prices began to cause a tremendous increase in the trade until now the "Annex" is known as the largest and most popular department of its kind in Canada.

If the already immense trade still increases at the rate that it has in the past, the selling room will need to be increased very shortly and we have every confidence that it will. The Annex is the place where goods are sold at the lowest price—no other sale excels the Annex in price and quality. See to-morrow's advertisement for the big Annex list.

Immorality Learned By Boys In Their Dens Of Vice

From Sunday School to Shack—Youths Spend Their Time in Petty Gambling and Useless Work.

THREE DENS REPORTED

The attention of the Examiner has been called to what are commonly called "boys' shacks" in various parts of the city, which are, in reality, dens of vice for the propagation of immorality in various forms. These shacks are said to be the trysting places for boys every night, and on Sunday afternoons, where gambling on a small scale is carried on; where cards are played, accompanied by profane language; where immoral stories are exchanged, and where vice in various forms is portrayed.

Three of such dens have been reported. One is located on the face of Bradburn's hill, Stewart street; one at the end of Parnell street, with the high class designation of "No. 33, B. B. C.," and the third is in a field in the vicinity of the C. G. E.

Boys are said to attend Sunday school in the afternoons on Sunday, and immediately afterwards go to their shacks to spend the remainder of the day apart from all moral influences. These dens are apartments that might be visited by the police with good results.

THREE MILE RACE WILL BE ATHLETIC EVENT OF THE YEAR

The latest entry to the big three-mile special race at the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Harriers' indoor meet on Tuesday, Dec. 3rd, is Geo. Adams, of the Hamilton Y.M.C.A., and, from all appearances, this event will be the race of the year, with Tait, of West End; Galbraith, of Central; Coley, of the Irish-Canadians; Wilson, of Peterborough, and Adams, and, if the track is any kind of a running path at all, the chances are exceedingly bright for a three-mile record that will not be touched for years to come. The time made by the winner will constitute an indoor record at any rate, but, with the cream of Canadian middle-distance men running, an exceedingly fast mark should be set.

In addition to Galbraith, Central Y.M.C.A. has decided to send Greenwood along for the sprints. The youngster showed surprising form at the Garrison Indoor Handicap games several weeks ago, and can be depended upon to make an excellent showing.—Toronto News.

Tenders Invited For Another Section Of Trent Canal

Section No. 2, Consisting of 3 Locks, 3 Dams and Half a Mile of Canal to be Constructed.

HOUSES TO BE REMOVED

Tenders are invited for Section no. 2 of the Trent Canal, and the official anouncement may be seen in another column of this issue. This section is about four miles long, extending from a point about five miles above the Trenton Bridge, in the town, or two and a half miles below Frankford, to a point one and a half miles beyond Frankford, into still water.

The contract will include three dams and three locks and a canal at Frankford over half a mile long, from the course of which many houses will have to be removed. Two of the locks will have eighteen feet of a lift and the third 16 feet. There will be a swing bridge across the canal at Trenton, and two small steel bridges over the river will have to be removed and replaced by others.

This section will have a rise of 308 feet above the sea level to 360 feet, or 52 feet of a rise. This will be 99 feet above lake Ontario.

When this contract is let there will be three sections below Rice Lake—one, two and five—under contract, so that the Government mean business in the construction of the Trent Waterway.

Tenders will be received up to Feb. 1st, 1908.

Music and Drama

THE MAN ON THE BOX

The Montreal Gazette, in reviewing the comedy "The Man on the Box," says: "A bright, breezy comedy, full of laughable incidents, well staged and costumed, is the "Man on the Box," the offering at His Majesty's this week. Last night a friendly audience, larger than many Monday night audiences this season, thoroughly enjoyed the efforts of a well-balanced company. In the plot there is a delightful love romance. Lieutenant Robert Warburton, during the night of the British Embassy Ball in Washington, conceives the ratter boyish idea of donning the clothes of his coachman, driving his sister home from the ball with her girl friend, and then astonishing the sister by kissing her at the door of the family residence. In order to disguise himself he shaves his beard, and his keen delight at the prospect of astonishing his sister by making her believe she has been kissed by the staid coachman is turned to dismay when he finds himself in a police cell as a result of getting on the wrong cab in the crush outside the Embassy, and kissing the wrong girl, Miss Elizabeth Annesley. Miss Annesley lays a charge against Warburton, but magnanimously pays his fine and takes him into her employ as coachman. The inevitable consequence is that the young people fall violently in love, and numerous complications occur. There is a little side plot, which pops up now and then in the action of the play, connected with some plans of fortifications, but as Warburton remedies the difficulty by the simple method of taking them from the Russian attache, who is keeping them as a hold over the father of Miss Annesley, all ends in the generally recognized happy manner, with wedding bells in the air.

Taken as a play, "The Man on the Box," is a piece of entertainment, light, and neatly played by a well-balanced company. It scored last night, and that would appear to have been the goal at which Miss Fernie aimed.

MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM

It was perhaps due to the fact that "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" was presented on Saturday night that it was not greeted by a full house. The play is a farce of more than usual merit something after the style of Charlie's Aunt and the consensus of opinion was that for its kind it was perhaps the best seen here this season. There was only a fair attendance at the Grand, but those who were present were entertained by a company who performed their parts in a bright and clean manner throughout.

The story of the play is centered around a fib that Jack Temple tells his wife to explain a night's absence from home. As he himself said later in the play, this one little fib grew until it even affected the lives of people and the happiness of three households. The mass of difficulties were at last straightened, the connubial differences were explained away.

The company is strong in that the parts are well balanced and there was scarcely a weak link in the presentation.

EMINENT PHARMACISTS

Everywhere Acknowledge the Superiority of Vinol

If one person more than another should know the value of a medicine it is the retail pharmacist.

For this reason such testimony as the following should be convincing.

C. A. Patterson, the leading druggist of Charleston, W. Va., writes: "I have used Vinol for every member of my family and have never been disappointed in the results. It is a pleasure to sell a medicine which gives such universal satisfaction."

Mr. Charles E. Rogers, druggist, of Elkton, Ky., writes: "I consider Vinol one of the best remedies in my store, and I sell more of it than any one medicine. I have also used Vinol in my family with excellent results."

Mr. J. F. Bradley, of New Brunswick, N. J., writes: "It is a pleasure to recommend the cod liver preparation, Vinol, as it gives such splendid satisfaction. As I have used it in my family can recommend it from experience."

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions is because it contains all the medicinal, body building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers with all the useless oil eliminated and peptonate-of-iron added.

As a body builder and strength-creator, for old people, weak women, delicate children, after sickness and for all pulmonary troubles, Vinol is recommended by over 5000 of the leading druggists of the United States. Your money back, if it fails. McDermid and Jury, druggists, Peterborough; also at the Market Drug Store.

Funeral of Robert Frederick Tate, Formerly of Peterborough, on Saturday Afternoon

On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the remains of Robert Frederick Tate, resident engineer of the Canadian Northern Railway, were borne from his late home at 294 Crawford street, Toronto, to St. Thomas' Church, Huron street, where the funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. Enson Sharp. Mr. Thomas White and other members of the engineering staff of the C.N.O. acted as pall bearers. The interment took place at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

MONTHLY LABOUR REPORT

Interesting History of Labour in and Around Peterborough, by Ald. Johnston

BUILDINGS ARE PLENTIFUL

All branches of labour, both inside and outside, were well employed. Sewer work and the laying of pipes were still under way, and will be until the frost sets in. Granolithic sidewalks are also still being laid; about six miles of these walks have been laid this season, leaving three miles to be completed next year. The dredging of the river bed has been in full progress during the month, giving employment to large numbers of workmen. Considerable improvement work has been done in different places on the Trent Canal and is still being carried on.

The contract for the erection of a new Roman Catholic church has been awarded. The church will cost about $44,000. Work on the erection of Mann's new bakery building has been commenced. The firm of J. J. Turner and Sons has been awarded the contract for supplying flags for all the rural schools in the Province of Ontario. The Quaker Oats Company has advanced the prices of cereal packages from 25 cents to 30 cents; the reason assigned for the increase is the present high price of oats and other grain.

Houses in Peterborough were more plentiful, but there are not enough houses at about $10 a month to meet the demand. The city assessment now totals $16,000,000, being an increase over that of last year of $2,602,000. The population is 16,000, an increase of 1,038 over that of last year. There are 932 telephones in use in Peterborough. The Bell Telephone Company has completed its conduits for underground wires. Exports and imports have been very heavy during the month. Banks reported business steady. Wholesale and retail trade has been excellent. All industries were running full time with full forces of employees. Flour has advanced in price from $2.70 to $2.80, and bread from 10 to 11 cents for a 2-lb. loaf, also milk from 6 to 7 cents a quart. The labour market was well supplied, and harmony prevailed between employers and employed.

Condition of Local Industries

Agriculture—Fall ploughing, the sowing of fall wheat, threshing, hauling of grain to market, etc., have been the principle employment of agriculturists.

Fishing — This industry was active.

Lumbering—Conditions were very active. The Cavendish Lumber Company has 300 men employed in its camps, and expects to cut about 12,000,000 feet of lumber this season.

Manufacturing—All industrial establishments were active.

Mining—The surveying and testing of mineral lands throughout the district were being carried on, and it is reported that active operations will shortly begin in several places.

Railway construction and employment.—The filling in of the viaducts at Port Hope gave employment to large numbers of workmen.

The Street Railway Company has been busily engaged getting its line in good shape for the winter.

Condition of Particular Trades

Building — Busy conditions prevailed.

Metal, engineering and shipbuilding—Iron moulders, steam engineers, blacksmiths, tool sharpeners and jewelers were active. Iron workers and helpers, machinists and engineers, and sheet metal workers were busy, and electrical workers, linemen and brass workers were very busy; but bicycle workers and horseshoers found employment somewhat dull.

Woodworking and furnishing—Upholsterers, varnishers, polishers, carriage workers and coopers were busy, with pattern-makers active and car builders dull.

Printing—The allied trades were active.

Clothing—Journeymen tailors had active employment; garment workers, hat makers, boot and shoe workers were busy.

Food and tobacco preparation—Bakers, confectioners, butchers, etc. were busy; cigar makers and tobacco workers active, and ice handlers were dull.

Leather — Harness makers and those employed making collars were busy.

Miscellaneous—all were busy, with barbers active.

Transport—Steam railway employees, street railway employees and steamboat men were active. Cabmen, hackmen, carters and draymen, teamsters and expressmen were busy.

Unskilled — Busy conditions prevailed.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

"The Serge of the Season"

BLUNOZ CANADIAN Semi-ready

In the first place "Blunoz" serge is not made in Nova Scotia.

In the second place, it is not all a blue serge, for it is a freely woven Australian wool serge in both the navy blue and black colors. You have a choice of either.

To be sure they call the Nova Scotians "Blunoses"—but that is not the derivative of "Blunoz" serge.

Only two woollen mills in Canada can make the "Blunoz" Serge—and the Semi-ready Company control and absorb in their tailor shops the entire output.

This is the Canadian Serge which has made the British mills "sit up," and it is the Standard cloth by which the Government judge the tariff needs of this particular Canadian industry.

Semi-ready

Semi-ready "Blunoz" Suits, now $20, will cost $24 after January 1st, 1908.

BARNS WERE SET ON FIRE

Farmers Capture an Incendiary Near Port Hope.

MAN THOUGHT TO BE INSANE

Traced by Footmarks in the Snow—Twenty-Six Cattle, Twenty Hogs and Nine Horses Burned—Whole Year's Crop Destroyed — Straw Stack Fired—Wanted to Go to Jail — May Be Insane.

Port Hope, Dec. 2.—Thomas Kow, a French-Canadian, thirty-nine years of age, who speaks broken English and says that his home is at 505 Notre Dame street, Montreal, is now in the cells here charged with incendiarism.

About five o'clock yesterday morning a large frame barn belonging to John Harcourt at Port Britain, about three miles west of Port Hope, was set on fire, and in spite of all that could be done by neighbors was completely destroyed with its entire contents, consisting of twenty-six head of cattle, twenty hogs, nine horses and the year's crop of grain.

Immediately afterwards a straw stack some distance away belonging to Bill Brown was set on fire and burned. Boulthorpe and Dickinson, two farmers, who had been attracted to the first fire, noticed tracks leading from the barn. They easily followed them through the fresh snow that had fallen during the night. The tracks led to the straw stack and from there to the school-house. Thence they followed the footsteps to Wesleyville, where they saw Kow ahead of them.

When he saw them coming he stepped into the ditch at the side of the road and waited for them, but offered no resistance and was brought to Port Hope. There he was placed in the cells by Chief Bond. Speaking to a reporter Kow told an extraordinary story, and there is some doubt as to whether he is of sound mind. He says that he was on his way to Kingston from Toronto, and that he deliberately set fire to the barn and strawstack for the purpose of being sent to jail. He says that he also tried to set fire to the school-house, but did not succeed in doing so. He says that he has served eight months in jail at Ottawa for stealing $50, and also four months in Montreal for assault upon a girl. There was but $400 insurance on Mr. Harcourt's barn.

PRIEST BURNED TO DEATH.

$100,000 of Church Property Destroyed in Blaze at Covington.

Covington, La., Dec. 2.—One life is known to have been lost, and over $100,000 worth of property was destroyed in a fire near here Saturday, when St. Joseph's Academy, St. Joseph's Convent, St. Joseph's Monastery and St. Joseph's Catholic Church were burned. All of these institutions occupied a lot together near Covington. When the ruins were searched the charred body of Rev. Joseph Buck, who was attached to the academy, was found.

The fire which started in the dormitory of St. Joseph's Academy, was caused by a radiator becoming too hot. There were 110 students in the academy when the alarm was started, and many of them had narrow escapes, but Rev. Mr. Buck is believed to have been the only one to lose his life.

The buildings were all practically new. Father Buck's library, containing over 5,000 valuable works and that of the students with 1,000, were destroyed.

24c Forgers Sentenced.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 2.—Harry Smith and Harry Howard, recently arrested for passing bogus checks here, were sentenced Saturday by Magistrate Elliott. Smith drew two years at the Central Prison, Toronto. Howard got seven years for carrying explosives, three years for having burglar tools in his possession, and five years for burglary, the sentences to run concurrently.

Smith refused to reveal his real name. He is afraid the blow would kill his aged mother, who lives somewhere in England.

Will Postpone Thaw Trial.

New York, Dec. 2.—The second trial of Harry K. Thaw will be called in the Supreme Court here to-day, but it is generally believed there will be a postponement of the case until after the Christmas and New Year's holidays. District Attorney Jerome will request that such action be taken. Martin W. Lyttleton, the new leading counsel for Thaw, has announced that he will oppose the motion.

SURPRISE

WERE ENTOMBED IN A MINE

Over Fifty Miners Imprisoned in Naomi Pit at Fayette.

MANY THOUGHT TO BE DEAD

Blank Damp Caused Explosion—Miner Carried Naked Light—Tons of Rock and Coal Brought Down—Entrance Entirely Blocked—Eleven Men Shut Off by the Flames in Drytown Mine.

Monongahela, Pa., Dec. 2—Between 50 and 60 miners are entombed in the Naomi mine of the United Coal Co., at Fayette City, as the result of an explosion of black damp, last night.

It is thought many are dead behind tons of rock and coal, which fell during the concussion and blocked the entrance. The explosion was caused, it is said, when a miner with an open lamp entered one of the old workings.

Drytown, Cal., Dec. 2.—Eleven miners in the Fremont Gover mine are shut off from the surface by a fire which is raging at the 1,100 foot level, and all hope of rescue alive has been abandoned. The miners were working below the 1,100 foot level.

WHIRLED AROUND SHAFT.

Joseph C. Cornett Injured in Owen Sound Cement Mill.

Owen Sound, Dec. 2.—A serious accident occurred at the Imperial Cement Works here shortly before 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, as a result of which Joseph C. Cornett, one of the oldest and best employes of the company, is now lying at the General and Marine Hospital in a very precarious condition.

The injured man had occasion to climb on to a platform about sixteen feet from the ground in the coal grinding room when in some manner, as yet unexplained, his clothing caught in the machinery, and in a moment he was whirled around a shaft. His left leg was broken above the knee, his shoulder dislocated, his back and ankle hurt, and fears are entertained that he is injured internally. Every shred of clothing was torn from his body.

Several other workmen were in the room at the time of the accident, and it is to their promptness in stopping the machinery that Cornett owes his life. It is only two weeks ago since the injured man's father had his ankle broken by being caught in a belt in the same mill.

Brockville, Dec. 2.—William D. Sands, aged 26, and a native of Virginia, was brought to the hospital here Saturday from Chesterville, where he was employed on the double-tracking of the C. P. R. between Smith's Falls and Montreal.

He was working under a bridge when a heavy plank fell from above, striking him in the abdomen. His injuries are of an internal nature, and very little hope is held out for his recovery.

Child's Skull Fractured.

Brockville, Dec. 2.—Phyllis, the little daughter of Dr. R. A. Bowie, lies in a precarious condition at her father's home, as a result of falling from the bannister at the third flight to the floor below, a distance of 35 feet. Her skull was fractured in two places, and she has been unconscious since noon Saturday, when the accident occurred. The chances of recovery are slight.

THE ELEVATOR DROPPED.

Twenty Persons Crash Down Ten Storeys in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Two men are reported killed and six persons seriously injured in a passenger elevator which fell ten floors Saturday in the store of Edenheimer, Stein & Co., clothiers, 204 Jackson boulevard.

Twenty persons are said to have been in the elevator when it fell.

As the elevator left the tenth floor on a downward trip the cable parted and the cage plunged downward, striking the bottom of the shaft with terrific force.

Most of the occupants were employes of firms in the building.

Two bodies were taken out of the car at the bottom of the shaft.

Lion Tamer Attacked.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 2.—In order to smile at his fiancee, Mercedes Lamonte, Louis Roth, the young German trainer who does an act with the Bostock shows at Pone de Leon, was careless enough to take his eyes for an instant Saturday afternoon from Atlas, the surliest lion of the collection, and as a result felt his leg being torn by the sharp claws of the beast, which had sprung upon him the moment he was free from his gaze. Just as the lion's claws cut into his flesh Roth saw the flash of a revolver, and Atlas, finding himself again mastered, recoiled under the gaze of Miss Lamonte. She fired the gun in the animal's face.

The pistol shot caused a panic among the big crowd present. As soon as Roth had been rescued Miss Lamonte threw her arms about his neck and said:

"We must marry at once, Louis. I cannot wait longer. This life is too dangerous, too much hazard."

Franco-Canadian Treaty.

London, Dec. 2.—(C. A. P.)—Prof. Hewins, secretary of the Tariff Reform League, circulates in the press a lengthy analysis of the Franco-Canadian treaty. He points out that Canada in a number of instances has gone below the British rates altogether, materially reducing the preference.

He criticizes warehousing transhipment clauses and emphasizes how the extension of treaties to other countries must subject trade with Canada to a far more strenuous competition in the absence of a British reciprocal agreement.

Was Chinaman Bowstrung.

Vancouver, Dec. 2.—A sensational story surrounds the mysterious death of a Chinaman, named Ah Chong, who was in jail awaiting trial on a charge of theft. His body was found leaning against a window ledge in the lavatory by the acting jailer and a trusty.

The trusty says that when he touched the body it fell into his arms. The story is now rife that the trusty says he cut a noose off the Chinaman's neck. The report is that the Chinaman was bowstrung.

Hanged With Clothesline.

New York, Dec. 2.—Despondent over the fact that he had failed to withdraw in time a considerable sum he is said to have had on deposit in the suspended Borough Bank of Brooklyn, George Fraitman, aged 32, a diamond polisher, committed suicide Saturday night by hanging himself with a piece of clothesaline at his home in Brooklyn.

Speaker Cannon Re-nominated.

Washington, Dec. 2.—In the caucus of the Republican members of the House Saturday night, Speaker Cannon was re-nominated for Speaker. All the old members of the House also were re-nominated. The caucus refused to seat Peter A. Potter of the 34th New York district, who was elected as an independent.

Many Mills Resume.

Boston, Dec. 2.—Thirty-five mills and factories in New England, which have been curtailing production or shut down for repairs for a brief period, are expected to resume operations during the coming week.

Illicit Liquor Seized.

Kenora, Dec. 2.—Over thirty gallons of liquor, seized by the Dominion police along the C. N. R. construction line, were poured down a sewer. The most ingenious ways of smuggling the liquor into camps are being resorted to, and the police have a difficult task in suppressing the illicit trade.

To make matters worse, Indians, who refuse to tell where they obtain the liquor, are engaged in smuggling, and during the past week two of them were sentenced to three months each for the offence.

The Musicians Fled.

New York, Dec. 2.—In the automobile race at the Hippodrome Saturday night, Andre Verraud lost control of his car, and it plunged into the footlights and landed partly in the orchestra, slightly injuring two of the musicians and disabling the curtain-raising machinery. Several of the footlights were smashed, and the musicians dropped their instruments and rushed to shore.

EXCITING SCENE IN THE DOUMA

Russian Premier's Rule Scathingly Condemned.

MAY RESULT IN CHALLENGE

Duel Likely Between Stolypin and Roditcheff — Latter Made Vigorous Attack—Scored Drumhead Courts-Martial—Mobbed by Reactionaries—Great Tumult in Chamber—Was Apology Offered?

St. Petersburg, Dec. 2.—The "Stolypin Neckties," an expression used by Fedor Roditchoff, the orator of the Constitutional Democrats, in the Douma Saturday afternoon, to designate the summary regime of drumhead courts-martial instituted by Premier Stolypin in August, 1906, and decreed out of existence by the second Douma last April, is the phrase on all lips in the capital. The phrase has already become historic and has completely blotted out the effect of the Ministerial declaration in subsequent debates and destroyed the complacency of the Conservatives, restoring the tense atmosphere of the earlier Douma.

Upon that Stolypin, who, in company with his colleagues, was sitting next to the Speaker's tribune, the words fell as a thunderbolt, recalling the most painful incident of his career as Premier. He turned deathly white, clenched the desk and stared motionless for several minutes at the unprecedented storm let loose by the Reactionaries surging past him. Finally he left the chamber without uttering a word. The Associated Press learns that to the Ministers with him in the pavilion, Mr. Stolypin announced firmly his decision to challenge M. Roditchoff to a duel.

GREAT STORM OF ASHES.

Alaska Covered With Fine, Gritty Powder From Volcano.

Nome, Alaska, Dec. 2.—Nome and probably the entire Seward peninsula are shrouded in an ashy haze, and the ground for miles is covered several inches deep with a fine gritty powder which is believed to be volcanic ash.

The storm began several days ago, the dust blowing in from the ocean. At first little attention was paid to the freak of nature, as it was expected that it would soon cease. Instead, however, the fall continued, and after a day became so dense as to seriously interfere with outdoor pursuits. Miners coming into town reported that for miles the snow was so impregnated with the ashes that sledding was almost impossible. Further, the air is so full of ashes that breathing is difficult, and the fine powder has sifted into houses and business places to such an extent that it is thick on floors and household furniture.

It is believed that some of the numerous volcanic islands between this coast and Siberia are again in eruption, and the ash downpour is the result.

TRACKS UNSAFE.

Railway Trainmen File Complaint Against the Missouri Pacific.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has filed with the Postmaster-General a complaint against the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. for maintaining tracks that are alleged to be unsafe.

In view of the fact that the lives of postal employes may be endangered through the reckless running of trains over unsafe roadbeds, the Postmaster-General is urged to make an investigation of the charges.

The complaint has been referred to the second Assistant Postmaster-General.

Man Stabbed at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Dec. 2.—There was a serious stabbing affair about nine o'clock Saturday night in the Italian colony on Railway street. As a result Sarfo Midio, 17 Railway street, is in the hospital with a big stiletto wound in his left side, and his neighbor, D. Dominick, who lives at 15 Railway street, is in the jail, charged with making the wound.

The police have not yet been able to learn what the trouble was about, as neither of the principals can speak English. Constable Duncan was summoned to the place about 10 o'clock. He found Midio lying at his home, weak from the loss of blood. The wounded man picked out Dominick as his assailant.

Infant Found Dead.

Winnipeg, Dec. 2.—A young woman who came to Maidstone recently and endeavored to earn a livelihood by dressmaking was confined in her rooms without the knowledge of any one about two weeks ago, and the dead body of the infant has been found in her trunk by accident by a woman who was doing her washing. Death was due either to asphyxiation or neglect. The young woman is being detained by the police, pending further investigation.

The Usual Inside — The Dolly Varden Inside

The claim that a shoe is as comfortable as a barefoot is a pretty strong claim, but we claim it for the Dolly Varden Shoe and our agent in your city is ready to prove our claim. By trying on a few pairs you can soon find out.

Why are they comfortable?

Because they are copies of perfect feminine feet which allow the feet to lie in their natural position.

Because of their Free Flat Tread.

Because of their newly devised, restful steel arch support which relieves the fatigue muscles of the arch and prevents crowding of the toes into the narrow front of the shoe, by holding the heel close to the back.

Because of their Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance.

Because of their Harmless High Heels—as comfortable as moccasins.

And because of their new "velvette kid" leather, which is as soft as cloth. $4.00 to $5.00 in Canada or the States. Every pair Goodyear welted.

W. G. Morrow, Esq.
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

RUGBY HOCKEY ATHLETICS | SEASONABLE ....SPORTS.... | BOWLING BASKETBALL CURLING

Peterborough Overwhelmed By Montreal On Saturday

Inter-provincial Champions Proved Too Much for Local Team—Weather Conditions Were Adverse to Good Football and Peterborough Suffered More Than Easterners.

MONTREAL'S GREAT TEAM

Seventy-one points to nine, represents the result of the Peterborough Rugby Club's journey to Montreal, on Saturday, in search of the Dominion Rugby championship, and, unfortunately, the six dozen points were scored by Montreal. The result was not unlooked for by the Peterborough club, or its supporters, but it was not expected that the score would be so big, and it shouldn't have been either, Although Peterborough were outplayed from start to finish, yet many of Montreal's points were scored on flukes, all the luck breaking for the Easterners. For instance, Quinlan punted from behind his own line out to the scrimmage, and the ball bounced back over the wing lines of both sides to a Montreal player, who dropped upon it for a try.

It must be admitted that Montreal are a great team, and Chaucer Elliott's training could easily be detected in the snappy, effective way in which they pulled off their plays. To Elliott a great deal of the credit for the system and team work, which is such a great feature of the team play, is due. The Easterners on Saturday, played much of the same style of game, as did the Hamilton Tigers on the occasion of their last visit to Peterborough. Criss-cross passes, worked at lightning speed, fake bucks, and beautifully combined end runs, made their work a delight to watch, and at times on Saturday they had Peterborough almost dizzy trying to follow the course of the ball, amidst the quick passes. Several times the Peterborough men pulled down the wrong player, the pass having been made so quickly that their opponents were completely deceived.

Peterborough gave the Easterners an attack of heart failure at the start, when Crowley and Dickson followed up well on a kick from Colledge, causing Hamilton to fumble, and Dickson dropped on the ball for a try, which Crough converted, and Peterborough had a six-point lead within the first minute of play. The Montrealers held their breath with amazement, but the lead melted away like snow in April in the next few minutes. Almost before Peterborough realized that they had scored on the great Montreal team, Harry Gordon had made a thirty yard run around Peterborough's left end, after a criss-cross, and scored a try easily. Molson failed to convert, but a kick to the dead line by Stinson, tied the score, and then a series of fumbles by the Peterborough back division, coupled by slowness in saving after the errors had been made allowed Montreal to establish enormous lead in a few minutes, and at half time the score was 35—9.

Crowley had to retire at half-time with a sore knee, And was replaced by Canniff, and play had hardly been resumed when Colledge's hip was injured, and he had to get out of the game, Davidson going on the wing line, and Canniff going to full-back.

The second half was like a night-mare to the handful of Peterborough supporters who saw the game. The Peterborough team became demoralized with the loss of Crowley and Colledge, and with the big score staring them in the face, and could not stop the aggressive work of the Montrealers The latter seemed to improve as the game went on, and in the last half made some magnificent combined runs. sometimes seven or eight men handling the ball before the advance was finally stopped. It was grand football, pretty to watch, and effective, and tickled the Montreal crowd so much that they remained to the finish although they were almost dead with cold.

The weather conditions were decidedly adverse to fast football. Although the sun shone brightly there was a cold wind blowing from the east and the thermometer was almost down to zero. The greater part of the snow had been scraped off the M.A.A.A. grounds but there was enough left to make the footing decidedly slippery while the ground was frozen as stiff as a pavement. Under such conditions it is a miracle that some one was not seriously injured but the players seemed to be in good condition and there were few stops for injuries.

Only a fair crowd braved the Arctic weather to see the struggle and strange to say a large part were women clad in their winter furs.

The weather conditions favoured the Montrealers. Their back division seemed right at home on the tricky footing and pulled off all kinds of long runs, while Peterborough on the other hand slipped and floundered around on the icy ground. This was especially true of the wing line who found tackling a very hard proposition to pull off and the easterners were enabled to get away often on long runs when in nine cases out of ten they would have been stopped on dry ground. The speed of the Montreal back division aided and abetted by the erratic tackling of the blue and white wing line, made the task easy for the Inter-Provincial champions who were able to pile the score up at a tremendous rate.

Taken all round there was not the disparity between the teams that the score would indicate, although there is no doubt that Peterborough were roundly beaten. The Easterners had the system the snappy, clever, aggressive team work, that made fourteen individuals appear as one well oiled piece of machinery. There was no hesitation in their movements, plays were introduced with a dazzling rapidity that demoralised the Peterboroughs. The latter had no system whatever, using very few plays and relying on stright football to win for them. Much dependence was put upon Colledge's punting and although the Peterborough centre-half booted the pigskin in his usual clever manner, it had not the effect that was expected. The Montreal back division handled almost every punt without a fumble and what is more, ran the ball back for big gains on almost every occasion. The Peterborough wings although they were down under the ball fast did not seem to be able to touch the flying Montrealers who would dodge man after man in a most exasperating manner. Colledge could out-punt the Easterners but it did not accomplish much when the wings could not stop the home team's back division. His punting on fast might have been more effective had he not lifted the ball so far, but no doubt the result would have been the same in the end.

Peterborough were a little heavier all around than Montreal but what the latter lacked in weight they more than made up in speed. The back division was sure, fast and tricky, while the wing line were aggressive and clever, their following up being a feature. The whole line was down under the ball and so eager were they that several times they were penalized for not giving yards. Every man was in superb condition, appearing to be as hard as nails.

The stars of the winners were Jimmy Craig, at centre half; Stinson at full back and Molson and Savage on the wing line. Craig played a magnificent game throughout besides handing his team well. Some of his long runs were magnificent, and when he get started it seemed almost impossible to stop the flying Montreal captain. Stinson was unable second to his leader, clearing several times by beautiful dodging runs, while he caught and punted splendidly. Molson converted most of the tries and he and Savage were prominent in carrying the ball, being largely used in the line plays. Savage got away for forty yards once by carrying the ball from half end behind the scrimmage and around right end. Babe Reynolds, the ex-Varsity player, was always prominent by his tackling.

The Peterborough team did not play anything like the quality of rugby they have displayed in their earlier games. The weather conditions were against them and they seemed to suffer from stage fright. They had no system behind the line, depending on the kicking game to score for them. Colledge did some nice punting and dropped a goal from the field on a penalty. Crough had a lot of work to do, and for the most part did it well, although he was handicapped by being hurt early in the game. The Montreal backs seemed to direct all their punts at him, and he caught well, although several fumbles were costly. Quinlan played a hard, effective game throughout, punting well when called upon to take Colledge's place in the second half. Mulhern handled the ball nicely, but the slippery field bothered him and he had trouble in staking off the Montreal wings. Lundy's tackling was one of the few bright spots in the game, so far as Peterborough was concerned. He cut short many promising runs by flying tackles that brought applause from the crowd. The wing line was working all the time, but was bothered by the condition of the field, and their tackling was off colour. Had it not been, Stinson and Craig would never have made so many long gains. Dickson was prominent by his following up and got the only try of the day that came Peterborough's way.

Russell Brittain of Gananoque, referred the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams, but the decisions of the umpire, Henry Burland of Montreal, were not so satisfactory to Peterborough, although they had no effect upon the result.

The teams were as follows:

Montreal	Peterborough
Back
Stinson	Mulhern
Right Half
Hamilton	Quinlan
Left Half
Russell	Crough
Centre Half
Craig	Colledge
	Davidson

The Play

Peterborough lost the toss and kicked off against the wind. Crough's kick went to Russell who returned to Colledge and the Montreal wings wings failed to give yards. Peterborough was given the ball at Montreal's 25 line and on the second scrimmage Colledge booted over the line to Hamilton, who dropped the ball when Crowley bumped into him and Dickson fell on the pigskin for a try which Crough converted neatly.

Montreal was not long in getting back the points. Colledge returned the kick-off but the Peterborough wings were offside and it was Montreal's ball thirty yards out. On the first scrimmage Gordon and Russell worked a nice criss-cross completely fooling the Peterboroughs and Gordon went over for a try which Molson failed to convert, Score Montreal 5, Peterborough 6.

Play was in midfield for the next few minutes, then Jimmy Craig got away for a twenty-five yard run and would have gone further if he had not slipped. Peterborough held Montreal for two downs and then Stinson punted to the deadline for a point, tying the score. Montreal 6, Peterborough 6.

From this point Montreal began to pile up the score. Colledge punted to centre field and Stinson picking up the ball galloped for fifty yards through the Peterborough team, being stopped just outside the line. Kelly buckled over for a try on the first scrimmage. Molson failed to convert. Montreal 11, Peterborough 6.

An offside by Montreal carried the play into their territory and Colledge tried a drop which went low, Russell relieving nicely. The Montreal wings followed up fast and play was at once back on Peterborough ground. Colledge took a hole through the line and went twenty yards before downed by Craig. Lesser stole the ball on the first scrimmage and Craig went forty yards for a try, which Molson converted. Montreal 17, Peterborough 6. Crough fumbled a punt in centre field, and Stephens dribbled over the line, where Kelly dropped on it for another try. Molson converted without trouble.

First quarter, score, Montreal, 23; Peterborough, 6.

Peterborough pressed at the beginning of the second quarter. Colledge kicked over to Stinson, who fumbled, and Russell picked up the ball in front of the full back. Peterborough were awarded a free kick and Colledge dropped a goal neatly. Montreal, 23; Peterborough, 8.

A fumble by Crough, who had been badly hurt a few minutes before, resulted in another try for Montreal. Stephens dribbled over the line, and there was a big pile-up, at the bottom of which was Lesser hugging the ball. Molson converted. Montreal, 29, Peterborough, 8.

Craig marked near centre field, and the Peterborough backs allowed the ball to get away from them, on the kick, Gilmour dribbled over, and fell on it for a try, which Molson converted. Montreal, 35; Peterborough, 8.

Just before half time Colledge punted over for rouge. Half time score, Peterborough, 9; Montreal 35.

Crowley retired at half time, and Canniff went on. Montreal scored at the beginning of the half on a combined run by Savage and Molson, which the latter converted. Montreal, 41; Peterborough, 9.

After an exchange of kicks in which neither side gained anything Colledge was hurt, and had to go off, his place being taken by Davidson, who went on the wing, while Canniff went to full back. Fumbles by the Peterborough backs carried the play into Peterborough territory right after the kick off. Stinson kicked over the line, and Savage dropped on the ball for one more try. Molson failed to convert, Montreal 46; Peterborough, 9.

Craig marked and on the free kick that followed Gilmour dribbled over the line. There was a mad rush for the ball and Mulhern, who reached it first tried to kick over the deadline but missed and Gilmour dropped on it for a try. Molson did not convert. Score Montreal 51, Peterborough 9.

Stinson kicked over the line for a rouge, Mulhern dropping on the ball in time to avert another try. Montreal 52, Peterborough 9.

Gordon tried a drop goal from the field, but it went short. Craig ran the kick back over the line into touch in goal. Montreal 53, Peterborough 9.

Play was in Peterborough territory all the time. Quinlan kicked from behind his line and the ball bounced back to Kelly, who fell on it for a try, and Molson converted. Montreal 59, Peterborough 9.

Reynolds was sent off for hugging Crough too affectionately.

The last quarter was a repetition of the other. Right at the start Russell ran thirty yards in brilliant fashion, and then Montreal bucked over for a try, Murphy carrying the ball. Molson converted. Montreal 65, Peterborough 9.

Another rouge gave Montreal one more point and before time was up they had made another try on a grand piece of combination by Gordon, Hamilton and Murphy, the latter carrying it over for a touch down which Molson failed to convert. Final score—Montreal 71, Peterborough 9.

THE TROOPER PREACHED AT PARK STREET

An Inspiring Sermon, Dealing With His Own Life

Large congregations greeted Trooper, the Rev. J O Brace at the Park street Baptist church yesterday. By request he based his morning sermon on the 27th Psalm'—David's war Psalm. This was the identical one he read on the eventful morning when six of the dashing C. M. R. engaged 60 Boers in deadly combat, and when two of their number were shot and the other 4 were were captured after an unequal fight of five cars.

At night the sermon was taken from Psalm 119; 165, "Great Peace have they who love their Lord." He showed the value of the Bible and said that eight thousand three hundred Y.M.C.A. centres were teaching its life-giving truths. He told of the meeting of the delegates at the recent convention in Washington, when 6,000 men gathered to listen to the Gospel address of Fred B. Smith. Four hundred workers were placed in position for work in after meeting; 208 men professed conversion during the day and 10 centres were occupied by different Y. M. C. A. speakers and 760 converts reported. The result was that a hundred thousand heard the Gospel in 3 days.

A RISING PETERBOROUGH YOUNG MAN

Mr. Thos. Dawson is Now Representing a Toronto Firm Between Port Arthur and the West

The many friends of Mr. Thomas Dawson will be pleased to learn that he has come home for a month's holidays. Mr. Dawson has been representing the Stewart & Company candy manufacturers, Toronto, between Port Arthur and Victoria. He is very well satisfied with his last trip and will leave again after Christmas. During his last trip he met several old Peterborough boys who are doing well in the West. "Tom" is one of Peterborough's most promising young men. He left here about two years ago to take a position as a traveller and the fact that the Stewart Company have assigned the whole of the Canadian Northwest to his care, is sufficient recommendation as to his business ability.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT THE BARRACKS

Dedication Festival Held—Winter Campaign and Weeks of Special Revival Meetings Begun

The dedication of the child of Bandsman and Mrs. Sargeant was held yesterday in the Salvation Army. There was a large crowd in attendance and twenty-four people went forward to the altar. The services were conducted by Staff-Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisie, and was the largest dedication festival they have had for some time.

Beginning with yesterday a week of revival meetings was begun under the special direction of Staff-Capt. Goodwin and Capt. Maisie.

Under the supervision of the Commissioner the winter campaign has begun. The army set up several targets to aim at such as increasing the army numbers, bringing in more converts and increasing the work in general.

PLACE THE TRANSMITTER AGAINST BREAST

Serves as Well as When Person Speaks Into It

St. Louis, December 2. — It is not necessary to place one's lips to the transmitter of a telephone to be heard at the other end of the wire. The same results may be obtained by placing the transmitter firmly against the chest, or in fact nearly every part of the body, and speaking in a clear, natural tone.

The new system was discovered on Saturday night by two young women, one living in Westminster place and the other in Delmar boulevard.

This was tried in the Examiner office to-day and worked successfully. The novelty of the scheme amused those who tried it but it is as good as the old way.

THEY WERE CAPITALLY TREATED

Peterborough Boys Had an Enjoyable Trip to Montreal

The Peterborough team and the three or four enthusiasts who accompanied them, had a most enjoyable trip to Montreal, and although the result of the game was a disappointment, the boys managed to put in a good time in the metropolis. The M.A.A.A. members proved capital hosts and the team is more than delighted over the way they were received. The palatial club house was thrown open to them on Saturday morning and most of the local men took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the magnificent building. The club had a special car coming and going. They left on the midnight train on Friday night and returned this morning at 5 o'clock.

Ross Dobbin has the matter in hand, and expects to have a last five, as Norrie Miller, Bob Hall and Alf. Hodgson, members of the old Brownies, twice junior champions of Ontario, are in the city, and there, with Dobbin, Art Mann and Max Yelland, to complete the team, would make a pretty likely looking five. The probable line up would be:—Forwards, Miller and Mann; centre, Hodgson; defence, Hall and Dobbin. Of the bunch, Dobbin Hall, Yellland and Mann are attending Varsity.—Toronto News.

Deed Of Nicholls Property Handed Over to The Council

Mr. Richard Hall Waited Upon Committee of the Whole Last Night and Gave the City the Deed of Simcoe Street Property---A Busy Meeting

The meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night was pleasantly surprised when they met previous to the regular Council meeting. Mr. Richard Hall handed over the deed of the old Richard Hall store on Simcoe street for a library the only proviso being that it be named the Nicholls Public Library. The building may be used or it may be sold, the proceeds to go toward a new building.

It was moved by Ald. Phelan, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the thanks of the Council be extended Mr. Hall a representative of the Nicholls estate. A standing vote of approval resulted. The presentation of the deed was gratefully accepted and a little discussion followed as to what should be done. Mayor McWilliams suggested that the council deal with the question as soon as possible as the present library building will soon have to be vacated.

It was also decided on motion by Ald. Elliott and Tovey that arrangements be made to have the outfall sewer south of Romaine street cleared out with a view to examining the conditions as they really exist.

The Drain Again

Regarding the culvert on Edinburgh street in connection with the Aylmer street drain Ald. Duncan stated that Mr. Rogue had offered the right of way through his lot for a 24 inch pipe drain.

Ald. Morrow seconded by Ald. Bradburn moved, that the matter be deferred for further consideration—Carried.

Romaine Street Crossing

A communication regarding the crossing of the extended portion of George street over Romaine street was received from Board of Railway Commissioners. The city engineer recommended that the city provide the crossing there and meet one half the cost of maintenance. Ald. Elliott asked whether maintenance included protection. On motion of Ald. Tovey, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, the engineer's report was adopted providing maintenance did not include protection.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Doan of the Bell Telephone Company for his favour in placing a telephone in the committee room.

Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the names of the boat house owners on city property be obtained by the Sanitary Inspector, and that he be asked to collect the fee of twenty-five cents from each owner.

The next meeting was arranged for Monday, Dec. 16th, when the last business of this council will be terminated.

Ald. Wilson called attention to the condition of the snow ploughs in the western part of the city, saying that they were the old wooden variety that mounted the snow but did not remove it. On motion of Ald. Phelan and Elliott, two new steel ploughs were decided to be purchased to replace the old ones.

Unpaid Taxes

The question of unpaid taxes was introduced and fully discussed. The report was favourable one a little over $8,200 not being handed in. This is as good a condition as has been experienced during the last few years. It was considered that the collector had done well and few seizures had been made upon the people. It was moved by Ald. Wilson, seconded by Ald. Tovey, that the tax collector be instructed to return to the committee a list of all ratepayers who have not paid taxes before Dec. 31st, with observations as to why they are not collected.—Carried.

JAMERSON LEE FINNEY IN "THE MAN ON THE BOX

Fortune sometimes comes to an actor when he least expects it. Jameson Lee Finney, Walter N. Lawrence's star in "The Man on the Box," can well say that when fortune knocked at his door he was near by, opened it wide and permitted the visitor to enter. It was in his younger days. He was playing a small part—comedy part—in a play that was not well known. Charles Fortenan chanced to be in the audience. He recognized the young actor's superior talents and engaged him immediately. For ten years he was a leading comedian in Mr. Frohman's companies. Mr Finney will be seen in this city in "The Man on the Box" at the Grand to-morrow evening, when playgoers of this city will have the opportunity of seeing him and when they do they will then fully comprehend the excellent judgment displayed by Mr. Frohman.

REPAIRING SEWER PIPE

Mr. John Thirnbeck, and his gang of men, are repairing the foundation of the sewer stench pipe at the foot of Lock street, on the Otonabee River. The foundation had been washed loose by the high waters in the spring. The men have a fire going continuously, but not for the purpose of keeping away the mosquitoes, as the banks of the Otonabee are feeling the effects of Jack Frost.

FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF MERCHANTS

Owing to the conflicting of the changed numbers of some of the houses of the city with the numbers in the directory, the merchants and other business men, have asked the council, that something be done to get a list of the new numbers, and that they be published. The change has been a great inconvenience, in the affected district, and the members of the council were agreeable that something should be done. Accordingly it was moved by Ald. Tovey and seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the city treasurer be asked to co-operate with the commissioners in preparing a list of the changed street numbers.—Carried.

When the list is ready it is proposed to have it printed, and the business men can change the addresses in their directories.

A SUBSCRIBER DEMANDS JUSTICE

States His Case and Asks for the Reason

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — As a daily reader of the Examiner, I would like to ask how the city authorities can maintain their reputation of treating the citizens with merely even-handed justice, and act as they have done in an affair which I myself have been concerned.

On Thursday evening, November 14th, three of my cows strayed from my yard, just south of the exhibition grounds, and although I searched until nine o'clock, I was unable to find them. On Friday morning they were found in the city limits and on private property, but, as far as I can learn, they had done no harm. However, I had to appear in the police court, and paid five dollars for allowing them to stray. Now, I am not complaining on this account, but because of the fact that other people in the neighbourhood have allowed their cattle to stray at night and on private property, and they have been warned not to let that occur again.

I cannot understand why the same favour was not granted to me. I had made an honest effort to find them that night, but still no consideration was made for this in my case. All I ask for in this British colony is a little of that play which we all enjoyed in the Mother Country, and when a policeman warns others and for the same offence lays an information against me there is surely a miscarriage of justice somewhere.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness, I remain,

Yours, etc.,
JAMES SKIPPEN.

Sunday Funerals Were Discussed

Ministerial Association Had an Important Meeting Yesterday—Arrangements Made for the Annual Civic Sermon.

DR. MARSH'S ADDRESS

At the regular meeting of the Ministerial Association of Peterborough, held yesterday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A., several matters of importance were taken up. There was a large attendance of the ministers of the city, and the session was an interesting and a profitable one.

The first matter discussed was the method of collecting for the Bible Society in Peterborough. On motion of Rev. Dr. Marsh, seconded by Rev. J. G. Potter, it was decided to have the association appoint duly authorised collectors. The matter was left in the hands of the president and secretary.

Arrangements were made for the Week of Prayer which it was decided will be held during the first full week in January, with the meetings as follows:

Monday, St. Andrew's.
Tuesday, Murray street and Park street Baptist.
Wednesday, George street Methodist.
Thursday, Knox church, and Mark street Methodist.
Friday, St. Paul's church.

The matter of selecting ministers and subjects was left in the hands of the president and secretary.

An offering will be taken at the last meeting to defray the expenses.

A resolution was passed endorsing the action of the Sabbath School Association of this city and commending its action in deciding to continue the open sessions during the next quarter. The question of Sunday funerals was thoroughly discussed, and a committee was appointed to confer with the officials of the Little Lake Cemetry Company with respect to the matter, and to report at the next meeting.

Arrangements were made for the annual civic sermon, which will be preached this year in the Murray street Baptist church, by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb.

The Hospital appointments for the month were as follows—

First week, Rev C H Coon.
Second week, Rev. Canon Davidson.
Third week, Rev H M Manning.
Fourth week, Rev A H Brace.
Fifth week, Rev Mr Reid.

The address of the morning was given by Rev. Mr. Marsh, the subject being "The Heavens declare the glory of God." The address was an eloquent and profitable one and was followed with close attention by the members of the association.

HAIR WON'T FALL OUT

If you Kill the Dandruff Germ With the new Treatment

John N. Fuller, a well-known citizen of Colfax, Wash., says: "I had dandruff so badly that it eaked on my scalp. Herpicide completely cured me." George H. They took the only really sensible treatment, a remedy that destroys the dandruff germ—Newbro's Herpicide. Stop dandruff, hair won't fall out, but will grow naturally, luxuriantly. SNOW BY-LAW AGAIN TO THE FORE

Remains Unchanged But Will Be Enforced

The celebrated bylaw that was the subject of so much comment last winter was again discussed by the Council at the committee meeting last night. It was the bylaw that provides for the cleaning of the sidewalks of snow in the central part of the city. The question of when the sidewalk was better with the snow on was dealt with, but the members were adverse to changing the bylaw. It is therefore a duty to call the attention of the people to the fact that within the fire limits the walks must be kept clean without unnecessarily damaging the pavement. It was suggested that the chief use his own discretion in enforcing the law, and any flagrant violations will certainly bring trouble to the guilty parties.

You have Not One Reason for Not Using

Zutoo

Some people think that all headache cures are alike—that they all undermine the health, even if not perceived at the time of taking them.

Well, we'll admit that some cures do this, those, for example, which contain opium, morphine, antipyrene or chloral.

But this is no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

Zutoo Tablets do not contain one iota of any of the drugs above mentioned. They do not contain a single ingredient that does not come from Old Mother Earth herself.

One ingredient is soda—just old-fashioned soda that our grandmothers used to take to settle the stomach when they had sick headache.

There is not one ingredient in Zutoo tablets that is not approved by both the British and American Pharmacopoeias. And the world has no higher authority in medicine than these.

Your family physician, even if a personal friend, would approve of and prescribe every ingredient.

There is absolutely no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

If you suffer from headache there is every reason why you should.

Taken in time, two tablets will ward off a headache. Taken later, they will stop it in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling bright and well in both mind and body.

It is Harmless as Soda

DOES THIS INTEREST YOU?

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder diseases, attributes a great deal of his success to the following simple vegetable prescription:—

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;

One ounce Compound Salatone;

Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mix, shake well, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Your druggist can supply the ingredients, and the mixture can be prepared at home at very little expense.

This, the doctor says, acts directly on the kidneys, assisting them to filter the poisons from the blood and expel same in the urine, at the same time restoring the kidneys to healthy, normal action.

We feel that a great many readers will be pleased to learn of this simple prescription, and knowing the ability of the physician whose formula it is, we do not hesitate to recommend it to any sufferer.

After lunch a dismal drizzle set in that presently increased to a steady downpour, which drove Lermontoff to his cabin, and, that room being unprovided with either window or electric light, the prince struck a match to one of the candles newly placed on the washstand. He pushed the electric button summoning the steward and, giving him some money, asked if there was such a thing as a piece of stone on board, carried as ballast or for any other purpose. The steward said he would inquire and finally returned with a sharpening stone used for the knives in the galley. Bolting his door, Lermontoff began an experiment and at once forgot he was a prisoner. He filled the wash basin with water and, opening one of the glass stoppered bottles, took out with the point of his knife a most minute portion of the substance within, which he dissolved in the water with no apparent effect. Standing the whetstone up on end, he filled the glass syringe and directed a fine, vaporous spray against the stone. It dissolved before his eyes as a sand castle on the shore dissolves at the touch of an incoming tide.

"By St. Peter of Russia," he cried, "I've got it at last! I must write to Katherine about this."

Summoning the steward again to take away this fluid and bring him another pailful of fresh water, Lermontoff endeavored to extract some information from the deferential young man.

"Have you ever been in Stockholm?"

"No, excellency."

"Or in any of the German ports?"

"No, excellency."

"Do you know where we are making for now?"

"No, excellency."

"Nor when we shall reach our destination?"

"No, excellency."

"You have some prisoners aboard?"

"Three drunken sailors, excellency."

"Yes, that's what the captain said. But if it meant death for a sailor to be drunk the commerce of the world would speedily stop."

"This is a government steamer, excellency, and if a sailor here disobeys orders he is guilty of mutiny. On a merchant vessel they would merely put him in irons."

"I see. Now, do you want to earn a few gold pieces?"

"Excellency has been very generous to me already," was the noncommittal reply of the steward, whose eyes nevertheless twinkled at the mention of gold.

"Well, here's enough to make a jingle in your pocket, and here are two letters which you are to try to get delivered when you return to St. Petersburg."

"Yes, excellency."

"You will do your best?"

"Yes, excellency."

"Well, if you succeed I'll make your fortune when I'm released."

"Thank you, excellency."

That night at dinner the captain opened a bottle of vodka and conversed genially on many topics without touching upon the particular subject of liberty. He partook sparingly of the stimulant, and, to Lermontoff's disappointment, it did not in the least loosen his tongue, and thus, still ignorant of his fate, the prince turned in for the second night aboard the steamer.

When he awoke next morning he found the engines had stopped and, as the vessel was motionless, surmised it had reached harbor. He heard the intermittent chuck-chuck of a pony engine and the screech of an imperfectly oiled crane and guessed that cargo was being put ashore.

"Now," he said to himself, "if my former sentinel is at the door they are going to take me to prison. If he is absent, I am to be set free."

He jumped up, threw back the bolt, opened the door. There was no one there. In a very few minutes he was on deck and found that the steamer was lying in the lee of a huge rock, which reminded him of Mont St. Michel in Normandy, except that it was about half again as high and three times as long and that there were no buildings of any kind upon it, nor, indeed, the least sign of human habitation.

The morning was fine. In the east the sun had just risen and was flooding the grim rock with a rosy light. Except this rock no trace of land was visible as far as the eye could see. Alongside the steamer was moored a sailing boat with two masts, but provided also with thole pins and sweeps for rowing. The sails were furled, and she had evidently been brought to the steamer's side by means of the oars. Into this craft the crane was lowering boxes, bags and whatnot, which three or four men were stowing away. The mate was superintending this transshipment, and the captain, standing with his back against the deckhouse, was handing one by one certain papers, which Lermontoff took to be bills of lading, to a young man who signed in a book for each he received. When this transaction was completed, the young man sainted the captain and descended over the ship's side of the sailboat.

"Good morning, captain. At anchor, I see," said Lermontoff.

"No, not at anchor. Merely lying here. The sea is too deep and affords no anchorage at this point."

"Where are all these goods going?"

The captain nodded his head at the rock, and Lermontoff gazed at it again, running his eyes from top to bottom without seeing any vestige of civilization.

"Then you lie to the lee of this rock, and the small boat takes the supplies ashore?"

"Exactly," said the captain.

"The settlement, I take it, is on the other side. What is it—a lighthouse?"

"There's no lighthouse," said the captain.

"Sort of coastguard, then?"

"Yes, in a way. They keep a lookout. And now, highness, I see your overcoat is on your back. Have you left anything in your room?"

"Hypasti, your highness."

The prince laughed.

"No, captain; I forgot to bring a portmanteau with me."

"Then I must say farewell to you here."

"What, you are not going to maroon me on this pebble in the ocean?"

"You will be well taken care of, highness."

"What place is this?"

"It is called the Trogsmondoff, highness, and the water surrounding you is the Baltic."

"Is it Russian territory?"

"Very, very Russian," returned the captain, drawing a deep breath. "This way, if your highness pleases. There is a rope ladder, which is sometimes a little unsteady for a landsman, so be careful."

"Oh, I'm accustomed to rope ladders. Hyvasti, captain."

"Hyvasti, your highness."

And with this mutual goodby in Finnish the prince went down the swaying ladder.

CHAPTER XV.

FOR once the humorous expression had vanished from Captain Kempt's face, and that good natured man sat in the dainty drawing room of the flat a picture of perplexity. Dorothy had told him the story of the nihilist, saying she intended to purchase the yacht and outlining what she proposed to do with it when it was her own. Now she sat silent opposite the genial captain, while Katherine stood by the window and talked enough for two, sometimes waxing indignant and occasionally giving it terse language an opinion of her father, as is the blessed privilege of every girl born in the land of the free, while the father took the censure with the unprotesting mildness of his nature.

"My dear girls, you really must listen to reason. What you propose to do is so absurd that it doesn't even admit of argument. Why, it's a filibustering expedition, that's what it is. You girls are as crazy as Walker of Nicaragua. Do you imagine that a retired captain of the United States navy is going to take command of a pirate craft of far less legal standing than the Alabama, for then we were at war, but now we are at peace. Do you actually propose to attack the domain of a friendly country? Oh!" cried the captain, with a mighty explosion of breath, for at this point his supply of language entirely gave out.

"No one would know anything about it," persisted Katherine.

"Not know about it? With a crew of men picked up here in New York and coming back to New York? Not know about it? Bless my soul, the papers would be full of it before your men were an hour on shore. In the first place, you'd never find the rock."

"Then what's the harm of going in search of it?" demanded his daughter. "Besides that, Johnson knows exactly where it is."

"Johnson, Johnson! You're surely not silly enough to believe Johnson's cock and bull story?"

"I believe every syllable he uttered. The man's face showed that he was speaking the truth."

"But, my dear Kate, you didn't see him at all, as I understand the yarn. He was here alone with you, was he not, Dorothy?"

Dorothy smiled sadly.

"I told Kate all about it and gave my own impression of the man's appearance."

"You are too sensible a girl to place any credit in what he said surely?"

"I did believe him nevertheless," replied Dorothy.

"Why, look you here. False in one thing, false in all. I'll just take a single point. He speaks of a spring sending water through the cells up there in the rock. Now, that is an impossibility. Wherever a spring exists, it comes from a source higher than itself."

"There are lots of springs up in the mountains," interrupted Katherine. "I know one on Mount Washington that is ten times as high as the Rock in the Baltic."

"Quite so, Katherine, quite so, but nevertheless there is a lake, subterraneous or above ground, which feeds your White Mountain spring, and such a lake must be situated higher than the spring is. Why, girl, you ought to study hydrometeorology as well as chemistry. Here is a rock jutting up in midocean"—

"It's in the Baltic, near the Russian coast," snapped Kate, "and I've no doubt there are mountains in Finland that contain the lake which feeds the spring."

"How far is that rock from the Finnish coast, then?"

"Two miles and a half," said Kate quick as an arrow speeding from a bow.

"Captain, we don't know how far it is from the coast," amended Dorothy.

"I'll never believe the thing exists at all."

"Why, yes it does, father. How can you speak like that? Don't you know Lieutenant Drummond fired at it?"

"How do you know it was the same rock?"

"Because the rock fired back at him. There can't be two like that in the Baltic."

"No, nor one either," said the captain, nearing the end of his patience.

"Captain Kempt," said Dorothy very soothingly, as if she desired to quell the rising storm, "you take the allegation about the spring of water to prove that Johnson was telling untruths. I expect him here within an hour, and I will arrange that you have an opportunity, privately, of cross examining him. I think when you see the man and listen to him you will believe. What makes me so sure that he is telling the truth is the fact that he mentioned the foreign vessel firing at this rock, which I knew to be true, and which he could not possibly have learned anything about."

"He might very well have learned all particulars from the papers," Dorothy. They were full enough of the subject at the time, and, remembering this, he thought to strengthen his story by"—

Katherine interrupted with great scorn.

"By adding verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative."

"Quite so, Kate. Exactly what I was going to say myself. But, to come back to the project itself, granting the existence of the rock, granting the truth of Johnson's story, granting everything, granting even that the young men are imprisoned there, of which we have not the slightest proof, we could no more succeed in capturing that place from a frail pleasure yacht"—

"It's built like a cruiser," said Katherine.

"Even if it were built like a battleship we would have no chance whatever. Why, that rock might defy a regular fleet. Our venture would simply be a marine Jameson raid which would set the whole world laughing when people came to hear of it."

"Johnson said he could take it with half a dozen men."

"No, Kate," corrected Dorothy; "he said the very reverse; that two or three determined men on the rock with repeating rifles could defeat a host. It was I who suggested that we should throw a shell and then rush the entrance in the confusion."

Captain Kempt threw up his hands in a gesture of despair.

"Great heavens, Dorothy Amherst, whom I have always regarded as the mildest, sweetest and most charming of girls, to hear you calmly propose to throw a shell among a lot of innocent men defending their own territory against a perfectly unauthorized invasion! Throw a shell, say you, as if you were talking of tossing a copper to a beggar! Oh, Lord, I'm growing old! What will become of this younger generation? Well, I give it up. Dorothy, my dear, whatever will happen to those unfortunate Russians I shall never recover from the shock of your shell. The thing is absolutely impossible. Can't you see that the moment you get down to details? How are you going to procure your shells or your shell firing gun? They are not to be bought at the first hardware store you come to on Sixth avenue."

"Johnson says he can get them," proclaimed Kate, with finality.

"Oh, damn Johnson! Dorothy, I beg your pardon, but really this daughter of mine, combined with that Johnson of yours, is just a little more than I can bear."

"Then what are we to do?" demanded his daughter. "Sit here with folded hands?"

"That would be a great deal better than what you propose. You should do something sane. You mustn't involve a pair of friendly countries in war. Of course the United States would utterly disclaim your act and discredit me if I were lunatic enough to undertake such a wild goose chase, which I'm not. But, on the other hand, if two of our girls undertook such an expedition no man can predict the public clamor that might arise. Why, when the newspapers get hold of a question you never know where they will end it. Undoubtedly you two girls should be sent to prison, and with equal undoubtedness the American people wouldn't permit it."

"You bet they wouldn't," said Katherine, dropping into slang.

"Well, then, if they wouldn't there's war."

"One moment, Captain Kempt," said Dorothy again in her mildest tones, for voices had again begun to run high. "You spoke of doing something sane. You understand the situation. What should you counsel us to do?"

The captain drew a long breath and leaned back in his chair.

"There, dad, it's up to you," said Katherine. "Let us hear your proposal, and then you'll learn how easy it is to criticise."

"Well," said the captain hesitatingly, "there's our diplomatic service"—

"Utterly useless. One man is a Russian and the other an Englishman. Diplomacy not only can do nothing, but won't even try," cried Kate triumphantly.

"Yet," said the captain, with little confidence, "although the two men are foreigners, the two girls are Americans."

"We don't count; we've no votes," said Kate. "Besides, Dorothy tried the diplomatic service and could not even get accurate information from it. Now, father, third time and out."

"Four balls are out, Kate, and I've only fanned the air twice. Now, girls, I'll tell you what I'd do. You two come with me to Washington. We will seek a private interview with the president. He will get into communication with the czar, also privately and outside of all regular channels. The czar will put machinery in motion that is sure to produce those two young men much more effectually and speedily than any cutthroat expedition on a yacht."

"I think," said Dorothy, "that is an excellent plan."

What Joy to be Freed From Piles

THERE IS SCARCELY A SUFFERER IN THIS BROAD LAND BUT CAN BE CURED BY

The utter misery and despair of the sufferer from a severe case of piles, or hemorrhoids cannot be described in words.

It is not only the intense itching and stinging which in themselves are bad enough, not only the dread of a surgical operation, with its pain, expense and danger, but the whole system seems to be undermined, and as the ailment drags on from day to day, and year to year, one becomes discouraged, despondent, and in despair gives up all hope of cure.

The joy which cured ones experience on being cured from itching, bleeding and protruding piles, is told in the thousands of letters which we have received from time to time.

You need not tell the writers of these letters that there is a case of which Dr. Chase's Ointment will not cure, for they will not believe it. They alone know how they suffered, and also know that Dr. Chase's Ointment cured them. In many cases the cures were almost like miracles, so little ointment was used. In other cases, while relief came quickly, cure was only affected by the persistent use of several boxes of the Ointment.

W. K. Talbot, of Talbot Bros., tobacco merchants, 322 George street, Peterborough, Ont., states: "It is from a desire to help other sufferers that I offer a statement of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for itching piles. I was for a long time troubled with this unpleasant and torturing disease and though I tried many treatments remained unCured until I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. It was highly recommended to me, and I find that every word of praise that is given to it is true. I can truthfully say that I am completely cured, and knowing the misery that this ailment produces, I am anxious for others to know of the surprising virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

It matters not how long you have suffered, if you have itching, bleeding or protruding piles Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve and cure you, and it is the only positive and guaranteed cure for every form of piles; 60 cts. a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

"Of course it is!" cried the captain enthusiastically. "Don't you see the pull the president will have? Why, they've put an Englishman into 'the jug,' and when the president communicates this fact to the czar he will be afraid to refuse, knowing that the next appeal may be from America to England, and when you add a couple of American girls to that political mixup, why, what chance has the czar?"

"The point you raise, captain," said Dorothy, "is one I wish to say a few words about. The president cannot get Mr. Drummond released because the czar and all his government will be compelled to deny that they know anything of him. Even the president couldn't guarantee that the Englishman would keep silence if he were set at liberty. The czar would know that, but your plan would undoubtedly produce Prince Ivan Lermontoff. All the president has to do is to tell the czar that the prince is engaged to an American girl and Lermontoff will be allowed to go."

"But," objected the captain, "as the prince knows the Englishman is in prison, how could they be sure of John keeping quiet when Drummond is his best friend?"

"He cannot know that, because the prince was arrested several days before Drummond was."

"They have probably chucked them both into the same cell," said the captain, but Dorothy shook her head.

"If they had intended to do that they would doubtless have arrested them together. I am sure that one does not know the fate of the other, therefore the czar can quite readily let Lermontoff go, and he is certain to do that at a word from the president. Besides this, I am as confident that Jack is not in the Trogzmondoff as I am sure that Drummond is. Johnson said it was a prison for foreigners."

"Oh, Dorothy," cried the captain, with a deep sigh, "if we've got back again to Johnson"— He waved his hand and shook his head.

The maid opened the door and said, looking at Dorothy:

"Mr. Paterson and Mr. Johnson."

"Just show them into the morning room," said Dorothy, rising. "Captain Kempt, it is awfully good of you to have listened so patiently to a scheme of which you couldn't possibly approve."

"Patiently!" sniffed the daughter.

"Now I want you to do me another kindness."

She went to the desk and picked up a piece of paper.

"Here is a check I have signed—a blank check. I wish you to buy the yacht Walrus just as she stands and make the best bargain you can for me. A man is so much better at this kind of negotiation than a woman."

"I wish you to buy the yacht Walrus just as she stands."

"But surely, my dear Dorothy, you won't persist in buying this yacht?"

"It's her own money, father," put in Katherine.

"Keep quiet," said the captain, rising, for the first time speaking with real severity, whereupon Katherine, in spite of the fact that she was older than twenty-one, was wise enough to obey.

"Yes, I am quite determined, captain," said Dorothy sweetly.

"But, my dear woman, don't you see how you've been hoodwinked by this man Johnson? He is shy of a job. He has already swindled you out of $20,000."

"No; he asked for $10,000 only, Captain Kempt, and I voluntarily doubled the amount."

"Nevertheless he has worked you up to believe that these young men are in that rock. He has done this for a very crafty purpose, and his purpose seems likely to succeed. He knows he will be well paid, and you have promised him a bonus besides. If he, with his Captain Kidd crew, gets you on that yacht, you will only step ashore by giving him every penny you possess. That's his object. He knows you are starting out to commit a crime—that's the word, Dorothy; there's no use in our mincing matters—you will be perfectly helpless in his hands. Of course I could not allow my daughter Kate to go on such an expedition."

"I am over twenty-one years old," cried Kate, the light of rebellion in her eyes.

"I do not intend that either of you shall go, Katherine."

"Dorothy, I'll not submit to that," cried Katherine, with a rising tremor of anger in her voice. "I shall not be set aside like a child. Who has more at stake than I? And as for capturing the rock, I'll dynamite it myself and bring home as large a specimen of it as the yacht will carry and set it up on Bedloe's island beside the goddess and say, 'There's your statue of Liberty, and there's your statue of Tyranny!'"

"Katherine," chided her father, "I never before believed that a child of mine could talk such driveling nonsense."

"Paternal heredity, father," retorted Kate.

"Your presidential plan, Captain Kempt," interposed Dorothy, "is excellent so far as Prince Lermontoff is concerned, but it cannot rescue Lieutenant Drummond. Now, there are two things you can do for me that will make me always your debtor, as, indeed, I am already, and the first is to purchase for me the yacht. The second is to forth your own judgment of the man Johnson and if you distrust him then engage for me one-half the crew and see that they are picked Americans."

"First sane idea I have heard since I came into this flat," growled the captain.

"The Americans won't let the Finlander hold me for ransom, you may depend upon that."

It was a woebegone look the gallant captain cast on the demure and determined maiden; then, feeling his daughter's eye upon him, he turned toward her.

"I'm going, father," she said, with a firmness quite equal to his own, and he, on his part, recognized when his daughter had toed the danger line. He indulged in a laugh that had little of mirth in it.

"All I can say is that I am thankful you haven't made up your minds to kidnap the czar. Of course you are going, Kate. So am I."

CHAPTER XVI.

As the sailing boat cast off and was shoved away from the side of the steamer there were eight men aboard. Six grasped the oars, and the young clerk who had signed the documents given to him by the captain took the rudder, motioning Lermontoff to a seat beside him. All the forward part of the boat and indeed the space well back toward the stern was piled with boxes and bags.

"What is this place called?" asked the prince, but the young steersman did not reply.

Tying the boat to iron rings at the small landing where the steps began, three of the men shipped their oars. Each threw a bag over his shoulder, walked up half a dozen steps and waited. The clerk motioned Lermontoff to follow, so he stepped on the shelf of rock and looked upward at the rugged stairway cut between the main island and an outstanding perpendicular ledge of rock. The steps were so narrow that the procession had to move up in Indian file—three men with bags, then the prince and the clerk, followed by three more men with boxes. Lermontoff counted 237 steps, which brought him to an elevated platform projecting from a doorway cut in the living rock, but shielded from all sight of the sea. The eastern sun shone through this doorway, but did not illumine sufficiently the large room whose walls, ceiling and floor were of solid stone. At the farther end a man in uniform sat behind a long table on which burned an oil lamp with a green shade. At his right hand stood a broad, round brazier containing glowing coals, after the oriental fashion, and the officer was holding his two hands over it and rubbing them together. The room nevertheless struck chill as a cellar, and Lermontoff heard a constant smothered roar of water.

The clerk, stepping forward and saluting, presented to the governor seated there the papers and envelopes given him by the captain. The officer selected a blue sheet of paper and scrutinized it for a moment under the lamp.

"Where are the others?"

"We have landed first the supplies, governor, then the boat will return for the others."

The governor nodded and struck a bell with his open palm. There entered a big man with a bunch of keys at his belt, followed by another, who carried a lighted lantern.

"No. 9," said the governor to the jailer.

"I beg your pardon, sir, am I a prisoner?" asked Lermontoff.

The governor gave utterance to a sound that was more like the grunt of a pig than the ejaculation of a man. He did not answer, but looked up at the questioner, and the latter saw that his face, gaunt almost as that of a living skeleton, was pallid as putty.

"No. 9," he repeated, whereupon the jailer and the man with the lantern put a hand each on Lermontoff's shoulders and marched him away. They walked together down a long passage, the swaying lantern casting its yellow rays on the iron bolts of door after door until at last the jailer stopped, threw back six bolts, inserted a key, unlocked the door and pushed it ponderously open. The lantern showed it to be built like the door of a safe; but, unlike that of a safe, it opened inward. As soon as the door came ajar Lermontoff heard the sound of flowing water, and when the three entered he noticed a rapid little stream sparkling in the rays of the lantern at the further end of the cell. He saw a shelf of rock and a stone bench before it. The jailer placed his hands on a black loaf, while the other held up the lantern.

"That will last you four days," said the jailer.

"Well, my son, judging from the unappetizing look of it, I think it will last me much longer."

The jailer made no reply, but he and the man with the lantern retired, drawing the door heavily after them. Lermontoff heard the bolts thrust into place and the turn of the key. Then silence fell, all but the babbling of the water. He stood still in the center of the cell, his hands thrust deep in the pockets of his overcoat, and, in spite of this heavy garment, he shivered a little.

"Jack, my boy," he muttered, "this is a new deal, as they say in the west. I can imagine a man going crazy here if it wasn't for that stream. I never knew what darkness meant before. Well, let's find out the size of our kingdom."

He groped for the wall and, stumbling against the stone bench, whose existence he had forgotten, pitched head forward to the table and sent the four day loaf rolling on the floor. He made an ineffectual grasp after the loaf, fearing it might fall into the stream and be lost to him, but he could not find it, and now his designs for measuring the cell gave place to the desire of finding that loaf. He got down on his hands and knees and felt the stone floor inch by inch for half an hour, as he estimated the time, but never once did he touch the bread.

"How helpless a man is in the dark, after all!" he muttered to himself. "I must do this systematically, beginning at the edge of the stream."

On all fours he reached the margin of the rivulet and felt his way along the brink till his head struck the opposite wall. He turned round, took up a position that he guessed was three feet nearer the door and again traversed the room, becoming so eager in the search that he forgot for the moment the horror of his situation, just as when engaged in a chemical experiment everything else vanished from his mind, and thus after several journeys back and forth he was again reminded of the existence of the stone bench by butting against it when he knew he was several feet from the wall. Rubbing his head, he muttered some unfavorable phrases regarding the immovable bench, then crawled round it twice and resumed his transverse excursions. At last he reached the wall that held the door and now with breathless eagerness rubbed his shoulder against it till he came to the opposite corner. He knew he had touched with knees and hands practically every square inch of space in the floor, and yet no bread.

"Now, that's a disaster," cried he, getting up on his feet and stretching himself. "Still, a man doesn't starve in four days. I've cast my bread on the waters. It has evidently gone down the stream. Now, what's to hinder a man escaping by means of that water course? Still, if he did, what would be the use? He'd float out into the Baltic sea and if able to swim round the rock would merely be compelled to knock at the front door and beg admission again. No, by Jove! There's the boat, but they probably guard it night and day, and a man in the water would have no chance against one in the boat. Perhaps there's gratings between the cells. Of course there's bound to be. No one would leave the bed of a stream clear for any one to navigate. Prisoners would visit each other in their cells, and that's not allowed in any respectable prison. I wonder if there's any one next door on either side of me. An iron grid won't keep out the sound. I'll try." And, going again to the margin of the watercourse, he shouted several times as loudly as he could, but only a sepulchral echo, as if from a vault, replied to him.

"I imagine the adjoining cells are empty. No enjoyable companionship to be expected here. I wonder if they've got the other poor devils up from the steamer yet. I'll sit down on the bench and listen."

He could have found the bench and shelf almost immediately by groping round the wall, but he determined to exercise his sense of direction, to pit himself against the darkness.

"I need not hurry," he said, "I may be a long time here."

In his mind he had a picture of the cell, but now that he listened to the water it seemed to have changed its direction, and he found he had to rearrange this mental picture and make a different set of calculations to fit the new position. Then he shuffled slowly forward with hands outstretched, but he came to the wall and not to the bench. Again he mapped out his route, again endeavored and again failed.

"This is bewildering," he muttered. "How the darkness baffles a man! For the first time in my life I appreciate to the full the benediction of God's command, 'Let there be light.'"

He stood perplexed for a few moments, and, deeply thinking, his hands automatically performed an operation as the servants of habit. They took from his pocket his cigarette case, selected a tube of tobacco, placed it between his lips, searched another pocket, brought out a matchbox and struck a light. The striking of the match startled Lermontoff as if it had been an explosion; then he laughed, holding the match above his head, and there at his feet saw the loaf of black bread. It seemed as if somebody had twisted the room end for end. The door was where he thought the stream was, and thus he learned that sound gives no indication of direction to a man blindfolded. The match began to wane, and feverishly he lit his cigarette.

"Why didn't I think of the matches, and, oh, what a pity I failed to fill my pockets with them that night of the professor's dinner party! To think that matches are selling at this moment in Sweden 250 for a halfpenny!"

Guided by the spark at the end of his cigarette, he sought the bench and sat down upon it. He was surprised to find himself so little depressed as was actually the case. He did not feel in the least disheartened. Something was going to happen on his behalf. Of that he was quite certain. It was perfectly ridiculous that even in Russia a loyal subject who had never done any illegal act in his life, a nobleman of the empire and a friend of the czar should be incarcerated for long without trial and even without accusation. He had no enemies that he knew of and many friends, and yet he experienced a vague uneasiness when he remembered that his own course of life had been such that he would not be missed by his friends. For more than a year he had been in England, at sea, and in America, so much absorbed in his researches that he had written no private letters worth speaking of; and if any friend were asked his whereabouts he was likely to reply:

At the farther end a man in uniform sat behind a long table.

"Oh, Lermontoff is in some German university town or in England or traveling elsewhere. I haven't seen him or heard of him for months. Lost in a wilderness or in an experiment perhaps."

These unhappy meditations were interrupted by the clang of bolts. He thought at first it was his own door that was being opened, but a moment later knew it was the door of the next cell upstream. The sound of course could not penetrate the extremely thick wall, but came through the aperture whose roof arched the watercourse. From the voices he estimated that several prisoners were being put into one cell, and he wondered whether or not he cared for a companion. It would all depend. If fellow prisoners hated each other, their enforced proximity might prove unpleasant.

"We are hungry," he heard one say. "Bring us food."

The jailer laughed.

"I will give you something to drink first."

"That's right!" three voices shouted. "Vodka, vodka!"

Then the door clanged shut again, and he heard the murmur of voices in Russian, but could not make out what was said. One of the new prisoners, groping round, appeared to have struck the stone bench, as he himself had done. The man in the next cell swore coarsely, and Lermontoff, judging from such snatches of their conversation as he could hear that they were persons of a low order, felt no desire to make their more intimate acquaintance and so did not shout to them, as he had intended to do. And now he missed something that had become familiar; thought it was a cigarette he desired, for the one he had lit had been smoked to his very lips, then he recognised it was the murmur of the stream that had ceased.

PRESENTS FOR MEN.

Things Suitable For the Library or the Den.

Nothing more suitable or substantial in the way of Christmas presents for men has been shown this year than the articles made of willow and leather for use in the library or den or even in a hall.

Some very attractive waste paper baskets and umbrella stands are seen in this effective combination of materials. They may be had in green, red or brown willow with leather to correspond, and the owner's initial, or more often his monogram, in brass letters may be had by way of ornamentation.

For the automobilist who wants to smoke and automobile at the same time there is a new cigar protector that comes in either gold or silver. The end is perforated, the tiny holes being sufficiently long to allow the smoke to go out and the air to come in without inconvenience to the smoker. Yet the cigar will stay lighted regardless of the rate of speed.

CIGAR PROTECTOR.

For the yachting enthusiast there is an attractive little clock mounted in brass and wood to represent a steering wheel. For the benefit of people whose space is limited is the brush rack that is intended to hang on the wall. A small colored print ornaments it at the top, and the hooks are sufficiently long to allow the brushes to hang so that the bristles are protected.

A new whisk broom has a stirrup for a holder, while the broom itself has a leather handle, and a most effective watch hanger is also in the shape of a stirrup in brass, the watch hanging from a small leather strap.

Since the rage for knitting and crocheting has taken such a hold on the feminine contingent the fashion for knitted and crocheted articles has gained greatly in popularity. One of the prettiest gifts imaginable for the woman who goes out a great deal is a theater bag of crocheted silk that is capacious enough to hold all of the small articles that she may need.

Crochet rings very loosely in single stitches or make squares by crocheting solid stitches and connecting them by chains of four stitches each until a long piece has been made, which, when folded over and the edges joined, will form a bag. Line this with pretty silk of a contrasting color. Cover ten brass rings with the silk crocheted in a single stitch, fasten them in a row an inch below the top and run a cord through these rings to draw the top together.

HAD A STAB-LIKE PAIN THROUGH THE HEART.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS CURED HER AND SAVED HER LIFE.

There is no one, we imagine, sets about deliberately to do injury to the heart, yet in the excitement and excesses of present-day living, the nervous system is done violence to, and the heart and nerves being so intimately bound up with one another, disorganization of the one means disease and disorder of the other.

When you find your heart the least bit out of rhyme, your nerves unhinged, don't wait until you are prostrated on a bed of sickness. Take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They'll put you in such condition you'll never know you have a heart, make your brain clear and active, your nerves strong, your blood rich and pure, and your whole being thrill with a new life.

Mrs. John C. Yensen, Little Rocher, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with a stab-like pain through my heart. I tried many remedies but they seemed to do me more harm than good. I was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I was completely cured. I cannot praise them enough for the world of good they did me for I believe they saved my life."

THE BOTTLE IMP.

An Amusing Toy That Any Clever Boy May Readily Make.

Compressed air is the principle of the interesting and amusing experiment here described. All the apparatus needed is a wide mouthed fruit jar and a little medicine pellet bottle. Fill the small bottle about two-thirds full of water, place the finger over the top and immerse it bottom upward in the jar of water. If it sinks you have too much water in it. Pour out just enough so that the little bottle will just barely float. Now get a piece of thin rubber, which you can procure at any drug store, and stretch it tightly over the mouth of the bottle, fastening it with a string just beneath the mouth. Press on the rubber and see what happens. The little bottle immediately sinks, and when the pressure is taken off it rises again.

Who can figure out the reason for this action? It is quite simple. When you press down on the rubber you compress the air in the top of the jar, which in turn compresses the air in the small bottle, and consequently lets in more water, which sinks it. When the pressure is taken off the air expands. This experiment shows the elasticity of air. You boys can have heaps of fun with this experiment by using a number of little bottles dressed up as imps.

CONCERNING PINS.

Originally Used More For Ornament Than Utility—The Modern Article.

Pins have been in use from the earliest time known to history, but they were originally ornaments rather than articles of utility, and it is evident that for fastening purposes the ancients ordinarily used laces, buckles and other devices.

The pins that have been found in Egyptian, Etruscan and old Scandinavian tombs are made of gold, silver, brass, bronze and iron. Many of them are twelve inches in length, weigh eight or ten ounces and have artistically executed heads of precious stones, metal, amber, ivory and wood.

Pins were introduced into England in the sixteenth century by Catharine Howard, wife of Henry VIII. They were at that time made of gold, silver, brass or ivory and were worn in the hair or on the clothing as ornaments. It is said that Spanish pin manufacturers were allowed to sell them only during the Christmas holidays, and it became the custom for gentlemen to give the ladies of the family money with which to buy pins at Christmastide. From this custom the term "pin money" originated.

The manufacture of cheap and useful pins was introduced in England in the latter part of the sixteenth century, and Birmingham soon became the center of this industry. In the United States the manufacture was attempted in 1820 and again in 1824, but did not amount to much until after the invention of the Howe machine in 1832. The original process of manufacturing pins by hand required different operations and was not only tedious, but expensive.

At the present time all the processes, from the cutting of the wire into pin lengths to the sticking of the finished pins into the papers, are performed by machinery.—Chicago News.

GIFT MAKING HINTS.

Design For a Lingerie Bag—Useful Shirt Waist Cover.

The lingerie bag illustrated requires for its fashioning a prettily embroidered linen or lawn handkerchief. Fold it once and join the sides with inch wide lace insertion. This forms the bag. Trim the top with insertion to match the sides, then a wide beading for the ribbon to pass through and an inch wide lace frill. Run the ribbon through the beading, making a pretty bow at each end. Little work is required, and a dainty bag suitable for carrying with a lingerie gown is evolved. In addition to the handkerchief the materials required are one and one-quarter yards of lace insertion, three-quarters of a yard of beading, one yard of lace edging and three yards of half inch ribbon.

A shirt waist cover designed to slip over the regulation hanger is here pictured. To make it take a piece of silk or cotton material forty-four inches long and twenty-two inches wide, fold in the middle and stitch up the sides, forming a bag. Turn and fold the top in three parts and slit the middle section, leaving one-third on each side. This slit is for the collar, which is made by cutting a band five inches deep and sixteen inches wide. Attach with a wide beading and trim top and bottom with lace. Run in nice ribbon and make a generous bow in front. This slit is just wide enough to allow the hanger to slip through, and the waist or coat is protected from the dust and light. The cover illustrated was made from ordinary barred muslin, with brier stitching around the bottom in blue wash silk and with ribbon to match.

An Attractive Calendar.

As the holiday season approaches almost all other work is laid aside that one may devote all her time to making suitable gifts.

A dainty calendar is always useful and acceptable, and there are a number of attractive designs for this season.

One is oval in shape and made of linen in a dull green or blue shade and mounted on an oval cardboard mat.

It has a design of dogwood embroidered entirely around it in white, or small white flowers of any sort can be used. After the embroidery is finished and pressed it is mounted very carefully and neatly on the oval mat, and the edges are turned over and fastened on the back with good library paste.

This is covered with another card oval, which has a ring attached.

Two pieces of ribbon the color of the linen used or of white are caught between the two pieces of cardboard and tied in a graceful bow, by which it can hang. The small calendar is fastened on the front. This will also be attractive made of white lawn embroidery in wild roses or buttercups and mounted over an oval card covered with pink or yellow silk and tied with pink or yellow ribbon.

A Useful Gift.

A useful gift that will be acceptable to women, especially when traveling, is the little linen case for covering powder leaf books. It may be made from a small doily hemstitched or buttonholed on its edges. Just fold it book fashion and on one cover work an initial, on the other a tiny spray of flowers. Catch the book and covers together with ribbon, then add narrow ribbon ties. This little case will wash well, and new books may be readily inclosed as necessary.

A Good Luck Box.

A good luck box of Japanese paper has a frill and twisted top. When opened the box is like a flower, which reveals a second box inside. This little box is the repository for a small Christmas gift.

Twine Box For Desk.

A twine box is a new desk article that is always handy. This can be made by covering a tin can or round wooden box with pigskin. There should be a lid with two holes, through which the twine may be pulled, and between the holes a piece of sharp metal on which the string may be cut when necessary.

NOVEL ACCESSORY.

May Be Bought or Conjured In Home Sewing Room.

Shown herewith is a fancy collar that may be attached to any cloth coat, the stole effect being of a heavy fancy weave black silk galloon, while the back flap, shoulder pieces and ends are of oleander pink velvet, edged with black silk braid.

The centers are open network in a design of pastel pink silk cords with pink and gold cords intertwined. On this a strap extends of the velvet that is outlined by the black silk braid and ornamented by a gold and black crochet button. Silk cord loops and a gold and black button fasten this dressy bit, and from the medallions at the stole ends, which are of the velvet, braid and cords, knotted cord pendants dangle, five in number, finishing with ball effects. The price is $10.75, and the same design comes in caledonian green and also in other colored velvets, says Vogue.

For cuffs to match and to trim other parts of the gown a passementerie to match can be bought for $5.25 a yard, four motifs to the yard, and at the middle of each is a square reproducing in a smaller size one of those on the collar.

Wash Day Wisdom.

Many people make very hard work of washing and even then find that their clothes do not look well, but have a gray appearance and reveal many of the stains which the laundrying process should have removed.

This is because they do not use water of the right temperature. If clothes are put to soak in scalding water the dirt is not loosened and the fruit and coffee stains are set. Scalding water sets the stains, while briskly boiling water removes them. If clothes are put to soak it should be after the stains are thus removed, and then in cold or tepid water.

An Inexpensive Doll.

Dressing a small sized doll is not half so much of an undertaking as people often think it is, and an hour or two a few evenings will accomplish great results. In the first place, the average child prefers a doll dressed as simply as a real live boy or girl would be.

A doll that gave a great deal of pleasure last Christmas had the simplest possible underwear, made by hand, to be taken off and put on at will. The dress was made of pieces of blue linen, the whole thing cut in one, and the waist part laid in box plaits almost to the knees. The belt of the linen had a tiny buckle and eyelets worked in it, and this was slipped through straps sewed to the waist, giving the fashionable long waisted effect.

The slippers and socks were bought, the former being pale blue and the latter white. This present cost only a trifle, but gave unlimited happiness.

For the Girl Who Crochets.

The girl or woman who crochets lace will appreciate a bag made of a fifteen cent linen handkerchief with a wide border. Use the hem as a casing and run a double row of baby ribbon through it so as to be able to draw it up. Make tiny bows at the corners and draw the bag up. Three yards of ribbon at 3 cents a yard will be needed for this, making a total cost of 24 cents. A large sized linen handkerchief should be chosen to make the bag.

A quarter of a yard of natural colored linen at 7 cents will make a pretty bag 5 by 8 inches when finished. A yard of red ribbon at 3 cents will be sufficient to draw it. Inside may be placed a small ball of heavy and one of lightweight twine at 5 cents each.

Corset Pad Sachet.

A pretty corset pad has a sachet of the usual shape in pale blue satin covered with a crocheted cover of pale blue silk.

Evening Dress

THE COAT

Should always fit snugly and make the most of a man's figure. There is some little change in the cut of the "swallowtails" this season but it is better not to follow the fads in evening dress. A narrow cuff finish is also put upon some evening coats this season.

THE TROUSERS

Should be moderately loose, so as to allow ease in dancing.

WHITE WAISTCOATS

Single or double breasted, are correct. Black waistcoats are seldom worn with evening clothes.

Edward Companion of the fast train, with his fireman, George Carter, jumped. Companion was badly injured by striking a rail which tore a large gash in his side. He was attended by doctors and brought on to Brockville and placed in a hospital. Carter escaped injury. It was well the men jumped, for the engine was buried under the debris.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 30, were 4596 cattle, 2762 sheep and lambs, 3092 hogs and 288 calves, while the offerings for local consumption this morning were 1800 cattle, 1150 sheep and lambs, 1725 hogs and 425 calves. Owing to the seasonable weather and the somewhat scarcity of good to choice beeves, the undertone to the market for the grades was firmer and the impression is that as soon as the glut of poor stock which has been coming forward now for several weeks, is over, prices for the better grades will advance, but there was no actual change to-day. In the early part of the day trade was rather slow, but later buyers came forward more freely with a disposition to operate and the demand for both and outside account became good, consequently on the whole an active trade was done and a good clearance was made in spite of the large offerings of rough and inferior stock. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade fair in Canadian cattle, but noted no improvement in prices, as compared with a week ago. Choice beeves here sold at 4¾c; good, at 4¼c to 4½c; fair, at 3½c to 4c; common, at 2½c to 3c, and inferior, at 1½c to 2c per lb.

Owing to the continued liberal supply of lambs coming forward, a weaker feeling has prevailed in the market and prices for good choice stock have declined ½c per lb.; at this reduction the demand was good this morning and an active trade resulted, with sales of choice stock at 5½c; good, at 5¼c to 5½c, and common at 4½c to 5c per lb. There was no further change in the condition of the market for sheep, prices having ruled steady at the decline noted a week ago. The demand is fairly good and sales of export stock were made at 4c, butchers' stock at 3½c to 3¾c, and culls at 3c per lb. The trade in calves was fairly active, but supplies are commencing to decrease and prices are firm. Choice veals sold at $12 to $15; good, at $8 to $10; fair, at $6 to $7, and common, at $3 to $4 each.

In sympathy with the continued weak advices and downward tendency of prices for Canadian bacon in the leading European markets, a much weaker feeling has developed in the local hog situation and prices since this day week have declined 69c to 72½c per cwt., making a net reduction of $1.20 to $1.25 since the last week of October, while, according to our own private cables, Canadian bacon in Liverpool during the month of November declined 12s per cwt. in London, 8s to 11s, and in Bristol 8s. The market here for hogs to-day was in an unsettled condition and packers were bidding $5.10 to $5.25, and $5.50 per cwt. for selected lots for delivery during the balance of this week here, while sales to-day were made at $5.40 per cwt. weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Dec. 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 4800 head; active; good, 10c to 15c higher; common, steady; prime steers, $5.40 to $5.85, shipping, $4.85 to $5.60, butchers, $4.15 to $5.25; heifers, $3.25 to $5; cows, $2.50 to $4.60; bulls, $2.75 to $4.65; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.25; stock heifers, $2.25 to $2.75; fresh cows and springers, choice, steady; common, $3 lower; $20 to $56

Hogs—Receipts, 13,700 head; active and 10c to 15c higher; heavy mixed, yorkers and pigs, $5.30 to $5.40; roughs, $4.25 to $4.75; stags, $3 to $3.25; dairies, $5.30 to $5.40.

JURY LOCKED UP.

Unable to Agree Upon Verdict in the Bradley Case.

Washington, Dec. 3.—After a trial which has attracted widespread interest since its inception almost three weeks ago, with witnesses brought nearly across the continent, the case of Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, charged with the murder of former United States Senator Arthur M. Brown of Utah, last night rested in the hands of the jury. Throughout the earlier part of the day. Attorneys Powers and Hoover, with recitals of the episodes that led to the tragedy, and pleading insanity of the defendant at the time she shot Brown in a hotel here on Dec. 8 last, argued for the defence, and when the court convened after recess District Attorney Baker, attacking the theory of insanity and arraigning the defendant in scathing language, made the close address.

Judge Stafford occupied 52 minutes in charging the jury.

At 10 o'clock last night the word came from the jury-room that there was no prospect of reaching a verdict. Accordingly, Judge Stafford ordered that the jury be locked up until court meets this morning.

FISH POACHERS SEIZED.

Officials Make Important Capture of U. S. Vessel at Gros Cap.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 3.—Fishery Inspector T. A. Hand, Canadian Soo, accompanied by a number of officers from the Canadian side, made an important seizure of nets at Gros Cap on Saturday. The nets had been placed for the capture of herring by Americans from Iroquois. The owner of the outfit, is said by the officers, is Simon Johnston of that place. The officers descended on Gros Cap from the west, and before reaching the place noticed a gasoline launch making off after frantic efforts to raise the nets.

The poachers partly succeeded in their object, but, before getting clear, found it necessary to cut the nets and escape as best they could, crossing the American line. The remaining nets seized contained a large number of herring.

TURNED HIS WIFE OUT.

Homesteader Arrested on Charge of Attempted Murder.

Dasyland, Alta., Dec. 3.—Charles Sanderlin, a homesteader near here, has been committed for trial on a charge of attempted murder. He turned his wife out of doors very scantily clad, and his brother then wrapped a fur coat about the woman and took her to his own shack.

Sanderlin followed and fired several shots through the door of the shack. The prisoner has been taken to Fort Saskatchewan to await trial.

Did Not Resemble Druce.

London, Dec. 3.—James Whiting, a naturalist, who formerly was employed at Welbeck Abbey, the estate of the fifth Duke of Portland, testified that a photograph of T. C. Druce did not resemble the duke. Another witness, a photographer, declared that he had taken a photograph of Druce wearing a false beard, and that he had seen Druce in 1865 after his supposed death.

Almost Hanged.

Brockville, Dec. 3.—While gathering eggs in a henhouse on his father's farm, the five-year-old son of J. L. Sweeney of Oxford slipped between the roosts and hung suspended by the neck. He was almost dead from strangulation when found by his mother, the rescue being a timely one.

Died In His Buggy.

Brockville, Dec. 3.—While driving from the depot to his home in Heckston, H. Hughes died in his buggy of heart disease. He was 67 years of age. He was postmaster and general merchant at Heckston, and exwarden of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville.

Trial of the Goolds.

Monte Carlo, Dec. 3.—The trial of Vere St. Leger Goold and his wife Marie for the murder of Emma Levin, at Monte Carlo last summer, began yesterday.

Death by the guillotine will be the penalty if the Goolds are convicted.

"Don't Neglect a Cough or Cold."

It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It is without an equal as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

A single dose of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will stop the cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs, the healing properties of the Norway Pine Tree will proclaim its great virtue by promptly eradicating the bad effects, and a persistent use of the remedy cannot fail to bring about a complete cure.

Do not be humbugged into buying so-called Norway Pine Syrups, but be sure and insist on having Dr. Wood's. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Mr. Wm. O'Hara, Souris, Man., writes: "Having suffered for a long time with a severe attack of Chronic Bronchitis, which I could not get cured, I eventually tried your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and I am glad to state it has given me a complete cure."

JEWS ARE BEATEN BY NEGROES

Russian Jews Were Enslaved and Ill-Treated.

SHOCKING TALE FROM SOUTH

Induced to Leave Home by Attractive Advertisements—Sent Into Forests by Agent—Treated as Slaves by Overseers—Whipped and Half-Starved—Had to Sleep in the Fields — Fifteen Escaped.

New York, Dec. 3.—A band of poor Russian Jews, fleeing from the American southwest, reached this city with a harrowing tale of peonage and persecution on account of their faith.

According to Moise Opotowski, he and many fellow-workmen of Moscow were attracted by an advertisement in a newspaper there, offering $18 to $20 a week wages in agreeable employment, near Galveston, Texas. Seventy-five of the men paid 785 rubles each for passage to the United States.

Nine days out Opotowski says the immigrants rebelled against a diet of bread, herrings and potatoes, and there was a general fracas, in which the sailors beat the Russians unmercifully.

At Galveston, after being at sea 25 days, the party was met by a labor agent. They then traveled two days with the agent, until they arrived at Pueblo, Col., and were made the next day to walk nine miles out to a clearing. They were handed over to negroes, who gave them saws and ordered them to get to work at once sawing limbs from trees. Many of the immigrants demurred, saying that was not the kind of work they had been engaged for. Then the negroes took switches and thrashed them as if they were slaves.

The immigrants were left to sleep in the fields, and all they could get to eat was pork and beans, with leavened bread, which their religion forbade them to partake of. They had to eat the food provided or else starve.

After four days of this sort of existence, Opotowski says, most of the companions fled in various directions, in small bands, without having received a penny in wages. He and at least fifteen of his countrymen escaped and reached Lincoln, Neb., whence a charitable Jew sent them to Omaha, and there a man name Zieman, of the Hebrew charity organization, provided them with tickets for Chicago. From there they came to New York.

SMUGGLERS WON BATTLE.

Captured Nineteen Chinese War Junks In a Bloody Fight.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 3.—A runaway Russian destroyer, with a mutinous crew, is on a piratical cruise in the Sea of Japan, according to reports brought from Nagasaki by the steamer Monteagle.

A German steamer at Nagasaki reported having been intercepted fifty miles north of Tsushima Island by the destroyer, whose seamen forcibly took a quantity of coal. The destroyer is reported as having escaped from Vladivostock.

Advices from Shanghai tell of a battle between a flotilla of Imperial war junks and the salt smuggling fleet at Quinsan. After severe fighting, costing many lives, the smugglers captured the entire flotilla of 19 war junks.

HAVOC WORKED BY THE FLAMES

Little Current Business Section Visited by Disastrous Fire.

PROPERTY LOSS IS $70,000

Steamer Majestic and Tug Cuyler Did Splendid Work—Western Portion Saved—Big Blaze at Houston—Theatre and Jewelry Store Destroyed — Fire In the Hold of British Ship at Philadelphia.

Little Current, Manitoulin, Ont., Dec. 3.—A seventy thousand dollar fire at Little Current destroyed the McArthur office, the postoffice, Carruther's drug store, McKie and Terry's pool-room, Powell's hardware and buildings, and Vincent's general store, Currie's drug store, Mensour's general store and Kingsboro's hardware store. The fire tug Cuyler, commanded by Capt. Mosier, and the Northern Navigation Co.'s steamer Majestic, responded to the alarm and did splendid work all night, with the town engine, arresting the flames, and saving the western part of the business portion of the town at Turner's and Kingsboro's stores. Kingsboro's is almost a total loss, but Turner's was saved with a slight loss by moving the stock.

Houston, Texas, Dec. 3.—Fire on Sunday night destroyed business property in the heart of Houston to the value of $750,000. Breaking out in the rear of the Frank Dunn jewelry store and pawn shop, the flames spread in all directions through the block, and it was not until 2 a. m. that they were under control. The buildings destroyed included the Houston Theatre, in which were located the Federal Court offices, and all records and fixtures were a total loss.

Ship Montana Afire.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 3.—Fire was discovered shortly before 10 a.m. in the hold of the British ship Montana, which arrived here early yesterday morning from London.

The vessel caught fire at sea. When the forward hatch was opened the fire was discovered. The flames spread rapidly, and it is thought the big vessel will be a total loss.

Big Fire at Buffalo.

Buffalo, Dec. 3.—The Pullman Co.'s big paint shop here burned to the ground in less than an hour last night. Twenty-one Pullman cars were destroyed. The total loss will be about $400,000.

About 250 men are thrown out of employment.

Old Hotel Burned Down.

Quebec, Dec. 3.—An old landmark in the surroundings of Quebec, the Hotel Bureu, at Montmorency Falls, one of the best known hotels in Canada, was reduced to ashes yesterday morning. The fire was caused by the furnace. The losses are valued at $15,000; insurance $10,000.

Sir Wilfrid Twits Mr. Borden on Elasticity of His Platform.

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS

House Settles Down to Work—Premier Ridicules Opposition Leader's Attitude on Protection and Public Ownership—Mr. Hall Shows Increase of Trade Is Due to Policy of the Government.

Ottawa, Dec. 3.—The House settled down to work yesterday with the feeling of expectancy that usually marks the opening of the sessions' hostilities, and almost without preliminary plunged into the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. To Mr. R. R. Hall, the popular member for Peterboro' West, fell the honor of moving the address, and the effective manner in which he discharged the duty won for him the congratulations of the leaders of both parties and enhanced the reputation he had already gained as a fluent and pointed speaker. No less felicitous was Mr. Adelard Lanctot, the member for Richelieu, who seconded. The attack of the leader of the Opposition on the Government consisted largely of a repetition of the complaints he had voiced in his tour. One referring to the French treaty gave Mr. Fielding an opening which he turned to excellent account. Seldom has the Prime Minister been heard to greater advantage than in his reply, which roused the Liberal members to a high pitch of enthusiasm. After traversing the points raised by Mr. Borden, he proceeded with withering sarcasm to demolish the Halifax platform, which he described as a masterpiece, not of lucidity, but of elasticity, a structure, not of oak, but of India rubber. He poured ridicule upon the position of the leader of the Opposition in regard to protection and public ownership, twitting him with taking the arguments of one section of his followers and drawing conclusions of another, and defined the true policy in regard to railways and telegraphs and telephones as one of private competition with effective state control. Dealing with the Imperial Conference he pointed out that whereas in the past the conference had been without status or aim, it would in the future be a conference of Government with Government on an equal footing. With regard to the Japanese immigration question, he stated that the understanding with Japan to restrict immigration had been eluded by parties other than the Government of that nation, and that the object of Hon. Mr. Lemieux's mission was to secure that that understanding would be respected. Mr. Foster followed Sir Wilfrid, and the debate, which is expected to last several days, will be resumed to-day by Mr. Fielding.

An Honor Appreciated.

Mr. Hall expressed his appreciation of the honor done to his constituency through his being chosen to move the address—a constituency of whose commercial and agricultural importance he reminded the House. He also referred to the wisdom of the Conservatives in constructing the C. P. R. and to the increase of trade under their 18 years' administration, but contrasted with it the much greater increase under the Liberal administration which succeeded to power in 1896.

The great increase in trade, Mr. Hall observed, was largely the outcome of judicious expenditure, an instance of this being the good results which had flowed from the establishment of direct steamship communication between Canada and Mexico.

Next to Japan, Canada, he said, stood highest in increase of trade last year, the ratio being 170 per cent., while the United States could boast of an increase of only 100 per cent.

Mr. Lancelot of Richelieu, speaking in French, seconded the address.

R. L. Borden's Reply.

R. L. Borden was warmly cheered by his followers as he arose to continue the debate. He criticised the postal facilities, pointing out their inadequacy, and then proceeded to deal with the Cabinet changes.

"Were these men," he asked, "in the 120 or 130 men on the Government side worthy, that Sir Wilfrid had to go outside to find a Minister of Railways and a Minister of Public Works? Some explanation was due, not to the Opposition, but to Government supporters themselves.

Senatorial Appointments.

Mr. Borden dealt next with the Senatorial appointments, asking whether their resignations from the Commons had not been made for the purpose of their appointment to the Upper House.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that he was not aware that any of them had resigned.

On Quebec Bridge Disaster.

Dealing with the Quebec bridge disaster, Mr. Borden remarked that it had always seemed a marvel that the Government of Canada, in an undertaking of such magnitude, should have committed it to a company which, up to 1903, had only put $60,000 of its own money into the work. He wanted to know if the Government had lived up to its responsibility, in accepting the bridge plans by order-in-council. It was stated that the Phoenix Bridge Co. had been hampered for funds. Therefore, although an enquiry was now proceeding, he would ask upon whose shoulders the responsibility for this disaster lies.

Mr. Borden criticised the indefiniteness of the promise regarding Government control of telegraph and telephones, and the lack of progress in construction of the Transcontinental Railway. He joined heartily in the proposals to purify elections and place them on the high standard of the British system. In this the Opposition would co-operate with the Government in no partisan spirit. (Conservative cheers.)

Mr. Fielding moved the adjournment of the debate and the House rose at 11 o'clock.

MINERS STILL ENTOMBED.

Thirteen Bodies Recovered — Feared That All Have Succumbed.

Pittsburg, Dec. 3.—Up to midnight thirteen bodies had been recovered from the Naomi mine of the United Coal Co. near Fayette City. Several of these had been killed by poisonous gas fumes, and it is almost certain that the remaining thirty-six miners have succumbed to the deadly after-damp.

Since shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night a large force of rescuers have labored constantly in an effort to reach the imprisoned men. The work has been necessarily slow on account of the wreckage and after-damp. Notwithstanding the fact that the rescue party have worked in fifteen-minute relays, a score of more of their members have been compelled to go to their homes suffering from the poisonous gas. Two of the rescuers are in a critical condition.

All day long a crowd of 2,000 persons have stood about the mouth of the ill-fated mine, awaiting some news from the entombed men. Hundreds of these persons are relatives or friends of the unfortunate miners, and their grief is pitiful.

LANCASTER WARNS SENATE.

Must Pass Speed Regulation Bill, or Be Wiped Out.

Ottawa, Dec. 3.—E. A. Lancaster, M. P. for Lincoln, has declared war upon the Senate. The House of Commons has twice passed his bill to amend the Railway Act to provide that "no train shall pass over any highway crossing at rail level in any thickly-populated portion of any city, town or village at a greater speed than ten miles an hour, unless such crossing is properly protected." Last session the Senate railway committee killed the bill after it had gone through the Commons. Now Mr. Lancaster is going to reintroduce the bill and gives fair warning to the Senate that if it "again thwarts the will of the people" an agitation will arise in this country which will end in "a mammoth petition to the Imperial Parliament to wipe the Senate out of existence."

Mr. Lancaster will reintroduce his bill to provide that no person shall obtain a certificate as a master or mate of a ship registered in Canada unless he has been a resident of Canada for at least three years.

Congress Opens.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The first session of the 60th Congress convened yesterday and resembled a social function rather than a gathering for the transaction of important business of the country.

Early in the day the capital was filled with spectators and in all the corridors leading to the gallery entrance there were lines of men and women extending for long distances.

COUNCIL WILLING TO DONATE SUM TO HARTLEY FUND IF SUBSCRIPTION IS BEGUN

Council Understand that Citizens Intend to Take Up Subscription —Will Then Give $100 Towards Purchase of House and Lot.

BELIEVE CAUSE WORTHY

At the meetiong of the Committee of the Whole Council last night the David Hartley fund received considerable attention and it was finally decided to give a grant of $100 towards a fund for a house and lot to be added to any public subscription that is taken up. The opinion of the members was that Hartley deserved some recognition for the splendid achievement he had performed and the honour he had brought to the city. The aldermen stated that it was understood that the council would make a substantial grant to any list that the citizens were preparing. Ald. Leary did not favour the giving of a straight sum unconditionally and said he would rather each of the aldermen give $10 out of his own pocket. Ald. Morgan favoured such a proposal but thought that something should be done. Ald. Wilson believed that the citizens should first collect a fund and moved that action regarding the matter be deferred until a fund is raised by public subscription. Ald. Morrow seconded this motion.

Ald. McIntyre moved in amendment that the council agree to give a grant of $100 towards a fund for a house and lot for Hartley, the citizens to raise a subscription first. The amendment was carried.

Ald. Elliott said that he heard a benefit concert was being arranged for Hartley and that if a suitable manager of a fund was appointed, the council then donate a hundred dollars.

The amendment, however, was unchanged.

AN OLD DOG TAG HAS BEEN FOUND

Dated 1866—Was Found While Excavating on Charlotte Street

While excavating on Charlotte street for Mr. W. G. Lendrum's building a very interesting relic was found in the form of a dog tag dated 1866. The tag was made of brass and was in a good state of preservation. The tag is a great deal longer than the one now in use, and resembles the appearance of a medal. Its shape is peculiar, a long brass bar, attached to which was the form of something like a maple leaf and on which was inscribed, "1866—P.D.L.—444."

The "prodies" in those days must have looked pretty sporty as they ran along the streets with this enormous badge dangling about their necks.

The gentleman in whose possession the tag now is wishes to present it to the Peterborough Historical Society.

WELLER STREET RESIDENT POSSESSES BADGE WORN ON WEDDING DAY OF THE QUEEN

Mr. William Miles of Weller street, is the possessor of a unique badge which has an interesting history wrapped up in the folds of its rosette. Mr. Miles has kept the badge for over 44 years. He wore it first on the wedding day of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, in Calne, Wiltshire, England.

The fact that he possessed such a unique badge was recalled to his mind yesterday by seeing the portrait of Queen Alexandra, who on Sunday celebrated her 44th wedding day and 63rd birthday.

The badge consists of a rosette with two ribbons attached bearing the names of "Albert Edward" and "Alexandra," and is highly prized by Mr. Miles.

HOW THE LARGE EMPLOYMENT OF GIRLS IN THE FACTORIES INCREASE CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

Some Causes for the Recent Advances in Customs Revenue in Peterborough.

LARGEST CONTRIBUTORS

The story of the great amount of revenue derived from the local Customs House and the direct, as well as the indirect, cause for the great daily income is an interesting one, inasmuch as the largest manufacturing concerns and dry goods stores of the city are responsible for the increase during the past few years. It is interesting to know that in the past seven or eight years the increase has been, roughly speaking, six-fold. The average daily income of the local house is estimated at $1,000. But this amount is very often eclipsed on special days. One day last week there was over $3,300 taken in, and the following day the amount was $2,200.

The prominent establishments of the city greatly responsible for a large amount of the Customs receipts are the Canadian General and the Quaker Oats establishment. Since their erection the receipts have wonderfully increased.

Among other places in the city which have assisted in the great increase of the Customs receipts are Alex. Elliott & Co., Richard Hall & Son, A. W. Cressman, Robert Fair and Company. Dress goods are very important, especially from the standpoint of the ladies, and in view of the fact that during the past few years the Quaker Oats Company, the C. G. E. and other institutions employ a large number of girls, more business is done by the dry goods men and therefore the customs receipts are increased. It is probably true that most of the money earned by the girls is spent on wearing apparel. It may be also interesting to know that among the finest of dress goods purchased by local firms comes from Germany.

The Customs receipts have therefore been rapidly increasing during the past few years and are likely to do so in the future in proportion to the number of factories doing business here and the number of employees in them.

THE BREAKFAST TABLE TALK

Interesting Debate By The Knox Church Young People

"Resolved that a man should get his own breakfast," was the interesting subject of a debate at Knox church last night held under the auspicees of the Young People's Guild. There was a large attendance and much enjoyment was secured from the proceedings. The affirmative was, of course, taken by the ladies—Misses Menzies, Cunningham and Bartley, and the negative by Messrs. Roy Laing, Roy Menzies, and Duncan Campbell.

Miss Menzies opened the debate by pointing out that almost all the duties of the home now fall upon the women. Mr. Laing for the opposition made the point that if such a resolution as man having to get his own breakfast were to come into effect there would be too many bachelors, and he thought that feminine supporters of the scheme should be very careful.

Miss Cunningham believed that since man is stronger than woman it should be a great pleasure for the sake of the smiles of approval for him to get his own breakfast. Mr. Roy Menzies, Miss Bartlay and Mr. Campbell concluded the debate with some interesting remarks.

The Judge was Sheriff Hall, who gave the decision to the affirmative, but admitted he was travelling on uncertain grounds. The counsel for the affirmative and negative were Mrs. Keith and Mr. Parker, the chairman being Mr. H Wilkie, one of the Vice-Presidents.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer took a decided downward dip last night and came within one degree of striking the zero mark. This is the coldest this season to date, and is about the usual time for the first zero weather.

"A DUTCHMAN'S HONEYMOON"

"A Dutchman's Honeymoon," which comes to the Grand next Saturday promises to be an innovation to lovers of wholesome comedy.

Its story deals with the elopement of Hans Schimitzle, a young German and Araminta Jason, of questionable mental capacity, whose father objects to her suitor. Learning of their flight, he seeks the aid of the police in locating their whereabouts.

Hans, with his fiancee, goes to the home of Adolph Busch, a compatriot of his, and asks to be hidden until they can slip away from the police. Busch cannot comply with his wishes as he, in company with Jack Clinton, is hiding from an official who has followed them to the house from a boxing exhibition which was suddenly interrupted by the police, from which they had to fly to escape the disgrace of taking a free ride. Hans, seeing the policeman outside the house, thinks he is after him, and explains the situation to Vinita, Busch's daughter. She suggests that Hans and Araminta get married at once by the new minister, an alias, under which Busch had to introduce Jack Clinton in order to explain his presence in the house at 11 o'clock at night. Hans thinks it a great scheme, and the ceremony is performed. They start on their honeymoon. Mrs. Busch, discovering that Jack is not what she supposed he was, but an expert in the manly art of self defence, tries to stop the honeymoon. The complications which arise from the mock marriage, Jack's stratagem in trying to redeem himself, and Hans' quandary as to "Am I my wife's husband," or "If I am married, how is it I am still single?" furnish the comedy element and plot of the play.

MUSIC HAS CHARMS

An Ottawa man composed a poem in the Scotch dialect on miraculous escape of Donald McLean, the Warsaw piper, scared away a pack of howling wolves by the skirling of the pipes. The following is the poem, with its inspiration, written prose:

"Donald McLean, of Warsaw, while deer hunting at Stony L heard the howl of timber wolves. His rifle being useless dark, he took his bagpipes and played them, walking around for several hours. The howling ceased, and the wolves finally appeared"

Wi' een aflame an' mou's agap' the faminished pack, on i intent, cam' howlin' on:
They'd sniffed the gow aff Donald's naked shanks:
Nae fears o' gun or trap (erst shunned for what thae obtruded on the scent o' mac-meat), heather cured. A Loud on the dark'ning gloom, in strains frought wi' the o' man or beast wad dare the pluck o' a McLean, there scoondit the oxtered phiobmohr challenge tae 'Come On!" They halt, may't, an' wi' a speed — display't as when from Alma's heig the "Forty-Two" chased tae the bagpiped lift o' "Haud A the b ish Russian horde—turned tail an' fled!
'Twas ever thus; 'twill ever be;
In peace or war, on land or sea,
The obdurate maun bend the knee
Tae Scotia's bagpipe melody.
Sae, let us a', whilst here below,
Our homage pay tae what's its due,
In hope, when summoned hence tae go
Tae where they hae'e the bagpipes, too.

BOARD OF EDUCATION SEWER TO THE KING EDWARD SCHOOL REPORTED IN BAD CONDITI of the Central Y. M. C. A., Toronto, to be at the Brock St. Rink To-night

Ald. Duncan Tells of His perience in Examining the C ditions—Pail of Sand Per H is the Leakage.

LIKE THE MAIN SEW

The statement made by Alderm Duncan last night in reference the Romaine street sewer, is of p ticualr interest. He spoke of the tion built under the direction Board of Education, leading to new King Edward school. He ed that on Saturday in company w Mr. Bartlett he had gone down the school property and had manhole on the school section open and saw four piles of sand ta out. On Monday morning th again visited it, and practically same amount of sand had washed down. Further than during the hour that Ald. Dunc was on the ground, a whole pail sand collected in the manhole. Duncan said that he had no dou as to how it had got there, sayi that it had come down from the s tion leading from the school.

It is interesting to note that at last meeting of the Board of Ed tion the condition of the sewer nection of the King Edward sc was fully discussed. The memb seemed to be of the opinion that school section was not defective, that sand was being washed in from the main sewer, owing to improper manner in which it laid. However, the Board deci to take no chances and took the n essary steps to provide tempora closets as a precaution against trouble with the sewer.

It is evident that the doubts of board were more than passing w Ald. Duncan's statements are ta into consideration. It is gener known that the Romaine street er and the school section were almost simultaneously, and the dition of the one is probably sim to the other.

Now, that the work of re-open the Aylmer street section is u way, when the report of the sch section is presented to the Board Education it may be deemed ad able to open that section.

THE DEATH OF MAJOR HOWDEN

Passed Away at Port Hope To-day—Was Inland Revenue Collector

Mr. Robert Fair shortly after noon to-day, received word from Port Hope of the death of Major Richard Howden in that town, which occurred this morning about 11 o'clock. The deceased was a brother of the late Mrs. Ormoud of Peterborough, and also of the late Robert Howden, who passed away about a year ago, and was about 75 years of age.

Major Howden was collector of Inland Revenue at Port Hope, but lived for some time in Millbrook.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder,

DOUBLE RUNAWAY ON CHARLOTTE STREET

Two Men Hurled From Cutter the Road

There was a great deal of excitement this afternoon on Charlotte street over a runaway. A horse frightened outside the Fuel and Cartage Company's premises, and bolted down Charlotte street. At Simcoe street two men had just stepped into a cutter and were standing up in the robes, when the horse came rushing along. The cutter drawn by the frightened animal struck that in which the men were standing. The gentlemen were hurled from the cutter to the road, and their horse started on the run also. Both horses were stopped at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets.

Takes Exception

A Parnell street resident writes to say that there is no sewer on that street. He states that there is one on the west end of Romaine street. The Examiner, of course, only printed what it had been informed was considered good authority.

THE BECK POLICY

The Toronto News which has been one of the most friendly defenders of the Whitney Government is now denouncing it roundly for its present attitude and course on the question of a power policy. In an article printed elsewhere in this number the News treats the subject in a sane and intelligent manner. It calls the Government power policy a thing of shreds and patches. It can hardly be called a policy upon which there is no unity of sentiment in the Government itself. Mr. Beck declares one line of action and the rest of the Cabinet repudiates it. Really, now, the Government ought to take enough interest in the matter to, at least, talk it over and arrive at some conclusion which will represent a policy upon which the members of the Cabinet are united. But what would you have? Mr. Whitney's connection with Niagara Falls power began in wind and remains largely at that stage. Speaking at Niagara Falls on the occasion of an election, Mr. Whitney declared his policy to be that Niagara Falls (power should be "free as air." And now a policy is being pursued which, as the News points out, is equivalent to confiscation of the property of the Electrical Development Company. A policy based on principle might be sound in principle if defective in detail, but a policy based upon policy can be sound neither in principle nor detail.

SOUTH WARD PARK

Shall the South Ward have a park? If so, we shall have to have something besides the child's play in which the city and the School Board are practising. We had a conference held, in which the price of the School Board lot was haggled over, as if that were a more important matter than the park itself; while, as a matter of fact, the price cannot, in reality, be said to cut any figure at all. The property proposed for the park was bought by the School Board, it is true, but it was paid for with the money of the people, and it is, therefore, the people's property. The proposal to purchase it and convert it into a park for the benefit of the people of the South Ward is, in the abstract, quite commendable. It will not be supposed that a single ratepayer in any of the other wards of the city will object to the land being used for a South Ward park. Every other ward in the city has, through the munificence of Mrs. Nicholls, been presented with a park, and it has been a matter of frequent remark that Number One Ward has been in that respect ignored. Now we have the School Board and the City Council competing with each other like school boys to see which shall get the most credit for driving a sharp bargain, a matter of no moment whatever. The people's money has been spent to purchase the property. If the School Board gets credit on account of it for $2,500 it will be getting more than the people paid for it for school purposes. If the City Council pays $3,000 for it they will only be putting to the credit of the School Board an amount which will obviate the necessity of the Board making, and the city meeting, a demand for funds for school purposes to that amount. All this make-believe competition in driving a bargain may be looked upon by the performers as business, but it is not business at all, it is a hindrance to the transaction of business. Its only important result is delay; and delay in making a park is a matter of considerable importance. The South Ward has been a long time without a park, and every year will count. If the park negotiations were concluded now, the tree-planting necessary might be done next spring, and the benefit of a year's growth would be provided, and a beginning made.

THREE RULES

Eat well, dress well, live well. If you don't do all of these three you will be sick. If your kidneys, liver, stomach or blood are out of order you have broken one of these rules. A simple remedy for any of these ailments is the old time sweet spirits of nitre, syrup of rhubarb, and compound vimosa. Mix these in the following proportions: one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb, and one ounce compound vimosa. Dose, a dessertspoonful in a little water after meals and at bed-time. A few doses will effect a cure. Observe the above rules, and further attacks should not occur—8.

ANOTHER SPLENDID GIFT

To the late Mrs. Nicholls, through Mr. Richard Hall, Peterborough is indebted for another very important benefaction. Last night Mr. Hall, as trustee of the estate, at the meeting of the Council, presented to the city a full deed of the portion of the Nicholls Block, formerly occupied by Richard Hall and Sons, for the purpose of a Public Library. The deed of gift is absolute and without conditions, except the very proper one that the library shall be called "The Nicholls Public Library." This will sound much better than "Carnegie Public Library," for it will have this significance, that it is the gift, not of an alien, but of a citizen of Peterborough, who has, in this last gift, added to the many causes of gratitude Peterborough owes her on other accounts. The gift of this building is not only a mark of generosity, but is timely as well. The Public Library Board has, within a short time, to vacate the building it now occupies, and with proper diligence and promptitude the new building can be made ready. It is an easy solution of a problem which confronted the Public Library Board. The present seems to be an opportune time to consider the wisdom of making the Public Library a Free Public Library for the benefit of the citizens at large, something that would seem to be in complete conformity with the idea in Mrs. Nicholls' mind when she provided for the many benefactions she has made the city.

THE DATE OF MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

The Brantford Expositor says:—

The municipal elections will soon be upon us in Ontario, as also the busy holiday season. Why Ontario should persist in having these things occur at the same time is past finding out, more particularly when it is taken into account that elsewhere it is not usual to follow this custom.

In England, for example, the municipal elections are held on November 1st for councillors and on November 9th for mayor and aldermen. In Quebec province the elections go over into January, and polling is had on the third Monday in the month. Nova Scotia selects the third Tuesday in November. Manitoba the third Tuesday in December, Saskatchewan and Alberta the second Monday in December, while in British Columbia the municipalities fix their own dates.

In the United States municipal elections are held either in the spring or fall.

Ontario alone, it will be seen, has polling on the first Monday in January, which, for many reasons, is a most inconvenient period. A better time would be the second Monday in December, a date which has often been recommended and which would be very generally acceptable.

Ontario leads the Dominion in general progress and prosperity, but, as the Expositor suggests, there does not seem to be any good reason why this province should not take a hint from its neighbours, and not hold its municipal elections at a time which is sacred to other considerations. At the Christmas holiday time, the spirit of peace and good will properly associated with it is broken in upon and disturbed by the bickerings and the strife of local politics. This is a disturbing element, which operates merely as a distraction, and does not enlist the public attention to an extent that permits of a calm, deliberate and intelligent discussion of municipal affairs. The people are very much engrossed in the things associated with the holiday season, and their attention is divided with the result that they are kept in a state of flux and reflux, and fail to give due attention to either. Above all things an opportunity for a fair presentation of their case by candidates should be afforded. With the elections held at the holiday season there results a more or less hap-hazard selection of candidates and election of aldermen. With the elections held as the Expositor suggests, in the previous month, there would be afforded a fair chance for explanation on the part of aldermen applying for re-election and for new candidates to state their case. Under such conditions elected candidates would possibly represent a more deliberate and intelligent choice of the electorate.

THE BECK POLICY

Toronto News.

There are some aspects in which the Beck policy is a mean policy. There is nothing generous in it. There is nothing sportsmanlike about it. Mr. Beck takes two horses of equal speed and breeding, subjects one to a heavy handicap, and orders it out against its rival. The Electrical Development Company has put $10,000,000 into a plant at Niagara and a transmission line to Toronto. The Ontario Power Company has made its whole expenditure in order to supply the American market. It has made no provision for distributing power in Ontario, thus violating the condition of its franchise which provides for the sale of power on either side of the line at equal prices and at equal distances from the point of production. But under Mr. Beck's policy the Electrical Development Company, which has spent all its money in this country will be forced to compete with a company which has not spent one dollar for Ontario, and whose transmission lines for this Province will be provided at the expense of the taxpayers. In short, the Ontario Power Company sells its surplus power to the Ontario Government below a commercial rate and at a figure which it would not consider if it did not derive a living revenue from American consumers. Some of the Conservative protectionists who denounce the "slaughter" of American goods in Canada might find it interesting to apply the argument to Mr. Beck's contract with the Ontario Power Company.

Moreover, Mr. Beck's policy is a thing of shreds and patches. It is a combination of private, Provincial and municipal ownership. The failure of a few municipalities to enter into the agreement may throw the whole arrangement into confusion. It is doubtful if any set of electrical experts can yet determine the exact commercial price of Niagara energy delivered at long distances from the point of production. Upon the whole the figures of the Hydro-Electric Commission should be accepted. But certainly they remain to be tested. It will be remembered that at Brantford Mr. Beck announced that any cost of the service beyond the Commission's estimate would be borne by the Province. This statement he had to withdraw. His colleagues absolutely refused to assume that form of Provincial liability. It may be that Mr. Beck's policy will give cheap power. The footpad who attacks and robs an unarmed citizen on the street may get a cheap watch, but the transaction is not generally approved by moralists. Mr. Beck is eager to prevent private monopoly of Niagara energy, but he is attempting to do it by a policy of dodging, and by penalizing private investors instead of by a square acceptance of the situation and the direct purchase of the existing works by the Government.

There is one honourable and straightforward course open to the Government and to Toronto. The Government should expropriate the works of the Electrical Development Company. Toronto should expropriate the plant of the private lighting company. This is a policy which would bear examination. It would yield sound results. It would reflect honour on the Government and the municipality. It would not injure Canadian credit abroad. It will be curious if we should begin repudiation of public contracts and confiscation of private enterprises under a Conservative Government.

AN ENNISMORE LETTER BETTER UNPUBLISHED

The Examiner has received from a prominent teacher of Ennismore, a letter complaining of the illustrations employed by the senior Public School Inspector in a recent visit to an examination of the school in question. Since the publication of the letter would, it seems, only give greater publicity to the illustrations, and thereby give intensity to the objections entered, publication of it is declined as in the interests of all concerned.

BETTER THAN MEDICINE

Breathe Hyomei's Tonic Healing And Be Cured of Catarrh

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, a treatment which is far better than dosing the stomach with medicines.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicates the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the only natural remedy for it gives a curative air bath to the air passages that has just as powerful healing and antiseptic effect as that found in the mountains where the pine forests give off their healing and fragrant balsams.

Breathe the invigorating and healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrhal troubles. Mr. Madill has seen so many cures even of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing, that they feel warranted in selling Hyomei under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. He takes all the risk.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1907 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

KNOX CHURCH TO HAVE LARGER RINK

Grounds to North of the Church to be Used This Winter

At the conclusion of the meeting of the Young People's Guild of Knox Church last night the young men met to consider the advisability of having a hockey and skating rink again this winter. Mr. Herbert McCann, who has charge of the property to the north of the church, has offered it to the church for a rink. It is much larger than last year's rink, and the young men interested have accepted the proposition.

Galbraith Is Selected To Win Big Special Race

Mr. Melville Robinson, of the Toronto News, Says That Central Man Will Find Small Track to His Liking, and Will Win on the Hop

SOME DOPE ON THE MEN

Speaking of the big three-mile special race at the rink this evening, Mr. Melville Robinson, assistant sporting editor of the Toronto News, who is down for the meet to-night in charge of Jack Tait, hands out the following: "Who will win the big race this evening."

Well, that's a question, and it would be just as easy to pick the winner of the King's Plate at the Woodbine next spring as to pick the man to carry off the silverware. However, on dope, the race looks like Brodin Galbraith's on the hop, as he is the only one of the bunch to show real class on an indoor track. Galbraith, who is the man selected by the Central Y.M.C.A. of Toronto to represent it, has some pretty fast trials to his credit on the Central indoor track, which is 27 laps to the mile. Two weeks ago he travelled two miles in 10.52, which is going some on a track of this description, and last week in the trials to choose the man to represent the Centrals he was an easy winner, negotiating the three miles in 15.36, another fast performance. Against these performances the rest of the starters have but little form to go on. Jack Tait, the West End Y.M.C.A.'s fast youngster, holder of the Canadian mile championship, and the most promising kid runner in Canada, has never run indoors in his career, while Tom Coley has but two indoor races to his credit, both on the Toronto Armouries' nine-lap indoor track. Percy Selben, the little club mate of Coley; and holder of the Canadian five-mile outdoor record, is also new to the indoor racket, as is George Adams, the Hamilton crack middle distance runner, holder of the Canadian ten-mile record made at St. Catharines last New Year's. Ernie Wilson, the Peterborough surprise package handed out to Tom Coley at the last indoor meet in Toronto, has but the one creditable performance to go by, and he, too, will no doubt find the 14-lap track at Brock street rink just as hard to negotiate as the others. On an outdoor track all these men who represent the cream of the Canadian middle distance runners would put up the battle of the year, but on a small indoor course a combination of luck, headwork and knowledge of short indoor track work enters largely into the result, and on these the Central performer appears to have the call. On dope, he looks like the one best bet, but then doping a foot-race is even worse than doping a horse-race, and the unexpected is just as likely to happen as not. At any rate this race looks like the classic event of 1907, and the winner will no doubt set up a mark that will take some tall hustling to beat in time to come.

RUGBY CLUB SAID TO BE UNDER BAN

Locals Have Not Yet Been Notified However, of This Action

The Peterborough Rugby Club are under the ban of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association, as a result of playing in Montreal on Saturday, although the players, or the club, have not been notified of their suspension yet. The notice will come from the O.R.F.U., as the following from the Toronto Star will show:

Secretary Crow of the C.A.A.U., today notified the Y.M.C.A. Club of Peterborough that the Peterborough Rugby team, which played Montreal, were under suspension and would be ineligible to compete in the indoor games there to-morrow night.

"Have you notified the men themselves or the club?"

"No; we leave that to the O.R.F.U. the afiliated body which governs Rugby," was the reply.

This action of the C.A.A.U. will have no effect upon to-night's meet as none of the Rugby team intended to take part.

Bears Still Roam The Woods Around Apsley Village

Reeve Booth's Candidature to be Contested—First Survey Being Made of the Village.

THE COUNCIL MEETING

Examiner special.

Apsley, Dec. 2.—The weather for during the past few weeks has been fine, with cold, frosty nights. The lakes are all frozen over and the roads are hard.

The hunters who roamed the woods in this vicinity during the hunting season did not get all the bears, as several have been seen in the village recently. A party followed one for several miles, but had to give up the chase as an unsuccessful one.

A man named Conroy from Edward Wigg's camp at Jack's Lake was brought out to the village last Friday with a badly cut foot. The village doctor dressed it and so far it is healing.

Mr. Wilkie and wife arrived in the village last Tuesday from England to take charge of the English church and parish in place of Rev. Mr. Lord, who is in England on a visit.

Mr. T. Wilkins, provincial land surveyor, Norwood, has been in the village for the past week making a survey of lot 34, con. 1, Anstruther township, on which the village is situated. No plan has ever been made and things are more or less mixed. The property holders petitioned the council to have a survey and plan made, each to pay a share in proportion to the value of their holdings.

Mr. C. R. D. Booth, the present reeve, is going to have opposition at the municipal elections in January next, as Mr. Wm. Gallon is out as a candidate for the honour, and is hard at work canvassing the ratepayers for their votes and influence.

The many friends of Mr. W. A. Eastland in this vicinity learned with regret the sad news of his death at Niagara Falls, N.Y., last Saturday. His brother, Mr. T. G. Eastland, was present at his death, and brought the remains to Peterborough, where they were interred in the Little Lake Cemetery.

Council Meeting

A special meeting of the township council was held in the town hall at Apsley on Saturday, November 23. Those present: Reeve Booth, in the chair, and Councillors McCauley, Matthews and Tucker.

A bylaw to prohibit the sale of liquor in the townships of Burleigh and Anstruther received its first two readings and will be submitted to the electors January 6, 1908.

A bylaw to make provision for the election of a reeve and council for the united townships of Burleigh and Anstruther for the year 1908 received its several readings, was passed, sealed and signed by the reeve and clerk.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

Wm. Jones, work on road	$6 00
Wm. Tucker, work on road	5 00
Garnett Spencer, work on road	7 00
Total	$18.00

Moved by Coun. Harris, seconded by Coun. Matthews, that the clerk write Mr. Menzoze and inform him that the council must save a statement of monies left out from money received from County Council in the years 1905 and 1906, and if not given this statement at once, the present reeve be authorized to bring an action against him.—Carried.

The next meeting will be held on December 16.

A Bachelor Quest.

[Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.]

Charles Shaw, attorney, was forty and unmarried. He had proposed twice and been rejected both times. After that he refrained and became cynical about marriage.

One night in returning from his club to his bachelor quarters he witnessed a collision between a hack and a street car. The street car couldn't turn out, and the hack wouldn't, and so they came together with a crash.

When the incident had reached its end Mr. Shaw resumed his way, but he hadn't taken twenty steps when he made a find on the sidewalk. It was a white satin slipper, and it belonged to a woman with a dainty foot. The finder admired it by lamplight and then slipped it into his pocket. His heart gave a sort of funk as he did so. Here was a seed of romance—a lost slipper, a dainty slipper, a slipper belonging to some fair lady who had fled from the collision in wild haste. She must have been without an escort or the slipper would have been searched for and found. What was a handsome woman doing that she was out alone at midnight? Had the question been put to him by a caller at his office the lawyer would have answered that she probably belonged to the Tenderloin and charged $10 for the information; but, as it was, he made himself believe that it was far otherwise. As he took the slipper out of his pocket and looked at it with the eyes of a man of the world and an old bachelor instinct told him that the loser was a damsel, that she was blond, that she had merry blue eyes, that she had an aristocratic foot and belonged to the Four Hundred. Real old solid romance was bubbling and seething in his bosom before he went to bed that night. He may have thrust the slipper under his pillow. He may have put it into the pocket of his nightshirt so as to have it next his heart.

If the slipper had looked cute and dainty and aristocratic by gaslight it looked 50 per cent more so in the sunshine of the morning. Instead of dying out, the romance bubbled the harder. Mr. Shaw felt that he had a case where the jury couldn't go back on him. He gazed long at the dainty thing before he went to breakfast. Then he put it in his pocket and carried it to his office and placed it on his desk. His girl typist saw it there and was properly shocked. A man who wanted to sue another man because his dog had bitten him saw it there and went away without suing. An old woman who wanted to lend some money on a mortgage saw it there and went right off and consulted a lawyer who had been married for twenty years. None of these things affected Mr. Shaw, however.

Next day the papers contained a carefully worded advertisement to the effect that a gentleman who saw the collision that took place in a certain locality had made a find afterward and was anxious to restore the article to the loser. Some men would have mentioned the slipper right out in print. Mr. Shaw didn't do this out of respect to the damsel's feelings. If she had been out slumming alone he wasn't going to give her away to her stern father or horrified mother. It was just mentioned as a "find," and the result was what might have been expected. One man wrote that he had lost a bottle of whisky in the crash and would be much obliged at receiving it back. Another wrote that he had missed a wad of $14 and was glad to find an honest man. A third had lost his hat and a fourth a cane, and three women wrote about lost bags and back combs.

The one who lost the slipper didn't write, however. Mr. Shaw figured it out that she hadn't got up early enough in the morning to see the paper before the cook lugged it downstairs, and he advertised again. No answer from her. The only epistle was from a party who claimed to have lost his wooden leg in the accident, and he dropped a warning that it must be returned within three days or he would limp around to police headquarters and set fifty detectives at work on the case.

For a third and fourth time Mr. Shaw ordered that advertisement inserted. In fact, he made it a "t. f." ad., which means that it was to run till forbidden. He felt that sooner or later the damsel must see it. She was no doubt wondering what chevalier had picked it up, and she would wonder until she turned to the papers. The ad. was given a place between a bulldog for sale cheap and a second-hand farm wagon for sale at a bargain, but he had faith that her eyes would light on it. And Mr. Shaw was rewarded. The day came when his office boy hunted him up at lunch and told him that there was a lady waiting at the office, and he almost ran the four blocks. There was a lady. She was a young lady. She was a colored young lady. She had taken the slipper off the desk and was holding it in her hand.

"Much obleeged, boss," she said as the lawyer stared at her.

"Then it was you—you"—

"It was me, sah. It was me and Julius. We had been to de show and was comin' home. Dat crash flopped me down on de floh, and it flopped Julius outer de back doah, and it was while I was runnin' arter dat pesky nigger dat de slipper come off, and I went home on my uppers. Yes, sah, it's mine—cost me a dollar and a half dat I washed fur and earned—and it was mighty nice fur you to put dat ad. in de paper and help a pore gal find her missin' property. If Julius wasn't still skeered and on de run I'd have him"—

But Mr. Shaw intimated that the interview was at an end and sat down to study the case of Brown versus Jones.

THE BILL POSTERS' CONVENTION

Mr. Stocker Attended Committee Meeting in Toronto Yesterday—Here on May 24th

A UNIQUE PROGRAMME

Mr. Herbert Williams, Montreal representative of the Canadian Poster Company, spent a few hours in the city yesterday, the guest of Mr. W. Stocker, who accompanied him to Toronto, where a meeting of the Bill-Posters Association of Canada, was held at the King Edward. Arrangements were begun for the annual meeting of the Canadian Association, to be held in Peterborough on May 24th. This will be a unique meeting in many respects inasmuch as the Bradburn estate has kindly loaned the lot south of the customs house, where modern steel boards will be erected on that day and covered with paper by different members of the association.

In the evening a grand banquet will be contributed by the national solicitors of the association.

ADDRESSED STUDENTS OF ST. MICHAEL'S

Interesting Account of Travels Through Italy by Rev. Dr. O'Brien

Rev. Dr. M. J. O'Brien, of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, gave an interesting account of his travels through Italy before the students and faculty of St. Michael's College. It was enthusiastically received. The stereopticon views served to enhance the information and enjoyment ordinarily connected with the subject Milan, Venice, Florence, Padua, Loretto and Rome were the centres of interest. The three years spent by Dr. O'Brien in preparation for his degree in the Canadian college at Rome, as also the visit he made to Europe last summer, have made him a master of his subject. A few months ago he enjoyed the privilege of a private audience with the world's greatest democrat, Pius X. His eulogy of the sweet and firm pontiff was chaste and decisive. Dr. O'Brien is an old student of St. Michael's.—Toronto News.

BUSINESS OF THE RADIATOR COMPANY

Assets Were to Have Been Sold on Saturday Last

The assets of the Canadian Boiler & Radiator Company, Limited, Hastings, Ont., were to be sold on Nov. 30. They consist of about $18,000 worth of real estate and buildings, raw material, moulding shop equipment, machinery and tools, patterns, and finished stock. The concern was established about a year ago by Peterborough men, including several plumbers. A site at Hastings was secured and buildings erected, manufacturing being started a couple of months ago. The present trouble is over the purchase of some raw material, it is understood. While the location is not considered favourable by some, Hastings is convenient to many large towns and cities, where many boilers and radiators are required. The plant is adapted for a general machinery and foundry business as well as for the making of boilers and radiators. — Plumber and Steamfitter.

Inquiry was made as to the purchaser of the plant yesterday but none of the local men interested had been informed who had secured it.

Many Attempts at Organization Have Been Failures

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—With reference to the statement made by myself regarding attempts which have been made to organize bands which have been failures, I can only say that I was ignorant of the fact that there was an organization known as the People's Band. I referred only to those attempts which I know to be failures. I am pleased to acknowledge the People's Band. A healthy competition will do good.

Wishing the People's Band every success, I remain,

Four Fixed Assessment Appeals Before The Council

Three New Applications Received Last Night---Aldermen Grow Weary of Long Sessions---Routine Business Transacted, but Weighty Questions to be Discussed Again

The regular meeting of the council last night continued but shortly over an hour, but a great deal of business had been transacted in the previous committee meeting. The aldermen in council were adverse to going into the mass of business that had to be considered, preferring to adjourn until another night when they could begin with the work and give it their whole care. Ald. Tovey stated that the members of the council were not in condition to deal properly with the different questions at a late hour. He moved that the meeting adjourn at that time—10.40, and Ald. Morrow seconded it saying there had been too many late meetings. However, it was decided not to adjourn until eleven o'clock and by that time most of the reports had been received.

The following members were present:—Mayor McWilliams, Aldermen Tovey, Phelan, Morrow Bradburn, McIntyre, Leary, Morgan, Wilson, Elliott, Stephenson and Duncan.

More Fixed Assessment.

Mr. John Carnegie appeared before the council on behalf of the Auburn Woollen Milling Company, asking for a fixed assessment for that establishment and also that some arrangement be made for fire protection, the city having made no provision in this respect.

The McDonald Estate lumbering Company and the Peterborough Canoe Company made similar requests.

In regard to these applications it was moved by Ald. Stevenson, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that they be referred to the Committee of the Whole.

A communication from the chairman of the Water Commissioners requesting the preparation of a bylaw for frontage tax for the water mains was received.

Mr. B. Lester asked that the civic seal be added to a certificate which is necessary to allow an immigrant to enter the land. The council gave their assent to the signing of the certificate.

Report of Finance

Ald. Tovey read the report of the Finance Committee which was adopted:

Your committee held a meeting with representatives of the City Trust Commissioners and Water Commissioners and appointed a sub-committee which has asked for tenders from the banks of the city for carrying the accounts of the several civic bodies, the tenders to be received up to December 10th.

We recommend that hereafter tenders be called for the supply of all iron castings required for street or bridge work for the year.

We recommend that the City Solicitor be instructed to apply to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for authority to raise the rate of the school debentures to be issued to 4 3-4 and 5 per cent. as requested by the Board of Education.

The report of the Park Committee, presented by Ald. Tovey, was received, but on motion of Ald. Duncan and Bradburn it was left over till the next meeting.

Isolation Hospital

Ald. Bradburn's report in regard to an Isolation Hospital was treated in the same manner. It was as follows:

We have not been able to find a building suitable for the purpose and sufficiently isolated that we can purchase and use for such an hospital. We recommend that the managers of the Nicholls Hospital and the St. Joseph Hospital be seen by the committee to ascertain whether arrangements can be made to have a building erected at each of the hospitals, one for diphtheria and the other for scarlet fever, and to have the hospitals manage these isolation hospitals, and further, that if such arrangements cannot be made, the committee be authorized to get plans for a building for an isolation hospital to be erected on some part of the Hilliard property, providing the consent of the City Trust Commissioners can be obtained.

Ald. Stevenson's report of the special light committee was quickly dealt with. It is as follows:

Your special committee on light, etc., has been in communication with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in regard to securing power for the city through the services of the committee, and two engineers of the Commission, Messrs. Richards and Acres, have been here procuring information as to the available water-powers, and we expect to have a report soon giving information that will enable the Council to ascertain what it will cost to secure the supply of power.—Carried.

Fixed Assessment.

Ald. Morrow presented the following:

Your Manufacturers' Committee begs leave to report and recommend as follows:

That the assessment of the Peter Hamilton Company be fixed at $15,000 for a period of ten years on conditions similar to those given to other manufacturing concerns as to local improvements, etc., and that a bylaw be prepared for this purpose.

That one hundred copies of the special Industrial edition of the Times be purchased at a cost of $10. This was carried with the exception of the first clause, which was referred back to the committee to be dealt with in connection with the other three applications for fixed assessment.

Garbage Bylaw

The first clause of Ald. McIntyre's report was left over for further consideration.

Your Property Committee begs leave to report as follows:

We instructed the City Solicitor to prepare a bylaw for taking a vote of all municipal electors at the municipal elections on the question, "Are you in favour of the establishment of a system for the collection of garbage?"

We recommend that the Sanitary Inspector be given two weeks leave of absence at a time to be fixed by the chairman of this committee.

We recommend that the City Trust Commissioners be asked to consent to the placing of a hospital tent for contagious diseases on the Hilliard property when needed, until such time as the Isolation Hospital is built, and that they be asked to designate which part of the property may be used for this purpose.

That the chairman be authorized to procure an overcoat for the use of the Sanitary Inspector similar to those furnished the police, as soon as the Sanitary Inspector has been sworn in as constable.

The garbage bylaw will therefore be one of the questions which will be discussed at the adjourned meeting next Monday night.

No Smoking To Be Allowed During The Meet To-night

Programme for the Evening—Indications Point to an Enormous Crowd Being Present—Reserved Seats All Sold.

SOME GREAT RUNNERS

All indications point to the fact that to-night's meet in the Brock street rink, will be the biggest athletic event of the year. Some of the best men in Canada are entered for the events, and every contest will be worth the price of admission alone. The events are all filled up with big fields and the best sport of the season will be seen. There promises to be an enormous crowd present, as all the reserved seats were sold out last night, and the 35 cent rush seats for the west side have been selling fast all day. The seats on the east side will be sold to-night at the rink for 25 cents, and those intending to go should be on hand early as there will be a big rush. The doors will open at seven o'clock sharp.

There will be no smoking allowed to-night and the management of the Harriers requests the crowd to respect this rule, as it is difficult enough for the runners to work inside without having their lungs filled with smoke. The runners and management, and, of course, the ladies, will appreciate the sacrifice of the gentlemen in postponing their worship of Lady Nicotine for a few hours.

The races will start sharply at 8.15 o'clock, and the programme will be as follows:

Event No. 1, 50 yards handicap, four heats.
Event No. 2, one mile race, open.
Event No. 3, exhibition of shot putting, T. O'Rourke of Irish Canadians, Toronto
Event No. 4, final of 50 yards handicap
Event No. 5, 880 yards handicap.
Event No. 6, 220 yards handicap.
Event No. 7, Three mile handicap.
Event No. 8, Final of 220 yards handicap.
Event No. 9, presentation of medals by Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton.
Event No. 10, three mile special invitation race.

The 57th band will be on hand and will render a new programme.

W. Heffernan, of Peterborough, the one-time famous sprinter, will start the 50 and 220 yards dashes. Tom Flanagan will see that the runners in the one mile and one-half mile races get away well and the renowned Tom Longboat will handle the two three mile events.

SOUTHENDER ON THAT SEWER AGAIN

Writes Letter to the Examiner, Setting Forth What He Considers to Be Blunders

NO PRAISE FOR COUNCIL

Editor Examiner.

Sir,—In your issue of the 22nd of November I noticed a heading in large type, "Trying to Fix Responsibility for Defect in the Romaine Street Sewer," and in reading on down in the report I was struck with amazement to find that a body of men, with all the intelligence and business ability of the alderman of this fair city, had to sit with folded arms and say, "Well, well, it is an awful mess! Will someone kindly tell us what to do, as we cannot come to anydecision and can find no one upon whom to rest the blame for the bungle on the sewer?"

For faulty work, poor levels, and generally useless conditions of the sewer, it is reported that nothing could be worse, notwithstanding the fact that we have a highly paid city engineer, inspectors galore, highly paid foremen of constructions, boss pipe men and many others too numerous to mention in this letter. The man on the job were all good and experienced men (?) who were supposed to know when good work was being done. "I told you so" was the only thing the above body of shining lights could find to say, besides the releasing of the poor unfortunate Italian who happened to be in the position of doing as he was told.

Now, Mr. Editor, is there any excuse for the condition of the Romaine street sewer? It seems to me that there is none. Here is a sewer laid in one of the most difficult parts of the city as an experiment of day labour versus contract system, for the purpose of demonstrating that the day labour system is the only and proper way to perform all public works. And what do we find? That the sewer connects into the main outfall at the very bottom of the trunk sewer, and that there is at least eighteen inches of water over the top of sewer where it forms the juncture with the trunk sewer, and that the pipes have been laid in zig-zag shape all along the length of same and in a great many places the pipes are from 3 to 4 inches apart with chunks of sod placed around the joints instead of cement with the expectation that it will keep out the quick sand and keep the sewage from oozing through the joints, and the pipes laid in some places fully three feet out of line, so that when the foreman on the job strikes his line from one man hole to the other and excavates his trench for the purpose of lifting the pipes, he finds himself fully three feet out, and has to dig under the side of the tranch stays to find them. But suppose it was the pressure of sand and water that forced them over, it could not have been inferior work—oh no? And yet the aldermanic body can find no one to blame. Another very important point about the construction of this sewer is that the cost is now double what it could have ben built for. I would like if some of our city financiers would tell the ratepayers along the route of the sewer who is going to pay for the difference between what it should have cost and what it will cost when finished—if we ever see that day.

I think, Sir, that it is very important that the citizens take some action towards the election of some good men to govern this fair city—who will be able to grasp properly all the details in our public affairs, and be able to fix responsibility, and not a body of incompetents who have no greater ability than keeping an army of highly paid men, who are evidently not equal to the tasks given them, as the present staff of highly paid men, who are walking around this city drawing large salaries, and doing nothing in return.

As the city elections are now near at hand, it would be well if the present governing body would place before the citizens in detail the amount of work that they have done during the year that has benefitted the city in any way. There have been no new industries brought to the city, and in fact there are less men employed than one year ago. And yet these same gentlemen will no doubt come before the citizens and say that they have done wisely and well, and ask the electors for a renewal of their confidence.

If such should be the case it is to be hoped that the said electors will not forget the high assessment, the garbage bylaw, the sign bylaw, the sewer and other bungles of the council of 1907, and see to it that there is a radical change in the personnel of the board of aldermen for the year 1908.

Yours truly,

SOUTH-END.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are only local, for, as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. BACK FROM A TRIP TO THE WEST

Mr. H. G. Thompson Has Returned to the City

Mr. H G Thompson of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company returned to the city on Saturday night after a most enjoyable trip to the Western coast. Leaving Peterborough six weeks ago he travelled out to the coast through the Canadian provinces stopping over at Winnipeg and other important centres along the line. A very pleasant time was spent on the coast and Seattle and other American cities were visited. On the return trip Mr. Thompson travelled through the Northern States and visited Chicago en route. He met many Peterborough old boys in the west and all of them seemed to be doing well.

TELLS THRILLING STORY.

Survivor of Exploring Party Returns —Six Were Drowned.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 3.—Upset in the boiling waters of one of the rapids of the Upper Fraser River, dashed over the falls against the knife-like edges of protruding rocks until his tortured nerves and failing strength almost made him resign himself to death, clinging all the while to a fellow-woodsman, whose arms were locked about him in life's last clasp, were a few of the experiences of M. McLaughlin, a timber cruiser, just returned after a summer in the wilds of interior British Columbia.

That he is alive to tell the story, he considers a miracle, certainly as he unfolds his tale it seemed so like dime novel wonders as to be almost unbelievable. As it was six men were drowned.

McLaughlin and his partner, John Evans, were the only survivors out of a party of seven white men and one Indian. The names of all those lost are not known to Mr. McLaughlin. They were all employed by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. in survey work, and were on their way west at the time of the catastrophe.

Mount Temple Wrecked.

Halifax, Dec. 3.—The steamer Mount Temple, Antwerp for St. John, with 600 passengers, was wrecked on Iron Bound, at the mouth of Lahave River, near Bridgewater, N. S.

All passengers were landed safely, but it is feared the steamer will be a total wreck.

The steamer showed signals of distress early yesterday morning and boats were sent out to her assistance from Bridgewater.

The Mount Temple carried a crew of 150 men and was one of the finest in the immigration service.

Copper Dividend Dwindling.

Calumet, Mich., Dec. 2.—The Calumet and Arizona Mining Co. declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share Saturday as compared with $5 three months ago. The heavy cut is said to be due to the drop in the price of copper and inability to sell the product readily.

District Convention Of Epworth League Held

Many Profitable Addresses Were Heard at Three Sessions at Lakefield Yesterday.

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED

The annual convention of the Epworth League for the Peterborough district, was held on Monday in the Methodist church, Lakefield, and was largely attended, nearly all the Leagues in the district being well represented. The sessions were interesting and profitable, and much good and beneficial advice was given by the different speakers during the course of the discussion upon the subjects that came up.

A short session was held in the morning at 11 o'clock when the only important business was the appointing of a nominating committee.

At the afternoon session there was a large crowd present, the church being comfortably filled. An interesting address upon the literary work of the league was given by Mr J. S. Carter of Lakefield, whose remarks were to the point and much appreciated by the gathering.

A round table conference was then held, and was conducted by Rev. Dr. Metzler of Bridgenorth, who acted as chairman. Papers containing 30 questions which had been sent in previously from different leagues in the district were distributed, and the subjects were taken up according to the wishes of the gathering. In this way much interesting and profitable information was obtained.

This feature of the meeting was followed by an address by Rev. S. P. Bartlett, the associate secretary of Leagues and Sunday schools in Canada who spoke on the subject "Epworth League Ideals." The principal feature of his remarks was the remarks were too the point and much work.

In the evening at 7.30, a song service conducted by the choir of the Lakefield church, was held. The church was crowded to the doors, two 'bus loads of people coming from the George street and Charlotte street churches.

At eight o'clock the officers were elected on the report of the Nominating Committee:

President — J. O. Tisdale, George street Methodist church.

Vice-Presidents — Mrs. John George, Charlotte street Methodist church, Peterborough; Mrs. (Rev. E. D. Lewis, Miss N. Sherlin, Lakefield; Prof. McCann, George street Methodist church, Peterborough; Mrs. D. E. Bravender, Lakefield.

Secretary — Rev. C. H. Coon, Mark street Methodist church, Peterborough.

Treasurer — Smith Kelly, Bridgenorth.

District Representative — Rev. Dr. Metzler, Bridgenorth.

Three most interesting addresses were given during the evening by Rev. H. M. Manning, of the Charlotte street Methodist church, on the League as a revival agency; Rev. E. A. Pearson of the George street church on "Church Loyalty;" and Rev. S. P. Bartlett on "The Promotion of Bible Study."

HAVELOCK HOCKEY CLUB BEHIND

Railway Town Not Yet Organized—Boys Home From Cobalt Owing to Dullness

SOME SOCIAL EVENTS

Examiner Special.

Havelock, December 4th. — Miss Bessie Rose entertained a few friends on Friday evening to a card party.

Mrs. Jas. E. Fowler returned home on Friday after spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Barrie, of Peterborough.

Messrs. A. Welden, F. McLeary and B. Huycke of Norwood, were in town on Friday evening.

Miss M. McWilliams spent last week at her home in Marmora.

Mrs. Spurr of Madoc is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Grant.

Owing to the illness of one of the teachers, Miss Buchanan, a number of the school children had a week's holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellar of Campbellford and Miss Kellar of Healey's Falls, spent Sunday in town.

Messrs. Fred Cummings and Bert Huycke, of Norwood, were in town over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Cimpney spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Messrs. T. McWilliams and W. Copperthwaite who have been working at Cobalt during the last few months were laid off last week, and arrived in town Thursday evening. They report work to be very dull at Cobalt at the present time and will be during the coming winter as men are being laid off every day.

Mr. Charlie Buchanan is visiting with friends in Smiths Falls.

Many of the merchants have begun to decorate their stores for Christmas. The two most attractive to the eye at present are A. C. Denike's drug store and Jas. E. Fowler's jewellery store.

Mr. and Mrs. George Buchanan entertained a few of the young people on Monday evening in honour of their son, Charlie, who is home from Detroit.

Mr. W. J. McBurney of town, has joined the Y.M.C.A. Harriers of Peterborough and will take part in the mile event in the big athletic meet under the auspices of that body in the Brock street rink, Peterborough on Tuesday evening. Mr. Ernest Moss, also of town, who was third in the Examiner road race this year, has entered for the three-mile handicap. A large number of the town sports will accompany McBurney and Moss to Peterborough and cheer them on.

Mr. Teddy Pace of Edmonton, Alta., but formerly of town, is around renewing old acquaintances, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Squires.

Mr. Matthew Foley of Asphodel has sold his farm and retired, and is now residing in town, on George street east.

The hockey club held a meeting on Friday night in the basement of the town hall, but owing to such a small number being present nothing definite was decided on.

Many things point to an open winter. The farmers tell many strange stories, how that the trees are budding and cat tails are out, and some, indeed, say that they have even heard the frogs croaking. All the signs point to an open winter, the farmers say.

The Scotch concert which was held in the opera house on Thursday night last under the auspices of the Sons of Scotland, was the best ever held in Havelock, although it was not greeted by a crowded house, but it was not the fault of the company and should they ever return they are sure to have a crowded house. They greatly pleased those who heard them on Thursday evening last in the many different and difficult selections of Scotch music which were rendered.

JEWEL PRESENTED TO MR. F. C. KITNEY

Important Event at Meeting of Lansdowne Lodge—Officers Were Elected

A BIG DEMONSTRATION

No more enthusiastic meeting could have been held in Society affairs than the annual meeting of Lansdowne Lodge proved to be. The large room on Hunter street next to the post-office, was crowded to its fullest capacity, and one and all showed that "Sunshine had come into that meeting," and everyone wore the smile that wouldn't come off. It was the occasion of much business, which was despatched in very short order by the president, Mr. E. W. Bloome, after he had put five candidates through the mysteries of the Order.

A very pleasing event took place during the evening, being the presentation of a past master's jewel to Bro. C. F. Kitney, who occupied the chair for the years 1905 and 1906. The presentation was made by Bro. Thos. Gunn, who is the oldest past president living in the history of Lansdowne Lodge, and who received a similar honour just 21 years ago, Monday night. The jewel is a handsome one. It is composed entirely of sterling silver, coin, gold and silk. The top bar is surmounted by a lion. On the bar is engraved the recipient's name, "Bro. C. F. Kitney," hung from the bar and mounted on a rich watered blue silk ribbon, are the two flags which Englishmen the world over, love—the Union Jack and S. George's flag. Underneath this are two roses, a white and a red rose, and attached to the ribbon is another silver bar, with the inscription, "From Lansdowne Lodge, No. 23." Hung from the bar is a rising sun in sterling silver, the centre of which is an English sovereign — Edward VII. Around the sovereign is an enamel band with the words, "Sons of England, B.S." The whole is indeed a very pretty and costly reminder of the two years which Mr. Kitney filled the president's chair, of Lansdowne Lodge.

Messrs. Shiner and Moore on behalf of the Demonstration Committee for July 1st, 1908, reported at length what they had done, and their actions were unanimously endorsed by the Lodge, and the Sons promise the people of Peterborough the biggest event of the year 1908.

The nomination and election of the officers then took place with Bros. Roberts of Leeds Lodge, Weston, Ont., Harry Long and R. Tivey as scrutineers, and resulted as follows:—

LEARN TO EAT.

Few People in Peterborough Know How

Slow eating will solve one half the problems of ill health. Those who suffer already with indigestion, weak stomach, can with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets restore their stomach to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating, all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear, and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is working more smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na Tablet before each meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion, and the unpleasant full feeling which so many suffer after meals.

Mr. Madill has got much confidence in the powers of Mi-o-na to cure bad digestion and all stomach ills that he gives a guarantee with every fifty cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

"Ah, they can shut it off," he said, "that's interesting. I must investigate and learn whether or no there is communication between the cells; not very likely though."

He crawled on hands and knees until he came to the bed of the stream, which was now damp, but empty. Kneeling down in its course, he worked his way toward the lower cell and, as he expected, came to stout iron bars. Crouching thus he sacrificed a second match and estimated that the distance between the two cells was as much as ten feet of solid rock and saw also that behind the perpendicular iron bars were another horizontal set, then another perpendicular, then a fourth horizontal.

While in this position he was startled by a piercing scream to the rear. He backed out from the tunnel and stood upright once more. He heard the sound of people splashing round in the water. The screamer began to jabber like a maniac, punctuating his ravings with shrieks. Another was cursing vehemently and a third appealing to the saints. Lermontoff quickly knelt down in the watercourse, this time facing the upper cell, and struck his third match. He saw that a steel shield, reminding him of the thin shutter between the lenses of a camera, had been shot across the tunnel behind the second group of cross bars, and as an engineer he could not but admire the skill of the practical expert who had constructed this diabolical device, for in spite of the pressure on the other side hardly a drop of water oozed through. He tried to reach the shield, but could not. It was just beyond the touch of his fingers with his arm thrust through the two sets of bars, but if he could have stretched that far with the first bar retarding his shoulder, he knew his hand would be helpless even if he had some weapon to puncture the steel shield. The men would be drowned before he could accomplish anything unless he was at the lever in the passage outside.

Crawling into his cell again, he heard no more of the chatter and cries of the maniac, and he surmised that the other two were fighting for places on bench or shelf, which was amply large enough to have supported both had they not been too demented with fear to recognize that fact. The cursing man was victorious, and now he stood alone on the shelf, roaring maledictions. Then there was the sound of a plunge, and Lermontoff, standing there helpless and shivering, heard the prisoner swim round and round his cell like a furious animal, muttering and swearing.

"Don't exhaust yourself like that," shouted Lermontoff. "If you want to live, cling to the hole at either of the two upper corners. The water can't rise above you then, and you can breathe till it subsides."

The other either did not hear or did not heed, but tore around and around in his confined tank, thrashing the water like a drowning whale.

"Poor devil!" moaned Jack. "What's the use of telling him what to do? He is doomed in any case. The other two are now better off."

A moment later the water began to dribble through the upper aperture into Jack's cell, increasing and increasing until there was the roar of a waterfall, and he felt the cold, splashing drops spurt against him. Beyond this there was silence. It was perhaps ten minutes after that the lever was pulled, and the water belched forth from the lower tunnel like a mill race broken loose, temporarily flooding the floor so that Jack was compelled to stand on the bench.

He sunk down shivering on the stone shelf, laid his arms on the stone pillow and buried his face in them.

"My God, my God!" he groaned.

CHAPTER XVII.

IN this position Jack slept off and on, or, rather, dozed into a kind of semistupor from which he awoke with a start now and then, as he thought he heard again the mingled cries of devotion and malediction. At last he slept soundly and awoke refreshed, but hungry. The loaf lay beside him, and with his knife he cut a slice from it, munching the coarse bread with more of relish than he had thought possible when he first saw it. Then he took out another cigarette, struck a match, looked at his watch and lit the cigarette. It was ten minutes past 2. He wondered if a night had intervened, but thought it unlikely. He had landed very early in the morning, and now it was afternoon. He was fearfully thirsty, but could not bring himself to drink from that stream of death. Once more he heard the bolts shot back.

"They are going to throw the poor wretches into the sea," he muttered. But the yellow gleam of a lantern showed him it was his own door that had been unlocked.

"You are to see the governor," said the jailer gruffly. "Come with me."

Jack sprang to the floor of his cell, repressing a cry of delight. Nothing the grim governor could do to him would make his situation any worse, and perhaps his persuasive powers upon that official might result in some amelioration of his position. In any case there was the brief respite of the interview, and he would gladly have chummed with the devil himself to be free a few moments from this black pit.

Although the outside door of the governor's room stood open, the room was not as well illumined as it had been before, for the sun had now gone round to the other side of the island, but to the prisoner's aching eyes it seemed a chamber of refulgence. The same lamp was burning on the table, giving forth an odor of bad oil, but in addition to this two candles were lighted, which supplemented in some slight measure the efforts of the lamp. At the end of the table lay a number of documents under a paperweight, arranged with the neat precision of a methodical man. The governor had been warming his hands over the brazier, but ceased when Lermontoff was brought up standing before him. He lifted the paperweight, took from under it the two letters which Lermontoff had given to the steward on the steamer and handed them to the prisoner, who thus received them back for the second time.

"I wish to say," remarked the governor, with an air of bored indifference which was evidently quite genuine, "that if you make any further attempt to communicate with the authorities or with friends you will bring on yourself punishment which will be unpleasant."

"As a subject of the czar I have the right to appeal to him," said the prince.

"The appeal you have written here," replied the governor, "would have proved useless even if it had been delivered. The czar knows nothing of the Trogzmondoff, which is a stronghold entirely under the control of the grand dukes and of the navy. The Trogzmondoff never gives up a prisoner."

"Then I am here for a lifetime?",

"Yes," rejoined the governor, with frigid calmness, "and if you give me no trouble you will save yourself some inconvenience."

"Do you speak French?" asked the prince.

"Net."

"English?"

"Net."

"Italian?"

"Net."

"German?"

"Da."

"Then," continued Lermontoff in German, "I desire to say a few words to you which I don't wish this jailer to understand. I am Prince Ivan Lermontoff, a personal friend of the czar's, who, after all, is master of the grand dukes and the navy also. If you will help to put me into communication with him, I will guarantee that no harm comes to you and, furthermore, will make you a rich man."

The governor slowly shook his head.

"What you ask is impossible. Riches are nothing to me. Bribery may do much in other parts of the empire, but it is powerless in the Trogzmondoff. I shall die in the room adjoining this, as my predecessor died. I am quite as much a prisoner in the Trogzmondoff as is your highness. No man who has once set foot in this room either as governor, employee or prisoner is allowed to see the mainland again, and thus the secret has been well kept. We have had many prisoners of equal rank with your highness, friends of the czar, too, I dare say, but they all died on the rock and were buried in the Baltic."

"May I not be permitted to receive certain supplies if I pay for them? That is allowed in other prisons."

The governor shook his head.

"I can let you have a blanket," he said, "and a pillow or a sheepskin if you find it cold at first, but my power here is very limited, and, as I tell you, the officers have little more comfort than the prisoners."

"Oh, I don't care anything about comfort," protested Lermontoff. "What I want is some scientific apparatus. I am a student of science. I have nothing to do with politics and have never been implicated in any plot. Some one in authority has made a stupid mistake, and so I am here. This mistake I am quite certain will be discovered and remedied. I hold no malice and will say nothing of the place once I am free. It is no business of mine. But I do not wish to have the intervening time wasted. I should like to buy some electrical machinery and materials, for which I am willing to pay any price that is asked."

"Do you understand electricity?" questioned the governor, and for the first time his impassive face showed a glimmer of interest.

"Do I understand electricity? Why, for over a year I have been chief electrician on a warship."

"Perhaps then," said the governor, relapsing into Russian again, "you can tell me what is wrong with our dynamo here in the rock. After repeated requisition they sent machinery for lighting our offices and passages with electricity. They apparently did not care to send an electrician to the Trogzmondoff, but forwarded instead some books of instruction. I have been working at it for two years and a half, but I am still using oil lamps and candles. We wired the place without difficulty." He held up the candle and showed, depending from the ceiling, a chandelier of electric lamps which Lermontoff had not hitherto noticed, various brackets and one or two stand lamps in a corner, with green silk covered wire attached.

"May I see your dynamo?" asked Lermontoff.

The governor, with one final warming of his hands, took up a candle, told the jailer to remove the shade from the lamp and bring it, led the way along a passage and then into a room where the prisoner, on first entering, had heard the roar of water.

"What's this you have, a turbine? Does it give you any power?"

"Oh, it gives power enough," said the governor.

"Let's see how you turn on the stream."

The governor set the turbine at work, and the dynamo began to hum, a sound which to the educated ear of Lermontoff told him several things.

"That's all right, governor; turn it off. This is a somewhat old fashioned dynamo, but it ought to give you all the light you can use. You must be a natural born electrician, or you never could have got this machinery working as well as it does."

The dull eyes of the governor glowed for one brief moment, then resumed their customary expression of saddened tiredness.

"Now," said Jack, throwing off his coat, "I want a wrench, screwdriver, hammer and a pair of pinchers if you have got them."

"Here is the tool chest," said the governor, and Jack found all he needed. Bidding the governor hold the candle here, there and elsewhere and ordering the jailer about as if he were an apprentice, Jack set energetically to work, and for half an hour no one spoke.

"Turn on that water again," he commanded.

The governor did so, and the machine whirred with quite a different note. Half a dozen electric lamps in the room flooded the place with a dazzling white glow.

"There you are," cried Jack, rubbing the oil off his hands on a piece of coarse sacking. "Now, Tommy, put these things back in the tool chest," he said to the jailer. Then to the governor: "Let's see how things look in the big room."

The passage was lit, and the governor's room showed every mark on wall, ceiling and floor.

"I told you, governor," said Jack with a laugh, "that I didn't know why I was sent here, but now I understand. Providence took pity on you and ordered me to strike a light."

At that moment the jailer entered with his jingling keys, and the enthusiastic expression faded from the governor's face, leaving it once more coldly impassive, but he spoke in German instead of Russian.

"I am very much indebted to your highness, and it grieves me that our relationship remains unchanged."

"Oh, that's all right," cried Lermontoff breezily. "If it is within your power to allow me to come and give you some lessons in electricity and the care of dynamos, I shall be very glad to do so."

To this offer the governor made no reply, but he went on still in German: "I shall transfer you to cell No. 1 when is not only more comfortable, but the water there is pure. Did you say you spoke English?"

"Yes; quite as well as I do Russian."

The governor continued, with, nevertheless, a little hesitation: "On the return of the steamer there will be an English prisoner. I will give him cell No. 2, and if you don't talk so loud that the jailer hears you it may perhaps make the day less wearisome."

"You are very kind," said Jack, rigidly suppressing any trace of either emotion or interest as he heard the intelligence, leaping at once to certain conclusions nevertheless. "I shan't ask for anything more, much as I should like to mention candles, matches and tobacco."

"It is possible you may find all three in No. 1 before this time tomorrow." Then in Russian the governor said to the jailer:

"See if No. 1 is ready."

The jailer departed, and the governor, throwing open a drawer in his table, took out two candles, a box of matches and a packet of cigarettes.

"Put these in your pocket," he said. "The cell door opens very slowly, so you will always know when the jailer is coming. In that case blow out your light and conceal your candle. It will last the longer."

The jailer returned.

"The cell is ready, excellency," he said.

"Take away the prisoner," commanded the governor gruffly.

CHAPTER XVIII.

CELL No. 1 was a great improvement on No. 9. There was no shelf of rock or stone bench, but a cot bed in the corner, a table and a wooden chair. The living spring issued from the living rock in a corner of the room. When the jailer and his assistant had retired and shoved in the outside bolts Jack lit his candle and a cigarette, feeling almost happy. He surveyed the premises now with more care. The bed was of iron and fastened to the floor. On the top of it was a mattress, a pillow and a pair of blankets. At its head a little triangular shelf of rock had been left in the corner, and on this reposed a basin of tin, while a coarse piece of sacking took the place of a towel. Jack threw off his overcoat and flung it on the bed, intent on a satisfactory wash. He heard something jingle in the pockets and, forgetting for the moment what it could possibly be, thrust his hand in and pulled out a glass stoppered bottle of ozak. He held it out at arm's length and stared at it for some moments like a man hypnotized.

"Holy St. Peter!" he cried. "To think that I should have forgotten this!"

He filled the tin basin with water and placed it on the table. Again he dissolved a minute portion of the chemical and again filled the syringe.

"I must leave no marks on the wall that may arouse attention," he said, and, taking the full syringe to the arch over the torrent and placing the candle on the floor beside him, he gently pushed in the piston. The spray struck the rock, and the rock dissolved slightly but perceptibly. Coming back to the table, he stood for a few minutes in deep thought. Although the cot bed was fixed to the floor, and although it was possible that the shelf in the next cell coincided with its position, the risk of discovery was too great to cut a passage between the two cells there. The obvious spot to attack was the interior of the tunnel through which the streamlet ran, but Jack, testing the temperature of the water with his hand, doubted his physical ability to remain in that ice cold current more than a few minutes at a time, and if he worked in the tunnel he would be all but submerged. He feared he would perish with cold and cramp before he had made any impression on the rock.

To the edge of the stream he drew the table, and, mounting it, examined the upper orifice through which the water escaped when the cell was full. He found he could stand on the table and work in comfort until he had excavated sufficient rock to allow him to clamber into the upper tunnel and so continue his operations. The water he used would flow through the tunnel and down to the main stream in the next cell. All he had to do was to dissolve a semicircular hole in the rock that would bend around the end of those steel bars and enter the tunnel again on the other side. Eager to be at work, he took the full basin, shoved it far along the tunnel until it was stopped by the bars; then, placing his

Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

SAVED FROM HERSELF.

Masson, Que.—Just two years ago, the residents of this pretty village viewed, with alarm, the change that crept over Florence, the daughter of Mr. Jamison. From a bright, carefree child, she emerged into young womanhood, worn and wasted. It became a "nine-days wonder." There was no radical trouble and yet her health perceptibly failed. Finally, physicians were consulted. They prescribed—failed to do any good—and were discharged. All at once, Florence began to improve. Her eyes brightened, the color returned, and today, there is not a brighter, happier, healthier girl in Canada.

"I was a martyr to constipation," writes Miss Jamison. "I had every symptom of kidney irritation and had been told by physicians that my kidneys were affected. I consulted a number of physicians and took various remedies, but received very little benefit. Then I was advised to try 'Fruit-a-tives.' After I had taken half a box, the constipation was relieved—headaches left me—pain in the back was better—and I could sleep."

"Fruit-a-tives" always cure kidney trouble, because they cure the cause. They stimulate the liver and kidneys to increased action. Get a box—take them properly—and cure yourself to stay cured. Made of fruit juices and tonics. 50c a box; 6 for $2.50. At druggists or sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

A ROCK IN THE BALTIC

cranny beside it and standing on the table, he began operations.

The limestone under the influence of the spray dissolved very slowly, and by the time the basin of water was exhausted all the effect visible under the light of the candle was an exceedingly slight circular impression which was barely visible to the naked eye.

"I must make the solution stronger, I think," he said, grievously disappointed at the outcome of his labors, and as he looked at it he heard the clank of the withdrawing bolts. Blowing out the candle, he sprang to the floor of the cell, picked up the table, set it down in the center of the room, groped for the chair and sat down, his heart palpitating wildly at the fear of discovery.

Followed as usual by the man with the lantern, the jailer came in, carrying a bowl of hot, steaming soup, which he placed on the table; then he took from his pocket a spoon, a small hunk of black bread and a piece of cheese. In the light of the lantern Lermontoff consulted his watch and found it was 6 o'clock. The jailer took the lantern from his assistant, held it high and looked round the room, while Lermontoff gazed at him in anxiety, wondering whether that brutal looking official suspected anything. Apparently he did not, but merely wished to satisfy himself that everything was in order, for he said more mildly than he had hitherto spoken:

"It is a long time since any one occupied this cell."

Then his eye rested on the vacant corner shelf.

"Ah, excellency," he continued, "pardon me. I have forgotten. I must bring you a basin."

"I'd rather you brought me a candle," said Lermontoff nonchalantly, although his lips were dry, and he moistened them as he spoke. Then, to learn whether money was valueless on the rock, as the governor had intimated, he drew from his pocket one of the remaining gold pieces, glad that he happened to have so many, and slipped it into the palm of the jailer's hand, whose fingers clutched it as eagerly as if he were in St. Petersburg.

"I think a candle can be managed, excellency. Shall I bring a cup?"

"I wish you would."

The door was again locked and bolted, but before Lermontoff had finished his soup and bread and cheese it was opened again. The jailer placed a tin basin similar to the former one on the ledge, put a candle and a candlestick on the table and a tin cup beside them.

"I thought there was no part of Russia where bribery was extinct," said the prince to himself as the door closed again for the night.

After supper Lermontoff again shifted his table, stood upon it, lit his candle and resumed his tunneling, working hard until after midnight. His progress was deplorably slow, and the spraying of the rock proved about as tiring a task as ever he had undertaken. His second basinful of solution was made a little stronger, but without perceptible improvement in its effect. On ceasing operations for the night he found himself in a situation common to few prisoners—that of being embarrassed with riches. He possessed two basins, and one of them must be concealed. Of course he might leave his working basin in the upper tunnel where it had rested when the jailer had brought in his supper, but he realised that at any moment the lantern's rays might strike its shining surface and so bring on an investigation of the upper tunnel, certain to prove the destruction of his whole scheme. A few minutes' thought, however, solved the problem admirably. He placed the basin face downward in the rapid stream, which swept it to the iron bars between the two cells, and there it lay quite concealed with the swift water rippling over it. This done, he flung off his clothes and got into bed, not awakening until the jailer and his assistant brought in bread, cheese and coffee for breakfast.

The next day he began to feel the inconveniences of the governor's friendship and wished he were safely back to the time when one loaf lasted four days, for if such were now the case he would be free of the constant state of tension which the ever recurring visits of the jailer caused. He feared that some day he might become so absorbed in his occupation that he would not hear the withdrawing of the bolt, and thus, as it were, be caught in the act.

Shortly after lunch the governor sent for him and asked many questions pertaining to the running of the dynamo. Lermontoff concealed his impatience and set about his instructions with exemplary earnestness. Russian text books on electricity at hand were of the most rudimentary description, and, although the governor could speak German, he could not read it, so the two volumes he possessed in that language were closed to him. Therefore John was compelled to begin at the very A B C of the science.

The governor, however, became so deeply interested that he momentarily forgot his caution, unlocked a door and took Lermontoff into a room which he saw was the armory and ammunition storehouse of the prison. On the floor of this chamber the governor pointed out a large battery of accumulators and asked what they were for. Lermontoff explained the purposes of the battery, meanwhile examining it thoroughly and finding that many of the cells had been all but ruined in transit through the falling away of the composition in the grids. Something like half of the accumulators, however, were intact and workable. These he uncoupled and brought into the dynamo room, where he showed the governor the process of charging. He saw in the storeroom a box containing incandescent lamps, coils of wire covered wire and other material that made his eyes glisten with delight. He spoke in German.

"If you will give me a coil of this wire, one or two of the lamps and an accumulator, or, indeed, half a dozen of them, I will trouble you no more for candles."

The governor did not reply at the moment, but a short time after asked Lermontoff in Russian how long it would be before the accumulators were charged. Lermontoff stated the time, and the governor told the jailer to bring the prisoner from the cell at that hour, and so dismissed his instructor.

One feature of this interview which pleased Lermontoff was that, however much the governor became absorbed in these lessons, he never allowed himself to remain alone with his prisoner. It was evident that in his cooler moments the governor had instructed the jailer and his assistant to keep ever at the heels of the prince and always on the alert. Two huge revolvers were thrust underneath the belt of the jailer, and the lantern holder was similarly armed. Lermontoff was pleased with this, for if the governor had trusted him entirely, even though he demanded no verbal parole, it would have gone against his grain to strike down the chief, as he ruthlessly intended to do when the time was ripe for it, and in any case, he told himself, no matter how friendly the governor might be, he had the misfortune to stand between his prisoner and liberty.

Lermontoff was again taken from his cell about half an hour before the time he had named for the completion of the charging, and, although the governor said nothing of his intention, the jailer and his man brought to the cell six charged batteries, a coil of wire and a dozen lamps. Lermontoff now changed his working methods. He began each night as soon as he had finished dinner and worked till nearly morning, sleeping all day except when interrupted by the jailer. Jack, following the example of Robinson Crusoe, attempted to tie knots on the tail of time by cutting notches with his knife on the leg of the table, but most days he forgot to perform this operation, and so his wooden almanac fell hopelessly out of gear. He estimated that he had been a little more than a week in prison when he heard by the clang of the bolt that the next cell was to have an occupant.

"I must prepare a welcome for him," he said, and so turned out the electric light at the end of the long, flexible wire. He had arranged a neat little switch of the accumulator, and so snapped the light on and off at his pleasure without the trouble of unscrewing the nuts which held in place one of the copper ends of the wire. Going to the edge of the stream and lighting his candle, he placed the glass bulb in the current, paid out the flexible line attached to it and allowed the bulb to run the risk of being smashed against the iron bars of the passage, but the little globe negotiated the rapids without even a perceptible clink and came to rest in the bed of the torrent somewhere about the center of the next cell, tugging like a fish on a hook. Then Jack mounted the table, leaned into the upper tunnel and listened.

"I protest," Drummond cried, speaking loudly, as if the volume of sound would convey meaning to alien ears—"I protest against this as an outrage and demand my right of communication with the British ambassador."

Jack heard the jailer growl, "This loaf of bread will last you for four days," but as this statement was made in Russian it conveyed no more meaning to the Englishman than had his own protest of a moment before brought intelligence to the jailer. The door clanged shut, and there followed a dead silence.

The jailer and his assistant ever at the heels of the prince.

"Now we ought to hear some good old British oaths," said Jack to himself, but the silence continued.

"Hello, Alan," cried Jack through the bars. "I said you would be nabbed if you didn't leave St. Petersburg. You'll pay attention to me next time I warn you."

There was no reply, and Jack became alarmed at the continued stillness. Then he heard his friend mutter:

"I'll be seeing visions by and by. I thought my brain was stronger than it is—could have sworn that was Jack's voice."

Jack got speedily and quietly down, turned on the switch and hopped upon the table again, peering through. He knew that the stream had now become a river of fire and that it was sending to the ceiling an unholy, unearthly glow.

"Oh, damn it all!" groaned Drummond, at which Jack roared with laughter.

"Alan," he shouted, "fish out that electric bulb from the creek and hold it aloft. Then you'll see where you are. I'm in the next cell—Jack Lamont, electrician and coppersmith; all orders promptly attended to; best of references and prices satisfactory."

"Jack, is that really you or have I gone demented?"

"Oh, you always were demented, Alan. But it is I right enough. Pick up the light and tell me what kind of a cell you've got."

"Horrible!" cried Drummond, surveying his situation. "Walls apparently of solid rock, and this uncanny stream running across the floor."

"How are you furnished? Shelf of rock, stone bench?"

"No; there's a table, cot bed and a wooden chair."

"Why, my dear man, what are you growling about? They have given you one of the best rooms in the hotel. You're in the star chamber."

"Where in the name of heaven are we?"

"Didn't you recognise the rock from the deck of a steamer?"

"I never saw the deck of a steamer?"

"Then how did you come here?"

"I was writing a letter in my room when some one threw a sack over my head and tied me up in a bundle, so that it was a close shave I wasn't smothered. I was taken in what I suppose was a cab and flung into what I afterward learned was the hold of a steamer. When the ship stopped, I was carried like a sack of meal on some one's shoulder and unhampered before a gaunt specter in uniform in a room so dazzling with electric light that I could hardly see. That was a few minutes ago. Now I am here and starving. Where is this prison?"

"Like the mikado, as Kate would say, the authorities are bent on making the punishment fit the crime. You are in the Rock in the Baltic, which you fired at with that gun of yours. I told you those suave officials at St. Petersburg were playing with you."

"But why have they put you here, Jack?"

"Oh, I was like the good dog Tray, who associated with questionable company. I suppose, and thus got into trouble."

"I'm sorry."

"You ought to be glad. I'm going to get out of this place, and I don't believe you could break jail unassisted in twenty years. Here is where science confronts brutality. I say, Drummond, bring your table over to the corner and mount it, then we can talk without shouting. Not much chance of any one outside hearing us even if we do clamor, but this is a damp situation, and loud talk is bad for the throat. Cut a slice of that brown bread and lunch with me. You'll find it not half bad, as you say in England, especially when you are hungry. Now," continued Jack as his friend stood opposite him and they found by experiment that their combined reach was not long enough to enable them to shake hands through the bars, "now, while you are luxuriating in the menu of the Trois-mondoff I'll give you a sketch of my plan for escape."

"Do," said Drummond.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. CARD TABLE SHADES.

Novel Idea For Appointments of the Bridge Table.

REPRESENT SUITS OF CARDS.

These Shades Are Easily Made, Requiring For Their Completion Only Patience and a Pair Each of White and Red Paper Shades.

A novel idea for the appointments of the bridge table is a set of candle shades, each representing one of the suits in the cards. The emblems of the black suits are mounted on a red ground, the red on white, and the shades are quite easy to make. The simplest way is to buy a pair of plain red and another of white paper shades, a sheet of dull black paper and one of red. Then cut out the emblems in the paper, four of each for each shade, with strips to form borders and divisions, as indicated in the sketch, and gum them firmly on to the shades. Even prettier are semitransparent shades of silk, which a neat fingered worker will quickly make up over a wire foundation, afterward gumming the paper ornaments to them in the manner already described. All that is required are neatness and exactness, for the hearts, clubs, spades and diamonds must be cut out and gummed on with absolute accuracy or a capital idea will just miss success. The decoration might be adapted quite readily to candle shades of empire shape or to the little screens for clipping to the candles, each of which could be made to represent the ace of its suit.

BLACK ON RED.

Picture Hanging.

To give a room an air of restfulness and repose hang the pictures as flat against the wall as possible and have very few small ones. Wherever it can be done hang from nails in the wall instead of the molding, as the wire necessary in the latter method is very ugly and prevents the picture from seeming a part of the wall, as it should do. In many cases a picture of moderate size may be hung by putting two tiny hooks in the wall at the same distance apart as the rings screwed into the back of the frame and slipping them through these rings. If a picture must be suspended from the molding use two hooks, so that the lines will be perpendicular instead of converging to the center. Get the smallest wire to be found and paint the hooks to correspond with the molding.

Are You Bankrupt In Nerve Force

THERE IS A RICH FRIEND TO RESCUE YOU—LEARN MORE ABOUT

If you spend three dollars a day and earn two you are sure to come to bankruptcy, unless, perchance, some rich friend comes to your assistance.

And yet this is just what thousands of us are doing in regard to our health. By worry, overwork, anxiety or the disobedience of the laws of nature, the energy and vigour of the body is wasted more rapidly than it is built up, and the result is the bankruptcy of the health and the decay of the body.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food may be likened to the rich friend, for it supplies in condensed and easily assimilated form the very ingredients from which nature constructs nervous energy and builds up the human system.

Mrs. F. Turner, 336 Aylmer street, Peterborough, Ont., and whose husband is employed at the Hamilton foundry, states: "For some months past I found myself growing nervous and gradually becoming a victim of sleeplessness, and subject to frequent attacks of nervous headache. About six weeks ago I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and cannot speak too highly of this medicine. I can sleep well now, the headaches have entirely disappeared, and I believe that my system generally has been improved greatly by the use of this treatment."

Sleeplessness, headaches, indigestion, loss of appetite, worn-out feelings, spells of weakness and despondency are some of the symptoms of exhaustion which point to the approach of nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

No one would think of neglecting such ailments if they realized their condition, but they do not, so gradual and insidious is their approach.

If you are persistently subject to these symptoms you are in danger. Your blood must be enriched. Your nerves must be invigorated. Your system must be built up. And there is no means whereby this can be so certainly accomplished as by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—1.

Making College Flags.

College flags are quite simple to make, but require care and much precision in putting the letters on as well as in cutting them.

A good plan is to cut the letters from stiff cardboard and trace around them on the felt, afterward cutting with a sharp knife.

In mounting on the felt background paste them on with a very thin coating of photograph paste and couch around all edges with many strands of silk caught down at regular intervals with a single strand of the same color.

Couching means to hold the heavy cord or many strands of silk along the edge of the thing to be outlined and stitching across it and through the material with the single thread in the needle.

Parsnip Stew.

Allow for one pound of fresh parsnips one pound fat salt pork and one pound potatoes. Chop the pork fine, pare the potatoes and slice thin. Scrape the parsnips and cut in thin slices. Put a layer of pork in a stew pan, follow with a layer of potatoes, then one of parsnips. Repeat with pork, potatoes and parsnips until all have been used. Cover with cold water, season with salt, pepper and celery salt, thicken with a little Boston cracker rolled fine and set on the back of the stove where it can cook gently for three-quarters of an hour.

Novelty in Wedding Gifts.

Those who like to give something unusual as a wedding gift will be interested in a very appropriate one given to a recent bride. The copperplate of her announcement cards was secured and made into a card tray by having the metal edges slightly bent up all the way round and four small knobs added underneath to make the stand. The feet are, however, unnecessary, as the tray does not suffer from resting flat.

Boy Babies in Athens.

Among the poorer classes of Athens necessity has mothered the pretty invention of covering a new born boy with a dress made from an old shirt belonging to his father, while under the baby's tiny pillow were smuggled a black handled knife, a gold coin and a copy of the gospel—sign and symbol of the courage, wealth and piety that the hopes of fond hearts treasured for the little son and heir.

HER HAT.

The study of milady's hat
Destroys a man's repose.
Just how she makes so quick a change
The wonder grows and grows.
'Twas but a few short months ago
She wore it on her nose.

The seesaw took another tilt
On quite another tack;
Now when she wears the cart wheel straight
By some peculiar knack
The vast majority of it

Goes sliding down her back.

But one direction doesn't change
For fashion's hit or miss,
And thus mere man is always plunged
In sorrow's deep abyss.
The fellow who must pay the bill

Must foot the way down like this.

Woman's World

MRS. CLAUDE A. SWANSON.

Virginia Governor's Beautiful Wife and Jamestown Exposition Hostess.

One of the most affable and winsome of young southern matrons is Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the governor of Virginia, who is not only the presiding lady of the state executive mansion, but also by virtue of her social position the foremost hostess of the Jamestown exposition.

Mrs. Swanson was born to social leadership. She is a Lyons, one of the three daughters of the late Dr. Peter and Mrs. Addie Deane Lyons of Richmond. The mother in her day was a noted beauty, and all three daughters inherited in great degree their mother's comeliness, becoming belles in the exclusive set of Washington society. Mrs. Swanson is as well known in Washington as she is in

MRS. CLAUDE A. SWANSON.

Richmond and Atlanta. She is of the blond type, with well molded figure light wavy hair and cultivated, cordial manners. Unspoiled and unaffected, she is very popular.

Aside from her social life Mrs. Swanson has made a serious study of art, displaying talent which has been fostered by able instruction. Landscape and china painting are her specialties.

She has not had much leisure for art recently, however, her entire time being occupied by the social demands of the Jamestown exposition. She is hostess in chief at the handsome Virginia building, presides at the executive mansion in Richmond and gives many notable entertainments for the foreign guests at the exposition.

A Quality to Cultivate.

Coolness is a quality that many women either lack entirely or possess so spasmodically that it usually can be counted on to fail them at the most critical moment.

Don't let yourself get flustered.

When you find your brain at tension and your wits anywhere but on the case in point; when that horrid feeling is paramount, "I'm checkmated!" or the distracting query keeps running through your mind "What shall I ever do?" do nothing for the instant.

Take time to get a grip on yourself. Steady your excited nerves by sheer force of will, and in most cases the way out of the difficulty will present itself.

Coolness is, after all, more or less a case of nerves, though breeding has likewise much to do with it.

A very nervous woman was congratulated on her absolute calmness and self possession in the face of a bad motor car runaway. When the unmanageable break was once more under control the man driving the car said: "I was afraid you would scream. If you had I should have been so unnerved we would have been lost!"

"Scream! I never thought of it. My early training would not let me. From my infancy I have had impressed upon me the vulgarity of making a loud outcry at any of the happenings of life. Mother always told us that self control was as much the mark of a well bred woman as good table manners or good English."

It will not be specially easy to cultivate coolness, but it can be done if one is really anxious for it.

First get the nerves under control. Fight against the scatter brained feeling of panic that comes with sudden shock. Force yourself to keep as cool as possible under all circumstances, even in little things. Self poise in emergencies once gained, the power to act quickly will soon follow.

Tipping Servants.

To know when and how to "tip" has become part of the social education of every girl and woman.

An inexperienced person is apt to give too much rather than too little, and this is demoralizing for the servants. In restaurants the scale is usually 10 per cent of whatever the check may be, but this is not a hard and fast rule and should be taken with modifications.

If the check is under $3, 10 per cent is a good system for gauging the waiter's tip—that is to say, 10 cents for $1 and 20 or 25 cents for $2. This is quite enough to pay for the service necessary for a simple meal.

For a check between $3 and $5, 25 or 35 cents is usually enough. But here common sense must be used. If a luncheon has been served to only two persons the waiter is not entitled to as much as though four were waited upon, and the fee is regulated accordingly. It always pays to tip a good waiter more liberally than one who is not especially attentive.

Indifferent service in a restaurant should mean no tip. It may be difficult to walk away from a table without leaving anything for the waiter, but on the other hand, if he has not given good service, to tip is paying for what one has not received. If any money is given it should never be less than 10 cents, even for the most simple luncheon served to one person. Women who put down 5 cents for a waiter might better keep it for car fare. It is inadequate.

When it comes to feeing servants in a private house it is almost impossible to lay down a scale. It depends much upon the house, the servants and also what they do to receive special tips.

If one is simply spending Sunday in a quiet and unpretentious home where no personal service is given, 25 cents is enough to give the waitress. If, however, she has brought hot water to the room and has shown herself thoughtful and attentive, 50 cents is none too much. This, be it understood, is for one person alone.

To tip the cook is not necessary unless one has been staying some time in the house and for one reason or another has seen the cook. She is a servant with whom guests are supposed not to come in contact and do not, as a rule, but if one has been staying a week it is a kind thing to send the cook a remembrance when leaving.

A dollar to a maid after a visit of a week is none too much, but if she has not given personal service 50 cents may be sufficient. It should always be remembered, however, that when the domestic staff is limited fees from guests make servants more willing to do the extra work required and simplify things for the housekeeper.

It is quite customary to tip coachmen when sending away a carriage that has been hired. This amount may range from 10 to 50 cents, according to the length of time one has been out.

French Fried Potatoes.

Old potatoes are better for these or the little yellowish potatoes that German cooks use for potato salad. These contain more gluten. Peel very thin and cut in long thin strips lengthwise. Let them stand in cold salted water for two or three hours. Drain and wipe dry. Put into a wire basket and fry in very hot, deep fat until brown. Take out and lay on a piece of manila paper to absorb the fat, dust with salt and serve. Another way to fry potatoes is to put a little olive oil in a deep frying pan. When very hot add sliced cold boiled potatoes. Cover and cook until a golden brown, turning once. Drain, put in a hot vegetable dish and sprinkle with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Still another way that the French chef delights in is to chop cold boiled potatoes, then season lightly with salt, pepper and onion juice. Put a couple of tablespoonfuls of olive oil or good drippings in the frying pan, turn in the potatoes, press into a solid cake and cook slowly until crusty brown on the under side. Turn on to a hot platter, with the brown side uppermost.

Unreasonable.

Not long ago in a western market town I chanced to observe an Irishman with a live turkey under his arm. The turkey was squawking and gobbling in a distressed way, a racket to which the Irishman did not at first pay particular notice. Finally, however, the disturbance got on the Celt's nerves. Giving the bird a poke in the side, he exclaimed:

"Be quiet! What's the matther wid ye, anyhow? Why should ye want to walk whin I'm willin' to carry ye?"—Harper's Monthly.

Whole Wheat Gems.

Beat two eggs without separating. Add to a cupful of milk, together with a tablespoonful of melted butter, a teaspoonful of salt and one cup and a half of whole wheat flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat thoroughly, pour into hot, well greased gem pans and bake in a quick oven for half an hour.

Breakfast Buns.

Take good biscuit dough, roll it out until it is about a quarter of an inch thick, spread it well with soft butter, spread thickly with either brown or white sugar, roll as for jelly roll, cut into about one and one-half inch lengths, place far enough apart in pan to allow for rising and bake in a hot oven.

To Get Rid of Book Mites.

Oil of cedar will drive away the tiny book mites which sometimes attack books, pictures and furniture. Wash shelves, book bindings and picture frames with a cloth wrung out of water to which a spoonful of the oil has been added.

King Edward's Chef.

King Edward's favorite chef is said to be a woman, Mrs. Rosa Lewis. Mrs. Lewis has written a book on how to cook for kings and says there is a growing demand for intelligent cooks and sensible cooking.

A convenient linen chest has a half tray under which one can reach without its removal. Towels go into it, while the smaller things are put in the under part.

If all bar soap is grated and summed for a week or two before using, it will last about twice as long and not melt away in the water without any visible effect.

If a ham be plunged from boiling water at once into ice water, the fat will harden white and firm, giving the meat a fine color.

In mixing a mustard poultice add the white of an egg instead of water.

A Dainty Hatpin Case.

A pretty and useful little hatpin case is a toilet accessory that will be prized by all who love to see things in their allotted place. The case is made of pongee silk, gathered neatly at top and bottom and tied with a pretty fluffy bow. The inside, halfway up, is stuffed with wadding for the reception of the pins. A pretty ribbon loop wherewith to hang up this object completes a dainty and useful accessory.

DAINTY PERFUMES.

Recipes For Making Scents For Keeping Among Linen.

The use of perfumes is one that every woman should understand. If too much is put on, the odor becomes noxious and cloying, and only the faintest suggestion is desirable.

More subtle and in every way the most delicate method is through the use of powders that scent the garments. With these rather than liquids there is never a harshness of perfume.

With very little trouble and not much expense a woman may have not only all her clothing thus sweetened, but house linen as well.

One of these delicate scents to keep among sheets and pillowcases is a mixture of seven parts of powdered cedar wood, the same of dried lavender flowers, one part of powdered gum benzoin, one part of powdered cloves and two parts of powdered cinnamon. It cannot be excelled. It must be well mixed, sifted and put into flat bags among the sheets, or else flat pads the size of the shelves or drawers may be used. Any thin material is suitable for the pads, the kind being governed only by expense.

Lavender flowers are not expensive and make a sweet and fresh perfume for house linen. Our grandmothers used vanilla beans among their linen and found the odor was sweet and lasting.

Fir balsam, such as pillows are made of, is delicious among sheets and pillowcases.

Potpourri made of fresh rose leaves is one of the greatest luxuries in perfumes, but unfortunately out of the reach of the average woman. One made of dried flowers and spices that may be bought at any chemist's is worth more than the time it takes in combining and is delicious either for body or house linen.

To make it take eight ounces each of dried lavender flowers and rose leaves, four ounces of ground orris root, one ounce each of ground cloves, cinnamon and allspice and eight ounces of table salt. The mixture should stand for a month in a tightly sealed glass jar before using. You will notice that the ingredients are ground, not powdered.

Sandalwood is another old fashioned scent used quite alone, but it may be combined with rose geranium to vary the odor.

To perfume body linen more delicate scents may be employed, though it is doubtful if the two just given can be improved upon. Almost every one knows that clear orris root imparts a scent of violets and that it is not as expensive as it was formerly. Either the whole root or the powdered may be used, and once the perfume has made its way into the woods of chiffoniers and dressing tables everything kept there will be sweet. Girls who like extremely dainty scents will find that a bit of the root boiled with handkerchiefs and stocks after the latter are washed will make them exquisite.

Boils are simply evidence of the bad blood within coming to the surface.

Just when you think you are cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery.

The only way to rid yourself of boils, pimples, and all skin blotches and blemishes, so that they will never return to bother you again, is to have the blood thoroughly cleansed of all of its impurities.

For this purpose there is no other blood medicine to equal Burdock Blood Bitters.

It has been on the market for over thirty years, and in that time we have received thousands of testimonials stating positively that it will cure the worst known cases of boils.

Mr. James Combs, Eden, Ont., writes: "I think Burdock Blood Bitters a great medicine for boils. I had them so bad I could not work. I had thirty-two on my back at one time. I used only two bottles of B.B.B. and they completely cured me. I cannot recommend it too highly.

DIVORCEE CLAIMS $100,000.

Son of British Peer Sued For Breach of Promise.

No less a sum than $100,000 is claimed for breach of promise in an action which will shortly be heard in the English law courts. The case is of unusual interest on account of the persons who will figure in it.

The defendant is Capt. the Hon. John Yarde-Buller, son and heir apparent of Lord Churston. His secret marriage to Miss Denise Orme, the popular actress, the announcement of which was only made last August, is the latest alliance of a musical comery "star" with a prospective peer. The ceremony took place on April 24, before the Kensington registrar, and the first intimation the outside world had of it was a brief announcement in the marriage columns of the morning papers nearly four months afterwards.

The claim for $100,000 against Capt. Yarde-Buller is made by Mrs. Mabel Louise Atherton, a handsome woman, who was divorced from her husband,

MRS. MABEL LOUISE ATHERTON.

Col. Thomas Atherton, late of the 12th Lancers, on July 16, 1906. The co-respondent was the Hon. John Yarde-Buller, a brother officer.

In the course of the divorce case it was mentioned that Mrs. Atherton, a sister of Sir Aubrey Deane Paul, was married in 1892, and there was one child living, who is now eight years old. It was shown that the colonel's suspicions as to his wife's conduct were first aroused by two letters enclosed in anonymous covering communication. One of them was in his wife's writing, the other in Capt. Yarde-Buller's.

In consequence of this incident Col. Atherton wrote to Capt. Yarde-Buller forbidding him the house, but afterwards withdrew the order on his wife's entreaty and her assurance that her relations with the brother-officer had been quite innocent. Later, however, the statements of servants furnished the colonel with evidence to the contrary, and the marriage was dissolved in the Divorce Court.

In the spring of the following year it began to be noticed that a particular box at Daly's Theatre, where "The Little Michus" was being played, was occupied night after night by a certain gentleman of military appearance, for whom the musical comedy seemed to have a great fascination. Finally he asked and obtained an introduction to Miss Denise Orme, who was filling one of the parts. The deeply interested play-goer was Capt. the Hon. Yarde-Buller.

A few weeks after their first meeting the pair became engaged, and on April 24 they slipped away quietly and were married by special license. The same evening the bride was back in the theatre in her customary part.

The future Lady Churston is in her 23rd year. She is the only daughter of Mr. Alfred Smither, of London, and was christened Jessie. Only her father and a few of the closest relatives were let into the secret of the marriage.

WRECKS AND LIFE-SAVING.

Rescue Work at Sea Carried on by British Bodies.

In considering the risk of life by shipwreck—and a bluebook dealing with the subject for the year ended June 30, 1906, is just issued—it is well to take into account the lives saved from wrecks as well as the number of persons who perished.

The total number of lives lost through wreck in British ships in the twelve months was 779, made up of 659 seamen and 120 passengers. Although the loss of life in 1906 was swollen by the loss of the Hilda (131 lives), the figures show a decrease of 739 compared with the annual average for the previous 24 years.

The total number of seamen and passengers saved from wrecks of British vessels and of foreign vessels in or near British territory was 7,070. Of these, 2,090 were saved on the coasts of the United Kingdom, as follows:

Rocket apparatus	196
Lifeboats	332
Coastguard	183
Passing ships	487
Ships' own boats	845

The total number of sea casualties to vessels belonging to the United Kingdom in the year under review was 5,419, less by 1,003 than the average for the previous 21 years, and less than any previous year except 1901-2.

The number of deaths on board ship of seamen from all causes, during the year was 2,757 on board ships belonging to the United Kingdom and 426 on board vessels belonging to British possessions abroad.

Deaths of seamen by wrecks and casualties were 0.27 per cent., or 1 in 365; deaths by all accidents (including wrecks and casualties) were 0.38 per cent., or 1 in 263; and the total deaths were 0.56 per cent., or 1 in 177.

ENGLAND'S NEW JUDGE.

Famous Son of Famous Father Raised to the Bench.

The King has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Lord Coleridge, K. C., as one of the Justices of the High Court of Justice. Lord Coleridge is the son of the famous Lord Chief Justice, and has on several occasions acted as commissioner of Assize. His appointment comes as no surprise, but the advancement of the distinguished son of a distinguished father is highly interesting, and will be generally welcomed in legal circles. He sat as Liberal member for the Attercliffe division of Sheffield from 1885 to 1894. His grandfather was also a judge of the High Court.

LORD COLERIDGE, K.C.

On the death of his father the new judge caused a sensation in British society by his efforts to renounce succession to his father's peerage, and to his seat in the House of Lords. The discussion on the subject, which was ultimately referred to the highest law officers of the crown and to the courts of final appeal, established the fact, generally unknown until then, that the heir to a peerage is unable to renounce his succession and to remain a commoner. The courts and the law officers took the view that an inherited peerage "pertained to the blood," and could not be alienated or discarded at the will of its holder, and that, therefore, nolens volens, Bernard Coleridge had become through his father's death a peer of the realm in the eyes of the law, possessed of the prerogatives of that rank, but also subject to its disadvantages, among the latter being the inability to sit in the House of Commons.

His salary will be $25,000 a year, with a pension of $15,000 per annum on retirement.

A soapfish has a soapy skin, whence its name.

Much Ado About Nothing

[Original.]

They had been married a month and had just returned from the wedding journey. They were about to pass through a condition similar to an atmospheric change when a balmy air encounters a cool wave, producing a storm. Sentiment was to give place to ordinary existence.

"How did you cut your chin, dear?"

"Shaving."

These were the only words spoken at the breakfast table. The young husband scanned his paper in silence and with a scowl. He was suffering from a toothache. The wife's brow, too, was clouded. She had invited some friends to dinner, and the most desirable had regretted. What should she do about it? The husband arose, kissed her and took his hat and cane to go out, but before doing so went into the library, where he remained a few minutes, came out and was about to leave when his wife stopped him.

"Haven't you forgotten something, dear?" she said.

"I? Forgotten? What is it?"

"Oh, it doesn't matter."

"Then why did you mention it? If it doesn't matter, it would have been wise not to bother me about it."

"Bother you?"

The words were spoken as if recalling some memory. The husband stood looking at her. She still sat at the table, her arms resting on those of her chair.

"Come, Winifred," he said impatiently, "are you going to keep me standing here all day waiting for you to come out with what you are driving at? My time is valuable."

"Go on. There is no necessity for an explanation."

"Upon my word, I like that! You tell me that I have forgotten something; then when I ask what it is you say it doesn't matter. Is there anything you wish me to bring you from the city?"

"No."

"Anything I am to do before going?"

"No."

"Well, I shall ask you no more questions. If you are so unreasonable as to sit there pouting—I won't call it sulking—without enlightening me as to the cause of your grievance, I see no way for me but to leave you to do what Mrs. Tam O'Shanter did—nurse your wrath to keep it warm."

He turned toward the front door, stopped and came back.

"Once more I ask you to prevent an unpleasant day for both of us by frankly telling me what is the cause of this quarrel."

"Will you leave me?"

"H-m! What can one expect from a woman? Frankness be hanged! There's not a manly trait in a thousand of them!"

"Thank heaven for that!"

"Enough of this. I am going downtown."

He put his hat on his head and crammed it down, denting the crown by his violence.

"That's what I have been begging you to do for five long minutes."

"I wish you to understand, my dear, that if you sit at home all this pleasant day making yourself miserable it is your own fault. I give you fair warning."

"How many more times are you going to warn me?"

"Not another. What's the use standing here like a fool giving warnings to a woman who hasn't sense enough to"—

At this point in the debate the flood gates were opened, and tears, accompanied by sobs, poured copiously.

It is curious to note the effect of woman's tears on man. They will either mollify or irritate him. For a moment the husband felt that to break the hall mirror with his walking stick would bring infinite relief; then the picture of helplessness and stupidity (or so he considered it) before him touched his heart. He ran to his wife and put his arm about her.

"Sweetheart, forgive me! I'm a brute."

"No; you are a man, and that's"—

"What, darling?"

"Worse sometimes—that is, when they act as brutally as you have acted."

"I?" bristling again. "Do you mean to call me brutal?"

"What would you consider a man who would leave his wife in the morning, to be gone all the long day, without a kiss?"

"He would be a savage, a beast."

"Then why didn't you"—

"I did."

"You didn't."

"What's that on your chin?"

He put his hand to his own chin. "Upon my word, it's the court plaster I put on my face when I cut myself at shaving. I must have left it on yours when I kissed you. How fortunate that I have the proof!"

"Well, I declare; it's just too stupid for anything."

"What?"

"Why, you, of course."

"But you—surely it is you who were mistaken."

"But it is you who were stupid. How could I see the plaster on my own face? It was plain enough to you."

"True. I am not only a brute, but a fool."

"You should certainly have seen what I meant and not have been so horrid."

"Right you are, sweetheart. Next time I'll try not to be so obtuse."

He kissed the court plaster back to its proper place and went out, unconscious of its presence on his chin.

"What a judicial brain she has!" he muttered to himself. "To her the laws of evidence are but child's play."

TWELFTH CENTURY ABBEY.

Picturesque Ruin Recently Visited by the Prince of Wales.

The recent visit of the Prince of Wales to the north of England has recalled interest in one of Britain's most picturesque links with the past, Bolton Abbey. The name is now given to the parish and railway station, in order to distinguish them from other Boltons. The Duke of Devonshire's seat in the splendid Harrogate district of Yorkshire is also now styled Bolton Abbey, but travelers in this delightful region know that there is still a substantial portion of the real old abbey yet standing.

The ruin of Bolton Abbey surpasses any similar relic in the Kingdom in its picturesque situation. Circled by noble hills, it rests on a fine sward of rich green, just where the river makes a graceful curve, narrowing into a beautiful glen.

The abbey was founded in the twelfth century for monks of the Order of St. Augustine. The original site was Embsay, between Bolton and Skipton, and the popular story runs that the widowed daughter of the foundress, having lost her son through a fatal attempt on his part to jump the Strid, removed the Priory to Bolton. The dissolution took place in 1540. The nave has been roofed in once again, and was restored by the late G. E. Street in 1864. It is now used for public worship. The choir, the northern transept, and one wall of the southern transept remain in ruins.

Russian Betrothals.

Betrothal ceremonies in Russia take place a week and a day before the wedding ceremony, and during these days the bride is obliged by custom to weep and wail and be comforted by her girl friends. This custom is in practice among the Chinese also.

STOUT WOMAN'S FAVORITE
D & A FORM-TRAINING CORSET

We have successfully combined in this "D & A FORM TRAINING" MODEL the heretofore irreconcilable quartette:

STYLE GRACE ELEGANCE HYGIENE

A distinctive feature of this corset is the horizontal section at the lower part, which women of full development, especially those exhibiting a tendency toward abdominal prominence, have come to recognize as the only safe and reliable way of training their forms into lines of symmetry and fashionableness.

It is this section which not only serves to conceal the actual weight of the wearer, but successfully persuades the flesh to the hips, and reduces the abdomen very effectually.

No stout woman has ever yet reduced her abdomen with comfort and safety by the use of any corset except "D & A Form Training" style 675; Price $3.50.

You will find this style and various other corsets are sold, ranging in prices from $5.00 to $1.00.

OTTAWA MANAGER WAS ARRESTED

Well-Known Ottawa Man Faces Serious Accusation.

THE CHARGE IS BLACKMAIL

John R. Labatt Alleged to Have Demanded Money With Menaces—Wrote Letters to Hon. H. R. Emmerson and Others—Threatened Exposure If Demands Were Not Met With Cash.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—John R. Labatt, Ottawa, manager of the Labatt Brewing Co. of London, Ont., appeared in the Police Court yesterday to answer a charge of attempting to levy blackmail.

From what can be learned a number of prominent Ottawa men have for several months past been receiving letters demanding money upon pain of exposure of certain private or personal affairs. The writer of the letters hinted at information in his possession and intended that cash alone would prevent exposures.

On July 18, 1907, Hon. H. R. Emmerson received a letter demanding the sum of $1,500 upon pain of exposure of certain alleged acts. The matter was put into the hands of detectives, and for months the work has been quietly prosecuted. Just what additional charges, if any, will be preferred against the prisoner, is unknown.

It is stated that Labatt had written quite a few letters of the nature described, and that in some cases he had succeeded in obtaining the money demanded.

MANY BODIES FOUND.

Victims of Mine Disaster Charred and Burned Beyond Recognition.

Pittsburg, Dec. 4.—The bodies of 27 of the miners caught by an explosion of fire damp Sunday night in the Naomi Mine of the United Coal Co., located near Fayette City, 35 miles south of this city, had been reached by rescuers yesterday. The bodies were burned and charred almost beyond recognition. The rescuers are now nearing the end of the workings, and they have found no signs of life anywhere. In the opinion of the owners of the mine, few, if any, more victims will be found. Among miners and others in the village there is a firm belief that the total number of victims is between 40 and 50.

Because of the accumulation of gas, the work of rescue in the remote sections of the mine is greatly impeded. A second explosion is a constant menace, and every precaution is being taken to avert such a catastrophe.

Scores of frenzied women constantly surround the pit mouth, and the special detail of officers has much trouble in preventing them from interfering with the work of the rescuers.

TO BOOM BLACK SOD ROUTE.

Irish Deputation Will Ask Prime Minister For Subsidy.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Rev. Dr. Clancy, Bishop of Elphin, Sligo, Ireland; R. W. Ambrose, M. P. for West Mayo, and C. N. Armstrong, M. P., arrived here yesterday from New York on the way to Ottawa, where they will lay before Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Government the advantages and claims of the Black Sod Bay route.

The Bishop of Elphin declares that the thorough success of the scheme would be assured by a subsidy of a million and a half dollars a year by British and Canadian Governments. He claims that the service proposed would bring the journey to New Zealand from London to 21 days, to Sydney, Australia, 24 days. At present the voyage to New Zealand occupies five weeks. The scheme, says his lordship, is one which both the Canadian and British Governments are bound to take up if they consider it impartially.

Vessel Supposed to Have Struck on a Reef During Dense Fog—Those on Board Mostly Lumberjacks—Three Men Drowned by Capsizing of Boat While Fishing—Steamer on Rocks in N. S.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 4.—A despatch from Coeur d'Alene City, Idaho, says that the steamer Defender is thought to have gone down in Lake Coeur d'Alene, with 15 passengers and the crew. The lake is covered with a thick fog, and boats will not venture out. It is thought that the passengers were mostly lumberjacks on their return from the camps. The Defender's whistle was heard blowing a distress signal, and a steamer lying in Mica Bay answered the call, but got no rejoinder. Navigators believe that the Defender struck a dangerous reef near Mica Bay and sank after whistling furiously for aid.

Steamer Coban on the Rocks.

North Sydney, N. S., Dec. 4.—During the height of Monday night's fierce blow, and in a thick snow squall, which prevailed about seven o'clock, the Dominion Coal Co.'s steamer Coban ran hard on the rocks at Black Point and it is feared she will be a total loss. She is worth $35,000.

Four Railroad Men Drowned.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 4.—A telephone message from Mount Pleasant, Ga., says that George Mooney, A. J. Elliott of Atlanta, and John Horne, and W. F. Hunt of Savannah, all railroad men, were drowned yesterday by the capsizing of their boat while on a fishing trip.

Drowns In Well.

Shelburne, Dec. 4.—W. J. Ferguson, a prominent farmer, living about two miles from here, was accidently drowned yesterday morning in a well.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Women Swear That Salisbury Man Choked Wife to Death.

Salisbury, N. B., Dec. 4.—Monday Mrs. Charlotte Horseman was drowned in a well near the house under suspicious circumstances. The husband discovered her in five feet of water, but contends he was unable to pull her out without assistance which arrived in a short time, but not before the woman was past recovery.

At the coroner's inquest two female witnesses swore Horseman choked his wife to death after she was carried into the house. She was able to speak, and the husband after telling her she would probably mind him more in the future laid a quilt on her head and putting his hand to her throat, as if to ease her dress, worked his fingers until the woman turned black in the face. She died soon after.

Horseman admitted on the stand they had often had spats and his daughter in sobs said her parents had a fierce quarrel just before the drowning. Horseman contends his wife went to the well for a pail of water and fell in. The verdict was death by drowning, but sensational developments will likely follow.

HONORABLE MR. FIELDING SCORES

Makes Scathing Attack on Opposition in the House.

TURNED TABLES ON BORDEN

Deals With His Attempt to Stir Up Trouble Between Provinces — Mr. Cockshutt in Pessimistic Mood —Sees Nothing But Blue Ruin —Mr. Miller Strikes a Much More Cheerful Mood.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The outstanding features of yesterday's contributions to the debate on the address were the raking counter-attack on the Opposition, delivered by Hon. W. S. Fielding, and the somewhat unusual course adopted on behalf of the Opposition by Mr. Cockshutt, who, after a distinctly pessimistic speech, moved an amendment to the address. The speech of the Finance Minister, which occupied an hour and three-quarters, while aggressive throughout, was happily phrased and was illuminated by flashes of genuine humor and telling repartee. Its effectiveness was indicated by the fact that Mr. Borden was on his feet at least a score of times protesting and explaining, but every time he rose he simply afforded Mr. Fielding another opportunity to score. While the Minister of Finance covered a wide field, his remarks were well connected and always to the point, and his handling of the financial situation was marked, as is usual with him, by lucidity and force. The manner in which he turned the tables on Messrs. Borden and Foster in dealing with their criticisms of recent Cabinet appointments was keenly relished by the Liberal members, and kept them constantly laughing and cheering. He severely rated the leader of the Opposition for his attempt to make capital out of the supposed reduction in the French treaty of the duties on champagne and alcoholic liquors, pointing out that the reductions mentioned in the treaty were those of the old treaty, and were there, he presumed, because Hon. Mr. Foster was a prohibitionist. This led him to a sally which convulsed the House when he remarked that he might use the old phrase that fools ventured in where angels feared to tread. Truth, however, would not permit him to call Mr. Borden a fool, nor would it allow him to describe Mr. Foster as an angel. Mr. Miller of South Grey, who is one of the most shrewd debaters in Parliament, followed Mr. Cockshutt.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, replying to Mr. Perley, said a member of the Civil Service Commission had assured him the commission expected to have its report ready before the Christmas vacation.

The Finance Minister turned his attention to Mr. Foster, declaring that his attack on the Government was all sound and fury, violent and composed of charges which had been made and refuted in the country time after time.

Figures That Sound Familiar.

Mr. Fielding claimed that in the last eleven years of Conservative rule there had been a net yearly deficit of $349,000, and $62,000,000 in all had been added to the public debt, while in the eleven years of Liberal rule there had been $127,000,000 of surpluses and only $5,000,000 added to the public debt. To the criticism that the taxation had been increased, Mr. Fielding answered that the people were in a better position to buy goods now than in 1896.

Mr. Fielding defended the tariff, and said that if as Mr. Borden now contended the country suffered for lack of sufficient postal facilities it must have been infinitely worse.

He denounced as dangerous the encouragement which Mr. Borden gave to British Columbia to renew the agitation for increased provincial subsidy. The arrangement which Mr. Borden tried to disturb was the one arrived at by the provincial conference held in Ottawa in 1907. Mr. McBride came to that convention determined that he would accept nothing that could be offered him. He wanted an arbitration, which could not be granted. But the people of British Columbia were not complaining—they were too big for that. It was no quarrel between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and British Columbia, for Sir Wilfrid had nothing to do with rejecting the demand of British Columbia for arbitration. It was rejected by the convention in which Premier Whitney of Ontario and Premier Roblin of Manitoba concurred.

Result In Colchester.

Mr. Fielding did not think the result in Colchester was remarkable, as the county had generally gone Conservative anyway. But as for the bye-elections in general, of the 38 which had been held since the last general election, 29 had been carried by Libs rals and only six or seven by the Conservatives. He concluded by prophesying that the people would weave the Halifax platform into the record of the Tory party, and contrasting it with the results of Liberal rule, would confine in office the party under which, since 1896 the country had enjoyed the blessings of peace and prosperity. (Government cheers.)

Mr. Cockshutt's Reply.

Mr. Cockshutt of Brantford replied. He went on to say that by its policy of reckless extravagance the Government was courting disaster. While the Government was exulting in a large influx of immigrants hundreds of willing hands were idle in the cities for want of employment. He predicted a return to "soup kitchens" and that before long the banks would have to help the Government instead of the Government helping the banks.

Soup Kitchen Prophecies.

Mr. Miller (South Grey) followed. He contended that for eleven years the policy of expending public money in the public interest has been followed by the Liberal Government and referred to the good work done by the much-abused Arctic in hoisting the British flag on the far north islands.

Mr. Miller criticised at some length Mr. Cockshutt's pessimistic views of the financial situation, hinting that his fondness for "soup kitchen" was one to the Tories having been so many years in the soup themselves. There might be several hundred recent arrivals in Toronto without work who would have to be provided for, but it was because they were of a class unfitted to go on the land, a class of immigrants not encouraged by the Government. It was the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that encouraged the coming to Canada of artisans and laborers.

Mr. Clement of Kent moved the adjournment of the debate.

Would Bar Cigarettes.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. R. W. Scott and Hon. George P. Graham received a large delegation of ladies in the Railway Committee room of the House of Commons yesterday, who asked for the prohibition of the manufacture, sale and importation of cigarettes.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier would not commit himself to favoring the abolition of tobacco for use by men, but as to extending the power of the provinces to pass a law, the same as was done with the Scott Act in regard to counties, that was a new proposition which would be looked into.

QUEBEC BRIDGE COLLAPSE.

Commissioner Says Report Will Clearly Fix Responsibility.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—The report of the commission appointed to enquire into the collapse of the Quebec bridge will fix definitely the responsibility of it, and upon whose shoulders it rests. Henry Holgate, C.E., of Montreal, who is in the city, makes this statement.

"Our report," he said, "will be ready before the end of the month. I might say the evidence is now complete in all phases, but in connection with the enquiry at Phoenixville, some new points arose, and upon this aspect of the case we wish to further examine Mr. Cooper. In consequence the commission will again go to New York."

"Does the evidence make it clear where the blame rests?" was asked.

"I think I can safely say that in the report we will not hesitate to place the responsibility definitely."

SASKATCHEWAN 'PHONES.

Government Thoroughly In Earnest In Public Ownership Policy.

Regina, Sask., Dec. 4.—The creating of the department of telephones as a section of the department presided over by the commissioner of railways for Saskatchewan is a practical step towards the institution of the provincial system of Government telephones.

It is expected that the actual construction work will commence in the spring, should the Legislature approve of the Government's scheme. The Government's intention is to build a system of trunk lines through all the more settled portions of the province.

S. P. Foster, recently chief homestead inspector in this district, has been appointed deputy commissioner of railways. It is understood that in addition to telephones, the Government will initiate an aggressive transportation campaign.

FRAUDULENT WEIGHT.

Five Pounds Tacked Onto Bales Sent to English Spinners.

Manchester, Eng., Dec. 4.—At the annual meeting of the Manchester Cotton Association held here yesterday, Thomas Coates, chairman of the buying company, caused a sensation. Mr. Coates was one of the delegates to the recent cotton congress at Atlanta, Ga.

He said that he had been impressed particularly in the United States by the barefaced and fraudulent manner in which sworn Government cotton weighers in America actually put on five pounds per bale to every bale weighed. This, however, Mr. Coates continued, "was not done in the case of cotton supplied to American spinners."

The Health of the Universe.

Mexico City, Dec. 4.—Twelve American countries were represented when the third International Sanitary Congress opened its session here.

Dr. Walter Wyman said in the premeeting an opportunity was afforded the countries of the western hemisphere to take such advanced ground in sanitary measures as to teach the European nations and thus benefit the health of the world.

Opened Chatham Armories.

Chatham, Dec. 4.—The new 24th Regiment armories were formally opened here yesterday, and a grand concert at which the 48th Highlanders' band was present, was given in the new building. A military ball will be given on Dec. 12.

The new armories are one of the finest buildings in Chatham.

Shot While Hunting Rabbits.

Guelph, Dec. 4.—Cecil Savage, a young man of 18 years of age, and son of John Savage of Gourock, was accidentally shot through the body yesterday by a companion, while hunting rabbits on the farm of James Buchanan, Puslinch. He died in the afternoon.

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY

Woman Goes for Help and Four of Her Family Are Burned to Death

ONLY TWO REMAIN

Examiner Special

Montreal, Dec. 3.— — A report received here from Three Rivers stated that last night about 10 o'clock Mrs. Dupont, living on St. Marguerite road, noticed that the house was on fire. Her husband was absent at a school meeting. Mrs. Dupont, although lightly clad, ran out to give the alarm to the neighbours, leaving six children asleep in the house. Before help arrived four of the children perished, one being only four months old.

CITIZEN HAS THE FIRST TORONTO GLOBE

Also Has the First Cobourg Star and a History of the First Settlers in Peterborough

The popular Peterborough surveyor, Mr. A J Cameron, in conversation with the Examiner this morning claimed that he has at his residence some valuable information regarding the early settlers in this great city of ours. He has also the first copy of the Toronto Globe which was printed in Toronto in the month of March, 1844. The Globe themselves have not a copy of their first issue, it being destroyed in the great conflagration of the old Globe buildings some years ago, and Mr. Cameron is the only person known who has the first copy of this great paper. He has also in his possession the first edition of the Cobourg Star, published in 1831, and is likely the only one in this district who still retains a copy of this paper.

Among his other collections he has the names and locations of the first settlers in Peterborough and a short story regarding the history of each one. He has also the price of lumber in those days, and the prices paid to the surveyors by the settlers for surveying their land.

RUNAWAY IN EAST CITY LAST NIGHT

Driver Was Thrown From the Cutter and Badly Hurt—Damages to the Sleigh

A runaway occurred last night in East City which proved to be of a very serious nature.

The driver was driving along Hunter street and when he reached Burnham street the horse started off at an awful clip. It dashed along, the driver trying to keep it on Hunter street, hoping that it would slack its speed when it reached the hill. But the animal on reaching Rogers street tried to turn and upset the cutter throwing the driver into the road and the cutter was badly smashed.

The young man skinned his knee and hurt his arm but the cutter will stand a good deal of repairing. The horse and cutter belonged to this young man's employer and it is likely that it will prove an expensive outing.

LOCAL MAN IS TROUBLED OVER THE OUTCOME OF BREAKFAST DEBATE

"For goodness sake, don't publish such suggestions as that which the Knox church debate brought out about men getting their own breakfast," said a well known man about town to-day. He had a tale of woe to tell about getting his own breakfast this morning, the first time in several months. "The last time that trouble occurred in the daily routine of preparing breakfast," he stated, "was about two months ago, when my wife was reading one of those women's journals, and saw in it about early rising interfering with the freshness of a woman's appearance, and for nearly a week I got breakfast myself. Finally I restored the usual order by taking a headache at noon every day, and now the trouble is on again."

"Last night she said that men do not try to get their breakfast, and she would leave everything ready, so that there would be no difficulty whatever." The husband did not reply, but he was wishing that he had seen that paper before his wife, and then she would not have read it.

This morning she was steadfast in her statements and told her husband he would have to try, and, not wishing to disturb the harmony of the household more than necessary, he had to prepare his morning lunch himself. His wife said that it would be time enough to get up to get the children's breakfast, and in the meantime the husband will have to do his best to win out again.

WHY COMMERCIAL CLASSES NOW ATTENDING THE KING EDWARD WILL BE TRANSFERRED TO NORTH WARD

Mr. Pringle Gives Reasons for the Action of the School Board—The Only Feasible Way.

OTHER SCHOOLS ARE FILLED

In view of the change to be effected after the Christmas holidays, in connection with the removal of the Commercial pupils of the Collegiate Institute from the King Edward school to the Queen Alexandra, Mr. Pringle, chairman of the Supervision Committee, desires to explain why the board was forced to take such an action.

The King Edward school at the present time, has a sufficient number of pupils to fill seven rooms, with an average of 45 pupils each. With the increase at the present rate, that will occur at the New Year, and also at Easter, all the eight rooms now finished in the King Edward school, will be occupied. The South Central school can accommodate the present attendance, but some of the rooms are overcrowded.

The West Ward school is comfortably filled, as is also the East Ward school. The Central school is so crowded that the Inspector finds it necessary to draft a sufficient number of pupils to form another class, will have to be accommodated in the Queen Alexandra school, as there are no other rooms available in the Central.

The old rooms in the Queen Alexandra school have become so crowded that another class will have to be formed, so that it can readily be understood that it is impossible for the board to make other arrangements for the Commercial classes now attending the King Edward.

For the above reasons the committee decided upon the North Ward school to relieve the situation, until the new Collegiate Institute is ready for use.

OPEN THIS AFTERNOON

The Industrial Fair, under the joint auspices of the Women's and Girls' Guilds of All Saints' Church, which opened this afternoon at three o'clock in Bradburn's old opera house, has every indication of being a grand success in every way. The ladies in charge have been labouring faithfully during the past couple of months with the result that they have transformed what was a barren hall into a veritable fairyland, which should be seen to be appreciated.

This morning, when the fair was inspected by an Examiner reporter, even although the preparations had not been completed, it was easily seen that the displays and arrangements of the different booths would equal, if not surpass, anything of the kind ever seen in the city. A great deal of care has been taken and good taste used in the arrangements and the result is very pleasing to the eye.

To the left of the entrance there is the Jack-in-the-Box booth, always a centre of amusement, which will be looked after by Mrs. Davis and Miss Sabin. The ice cream garden is situated to the west and is most tastefully arranged, the decorations being in green and white, making a very pleasing effect. Mrs. Metheral and Mrs. Lundy are in charge of the booth.

The Japanese tea booth is in the southwest corner of the hall, and is a most attractive place, being fitted out with Japanese umbrellas and trimmings, while Chinese lanterns are used to good effect. Mrs. Wolstenholm and Mrs. Corcoran are presiding over this pretty department.

The candy department contains a large stock of dainty candies and is attractively decorated with red and white. Miss Hutchinson and Miss Dugan are the ladies in charge.

The grocery booth contains a full line of groceries and bric-a-brac and Christmas fruits. It is trimmed with yellow and white and is being looked after by Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Babcock.

The fancy work and dress goods booth is the biggest of the different departments and contains a splendid display of dolls and dolls dresses, in addition to the staple lines carried. Mrs. Cotterell and Miss Cotton are in charge.

The apron booth is tastefully arranged in blue and white and presents a very pretty appearance. It is under the supervision of Mrs. Keen, Mrs. Cornell and Miss Watt.

The post office, express and telephone booth is decorated with Canadian flags and is looked after by Miss Cairns and Miss Melville.

In the centre is situated the news stand which is looked after by Messrs. Metheral, Hopkins and Runnett.

There will be no charge for admission either to-night or to-morrow night, although for those who wish to partake of the shredded wheat banquet a charge of 35 cents will be made.

Mrs. J. H. McClellan, who is acting as supervisor, and the other ladies in charge, are to be congratulated upon the magnificent display which they have arranged, and no doubt a large crowd will be present on both nights.

THE VISITORS WERE ENTERTAINED

Harriers Banqueted the Outside Runners Last Night

The visiting runners at the Y. M. C. A. Harriers meet were entertained by the Y.M.C.A. Harriers at a banquet at the Dominion Chinese Cafe last night, after the meet, when a most enjoyable time was spent.

Among those present were Messrs. Tom Longboat, T. O'Rourke, A. W. Haddleton, of the Irish Canadians; J. Greenwood and B. Galbraith, of the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto; Jack and W. Tait, and Assistant Physical Director Fred Smith of the West End Y.M.C.A.; H. R. H Kenner, E M. Best, R. M. Glover, H. G. Wright, of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, and Fred McGrath.

After an excellent repast had been partaken of a number of short speeches were made by Messrs. O'Rourke, W. Tait, Smith, Best, Kenner and Wright. The hospitality of the Harriers was much appreciated by the visitors.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days, or money refunded. 50c.

TALK ABOUT SEWER

Question of Romaine Street Sewer Again Before the Board of Education Last Night

CONSTRUCTION IS CENSURED

The Romaine street sewer has not yet been removed from the municipal football arena. The School Board had more to say about it last night at its regular meeting, and its construction was censured by Mr. Robinson.

Mr. Pringle remarked that Mr. Bartlett had thoroughly investigated the matter and had made practical tests.

Mr. Robinson explained that it was an impossibility to fix the sewer, incidentally giving details as to the levels and bogback of this sewer. The outlet portion is 18 inches under water and the sewerage must go backwards. The Board should take steps at once to get its end of the sewer into first-class condition, so that the City Council could throw no reflections on the work of the Board.

Mr. Pringle said he had asked Mr. Bartlett if this is a favourite time of year to do the work, and the latter replied emphatically "Yes." Further discussion was left over until a future date.

THREE MEN STRUCK BY STREET CAR

Car No. 15, Runs Into Three Men Yesterday—One Man Seriously Injured

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon three well known Peterborough men were struck by a street car and all were badly injured. Among the trio was Mr. Alex Gordon, the local butcher.

Car No. 15, driven by Motorman Walter Jarvis was proceeding southward on George street and at the corner of Lake street the accident occurred. Mr. Gordon had his hip badly hurt and the doctor who attended him believes that he has some bones broken. One of the other two men whose name is not known was more seriously injured and the Dan Spence Ambulance was called and conveyed him to the Nicholls Hospital where his injuries were attended to.

ROLLER HOCKEY MATCH IN LINDSAY

Lindsayites will have the pleasure to-night of seeing a roller skating hockey match between a team from that town and a Peterborough seven. The local boys leave to-night for Scugogville, and are taking a strong team with them to play the Lindsay Midgets on rollers. The Peterborough team will be:

Goal—Jamieson.
Point—Gibbs.
Cover—W. Miller.
Centre—Staunton.
R. Wing—McDonald.
L. Wing—R. Agnew.
Rover — Parrington or J. Miller.

TROUBLE OVER HORSE IN OTTAWA

Mr. Elliott, a Peterborough Man, Interested—May Belong to Him

Judge MacTavish gave judgment this morning in the case of the seizure of O'Neill's horse. The judge found that the horse when seized did belong to O'Neill, and not to Clarke, as was claimed. Thus the seizure was justified and an appeal will be made to see whether the horse will belong to Mr. Elliott, of Peterborough, who held a judgment against O'Neill or Mr. R. J. Sims, who holds a chattel mortgage against Moore's hotel, of which O'Neill is proprietor.—Ottawa Citizen.

INDUCTION OF REV. ROBT. POGUE

To be Held To-morrow Evening at St. Paul's—The Various Preachers

The services in connection with the induction of the Rev. Robt. Pogue to St. Paul's Church will be held to-morrow evening. The Presbytery will meet at 7 o'clock and the congregation at 7.30. Rev. Dr. Marsh, the interim moderator, will preside. Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, will preach the induction service, which will be held before the induction. Rev. Wm. Johnston will then deliver the charge to the preacher, and Rev. Dr. Tolling, on the request of the Session and Presbytery, will deliver the charge to the congregation.

THE UNIQUE CELEBRATION OF THREE FAMILY WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

It is not often that History repeats itself in such a manner as to have the celebration of three marriages in the same family on the same day. But such was the case last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald, London street. It was the occasion of the celebration of the thirty-fourth anniversary of the wedding day of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, the first anniversary of the marriage of their son, Mr. Percy Fitzgrald, and also the thirty-fourth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. William Hanna, the parents of Mr. Percy Fitzgerald's wife.

The occasion was, therefore, an unique one, and the evening was very much enjoyed by about twenty-five guests, the friends and relatives of the celebrants. The evening was spent in a pleasant manner, many of the guests being in a reminiscent mood.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEMBER ACCUSES HIS COLLEAGUES WITH DISCRIMINATION AND DISCOURTESY

A Lively Scene for a Few Moments at the Board Meeting Last Night—Not Notified of Meeting, He Says.

OTHER MEMBERS WERE

The School Board meeting last night was not without its breezy passages. When most of the routine business had been disposed of Mr. Robinson asked why he, as a member of the Queen Alexandra School Committee, had not been notified of the last meeting when supplies for the school had been considered. He further stated that while he might belong to a different class from the rest of the Board, he still claimed as much right as any of them to get equal courtesy, and that he should have been notified.

Mr. Dumble was the next to offer an opinion. He was sorry to see such a spirit exhibited, he said, and, as far as he knew, no exceptions or discriminations had been made.

Mr. Hayes assured Mr. Robinson that if he did not get his notice, the notice must have accidentally gone astray. Letters from his firm had often gone to another firm with a somewhat similar name.

Dr Burnham and Messrs. Pringle and Hill had all received their notices and the secretary also assured Mr. Robinson that his had been sent. With these explanations the discussion was brought to an amicable close.

BROCK STREET RINK WAS FLOODED TO-DAY

The Brock street rink has been flooded and ice is expected in a few days and especially soon if the present cold spell continues. The rink floor is in excellent shape so that the difficulty of having level ice will be eliminated. Tickets will be on sale at the usual places in the course of a few days and the fact that the rink will be open so soon will be welcome news to the patrons of that popular winter spot.

FIRST CASE IN COURT THIS WEEK

A Respectable Citizen Was Found Drunk and Fined $2.00 and Costs

This has been an exceedingly good week in police court circles. Only one case has been brought before His Worship this week and that was an unfortunate drunk who appeared in the dock this morning.

The prisoner this morning was above the ordinary drunk and holds a respectable position in the city. He was fined $2 and costs to be paid forthwith.

City Hockey League Entries To Be In Before Dec. 15th

A Good Season in Prospect—Outside Teams Want to Play Wednesday Evenings.

RIDPATH FOR LAKEFIELD

The hockey clubs who are contemplating entering teams in the City Hockey League are reminded that entries close on Dec. 15th. After that date no club can be admitted, so that the teams who desire to get into the game are requested to make their entries at the earliest possible time.

From present prospects the league will be a success. Mr. W J Metheral of the Strathconas, states that Keene will be in the league for certain; Norwood has signified its intention of entering; Lakefield is seriously considering the proposition and Omemee may come into the field. The T.A.A. is also a possibility and with the Strathconas, the High Lifes and Charlotte street in the game there is every possibility of a good season in hockey.

A report has been circulated that Gordon Ridpath of the Lakefields was going to play in Toronto this year but this has been contradicted. Gordon will remain in Lakefield.

Some of the outside teams are advocating a change in the evening for the games. Lakefield and Norwood have a number of players who have to work on Thursday nights and desire to substitute Wednesday. This will probably be considered by the league at their next meeting.

WOOD FOR SALE ON THE MARKET

Wednesday Market Should Be More Largely Attended

The mid-weekly market this morning was not attended by as large a crowd as there should have been. There was a good supply of pork and beef and a fair market inside of fowl and butter, with some eggs. If the women are wise they can encourage this market, and during the winter will be able to secure fresh supplies. The farmers are bringing in wood in good quantities and offer it for sale at reasonable prices.

WEDDING BELLS.

STOCKDALE-DUNLOP

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's parsonage this afternoon at 3 o'clock when Rev. J. G. Potter united in marriage Miss Bertha A. Dunlop, youngest daughter of Mr. Thos. Dunlop, and Mr. Fred. W. Stockdale, son of Mr. Wm. Stockdale. Both the young people are of this city. The bride, who was unattended, was dressed in a travelling suit of brown broadcloth with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Stockdale left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for Toronto, and on their return will reside on Homewood avenue.

Local Man Tells of 40 Acre Field of Grain in Hastings County That Was Cut

AND FEED SCARCE.

Mr. Wm. Downer who has returned to the city from a trip to northern part of Hastings has an interesting story to tell concerning the misfortune of a farmer in Gannon township with respect to the scarcity of food for the stock.

The farmer has a place among the best in that section of country. Ten acres of this grew a fine crop of barley and among the finest in North Hastings, Mr. Downer says. When harvest left the crop was unusually large and not a sheaf of this was cut. Feed, too, in this district is scarce on account of the nature of the country, and the inconsistent act was performed by the farmer Mr. Downer could not cut.

LIGHTS WENT OUT ON GEORGE STREET

Two Transformers Burned Out Leaving Between Nine and Ten o'clock

Between the hours of 9 and 10 last night several George street merchants were deprived of electric light. Some of the storekeepers closed up for the night, while others used coal oil lamps placed about their stores to substitute the electric light. The trouble was caused by the burning out of the transformers at the corner of Brock and George streets, in front of R. A. Dutton's store.

The transformers were the property of the Peterborough Light and Power company, which had the men down early this morning to replace the damaged transformers.

PIONEER RESIDENT PASSED AWAY

Was One of the First Residents of the District—Member of Otonabee C

Examiner Special

Villiers, December 4. — One of the oldest and most respected residents in the person of Mr. Jas. Wood passed away early this morning. The deceased was 80 years and 7 months of age, and was one of the first residents of the township.

Mr. Wood was born in Scotland in 1826, and came to this country when young, locating in Otonabee. He was a Presbyterian in religion, and in politics, and was for many years a member of the Otonabee Council.

The deceased gentleman leaves behind him three sons, James, Robert, and one daughter, Mrs. Wood, all of Otonabee. He also leaves a brother, John Wood, of Keene.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, on Friday afternoon at one o'clock, to the cemetery.

YOUNG BOY ATTACKED IN SOUTH END

Was Pounced on While Gathering Garbage—Citizen Lays Complaint

While gathering garbage in a lane in the south end of the city a young lad named O'Brien, was attacked by a crowd of young hoodlums who reside in that portion of the city.

Mr. Charles Anglesey came to the police station this afternoon and laid a complaint against these youths. He told the police that young O'Brien was driving down the lane in the rear of his residence with his cart when the fellows came along and jumped on the vehicle, and commenced to beat him. The boy jumped from his seat and ran to Mr. Anglesey's back door, the hoodlums following him. Mr Anglesey came out with a big stick and chased the hoodlums scamps away, and saw O'Brien safely out of the lane. The police will look into the matter.

Why Beauty Fades.

Real beauty is rare. It is the result of perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, the glow of health disappears, beauty curves give place to hollows and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's great friend, bringing from youth to old age. Six weeks' use of this treatment will work wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

WEDDING BELLS A-PLENTY.

Marry Young and Often Seems to Be the Rule in Egypt.

According to information given from authentic sources to a correspondent of Leslie's Weekly while in Egypt, "there are few men in Cairo past the age of twenty years who have not been married at least twice, and the majority of women over sixteen have made a half dozen or so matrimonial experiments." There is no disgrace attached to divorce in Egypt. If mutual admiration wanes with the honeymoon, there is nothing more natural to the Egyptian mind than that the dissatisfied party takes steps toward another trial. Marriage is universal in Egypt. There are no old maids. Widows remain widows but a short time, and, as a rule, no young man is considered fitted for business or entitled to the confidence of the community until he is married. These numerous marriages and their attendant celebrations make it extremely interesting for the stranger from the west who journeys through Egypt. Toward the end of the tourist season, when money is considerably more plentiful than it is just before the travelers invade the country and begin to scatter plasters along the Nile, there are hundreds of marriages. In Cairo they average during the month of April from ten to twenty a day of the elaborate ones—with brass bands, processions and feasting—and any number of less showy ones.

EXPLANATION DUE

The taxpayers have promptly paid the big levy of taxes made year after year. Whether they have paid them cheerfully also depends much upon the value the public has received from the expenditure of the money. If the ratepayers are to be in a position to intelligently appraise the value of the services of their representatives, they should be favoured with a detailed report of the manner of expenditure, and in sufficient time before the elections, to permit of an opportunity for the ratepayers perusing and understanding it. It is true that a financial statement is presented at the statutory meeting, the middle of December; but this statement, even if it were sufficiently plain and detailed to be readily understood by the average ratepayer, comes at too late a time to be thoroughly mastered and discussed before the people have to pronounce upon the merits or demerits of civic administration which it may disclose. Two weeks interval between the statutory meeting of the Council in December and the elections is too little time for a popular understanding of the actions of the retiring Council in relation to the general expenditure is has made during the year. There may be, indeed there are sure to be some things which require explanation. There is not time enough after the statutory meeting to make such explanations to all who are entitled to them, especially when everybody's mind is occupied with the distractions attending the holiday season. There are many things besides the Romaine street sewer muddle upon which the public would welcome a little light. The people's representatives should be frank with the people who provide the funds they spend. There have been large expenditures on the streets, and aside from new pavements, the results are not obtrusively visible to the naked eye. It would be interesting to have a detailed statement of the work that has been done upon our streets, especially, as it is rumoured that the programme of street work was jumped at—adopted without due consideration, adopted without anything like a proper estimate of the cost, in fact, that the Board of Works and Council went blindly at the work of the streets this season. The matter of the pavements is another story. While this work may have been needed, and being done, is done or should have been done to last a generation at least, there is some question as to whether it should have been done to so large an extent at a time of financial tightness, which makes it difficult to realise on debentures except at a sacrifice: a period when gilt-edged debentures like Peterborough's should not have to be loaded up with additional interest to make them saleable. This course of action seems to be questionable, and it would become the Mayor and aldermen concerned to justify, if they can do so, the undertaking of such extensive permanent work under the prevailing unfavourable conditions of the money market.

CANADIAN BANKING STRENGTH

Early this week the London Times referred editorially to the satisfactory condition of the finances of Canada, compared with those of the United States, and said, in effect: Our Canadian brothers are not much behind their neighbours in their activity in the sphere of industry and commerce, but they have been under the wholesome restraint of a sound banking system. The working of the Canadian banking system in this time of difficulty is eminently satisfactory.

United States observers also are just now giving recognition to the benefits which the Dominion enjoys through possession of tried and tested banking methods. Many American bankers have long admitted certain advantages—due to a branch banking system—which Canadians enjoy over their neighbours during crop-moving seasons. But the abnormal conditions of the autumn, have made evident more essential advantages than those merely of greater confidence. That banking stability is absolutely dependent upon continued confidence, is a truism. That it is difficult — often impossible — for isolated and comparatively small banks to retain the absolute confidence of their communities in times of financial stress may just now be considered almost equally axiomatic.

Our Canadian West — like the East also — is undoubtedly feeling, with the rest of the world, a degree of financial stringency. But when the experience of the United States West is studied, there is good cause seen for comparative contentment. That the contrast arises very largely from differences in banking methods is most clear. Across the border, the various cities and towns, with their adjacent farming communities, are dependent upon banks, many of which have capital of but a few thousand dollars. Not unnaturally there is a tendency for the public to hoard its cash rather than entrust it to institutions of such limited strength. Compare, for instance, the dubeity in sentiment of a United States community served by a $25,000 local bank, with the confidence of some Canadian prairie town, whose banking needs are attended to by a local office of one of our chartered banks.

There are times and seasons when special sections are apt to grumble that mere branches of distant institutions are not as alive as they should be to local needs. It is not necessary to deny that there is sometimes cause for complaint; but it is not difficult to make clear from United States conditions, the danger of much greater evil in relying too entirely upon local resources. In advancing the view that the United States needs a central bank, the Liverpool Post and Mercury remarks that while Canada has maintained financial soundness without the aid of any national bank, it could scarcely have done so if the law had required banks to limit their operations to a single province.—Finance Chronicle.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A certain amount of Canadianism is a good thing in the matter of Christmas presents. It may not matter so much in the exchange of gifts between ourselves, but they are, says the Montreal Herald, few in this country who have not at this time of year some tender remembrances in the old lands to be consecrated, and it is for the good of all parties that remembrance should take a specifically Canadian form. There is no longer any lack of characteristic and beautiful or useful products in this country which may be conveniently sent abroad. Few things are more easily transmitted or more deeply appreciated than a book, and there is now a whole field of literature from which the Canadian giver may select—some of it fairly well known to the peoples of the old lands, but much that is quite as good virtually unknown. It is no bad thing to spread a knowledge of things Canadian at the same time as we are gratifying our friends and loved ones.

FROM THE GALLERY

A former resident of this city sends from Ottawa the following relation of the opening of the debate on the address in reply:—

There is an old adage that the onlooker sees most of the game. And the game in question would have been interesting to most of your readers. For was it not true that Mr. R. R. Hall, West Peterborough's representative in the House of Commons, was to move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne? I am not going to give your readers the ipsissima verba of his address, which you will doubtless have received through your usual channels. But it is only true, that in the able and characteristic planning and delivery of his views he created a most favourable impression and received the merited praise of the leader of the Opposition as well as the honoured leader of the House, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. One could not but feel proud that the speaker was the representative of Peterborough, and though in his introductory remarks Mr. Hall modestly ascribed the honour as due to Peterborough's manufacturing importance and the fine quality of the cheese made in the county, yet it was easily seen that his own popularity and influence in the Liberal party were the real reasons for the honour done him and his constituency.

I have said the speech was characteristic. So it was. In fact it reminded me more of a budget speech in the wideness of its survey and the comprehensiveness of its trade figures, and the instructive comparisons drawn from them. Again and again he was applauded as with careful accuracy he pointed out the splendid lessons to be drawn from the record of Canada's trade expansion since 1896.

If the comparisons instituted, were all in favour of the Liberal regime that was not his fault, and if the recital of the figures gave more pleasure to the Liberal than the Conservative benches your readers will scarcely regret the fact.

Beginning with the building of the C.P.R., the credit of which he gave, perhaps, too largely to the Government of Sir John Macdonald, he told the story of the decline in business which culminated in 1894-6, and then most graphically showed how trade had expanded. Banking totals increased, immigration replacing exodus, postal reductions, notwithstanding largely increased service and salaries to the officials, railway mileage and tonnage enormously increased; the construction of a new transcontinental railway advanced, all out of the regular revenue of the country save for a trifling increase on the national debt of less than five millions in the eleven years of a Liberal rule. It was an inspiring record, well delivered, well received and quite worthy of the occasion.

With a very felicitous reference to the proud position of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the councels of the Empire, and the confidence of his King, and congratulations to the leader on the health and strength which accompanied his recent birthday, Mr. Hall concluded. It was amusing to watch the faces of the occupants of the treasury benches as Mr. Hall pursued his theme and made his points and equally interesting to watch the faces of Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster, as he drove them home. The personal reference at the close to the honoured leader of the Liberal party drew from Sir Wilfrid (though Mr. Hall could not see it from his position in the house) a charming smile of deprecations, but the point was instantly seized by his followers who responded to the sentiment with long continued applause.

The speech of Mr. Lancôt, the member from Richlieu, was a very able effort of admirable French oratory. Speaking without a note, he seconded Mr. Hall's motion, and again and again drew from both sides of the House very hearty recognition of his eloquent periods.

Then came the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Borden, who after congratulating both of the previous speakers "on their moderate and reasonable speeches," launched into a keen criticism of them, and the Government generally. The speech was one of the best we ever heard from Mr. Borden. He certainly appears to better advantage in the House than on the platform, and his speech was remarkable not only for the keenness of its sarcasm, but also for the good-natured raillery which ran all through it. Altogether, his references to the recent Cabinet changes, Senate appointments, investigation into party frauds, Quebec bridge matter, the Japanese question and financial stringency, were in perfect parliamentary form and good taste. It is a pleasure to state this fact because of a tremendous contrast that occurred later on in the evening. It might be interesting to note that the hon. gentleman stated that he desired the investigation of all such cases of bribery and corruption as had recently occurred in London, and where such results were ascertained, the disfranchisement of the constituency for a term of years, and the infliction on the voters of the entire cost of the inquiry. Then came the honoured leader of the House. To say that he is loved as well as honoured is to state a very obvious fact. One glance at the delighted faces of his confident supporters as they [illegible] their desks was sufficient evidence. It is not necessary to attempt any reproduction of the splendid speech he delivered. His graceful but incisive raillery at Mr. Borden's Halifax programme was most effective and amusing, but the wit was unaccompanied by malice, and again and again Mr. Borden smiled as points were made against him. After the analysis of the latter's programme, the leader proceeded to deal with the recent Colonial Conference, and in a magnificent passage averred that under no other system of government known to man would it have been possible for the gallant leader of the Boer nation, General Botha, to sit as peer with the Prime Ministers of the other sister nations, and vouch for the loyalty of himself and his countrymen within seven years of their crushing defeat and discomfiture in Africa.

The effect on the House was thrilling in the extreme, and Liberals and Conservatives joined in acclaiming the sentiments of the speaker. Then came references to the French treaty, the Japanese question, and the question of the increased subsidy demanded by British Columbia. For his dealing with the two latter questions, the Prime Minister was very severe on Mr. Borden, who did not seem to enjoy the castigation he received for attempting "to bribe a province" instead of a constituency. By this time the speaker's voice showed signs of strain, and the concluding remarks which brought thunders of applause from his followers, were not well heard by your correspondent.

Then came the Hon. George E. Foster in a speech that was characteristically able and venomous. From its opening sentence until the close it was almost entirely one long tirade of offensive abuse. True, it was couched in parliamentary form and terms, clear in diction, felicitous in expression, but behind it all, with no attempt at veiling, was the bitterness of the man. I will not attempt to describe the speech, able and at times brilliant as it was. What I am concerned to wonder at is the effect produced on myself. I had listened to Mr. Borden's speech with admiration and pleasure, though it was a hard-hitting sample of political oratory. But now, why was it that to my sub-consciousness there came a recollection of Handal's "He Was Despised, Rejected." Psychologically, I can't account for it, but again and again, as he lashed and fulminated, the strains of the wonderful melody came to me with haunting re-iteration. Was it because of his history that there seemed so little of the milk of human kindness in the make-up of the man? I cannot tell, but as if carried away by the apparent bitterness of his hatred to the Liberal leader, his voice raised into a broken sort of screech (possibly due to a cold). I could not help thinking of a certain lady temperance advocate named Nation. Yes! that's it! The speaker is the Carrie Nation of Canadian Politics, and I felt that one had only to give him a print dress, umbrella and empty bottle for the resemblance to be complete.

Does this description appear to be ill-natured? I fear it does. Yet, let me say, no one in that crowded gallery was more conscious of the ability of the speaker than your correspondent. But the effect of it all was spoiled by the self-revelation of the man. It was too keen, too bitter, too hateful.

As I walked home I overtook one of his near neighbours on the Opposition front bench, and expecting him to be full of admiration for Mr. Foster's effort, I suggested that it had been a great and telling deliverance. To my surprise he gave only a cold assent, altogether free from enthusiasm, or even admiration, and, remarking tartly that "it was Fosterian," passed into his hotel.

I suppose that was it. "It was Fosterian." Does that account for the haunting melody. "He was despised, rejected?" and the lack of confidence, esteem and affection of the Canadian people?

NEW PASSENGER COACHES FOR GRAND TRUNK

The Grand Trunk Railway System have addedd to their equipment twenty beautiful new passenger coaches of the most modern construction and convenience. The company is being commended by the travelling public for the exquisite workmanship and the superior accommodations they afford the public.

The cars are exceedingly neat, spacious, and in every respect and detail modern and first class. The merest detail has been given the most careful consideration by the mechanical department of the Grand Trunk Railway Company. The management had in view the accommodations of the patrons of the road, and wanted to afford them the best possible.

Description of Cars

The cars are 67 feet 6 inches long over end sills, 9 feet 6 inches wide over side sills, affording a total seating capacity of 75 passengers. They are designed so as to afford the greatest possible strength, having steel platforms, wide vestibules, bottom and end construction being welded iron throughout, and mounted on Grand Trunk standard six-wheel trucks, equipped with steel-tired wheels. They are provided with windows having double sash of latest design and semielliptic gothic sash set with opalescent glass of neat pattern.

The interior of the car is a model of beauty. It is made of selected mahogany, being a flush design, and provided with inlay lines and ornaments. The cars are heated by direct system of steam heat, lighted with gas, equipped with stuary bronze trimmings and white metal lavatories, and water flushing toilets.

LISTENING.

Its Importance in the Art of Acting on the Stage.

The reason why listening plays a part of such paramount value on the stage is that if an actor is not deeply interested in what is going on in the mimic world in which he has been cast he cannot look for any real interest on the part of his audience, and the only way in which he can denote that interest is by the intensity with which he listens to everything that has any bearing whatever on his life and actions and the skill with which he expresses the feelings bred of what he hears.

Listening is an art that is not properly taught in the schools in which modern actors are trained, for while voice culture has the place of high honor that it deserves in the curriculum of every academy on Broadway, if you ask either teacher or pupil about the still more important business of listening the chances are that you will receive no reply save a wondering shake of the head.

So much has been said about "temperament," "mentality," "facial expression" and "personality" that it is a very easy matter for a schoolgirl to persuade herself that she has in her the makings of a great actress. All she needs is what she calls a "few lessons."

One young woman, indeed, told me that she had been studying the art of expressing various emotions by means of a series of contortions of visage, all more or less hideous to behold, but that she had not been taught anything about listening. In short, although she had learned how to make her various emotional grimaces it had never occurred to her that unless she could show cause for these curious expressions of joy or grief or rage or whatever they were called in her "Complete Handbook of Acting" her audience would not understand what she was driving at. But if she had been taught to listen with a natural interest and attention the emotions called forth by what she heard would be certain to betray themselves convincingly on her face. Like many another unfortunate, this deluded young woman had begun to learn at the wrong end and had been taught the effect, not the cause, of emotion.

Livingstone's Vanity.

The Victoria falls of the Zambesi river, in southeastern Africa, form the largest cataract in the world. They were discovered in 1855 by Dr. Livingstone, the great missionary and explorer, and were found to be twice as high and three times as broad as Niagara. Carved upon a tree near by the initials "D. L." are still discernible, and in his book the missionary confesses that this was the one occasion in his life when he was guilty of this form of vanity. These initials are carefully preserved by the officials of the British South Africa company, to whom they were pointed out by the native who saw them carved.

His Present.

"What do you think? My wife's father told me before we got married that he would give me a handsome present on our wedding day."

"And didn't he?"

"Well, I waited over a week, and as he didn't mention the subject I asked him for it, and all he said was, "Why, didn't I give you my daughter?"

REPORTING WAR NEWS

ARTIST AND WAR CORRESPONDENT TELLS OF FIRST SUCCESS.

Was In Ashanti Campaign of 1874—Has Been Through Twenty-Seven Since Then—Early Experience of Value of Tips—Natives and Backsheesh—Through Tropical Forests to the Front.

I had been working for five years on the staff of The Illustrated London News before I even got the chance of making my first success as a war correspondent, writes Mr. Melton Prior, the famous artist and war correspondent, in speaking of his first success. That was in the Ashanti war. Between then and now I have been through twenty-seven campaigns, and in one of them, during a period of ten months, I was inside eight square fights, a square fight being one in which the army is drawn up in the form of a square with the enemy surrounding it on all sides. Before my chance of going to the front for The Illustrated London News came I had, of course, to get on to the paper. My father was an artist, and as a boy I used to help him to get his drawings ready. When I was about fifteen I thought I could do a little work for myself. I knew a certain agent for some small advertisements, and I used to make little drawings for him. I got from half-a-crown to three shillings a drawing, and in this way I made from twelve to fifteen shillings a week. It gradually grew until I was making a pound, then thirty shillings, then two pounds a week, with the result that instead of being kept by my father, by the time I was sixteen I was paying for my keep at home. Then I got to know a Mr. Thompson, who had the Penny Miscellany, and I offered to illustrate a story for him for six months for nothing. Naturally, he jumped at the idea. That led to my illustrating two stories, then three, and finally the whole paper, so that when I was nineteen or twenty I was drawing $35 a week.

Early War Work.

Some time afterwards there was a fancy bazaar at the Botanical Gardens, which was opened by the late Princess Mary of Teck. I went there and made a sketch. I took the sketch to The Illustrated London News. It was accepted, and I made the drawing which was duly published. After that, I was often sent by the paper to make sketches of topical events. I had often told Mr. Mason Jackson, the art editor, that if he ever wanted me to go away for him I should be glad to do so. As a matter of fact, six months before the Ashanti war broke out, I proposed to him that he should send me there to make drawings. When the war did break out the appointment was offered to two or three senior artists on the staff. They, however, declined, for everyone knew, that the climate was beastly, though it has been a good deal improved since then by careful drainage. The refusal of the other artists was my chance, and I accepted with alacrity when I was asked if I would go. Sir William Ingram took me into his room, told me what was wanted, produced the inevitable check, and sent me to an outfitter's in Cornhill to get whatever kit I needed. I went to him on Saturday, and I left on Tuesday, for they worked on Sunday to get my clothes ready. To the lay mind it may seem to be a very short time between my receiving orders and leaving. It was, under the circumstances, but to-day I could leave for any part of the world at one hour's notice, as my bags are always kept in readiness for starting. The veteran correspondent, William Simpson, who had been through several wars for The Illustrated London News, told me how to work, advised me what sort of paper to take, and in what style to send in my sketches. Acting on his advice, I have always used a very thin bank post paper, which is very tough and practically indestructible. I traveled very heavily to Ashanti, for among my baggage I had £20 worth of champagne.

Polite Blackmailing.

The journey out to the front was a very tame affair, as such journeys always are. When I arrived at the Gold Coast I had to leave the ship with my baggage in order to be landed in a surf-boat. The natives have, or certainly had, a nasty knack of levying blackmail, and I was quite ignorant of their method at the time. As soon as I got in the boat they began singing a song, "You plenty dash me." I was a novice at the time, and intent on getting my things on shore as easily as possible. I did not heed what they were saying, and even if I had I doubt if I should have understood at the time what they were driving at. Anyway, it never occurred to me that they would want money before they got me on shore. As I did not "dash" them at once, in other words, did not tip them, they came to the conclusion they were not going to get anything out of me, and as the boat reached the shore in the heavy surf they let it swing round broadside, the next wave caught it, toppled it clean over, and landed me and my luggage in the water. When I scrambled out of the water and got on to the shore a well-dressed native in spotless white clothes came up to me and said, "You want servant, sir?" You may imagine that in my half-drowned condition I was delighted to see anyone who spoke English. I engaged him on the spot. He took me into the town, where I secured lodgings with the late George Henty. Henty introduced me to the late Henry M. Stanley, and we became great friends. Under the shadow of these two men, Henty representing The Standard, and Stanley The New York Herald, I went through the campaign.

A Native Ointment.

Traveling up country was nasty work. I had on a pair of new boots, and the result was that I got a bad blister on my heel. It was quite impossible for me to tramp, so my servants, of whom I had sixteen, had to carry me in a hammock. The head man evidently did not like the job. He asked me what the matter was. I showed him my heel. "That is nothing," he said. I disagreed with him, but he stuck to his opinion. At the next halting place he went into the forest, got some wonderful herb, mixed it with some grease, and applied it to my heel. Next morning the blister had all dried up, my foot was hard, and I was able to walk again.

War As It Is.

At the battle of Agganassie, when the 42nd Royal Highlanders were hard at it fighting in the bush, Sir Archibald Allison, a one-armed general, who was in charge, sent word back to Lord Wolseley, who was commanding the expedition, to ask for reinforcements. To show how hard the fight was, every man was engaged, and I remember hearing Lord Wolseley tell Col. Greaves, the chief of his staff, to write a note to say he had no reserve troops, and he must fight through the bush to Amoaful with the men he had. The men clenched their teeth, and said, "We must rush it." They did. I was right in the fighting line at the time, for it is obviously impossible for a man to draw incidents unless he sees them, though, somehow, the general public think that war correspondents never get in the thick of the fight, but keep at a safe distance away, whereas we are all under fire to the same extent as the soldiers whose exploits we commemorate.

The campaign over, I returned home, and Sir William Ingram organised an exhibition of my sketches at Willis's Rooms. Before that, however he called me into his room, and putting his hand on my shoulder, said, in the words of Scripture, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." He handed me a handsome check as an extra reward for my work, and asked me to remain in the office to go about sketching on a regular income. I thought it was a good line, and I have never since had to go anywhere else for work, so that my first success was also the turning point in my life.

HEROIC MOTHER.

Gallant Rescue of Two Children From "Death Trap."

The story of a mother's heroism was recently told at an inquest at Westminster on Samuel George Warren, 6.1-2, who was suffocated in a fire which occurred near Buckingham Palace, London. Annie Warren, the child's mother, said that she and her husband went out to work, and were in the habit of leaving the boy in their room playing with a little girl his own age, the daughter of a neighbor. To reach their room, which was on old-fashioned one, one had to pass along a stone passage, mount a wooden step-ladder, and walk along a gangway. Whilst at work she was informed that there had been a fire, and that her son was dead. Samuel Warren, the father, an old man, said he left the two children playing in the room. He was obliged to lock the door on the outside, to prevent the children falling into the yard. The latch of the door was broken.

Elizabeth Maney said it was her little girl who played with deceased. She did not know they were locked in. Seeing smoke issuing from the room, witness rushed up the step-ladder, and on forcing open the door was met by dense volumes of smoke. She was unable to see the children, so she called out to her daughter, "Lilly, speak to your mother," but there was no reply. Feeling her way to the bedstead, she found both children lying on it in each other's arms. She picked her little girl up, took her out and placed her on the tiles, and then went back into the smoke and brought the boy out. The children were taken to St. George's Hospital, where her daughter was progressing favorably. The boy was alive when she got him out of the room; he opened his eyes and moved his hands.

Inspector Williams said that in his opinion the place was a perfect death-trap in case of fire. If a person rushed out of the room he would have gone head-first down the step ladder. In summing up, the coroner said the parents lived in a way in which a great many London parents unfortunately had to live. It was doubtful if the room was ever constructed as a living room at all. Like a great many other buildings, he understood it had been condemned, and was coming down in a few months, which probably meant a few years. Meanwhile it was allowed to be used, a small rent being a great temptation to let it.

The jury returned a veridct of "Accidental death," and expressed the opinion that the place was unfit for human habitation.

Tenant Smoked Out.

Goose Farm, Broad Oak, Canterbury, was the scene recently of some curious eviction proceedings a country court bailiff went to the farm to persuade the tenant, Mr. A. W. Minter, to quit, in accordance with the terms of a notice which had been served upon him. The tenant replied by barricading his doors. Thereupon, the bailiff had the windows boarded up on the outside and the chimneys stopped.

Finding after several days that the occupants of the farmhouse showed no sign of capitulation, the bailiff decided upon more forcible measures. By means of a drain-tester, a concoction of tar-twine, and cayenne pepper he sought to smoke them out. From 11 o'clock until three evil-smelling fumes were steadily pumped into the building. Then the barricades were suddenly removed from the front door, and the farmer, accompanied by his mother and a little terrier, appeared on the threshold. They were cheered by a huge crowd of villagers and visitors from Canterbury. The bailiff and the occupants of the farm shook hands with great heartiness; and the crowd cheered again as the new tenant stepped across the threshold of the hardly won citadel.

Get-Rich-Quick Scheme.

Knicker—I save 20 cents every time I shave myself.

Mrs. Knicker—Then why don't you shave five times a day and save more?

Fell Sixty Feet, But Escaped.

Guelph, Nov. 30.—To fall sixty feet and escape with no serious injury was the strange experience of L. Armstrong, a first-year student at the O. A. College. He fell head first, and landed on a horse which was passing beneath at the time, and after striking the horse he bounded off, and lay unconscious on the ground. He soon recovered.

MRS. BRADLEY ACQUITTED.

Jury Find Her Not Guilty of Killing ex-Senator Brown.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, charged with the murder of former United States Senator Arthur Brown, of Utah, at a local hotel on Dec. 6 last, yesterday brought in a verdict of not guilty.

A demonstration of applause followed the announcement of the verdict.

Mrs. Bradley left the court house in an automobile following an ovation. She expressed gratitude over the outcome of the trial, which she had confidently anticipated and declared she had made but few plans.

Situation in Portugal.

Lisbon, Dec. 4.—Bernardino Machado, who is regarded as the inevitable choice of the Republicans in the event of a change of regime in Portugal, declared yesterday that the tranquility of the country was superficial, and that, instead of being indifferent to the political struggle now in progress, the masses are moved by what is happening.

"The establishment of a dictatorship," he said, "has aroused the deepest resentment amongst the people, who are accustomed to a liberal monarchy, and are indignant with what they consider the restoration of absolutism. As King Charles openly supports Premier Franco, the royal prerogative has suffered correspondingly. The present strain cannot long be maintained. Any violent incident, with its necessary repression, might precipitate the gravest event."

Cashier Shoots Himself.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Gladwyn Cobban, cashier of the C. P. R., shot himself in the temple with a revolver at the Windsor street offices yesterday afternoon. He was removed to the General Hospital, where he is likely to die.

The act was committed in one of the lavatories of the building.

Cobban was a prominent member of the Montreal A. A. A., and a few years ago was well known as a football player.

Goes to Prison For Double Murder.

New York, Dec. 4.—Frank H. Warner, who shot and killed Esther C. Norling, whom he had previously employed as a stenographer, and who then killed John C. Wilson, was sentenced to a term of not less than 20 years yesterday.

A Mixup.

"You look disgusted, Bimbleton."

"I should say I am. My wife and I went to a card party last night, and I won the first prize."

"That was all right, wasn't it?"

"Well, the prize was a dozen of these imitation cut glass tumblers."

"Oh, that's the cause"—

"No, it isn't. You see Skinner, who gave the party, won the same prize at a party we gave."

"I see. That's why"—

"Hold on. My rich aunt, who ought to remember us in her will, happened to be there. She gave us the blamed tumblers in the first place, and it had to be explained before the whole crowd how we gave her gift away and how the Skinners passed it back. It's a cinch we're cut out of the will, and now the Skinners won't speak to us."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Humor in the Jungle.

The Lady—Yes, Mr. Monk.

The Monk—Do you patronize Professor Bear or the Misses Fawn?

The Lady—Neither, Mr. Monk. I prefer Signor Gnu. He teaches all the Gnu dances, you know.—Minneapolis Journal.

BEWARE OF BRIGHTS DISEASE

Says Lame Back and Urinary Troubles Are The Danger Signals

TAKE CARE OF BACKACHE

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspicious the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good first-class physician, leave patent medicines alone.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home as stated by a well-known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder frequency, especially at night, painful smarting and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no better general remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism either, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It clears the clogged up poison in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decomposes and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

Ontario Subsidy Arrives.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—The annual half-year Dominion subsidy has been received by Hon. A. J. Matheson, provincial treasurer, to the amount of $387,472.40. It was immediately disbursed in settlement of railway construction work and other payments due.

Under the new act the increase is made up of $80,000 extra fixed allowance and the balance per ratio of population of the last census, including 2,182,944. The previous census gave a population of 1,390,091. The total payment annually is now $2,182,772.08. The former sum was $1,330,287.28. The increase is thus nearly $800,000.

Freight Shed Stealing.

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 4.—A sensation has been caused by the arrest of Reginald Newman, forman in the Canadian Northern Railway local sheds; Charles Carell, shipper for a Cumberland street produce dealer, and William Williamson, a teamster, in connection with the alleged conspiracy by which it would appear the Canadian Northern Railway has for some time been systematically robbed through abstraction of goods from the local sheds.

A further result of the investigation pursued was the arrest of William Swinton of the local C. P. R. shed.

Shot Former Toronto Man.

Buffalo, Dec. 4.—James Connell, formerly of Toronto, a saloon-keeper at Tonawanda, N. Y., was shot and probably fatally wounded last night. A sailor, John Knapp of Detroit, is under arrest.

When Connell closed his place and started for home he was met by Knapp and two of his friends. Knapp, it is said, drew a revolver and fired five shots, two of which struck Connell in the head.

Bomb Failed to Kill.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 4.—An alleged attempt to assassinate President Cabrera of Guatemala two weeks ago, by throwing a bomb at his carriage, is reported by passengers of the steamer Ansala. The bomb is said to have exploded under the President's carriage, killing the coachman and wrecking the vehicle, but not injuring Cabrera.

Killed by Robbers.

Salem, Ore., Dec. 4.—The bodies of Mrs. Casteel, her daughter, aged 24; her son, aged 15; and a man named Montgomery, aged 50, foreman of the ranch, were found in the buried ruins of their home, near MacLeay, yesterday. They probably had been killed by robbers.

STUDENTS GOT STUNG.

Helped Children on the Street and Caught the Itch.

Kingston, Dec. 4.—Two of Queen's students passing along a street the other day had their attention arrested by an appeal from two children for help. The students stopped at the little ones, and found that their mittens were off and they could not pull them on. Their hands were apparently freezing. The students pulled the mittens on and went away.

A few days after the good samaritans found they had the itch, and had communicated it to some of their fellow boarders. The further result is that the young men have to leave college till such time as they are cured of the disease.

Lord Chancellor Married.

London, Dec. 4.—In the little Gothic crypt of the chapel beneath Westminster Hall, Sir Robert Threshie Reid, Baron Loreburn, the lord chancellor, was married yesterday to Miss Violet Hicks-Beach, a niece of Lord St. Aldwyn.

The ceremony, which was quiet, was especially interesting from the fact that this is the first occasion that a lord chancellor has been married during the term of his office, and that this marriage was the first ever performed within the precincts of the House of Parliament.

Quebec Tanner Loses Heavily.

Quebec, Dec. 4.—A general alarm yesterday brought the fire brigade to a fire which had broken out in the three-storey brick building in St. Valier street, occupied as a tannery and leather store by Messrs. Clement and Marchand.

For a brief period it looked as if the blaze might develop into a disastrous fire. Firemen worked hard and succeeded in confining it to the one building, which was completely gutted.

The losses are heavy, but covered by insurance.

Strike Settled at St. John.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 4.—The longshoremen's strike was settled last night. An arrangement was made between the men and the steamship companies whereby a scheduled rate of 28 1-2 cents an hour will be paid.

Soap Items.

The term "soft soap" for smooth words of flattery has been added to the English language, so that it is used in "Tom Brown at Oxford."

Soap bubbles have formed the innocent amusement of children of all ages with the ease of making them, their iridescence and the brief period for which they last.

A MESSAGE FROM CHINA HALL

China Hall's Stock is now complete, and the present is a good time to make selections for Christmas. The stock is the heaviest and most varied it has ever been, and taken as a whole would do credit to the largest city in the Dominion. The Store will be open evenings until after Xmas, and this is opening week, during which the public are invited to inspect the Two Show Rooms and view the newest productions in Pottery. Our Dinner Ware Show Room (just completed) is well worth a visit.

AMBASSADOR TO EXPLAIN.

Jap Government Seeks Light on the Immigration Problem.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Ambassador Aoki has been summoned to Japan by his Government to explain personally and in detail the precise situation in this country in regard to the Japanese immigration problem.

The ambassador has been making very careful enquiry on his own account, and through the various Japanese consular officers, into the extent of the reported race feeling existing in some sections of the United States towards Japanese immigrants. Already Baron Ishii, one of the secretaries of the Japanese Interior Department, has made an investigation of conditions existing, not only in California, Oregon and Washington, but also in British Columbia on the north, upon which he has based a special report to his Government. But it is believed that the purpose of the Japanese Government in summoning Viscount Aoki to Tokio is to secure from him information which Baron Ishii could not possibly have acquired during his short stay in America regarding the attitude of the Administration here, with particular reference to the measures which have recently been applied by the Japanese Government to restrict the departure from Japan for America of the coolie element. Also the Japanese Government desires a prudent forecast of the likelihood of Congressional action in the direction of legislation providing for the exclusion of Japanese immigration.

At the Japanese Embassy it is stated that the ambassador will probably leave Washington for Tokio by way of San Francisco or Victoria in about a fortnight, a fact of which he yesterday notified President Roosevelt and Secretary Root. There is no intimation that he is not to return to Washington. During his absence Mr. Miyaoka, the counsellor of the Embassy, will be in charge.

JUDGE CENSURES SOLICITOR.

Suggests Charge of Perjury Be Laid Against Toronto Lawyer.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—The crown and the Law Society are recommended by Justice Riddell to investigate the part played by Alfred Hall, a solicitor of Haileybury, in a legal difficulty with David Perry of the same town. Hall, it seems, undertook to buy from Perry a house in Haileybury for $2,250. He paid $375 on account, and alleges that certain repairs were to be done. He states that he spent $750 on these improvements. An action was brought for specific performance, and the defendant counterclaimed for $1,875, the balance he claimed due.

"In this appeal," says Justice Riddell, "counsel for both parties state that either plaintiff or defendant was before the master guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury, and I fear that the statement must be considered well founded. Upon the reference which I directed to the master of North Bay, the plaintiff, a solicitor of the court, produced a document which he swore was signed by the defendant in his presence. This the defendant denied. The effect of the master's finding is admitted to be that in his judgment the defendant's account is a correct one."

This was embodied in their report of the Committee on Appointments at the regular monthly session of the Board of Education last last night, which, after a brief discussion was adopted by the Board. On Appointments

Mr. Hill, chairman of the Committee on appointments reported on behalf of his committee as follows:

That the Commercial Classes of the College Institute be transferred from the King Edward School to the Queen Alexandra School after Christmas vacation. This is necessary on account of the crowded state of the King Edward at the present time.

That Miss Sloan, of Owen Sound; Miss Staples, of Barrie and Miss Musgrave, of Ancaster be appointed to positions on our Public School staff at the minimum salary of $400 each, duties to begin at date of opening school in January, 1908.

In connection with this report Dr. Morrison believed that some arrangement might be made whereby the Commercial Class pupils could be taken in at the Central School instead of having them transferred as far south as the Queen Alexandra School and thought that the portion of the report referring to that might be left in abeyance for some time.

Mr. Crane stated that he was of the opinion of Dr. Morrison, but that the Supervision Committee had gone thoroughly into the matter and must have looked at every aspect of the case.

Mr. Pringle would have been glad to have the pupils accommodated in the Central School but stated that he had gone thoroughly into the matter and had found to his satisfaction that there was no accommodation there. In view of this the report was adopted.

Canadian Pacific Railway

Change in time commencing on Nov. 25th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

ENTERTAINMENT TO THE CHOIR

Pleasant Evening Spent at George Street Church Last Night

A very pleasant social time was spent last evening by the George Street Methodist Church choir in the church parlours. Six of the lady members entertained the choir and an enjoyable evening was spent in singing and social intercourse, after which refreshments were served.

A vote of thanks was passed and presented to the soloists who assisted them in their recent concert, namely, Miss Reesor, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Morphet, Mr. Norris and Mr. Miles; also to the Ladies Aid of the church, who banquetted them at the close of the concert.

Before closing the thanks of the choir was presented to the ladies who had so ably entertained them, and a most pleasannt evening was brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne."

DRIVERS' DANCE WAS ENJOYABLE

Large Number Attended the Successful Affair in East City

A dance, under the auspices of the drivers of the city, held in the East City town hall last night, was a most successful affair. Nearly two hundred couples were present and every body appeared to be having a most enjoyable time. Excellent music was provided for the occasion by Messrs. Ferguson and Mahoney, and dancing was kept up until an early hour this morning. The success of the affair reflects great credit upon the committee in charge, which consisted of Messrs. W. Howell, Percy Clarke and Rob. Wilson.

Music and Drama

DOROTHY VERNON IN HADDON HALL

The emphatic triumph which signalized the appearance of Miss Bianca West in Ernest Shipman's beautiful production of "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" has been fully sustained in the subsequent performances, and bids fair to be repeated in this city when they appear at the Grand on Monday, December 9. Paul Kester's clever dramatization of Charles Major's widely read historic novel brings into the fullest light Miss West's wonderful attainments in comedy and powerful emotion.

Mr. Shipman has surrounded Miss West with a company of such capable strength that the entire dramatic rendering is of most satisfying excellence. Liberality and good taste are conspicuous in Mr. Shipman's mounting of the play, which is rich in picturesque and striking architectural effects, the scenes of Haddon Hall, and notably that of the Terrace with its rich foliage and clinging creepers, being scenic masterpieces. The production of "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" is proving the greatest kind of a success elsewhere, both from an artistic and popular standpoint, and judging from the fact, the engagement here should be a most successful one.

HER GOLDEN BALL.

An Incident of Revolutionary Times on Long Island.

Probably no game of ball by professional or college team was ever watched with such inner interest, but with such outward indifference, as one described in Gertrude Vanderbilt's "Social History of Flatbush." It happened in Revolutionary times, when the British soldiers were stationed on Long Island. The inhabitants had hidden their valuables in all possible places. One lady concealed some gold coins in a ball shaped pincushion of the kind worn by the Dutch housewife, suspended at her side.

She was sitting sewing one day when a party of British soldiers entered the room. A young officer, spying what to him was a novelty, cut with his sword the ribbon by which the cushion was hung and began a game of ball.

Soon the rest of the company joined the sport. Boisterously from hand to hand the ball was batted to and fro. It was roughly snatched and tossed, and sometimes it fell into the ashes of the fireplace and barely escaped conflagration. Now and again a soldier would catch it on the tip of his sword and send it spinning on with a rent in its side.

Every moment threatened to reveal the precious contents. To show the least anxiety was to betray the secret, and the owner was forced to sit unmoved, apparently intent on her work, and to see her fortune flying through the air at the mercy of the enemy. At last the cushion, torn and battered, but still guarding its treasure, was returned to its mistress, and the intruders, tired of their play, left the house.

CONFUSED IDENTITY.

Odd Things Said by Folks When Taken by Surprise.

People taken by surprise sometimes say what they do not mean. A car full of people were entertained recently by a conversation which neither of the participants found comic. Young People tells the story:

A train was waiting in a dim station at the end of a dull afternoon. Lights were not yet lighted, and it was decidedly dusky within the car.

An excited and nearsighted woman hurried in, hurried down the aisle, peering at the passengers as she went, and at last as she dropped into a seat beside another woman exclaimed, with a sigh of relief:

"Oh, it's you!"

"Certainly not!" snapped the startled stranger, turning, whereupon the mistaken traveler hastily apologized:

"I beg your pardon, but it's so dark in here I was quite sure you were."

Another woman in similar circumstances became even more confused. She was waiting for her sister in a railway station when a gentleman, looking for his wife and misled by a general resemblance in figure and clothing, stepped up behind her and, laying his hand on her shoulder, exclaimed:

"Thank goodness, Emma, it's you!"

The name he used happened to be really hers, which made the sudden familiarity even more startling. She jumped nervously.

"You're mistaken, sir!" she gasped. "I'm Emma, but she isn't me!"

Censorious Sisters.

"I didn't think you'd get so angry because I said I thought you ought to wear gray suede shoes with your gray dress instead of white ones. I didn't mean to offend you," her friend very sweetly apologized.

"Never mind," she returned softly. "It was all right, but it made me angry for two reasons—first, because I had to wear the white shoes because I didn't have any others that were presentable, and, second, because when I left my family of sisters, who made every possible sort of comment on my clothes, I declared I would never stand it from anybody else. I said to myself that whenever a friend got so friendly that she thought she could treat me like a sister I'd shake her."

A Cause For Thanks.

In the audience at a lecture on China there was a very pious old lady who was slightly deaf. She thought the lecturer was preaching, and every time he came to a period she would say "Amen!" or some other pious exclamation. The people in the audience, which was composed mostly of the village church members, knew she was being reverent and did not even smile when she exclaimed until finally the lecturer mentioned some faroff city in China, saying, "I live there." At this point clearly and distinctly could be heard the old lady saying, "Thank God for that."

An Unusual Task.

"Hello, Jack, old boy, writing home for money?"

"No."

"What are you taking so much trouble over, then? You've been fussing and fuming over it for the last two hours."

"I'm trying to write home without asking for money."

Ill Temper From a bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

The Non Coms. class of the 57th Regiment will be examined to-night at the armouries for the purpose of deciding the members who are qualified to receive certificates. Duffus, are members of the 3rd Dragoons, but they are so interested in the work that they are trying for an infantry certificate as well.

Y.M.C.A. Harriers' Indoor Meet Was Witnessed By 1,500 People

Athletic Programme in the Brock Street Rink was a Grand Success —Many Exciting Races Brought Crowd to its Feet—Wilson Was Beaten.

J. TAIT WON SPECIAL RACE

Fred Simpson Met With an Accident in the Mile Event and Was Beaten Out—Hilton Greene Put Away Ben Howard in the Three Mile Handicap—The Sports Good.

The big indoor athletic meet held last night in the Brock street rink under the auspices of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Harriers' Club was a grand success from nearly every point of view except that the results from the standpoint of the local competitors were not as satisfactory as they might have been. The outside entrants had the best of the argument, the Irish-Canadians winning three firsts and the West End Y.M.C.A. of Toronto one, while two were captured by Peterborough runners. The local contestants struck a streak of bad luck which robbed them of a number of points. In the first place Fred McGrath, who had won the 50-yards dash handily, twisted his ankle in doing so, and was prevented from starting in the 220, which looked to be easy for him. Then Simpson, in the midst of a thrilling duel with Haddleton of the Irish-Canadians in the mile race, fell during the last lap as a result of a collision with the Toronto boy, and not only lost the race, but hurt himself so badly that he was unable to start in the three-mile handicap, which he looked to have packed on ice.

Over 1,500 people were present for the occasion and they were delighted with the evening's sport. The programme was a varied and interesting one and excitement ran high throughout, some of the finishes being of a sensational nature, so thrilling that the crowd rose to its feet and cheered wildly as the runners sped around the course. Nearly every event was warmly contested, and several big surprises were handed out, chief among them being the easy manner in which Jack Tait of the West End Y.M.C.A. of Toronto won the three-mile special race. The speedy Toronto boy beat Ernie Wilson by over a lap in handy fashion, and Galbraith who was selected by a number as the man to be feared was killed by the fast pace and had to drop out several laps before the finish. Hilton Green's defeat of Ben Howard was also a surprise, as Ben seemed to have the race well in hand, but was beaten in the final sprint by several feet.

Several distinguished visitors were present for the occasion, including the famous Tom Longboat, who acted as starter in the three-mile special race and was given a great reception by the crowd when presented to it by Hon. J. R. Stratton. Mr. Tim O'Rourke, the champion shot-putter of the Irish-Canadians, was also present and was cordially received when he replied on behalf of the Irish-Canadians to thank the Peterborough people for the way in which they had been treated here.

The honours were pretty well shaken up, with the Irish-Canadians having the best of the division. They captured the 220 yards handicap, the mile open, and the three-mile handicap. The West Ends of Toronto annexed the invitation three-mile race and the 50-yards dash and the half-mile handicap were captured by Peterborough. Mollmurray of the Irish-Canadians sailed the 220 without much difficulty, although Ralph Hillier gave him a good race in the final. Haddleton of the Irish won the mile, although the result was far from being satisfactory to either the winner or to the field. On the other hand, Hilton Green, the I.C.A.C.'s Mohawk Indian, won a clean-cut victory over his Mississauga rival, Ben Howard of Hiawatha. Fred McGrath had not much trouble in beating off Mollmurray in the 50-yards handicap, and would have very likely captured the 220 as well had it not been for meeting with an accident which prevented him from starting. Len Dobson, running a strong and heady race, won the half-mile handily from the big field, which included Haddleton of the Irish-Canadians. The latter was feeling the effects of his brush with Simpson and the fall which he received, and had to drop out after going a few laps.

A. W. Haddleton of the Irish-Canadians, won the mile event after a great race, marred, however, by an accident in the last lap, which spoiled what would have been a grand finish. He and Simpson had a mix-up in the last lap and both fell, and the Y.M.C.A. boy, thinking the race was over at that point, allowed the Irish-Canadian to go and win.

However, the meet was a most creditable one considering that those who had the affair in charge were new to the business. There were few delays, the races being run off in good time, a feature that was appreciated by the crowd. Mr. O'Rourke of the Irish-Canadians said last night after the events were over that in his many years of athletics he had [illegible] a better conducted [illegible] more successful little meet, which is pretty high praise when coming from such an eminent authority. The Harriers have reason to congratulate themselves upon the great success of the undertaking, which reflects the greatest of credit upon those who were in charge.

The 50-yards handicap dash was the first item on the programme and provided some interesting sport before it was finally settled. It was run in four preliminary heats and a final, there being thirteen entries.

In the first heat Ralph Hillier of Peterborough, Len Dobson of the local Y. M. C. A., Greenwood of the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, and J. O'Donnell of Peterborough were the contestants. Hillier won by a couple of inches after a great race, with Dobson, who had a handicap of one and one-half yards, while the winner had one yard. The Toronto boy who started at scratch got a bad start and finished third.

In the second heat Norman Darling of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Harriers had not much difficulty in winning out from P. Adamson of Peterborough, with J. Guerin, also of this city, third.

The third heat went to Mollmurray of the Irish-Canadians, who started scratch. Dick Baker of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, who had a handicap of one yard was second, about that distance behind, while J. Doughty of Peterborough, with a handicap of two yards, was third.

The fourth heat was easy for Fred McGrath, who won from scratch by over a yard from J. Neary, who was given a handicap of two yards.

The final brought Hillier, McGrath, Mollmurray and Darling out, and the heat was a delay, Fred McGrath winning by a foot and one half.

Contrary to expectations, it was Darling, and not Mollmurray, that gave him a hot chase for the runners. McGrath got away to a bad start, but made up for it in the finish. Darling beat out Mollmurray for the position, running a very clever race.

The one mile open was the next event on the programme, and as expected, was a lively go. There were only three starters in the event, Fred Simpson and Ray Best of the local Y. M.C.A. Harriers, and A. W. Haddleton of the Irish-Canadians, but the race was a corker and aroused the crowd to great enthusiasm. The three got away together at a pretty fast clip with Haddleton doing the pacing and Simpson and Best treading on his heels. They continued this way until the ninth lap, when Simpson all at once sprang to the front with a terrific burst of speed which gave him a lead of over a quarter of a lap before the crowd could realize the change in the positions. The spurt was ill-timed, however, and although the Indian managed to hold his lead for four more laps, the Irish lad caught him at the beginning of the fourteenth lap and there was a desperate struggle for the leadership. Both men were running like 100-yard sprinters when they reached the turn at the north end of the rink, and as they swung around, collided, and both went down. Simpson was the first to pick himself up, and after crossing the starting line, stopped under the impression that the race ended there, instead of there being half a lap more to go. Before he was notified of his mistake the Toronto man had regained his feet and passed the Indian, and although the latter started after him there was no chance to beat him out then. It is hard to say who was responsible for the mix-up, but both men suffered severely by the fall on the hard track. Simpson had both knees cut very badly, and Haddleton had his side and shoulder bruised. It was a bad ending to a great race, and disappointed the crowd.

Half Mile Handicap

The half-mile handicap furnished some great sport and was much enjoyed by the crowd. There were nine entries—Haddleton of the Irish-Canadians at scratch, Bravender, Dobson and Wallace of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers each with 25 yards, W. J. McBurney of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers with 20 yards, J. O'Donnell and P. Adamson with 35 yards, R. Hillier with 30 yards, and N. Darling of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers with 25 yards. The race was a grand one from the spectators' standpoint and was very warmly contested. Haddleton was feeling the effects of his mix-up with Simpson and dropped out after running three laps, leaving the handicap men to fight it out, and they certainly did have a royal battle. Nearly every one had a turn at leading, but four of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers went out in front during the last lap and had a fine fight for the honours. Len Dobson won out with a little to spare over Darling, while the latter led in Pete Wallace. Bravender was making a strong bid for first, but fell on the last turn and was out of the running.

220 Race Was Good

The handicap 220, the next feature on the programme, was marked by one sensational finish. In the first heat the starters were R. Hillier of Peterborough with a handicap of eight yards, J. O'Donnell of Peterborough with a start of ten yards, and J. Greenwood of the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., who was at scratch. The three put up a great argument. O'Donnell and Greenwood had a duel during the first quarter of the distance, and Hillier slipped past them at the turn. Greenwood caught him going down the stretch on the west and there was the liveliest kind of a tilt. The Toronto boy was slightly in the lead when they turned into the stretch for the finish, but Hillier had something left in him, and managed to win out by inches in the desperate struggle at the tape.

The second heat brought together Mollmurray of the Irish-Canadians at scratch, and C. Knapp, J. Doughty and J. Neary of Peterborough with a seven yards handicap. The Irish sprinter won the event easily beating the pistol, he caught the handicap men like a flash before they had hardly moved from the starting line, and passed them before they got under way.

Mollmurray and Hillier were left for the finish, and the Toronto man won it without difficulty, although the local lad ran a plucky race and made the visitor exert himself to the utmost to win by three yards. He had too much experience and speed for Hillier, although the latter deserves credit for his great showing. Fred McGrath was to have started in the event, but the injury to his ankle in running the fifty yards kept him out.

When the runners lined up for the three mile handicap it was found that Fred Simpson was an absentee, the injuries which he received in the spill in the mile event having put him out of business for the time being. The crowd was disappointed as they were looking for a great race between the three Indians. However they saw a hard struggle between Hilton Greene, of the Irish Canadians, and Ben Howard who both started from scratch. Ray Best, of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, with a handicap of 100 yards; Chas Knapp and J. Neary, who had two laps start, and Chas. Thorpe who had a handicap of one and one half, were the other starters, but it was soon seen that the race was between the two Indians. With Hilton Greene doing the pacing the pair started out after the handicap men at a pace that soon put most of them out of the race. Best with his 100 yards' handicap fell in behind the two Indians and held his position there for ten laps. Neary dropped out after going six laps and Knapp and Best after the scratch men had gained their handicap, stopped in the thirteenth lap, leaving the two Indians and Thorpe to fight it out. Thorpe who had a handicap of one lap and one half managed to hold his lead for over half of the race, and was cheered by the crowd for his pluck in hanging on after the pace was fast. Greene and Howard were having a lively contest all the way with Greene doing most of the pacing, but with the two men so close together that a blanket would have covered them both. Several times Howard went out in front, but did not like the pace-making and would pretend to be all in until the Mohawk again took the lead. They continued this way until the bell rang for the last lap when there was a beautiful sprint for the finish. Greene proved to have a little more in him than the local boy and when they turned into the stretch the Irish Indian was out in front with over a yard to the good and he managed to hold it to the finish. Thorpe, who was a lap behind finished with the leaders with a good burst of speed. The three miles were negotiated in 17.09.

Three Mile Special

The three mile invitation race, looked upon as the feature event of the evening outdoided the bill. There was one scratch, Geo. Adams, of the Hamilton Y.M.C.A. Harriers failing to put in an appearance and the race was contested by P. C. Sellen of the Irish Canadians, the holder of the Canadian five mile out-door record; Jack Tait of the West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto, the one mile and the five mile Canadian champion; Bredon Galbraith, the Central Y. M. C. A.'s middle distance man, and Ernie Wilson of the local Y.M.C.A. Harriers. The result of the race was a disappointment as the majority of local people fancied Wilson for the event. Bad judgment, however, lost the race, which was captured by Jack Tait in easy fashion by over a lap. Galbraith had been tipped off as the dangerous man and Wilson was watching him. When Tait shot out in front and started to get up a lead Wilson paid no attention to him and held onto the Central Y.M.C.A. boy. The result was that during the first mile Tait had set up such a lead that there was no chance of catching him. The winner gave a pretty exhibition of running and although Peterborough people were disappointed at Wilson's defeat they were delighted with the form shown by Tait, who is as pretty and easy a runner as has ever been seen in Peterborough. Taking a long stride, almost loping, running seemed no effort to him, and the short steps of the other contestants made their action look laboured.

Tom Longboat started the four who got away at a fast clip with Sellen in the lead for the first lap, followed by Tait, Galbraith and Wilson in the order named. During the second lap Tait went out in front, while Sellen dropped back to last position. The West End runner set a terrific pace and soon had his field trailing. Wilson fell in at Galbraith's heels and stayed there for the greater part of the race, while Tait went on increasing his lead. The flying West Ender ran the first mile in 5.06 and had over half a lap lead at that time which he continued to increase. The crowd cheered on Wilson to go out and catch the West Ender but he did not seem to be able to leave Galbraith. He went out at the beginning of the second mile and passed the Central man, leading him for a lap, and then dropping back behind him again. In the meantime Sellen, the Irish Canadian's little Englishman was running in last place. It was his first appearance on an indoor track and he could not negotiate the corners at all, dropping out in despair at the 22nd lap when the race was half over. During the second mile Tait was running as strong as at the start, and increasing the distance between himself and his two competitors. At the end of the mile, which was covered in 5.05, he was almost a lap ahead and at the end of four rounds had lapped the other pair, who were still clinging to each other, and not content with that sprang out in the lead once more. Wilson and Galbraith hung together until the 41st lap, when the Central man found the pace too hot for him, and dropped out, leaving Tait and Wilson to finish. There was, of course, nothing to it, but Tait then, and the Toronto man won by over a lap, sprinting the last 100 yards in a manner that astonished the crowd. Wilson also finished strong. The race was covered in 16.14 4-5, which is great time for the track.

Previous to the three-mile special event, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Honourary President of the club, addressed the gathering. He regretted that the prizes for the various contests had not arrived, so that they would have to be presented at a later date. He referred to the great success of the meet, and on behalf of the Harriers thanked the Irish-Canadians for sending down their representatives, and also the Central and West End Y.M.C.A.'s of Toronto for their interest.

Mr. Stratton next introduced Mr. Tom Longboat to the audience as the man who had performed so many wonderful feats in Canada which had made the world recognize his ability as a long distance runner. He was also referred to as the man to represent Canada in the Olympic games next year in England. Tom was then presented with a bouquet of flowers by Mr. E. S. Clarry, which he received with his usual smile, minus any accompanying remarks.

Mr. Tim O'Rourke of the Irish-Canadians, was next called upon, and briefly thanked the audience for its kind reception to the Toronto runners.

The track, which was a little over fourteen laps to the mile, was in good shape, considering the difficulties experienced in levelling it up, and, although the corners were hard to negotiate the most of the competitors got along all right.

The 57th Band was in attendance, and their music during the event was appreciated.

CAN CONQUER CATARRH

One can't help being born in a bad climate, but one can guard against its effects. Canada and catarrh are synonimous, but if proper treatment is given catarrh should have little effect on the average person. If you will have your druggist mix the following simple remedy, you will soon lose the feeling of unpleasantness, arising from catarrh: One ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb, and one ounce compound vimosa. Take a dessertspoonful in a little water after meals, and at bed-time. Sleep in a fairly warm room with lots of ventilation, dress warm, eat well cooked foods, and abstain from stimulants.

SNOW PLOUGHS SHOULD BE WIDER

Householder Writes About the Way the Sidewalks Are Cleared

To the Editor of the Examiner.

I should like to ask the Board of Works if we are going to pay fancy prices to have the snow-plowing done and then have it done in a manner that resembles a rail fence. What is the use of scraping the snow from a six-foot sidewalk with a four-foot snow-plow? It is simply disgraceful how this work has been done in the past, and, so far as I can see, it will be done the same way this later again. And then again, on George street I notice that the storekeepers are taking all the snow off the sidewalks and leaving the walks so dangerous that they cannot be walked upon except in a most distressing manner to the walker. One barber informed one of the Councillmen who was getting a shave that he had seen no less than twenty-seven persons fall on the sidewalk in his block that day. I ask the storekeepers to have some mercy on the poor mothers who are compelled to go shopping once in a while, with a push chair with a baby, or stay at home. And I think that the Board of Works should see that the work the ratepayers are paying for is done properly.

Yours, etc.,
HOUSEHOLDER.

Individual Control Of Capital And The People

Interesting Debate at the Y. M. C. A. Literary and Debating Club Meeting.

A VERY SUCCESSFUL CLUB

The regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Literary and Debating Club, was held in the Y. M. C. A. Club Rooms, last evening, and was largely attended, the president, Mr. Shiner, occupying the chair.

Mr. Harry Cooke gave a very interesting and concise review of the current events for the past two weeks, after which the debate of the evening followed: "Resolved—That the individual control of capital is opposed the best interests of the people." Messrs. Greenhalgh, Armstrong and and Common, were appointed judges.

The affirmative was led by Mr. Badge, assisted by Mr. Shutt.

The negative was led by Mr. Hamon, assisted by Mr. Shiner.

The question was ably dealt with by the respective speakers and many interesting and valuable points were brought out by both sides.

The employment of married women and children in large factories to replace men, and thus reduce the cost of manufacture, and swell the pocket of the individual capitalist, and the great desire of the capitalist to grow rich himself, at the expense of the working and ordinary man, were some of the points for the affirmative; while the fact that even under collective ownership the control or management must necessarily be performed by one man, was brought forward by the negative, and also that capital must be controlled by financiers, or those having superior ability, to make the country a success, and thus be beneficial to the people.

While the judges adjourned to arrive at their decision the subject was discussed by the members and visitors present and some clever and humorous points in connection with the subject were brought out.

The regular critic of the Society, Mr. J. E. Hodgson, was unable to be present and Mr. Stubbs of the Collegiate Institute staff, acted as critic for the evening.

The judges decided in favour of the affirmative by two to one, after which Mr. Stubbs gave a very interesting and concise summary of the debate, pointing out the chief defects, and giving many helpful suggestions. Mr. Stubbs complimented the speakers on the excellent manner in which they had dealt with the question and complimented the members of the club on their success in arousing the literary spirit, the cultivation of public speaking, and dealing with questions of the day, among the young men of the city, as was evidenced by the splendid addresses and the large attendance last night.

The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday, December 11th, one week earlier, as it is intended to have two meetings before Christmas. The programme will be announced later. All young men are cordially invited.

EXPRESS DRIVER FELL UNDER SLEIGH

Horse Shied at Flying Paper—Sleigh Upsets and Driver Falls Underneath

At the corner of Dalhousie and George streets yesterday afternoon, Mr. Pratt, a driver for the Canadian Express Co., was seriously injured by the turning over of his sleigh. Mr Pratt says that he was out collecting goods to be shipped on the G.T.R. train which leaves Peterborough at 2.05 o'clock, and after coming out of Ackerman's he jumped into the sleigh and tried to turn the horse around. In turning around the horse shied at a piece of paper, which had blown up from the road, and turned too sharp, thus upsetting the sleigh. Mr. Pratt fell underneath the sleigh and had his right leg badly bruised. A young man named Chalmers was passing at the time, and came to Mr. Pratt's assistance, and after extracting him from underneath the sleigh and putting him outside, he drove the vehicle to the Grand Trunk station, where Dr. King was called and Mr. Pratt was removed to his home.

When seen by the Examiner last night Mr. Pratt was feeling very stiff and was unable to bend his knee but said that he hoped to be able to go to work in a few days.

Latest News From the Capital of Poland

Warsaw, December 5th. — What might have proved a serious accident happened to Miss Mathews on Wednesday night. As she and Mrs. Dr. Munro were on their way to attend choir practice in the Presbyterian church, she fell, sustaining injuries which we are pleased to say, are not as serious as might have been.

Mrs. Thomas Campbell, formerly of this place but now of Pittsburg, is the guest of Mrs. D. McGregor.

Mr. William Selkirk of Blythewood is the guest of his brother-in-law Dr. Munro.

It is rumoured that the Y P C E Society of this place propose to erect a skating rink in the near future.

Mrs. John Morgan is spending a few days visiting with friends in Otonabee.

Basket ball has outlived the unfulness in this village and it was deemed wise to have a snap shot taken of its members as in all probability it will never be reorganized.

CURLING RINK IS BEING PREPARED

Mr. Angus McIntosh Has Begun the Preparatory Work

The roller skating management have made all arrangements for vacating the rink and will be given by to-night. Music and Drama

THE MAN ON THE BOX

The management of the Grand Opera House must be disappointed with the theatre-going public of this city on the only time attendance that witnessed the production of the dramatization of Harold MacGrath's famous story "The Man on The Box." With many favourable press reports and with two experienced actors in the leading roles the people should have been assured of a good play and yet there was only a fair house. Whatever the reason may be, the lovers of a bright, clean production appealing to the emotions arising in every day life missed one of the best plays of the season. In fact the general opinion was that Miss Elsie Leslie who appeared as Elizabeth Ainsley compared favourably with Miss Florence Rowley who scored such a success in "The Lion and the Mouse." It is true there was not the call in last night's production for the strong dramatic effects on character portrayed by Miss Rowley's part. But the manner in which Miss Leslie portrayed the young society woman, educated, patriotic, passionate, feminine and yet possessing strength of character, toying with the affections of a young soldier whom she loved and which love she felt was reciprocated, was delightfully realistic.

James Lee Finney as Lieut. Mabt. Warburton, in the title role, was was very good and is ably fitted for the humourous parts of The Man on the Box. The company is well balanced, the other important characters being in capable hands.

Many of the quality of The Man on the Box should receive more encouragement than was given it as it possesses all that is desired in a bright, clean play of ordinary human interest.

WEDDING BELLS.

MOREAU-O'BRIEN

The wedding took place at St. Anthony's church this morning, of Mr. Isaiah Moreau, of Stratheona, and Miss Fanny O'Brien, daughter of John O'Brien, late of Lidsay River, near Peterborough, Ont. The Rev. Father McQuaid performed the ceremony. Miss Mary O'Brien was bridesmaid and Mr. Elmer Pare, groomsman. On account of the recent death of a relative of the bridegroom, the marriage was a quiet one. After the wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's father the happy couple left for Banff, where the honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will reside in Stratheona. — Orlando, Stratheona, Alta.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

A HEALTHY OLD AGE

OFTEN THE BEST PART OF LIFE

Help for Women Passing Through Change of Life.

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once! To build up woman's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration. Mrs. Mary J. Dabbruz, of 150 Main Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a blessing to me through that delicate period known as the change of life. For six years it disturbed my entire system. I had hot flushes, was extremely nervous, became pale and debilitated, very irregular in the monthly flow, and the blood all seemed to be in my head. I had frequent palpitation and throbbing of the heart; in fact, my whole system seemed to be in disorder.

"I received no relief from the suffering incident to this period until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; but I date my relief from the time I took the first bottle. I gradually improved, nature took her course painlessly, and in due time I was a well woman."

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

A Rock In the Baltic

By ROBERT BARR,

Author of

"The Triumphs of Eugene Valmont," "Tekla," "In the Midst of Alarms," "Speculations of John Steele," "The Victors," Etc.

Copyright, 1906, by Robert Barr.

"I happen to have with me a pair of bottles containing a substance which if dissolved in water and sprinkled on this rock will disintegrate it. It proves rather slow work, I must admit, but I intend to float in to you one of the bottles and the apparatus, so that you may help me on your side, which plan has the advantage of giving you useful occupation and allowing us to complete our task in half the time, like the engineers on each side of the Simplon tunnel."

"If there are bars in the lower watercourse," objected Drummond, "won't you run a risk of breaking your bottle against them?"

"Not the slightest. I have just sent that much thinner electric lamp through, but in this case I'll just tie up the bottle and squirt gun in my stocking, attach that to the wire, and the current will do the rest. You can unload and I'll pull my stocking back again. If I dared wrench off a table leg, I could perhaps shove bottle and syringe through to you from here, but the material would come to a dead center in the middle of this tunnel unless I had a stick to push it within your reach.

"Very well; we'll work away until our excavation connects and we have made it of sufficient diameter for you to squeeze through. You are then in my cell. We put out our lights, and you conceal yourself behind the door. Jailer and man with the lantern come in. You must be very careful not to close the door, because if you once shove it shut we can't open it from this side, even though it is unlocked and the bolts drawn. It fits like wax and almost hermetically seals the room. You spring forward and deal the jailer with your fist one of your justly celebrated English knockdown blows, immediately after felling the man with the lantern. Knowing something of the weight of your blow, I take it that neither of the two men will recover consciousness until we have taken off their outer garments, secured revolvers and keys. Then we lock them in, you and I on the outside."

"My dear Jack, we don't need any tunnel to accomplish that. The first time these two men come into my room I can knock them down as easily here as there."

"I thought of that, and perhaps you could, but you must remember we have only one shot. If you made a mistake, if the lantern man bolted and fired his pistol and once closed the door—he would not need to pause to lock it—why, we are done for. I should be perfectly helpless in the next room, and after the attempt they'd either drown us or put us into worse cells as far apart as possible."

"I don't think I should miss fire," said Drummond confidently. "Still I see the point and will obey orders."

"My official position on the rock ever since I arrived has been that of electrical tutor in chief to the governor. I have started his dynamo working and have wired such portions of the place as were not already wired before. During these lessons I have kept my eyes open. So far as the prison is concerned, there are the governor, a sort of head clerk, the jailer and his assistant—four men, and that is all. The jailer's assistant appears to be the cook of the place, although the cooking done is of the most limited description. The black bread is brought from St. Petersburg, I think, as also tinned meat and soup, so the cuisine is on a somewhat limited scale."

"Do you mean to say that only these four men are in charge of the prison?"

"Practically so, but there is the garrison as well. The soldiers live in a suit of rooms directly above us, and as near as I can form an opinion there are fourteen men and two officers. When a steamer arrives, they draft as many soldiers as are necessary, unload the boat, and then the Tommies go upstairs again. The military section apparently holds little intercourse with the officials, whom they look upon as jailers. I should judge that the military officer is chief of the rock because when he found the governor's room lit by electricity he demanded the same for his quarters. That's how I came to get upstairs. Now, these stairs are hewn in the rock, are circular, guarded by heavy oaken doors top and bottom, and these doors possess steel bolts on both sides of them. It is thus possible for either the military authorities upstairs or the civil authorities to isolate themselves from the others. In case of a revolt among the soldiers the governor could bolt them into their attic, and they would find great difficulty in getting out. Now, my plan of procedure is this: We will disarm jailer and assistant, take their keys, outside garments and caps. The jailer's toggery will fit you, and the other fellow's may do for me. Then we will lock them in here, and if we meet clerk or governor in the passages we will have time to overcome either or both before they are aware of the change. I'll go up the circular stair, bolt from the inside the upper door and afterward bolt the lower door. Then we open all the cells and release the other prisoners, descend from the rock, get into the Finnish fishing boat, keep clear of the two cannon that are up above us and sail for the Swedish coast. We can't miss it. We have only to travel west, and ultimately we are safe. There is only one danger, which is that we may make our attempt when the steamer is in 1856, but we must chance that."

"Isn't there any way of finding out? Couldn't you pump the governor?"

"He is always very much on his guard and is a taciturn man. The moment the tunnel is finished I shall question about some further electrical material, and then perhaps I may get a hint about the steamer. I imagine she comes irregularly, so the only safe plan would be for us to make our attempt just after she had departed."

"Would there be any chance of our finding a number of the military downstairs?"

"I don't think so. Now that they have their electric light they spend their time playing cards and drinking vodka."

"Very well, Jack; that scheme seems reasonably feasible. Now get through your material to me and issue your instructions."

CHAPTER XIX.

IN a very short time Drummond became as expert at the rock dissolving as was his friend. He called it pitiling slow work, but was nevertheless extremely industrious at it, although days and weeks and, as they suspected, months passed before the hands of the two friends met in the center of the rock. One lucky circumstance that favored them was the habit of the jailer in visiting Drummond only once every four days.

The lieutenant made his difficult passage, squeezing through the newly completed tunnel half an hour after a loaf had been set upon his table. Jack knew that the steamer had recently departed, because two days before the governor had sent for him and had exhibited a quantity of material recently landed, among other things a number of electric bells and telephones which the governor was going to have set up between himself and the officers and also between his room and that of the clerk and jailer. There were dry batteries and primary batteries and many odds and ends, which made Jack almost sorry he was leaving the place.

Heavy steps, muffled by the thickness of the door, sounded along the outer passage.

"Ready?" whispered Jack. "Here they come. Remember, if you miss your first blow we're goners, you and I."

Drummond made no reply, for the steps had come perilously near, and he feared to be heard. Noiselessly he crossed the cell and took up his position against the wall, just clear of the space that would be covered by the opening of the door.

At the same moment Jack switched off the light, leaving the room black. Each of the two waiting prisoners could hear the other's short breathing through the darkness.

On came the shuffling footsteps of the jailer and lantern bearer. They had reached the door of No. 1, had paused, had passed on and stopped in front of No. 2.

"Your cell!" whispered Jack, panic stricken. "And they weren't due to look in on you for four days. It's all up! They'll discover the cell is empty and give the— Where are you going, man?" he broke off as Drummond, leaving his place near the door, groped his way hurriedly along the wall.

"To squeeze my way back and make a fight for it. It's better than"—

"Wait!"

Lamont's hand was on his shoulder, and he whispered a sharp command for silence. The two attendants had halted in front of No. 2, and while the lantern bearer fumbled with the awkward bolt his companion was saying:

"Ready?" whispered Jack.

"Hold on! After all, I'll bring the other his food first, I think."

"But," remonstrated the lantern bearer, "the governor said we were to bring the Englishman to him at once."

"What if he did? How will he know we stole a half minute to give the prince his dinner? If we bring the Englishman upstairs first, the prince may have to wait an hour before we can get back with the Englishman."

"Let him wait, then."

"With his pocketful of rubies? Not I. He may decide to give no more of his gold pieces to a jailer who lets him go hungry too long."

"I've got the door unfastened now, and"—

"Then fasten it again and come back with me to No. 1."

Faint as were the words, deadened by intervening walls, their hearer reached Jack.

"Back to your place," he whispered. "They're coming!"

The rattle of bolts followed close on his words. The great door of No. 1 swung ponderously inward. The lantern bearer, holding his light high in front of him, entered, then stepped to one side to admit the jailer, who came close after, the tray of food in his outstretched hands.

Unluckily for the captives' plan, it was to the side of the cell opposite to that where Alan crouched that the lantern bearer had taken his stand. There was no way of reaching him at a bound. The open door stood between. Were the jailer to be attacked first his fellow attendant could readily be out of the cell and halfway up the corridor before Alan might hope to reach him.

The friends had counted on both men entering the room together and crossing, as usual, to the table. This change of plan disconcerted them. Already the jailer had set down his tray and was turning toward the door. Alan, helpless, stood impotently in the shadow, biting his blond mustache with helpless rage. In another second their cherished opportunity would vanish. And as the jailer's next visit was to be to No. 2, discovery stared them in the eyes.

It was Jack who broke the momentary spell of apathy. He was standing at the far end of the cell, near the stream.

"Here!" he called sharply to the lantern bearer. "Bring your light. My electric apparatus is out of order, and I've mislaid my matches. I want to fix"—

The lantern bearer obediently had advanced into the room. He was halfway across it while Lamont was still speaking. Then from the corner of his eye he spied Alan crouching in the angle behind the door, now fully exposed to the rays of the lantern.

The man whirled about in alarm just as Alan sprang. In consequence the Englishman's mighty fist whizzed past his head, missing it by a full inch.

The jailer, recovering from his amazement, whipped out one of the revolvers he wore in his belt, but Jack, leaping forward, knocked it from his hand before he could fire and, with one hand clapped across the fellow's bearded lips, wound his other arm about the stalwart body so as to prevent for the instant the drawing of the second pistol.

Alan's first blow had missed clean, but his second did not. Following up his right hand blow with all a trained boxer's swift dexterity, he sent a straight left hander flush on the angle of the light bearer's jaw. The man dropped his lantern and collapsed into a senseless heap on the floor, while Alan, with no further delay, rushed toward the jailer.

The fall of the lantern extinguished the light. The cell was again plunged in dense blackness, through which could be heard the panting and scuffling of the prince and the jailer.

Barely a second of time had elapsed since first Jack had seized the man, but that second had sufficed for the latter to summon his great brute strength and shake off his less gigantic opponent and to draw his pistol.

"Quick, Alan!" gasped Jack. "He's got away from me. He'll"—

Drummond, guided by his friend's voice, darted forward through the darkness, caught his foot against the sprawling body of the lantern bearer and fell heavily, his arms thrown out in an instinctive gesture of self preservation. Even as he lost his balance he heard a sharp click directly in front of him. The jailer had pulled the trigger, and his pistol—contract made and out of order, like many of the weapons of common soldiers in Russia's frontier posts—had missed fire.

To that luckiest of mishaps, the failure of a defective cartridge to explode, the friends owed their momentary safety.

As Alan pitched forward one of his outflung arms struck against an obstacle. It was a human figure, and from the feel of the leather straps which his fingers touched in the impact he knew it was the jailer and not Lamont.

Old football tactics coming to memory, Alan clung to the man his arm had chanced upon and bore him along to the ground, Jack, who had pressed forward in the darkness, being carried down as well by the other's fall.

Jailer, prince and Englishmen thus struggled on the stone floor in one indistinguishable heap. It was no ordinary combat of two to one, for neither of the prisoners could say which was the jailer and which his friend. The jailer, troubled by no such doubts, laid about him lustily and was only prevented from crying out by the fact that his heavy fur cap had in the fall become jammed down over his face as far as the chin and could not for the moment be dislodged.

He reached for and drew the sword bayonet that hung at his side, for his second pistol had become lost in the scrimmage, and thrust blindly about him. Once, twice his blade met resistance and struck into flesh.

"Jack," panted Alan, "the beast's

Alan's first blow had missed clean, but his second did not.

stabbing. Get yourself loose and find the electric light."

As he spoke Alan's hand found the jailer's throat. He knew it was not Jack's from the rough beard that covered it. The jailer, maddened by the pressure, stabbed with fresh fury, most of his blows fortunately going wild in the darkness.

Alan's free hand reached for and located the arm that was wielding the bayonet, and for a moment the two wrestled desperately for its possession.

Then a key clicked and the room was flooded with incandescent light, just as Alan, releasing his grip on the Russian's throat, dealt him a short arm blow on the chin with all the power of his practiced muscles. The jailer relaxed his tense limbs and lay still, while Alan, bleeding and exhausted, struggled to his feet.

"Hot work, eh?" he panted. "Hard position to land a knockout from. But I caught him just right. He'll trouble us no more for a few minutes, I fancy. You're bleeding! Did he wound you?"

"Only a scratch along my cheek. And you?"

"A cut on the wrist and another on the shoulder, I think. Neither of them bad, thanks to the lack of aim in the dark. Close call, that! Now to tie them up. Not a movement from either yet."

"You must have come close to killing them with those sledge hammer blows of yours!"

"It doesn't much matter," said the imperturbable pugilist, "they'll be all right in half an hour. It's knowing where to hit. If there are only four men downstairs, we don't need to wear the clothes of these beasts. Let us take only the bunch of keys and the revolvers."

Securing these the two stepped out into the passage, locked and bolted the door; then Jack, who knew his way, proceeded along the passage to the stairway, leaped nimbly up the steps, bolted the door leading to the military quarters, then descended and bolted the bottom door.

"Now for the clerk, and then for the governor."

The clerk's room connected with the armory, which was reached by passing through the apartment that held turbine and dynamo, which they found purring away merrily.

Covering the frightened clerk with four revolvers, Jack told him in Russian that if he made a sound it would be his last. They took him, opened cell No. 3, which was empty, and thrust him in.

Jangling the keys, the two entered the governor's room. The ancient man looked up, but not a muscle of his face changed. Even his fishy eyes showed no signs of emotion or surprise.

"Governor," said Jack, with deference, "although you are under the muzzles of a quartet of revolvers no harm is intended you. However, you must not leave your place until you accompany us down to the boat, when I shall hand the keys over to you, and in cell No. 1 you will find jailer and lantern man a little worse for wear perhaps, but still in the ring, I hope. In No. 3 your clerk is awaiting you. I go now to release your prisoners. All communication between yourself and the military is barred. I leave my Suffered From Heart and Nerve Troubles FOR THE Last Ten Years.

The heart has supplied to it two sets of nerves, one set which quickens, the other which slows its action. The proper action of these nerves, so important to the well-being of the heart, depends upon the general condition of the nervous system. If there be nerve derangement of any kind it is bound to produce all the various phenomena of heart derangement.

Knowing the intricate structure of the heart, and being aware how diseases of the nerves affect the heart, we have combined in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders as well as act on the heart itself, and in this is the secret of their success in curing so many cases of heart trouble which have baffled all other treatment.

Mrs. John Riley, Deare, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from heart and nerve troubles for the last ten years. After trying many remedies and doctoring for two years, without the least benefit, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial. I am thankful to say that, after using nine boxes, I am entirely cured, and would recommend them to all sufferers."

friend Ch guard until I return from the cells. You must not attempt to summon assistance or cry out or move from your chair. My friend does not understand either Russian or German, so there is no use in making any appeal to him, and, much as I like your personally and admire your ability in science, our case is too desperate that if you make any motion whatever he will be compelled to shoot you dead."

The governor bowed.

"May I continue my writing?" he asked.

Jack laughed heartily.

"Certainly!" And with that he departed to the cells, which he unlocked one by one, only to find them all empty.

Returning, he said to the governor:

"Why did you not tell me that we were your only prisoners?"

"I feared," replied the governor mildly, "that you might not believe me."

"After all, I don't know that I should," said Jack, holding out his hand, which the other shook rather unresponsively.

"I want to thank you," the governor said slowly, "for all you have told me about electricity. That knowledge I expect to put to many useful purposes in the future, and the exercise of it will also make the hours drag less slowly than they did before you came."

"Oh, that's all right!" cried Jack, with enthusiasm. "I am sure you are very welcome to what teaching I have been able to give you, and no teacher could have wished a more apt pupil."

"It pleases me to hear you say that, highness, although I fear I have been lax in my duties, and perhaps the knowledge of this place which you have got through my negligence has assisted you in making an escape which I had not thought possible."

Jack laughed good naturedly.

"All's fair in love and war," he said. "Imprisonment is a section of war. I must admit that electricity has been a powerful aid to us, but you cannot blame yourself, governor, for you always took every precaution, and the jailer was eternally at my heels. You can never pretend that you trusted me, you know."

"I tried to do my duty," said the old man mournfully, "and if electricity has been your helper it has not been with my sanction. However, there is one point about electricity which you impressed upon me, which is that, although it goes quickly, there is always a return current."

"What do you mean by that, governor?"

"Is it not so? It goes by a wire and returns through the earth. I thought you told me that."

"Yes, but I don't quite see why you mention that feature of the case at this particular moment."

"I wanted to be sure what I have stated is true. You see, when you are gone there will be nobody I can ask."

All this time the aged governor was holding Jack's hand rather limply. Drummond showed signs of impatience.

"Jack," he cried at last, "that conversation may be very interesting, but it's like smoking on a powder mine. One never knows what may happen. I shan't feel safe until we're well out at sea, and not even then. Get through with your farewells as soon as possible and let us be off."

"Right you are, Alan, my boy. Well, governor, I'm reluctantly compelled to bid you a final goodby, but I wish you all sorts of luck."

The old man seemed reluctant to part with him and still clung to his hand.

"I wanted to tell you," he said, "of another incident almost as startling as your coming into this room a while since that happened six or eight months ago. As perhaps you know, we keep a Finland fishing boat down in the cove below."

"Yes, yes," said Jack impatiently, drawing away his hand.

"Well, six or eight months ago that boat disappeared and has never been heard of since. None of our prisoners was missing, none of the garrison was missing, my three assistants were still here, yet in the night the boat was taken away."

"Really? How interesting! Never learned the secret, did you?"

"Never, but I took precautions when we got the next boat that it should be better guarded, so I have had two men remain aboard it night and day."

The accident upset Jack.

"The devil you have!" cried Jack, starting up.

"Yes, I have," said the governor, with a quiet smile of triumph.

"Then we must surrender or we will be compelled to shoot them. Come down with us and advise them to surrender quietly; otherwise, from safe cover on the stairway, we can pot them in an open boat."

"I will go down with you," said the governor, "and do what I can."

"Of course they will obey you."

"But, they will obey me—if they hear me. I was going to add that only yesterday did I arrange the electric bell down at the landing, with instructions to them what to take a telegram which I had written in case of emergencies to be provisioned for several months ahead at the very lowest calculation. Now, the first thing to do is to put this excellent Johnny in his little cell. Then I'll tell you where our chief danger lies."

The governor made neither protest nor complaint, but walked into No. 9 and was locked up.

"Now, Johnny, my boy," said Drummond, "our anxiety is the soldiers. The moment they find they are locked in they will blow those two doors open in just about half a jiffy. We can, of course, by sitting in front of the lower door night and day pot off the first four or five who come down, but if the rest make a rush we may bound to be overpowered. They have presumably plenty of powder, probably some live shells, petards and whathot that will make short work even of those oaken doors. What do you propose to do?"

"I propose," said Jack, "to fill their encased stairway with utmost. There are heaps and heaps of it in the armory."

This necessity for this was prevented by the best circumstance. The two young men were seated in the governor's room when at his table a telephone bell rang. Jack had not noticed this instrument and now took up the receiver.

"Hello, governor!" said a voice. "Your feel of a jailer has bolted the stairway door, and we can't open it."

"Oh, I beg pardon," replied Jack in whatever imitation of the governor's voice he could assume. "I'll see to it at once myself."

He hung up the receiver and told his comrade what had happened.

"One or both of these officers are coming down. If we get the officers safely into a cell, there will be nobody to command the men, and it is more than likely that the officers carry the keys of the powder room. I'll turn out the electric lamps in the hall and light the lantern. You be ready at the foot of the stairway to fire if they make the slightest resistance."

The two officers came down the circular stairway, grumbling at the delay to which they had been put. Ermentoff took advantage of the clumping of their heavy boots in the echoing stairway to shove in the bolts once more and then followed them, himself followed by Drummond, into the governor's room. Switching on the electric light, he said:

"Gentlemen, I am Prince Ermentoff, in temporary charge of this prison. The governor is under arrest, and I regret that I must demand your swords, although I have every reason to believe that they will be handed back to you within a very few days after I have completed my investigations."

The officers were too much accustomed to sudden changes in command to see anything odd in this turn of affairs. Ermentoff spoke with a quiet dignity that was very convincing, and the language he used was that of the nobility. The two officers handed him their swords without a word of protest.

"I must ask you whether you have yet received your winter supply of food?"

"Oh, yes," said the senior officer, "we had that nearly a month ago."

"Is it stored in the military portion of the rock or below here?"

"Our rations are packed away in a room upstairs."

"I am sorry, gentlemen, that I must put you into cells until my mission is accomplished. If you will write a requisition for such rations as you are accustomed to receive, I shall see that you are supplied. Meanwhile write also an order to whomsoever you entrust in command of the men during your absence to grant no one leave to come downstairs and ask him to take care that each soldier is rightly restricted to the minimum quantity of vodka."

The senior officer sat down at the table and wrote the two orders. The men were then placed in adjoining cells without the thought of resistance even occurring to them. They supposed there had been some changes at headquarters and were rather relieved to have the assurance of the prince that their arrest would prove temporary. Further investigation showed that there would be no danger of starvation for six months at least.

Next day Jack, at great risk of his neck, scaled to the apex of the island, as he had thought of trying, if possible, a signal of distress that might attract some passing vessel. But even though he reached the sharp ridge, he saw at once that no pole could be erected there, not even if he possessed one. The wind aloft was terrific, and he gazed around him on an empty sea.

When four days had passed they began to look for the Russian relief boat, which they knew would set out the moment the governor's telegram reached St. Petersburg.

On the fifth day Jack shouted down to Drummond, who was standing by the door:

"The Russian is coming! Heading direct for us! She's in a hurry, too—crowding on all steam and eating up the distance like a torpedo boat destroyer. I think it's a cruiser. It's not the old fib I came on anyway."

"Come down, Alan," answered Alan. "And we"—

A cry from above interrupted him. Jack, having at first glance spied the vessel whose description he had shouted to Drummond, had now turned his eyes eastward and stood staring sghast toward the shores.

"What's the matter?" asked Alan.

"Matter?" echoed Jack. "They must be sending the whole Russian navy here in detachments to capture our unworthy selves. There's a second boat coming from the east, nearer by two miles than the yacht. If I hadn't been all taken up with the other from the moment I climbed here, I'd have seen her before."

"Is she a yacht too?"

"No; looks like a passenger tramp. Dirty and"—

"Merchantman maybe."

"No; she's got guns on her"—

"Merchantman filled out for privateersmen probably. That's the sort of craft Russia would to Sweden to send to a secret prison like this. What then, dude"—

"No flag at all—neither of them. They're both making for the rock full steam and from opposite sides. Neither can see the other, I suppose. If"—

"From opposite sides? That doesn't look like a joint expedition. One of those ships isn't Russian. But which?"

Jack had clambered down and stood by Alan's side.

"We must make ready for defense in either case," he said. "In a few minutes we'll be able to use them both from the platform below."

"One of those boats means to blow us out of existence if she can," mused Jack. "The other cannot know of our existence. And yet, if she doesn't, what in she doing here headed for the rock?"

With that Jack scrambled, slid and jumped down. Drummond was very quiet and serious. Repeating rifles stood in a row on the opposite wall, easy to get at, but as far off as might be from the effects of a possible shell. The two young men now manned the stone bench by the door, which allowed them to look over the ledge at the eastern sea. Presently the craft appointed behind the wall of the island, pure white, floating like a swan on the water and making great headway.

"By Jove," said Jack, "that's a fine one! Looks like the czar's yacht, but no Russian vessel I know of can make that speed."

"She's got the earmarks of Thornycroft build about her," contributed Drummond. "By Jove, Jack, what luck if the skedar prove to be English! No fib flying, though."

"She's heading for us," said Jack, "and apparently she knows which side the cruiser is on. If she's Russian, they've taken it for granted we've captured the whole place and are in command of the guns. There, she's turning."

"Jove, I wish I'd a pair of good glasses," said Drummond. "They're lowering a boat."

Jack showed more, Highland excitement than Russian stolidity as he watched the oncoming of a small boat, beautifully riding the waves and masterfully moved by sailors who understood the art. Drummond stood impatiently as a statue.

"The droop of those oars is English, Jack, my boy."

As the boat came nearer and nearer Jack became more and more agitated.

"I say, Alan, focus your eyes on that man at the tiller. I think my sight's failing me. Look closely. Did you ever see him before?"

"I think I have, but am not quite sure."

"Why, he looks to me like my jovial and venerable father-in-law, Captain Kempt, of Bar Harbor. Perfectly absurd, of course. It can't be."

"He does resemble the captain, but I only saw him once or twice."

"Hooray, Captain Kempt! How are you?" shouted Jack across the waters.

Is Handsomest Looking

Improvement Number Fourteen

Appearance ruined by shoddy shoes

Appearance enhanced by Foot-rite

A handsomely suited pair of feet are as scarce as uniform. Never thought of it, did you? Well, it's a fact. Next time you're at the club inspect the feet of exquisitely dressed pals. You'll find hardly one correctly dressed foot. There'll be plenty of gaudy shine and polish, but clumsy fits, unbecoming shapes, bowed up and warped soles, wrinkles and all sorts of bad taste and slovenliness.

Astonishing situation when you consider that the style of a Hundred Dollar suit is concerned to distortions when hung over shoddy boots.

Here is a recipe for making a pair of handsomely dressed masculine feet. Call on the Foot-rite retailer—his name's below. Allow him to select several pairs of Foot-rites of different shapes and styles and let him do the selecting. He's a shoe expert and knows better than you what best becomes you. Wear one pair, keep the others on trees, change daily and shine daily with a dull finish, and you'll have well groomed and stylish feet.

But why get Foot-rites? Because they're handsomest. They're wrinkleless and are built with uncollapsable box-toes. This gives a smooth, dressy, kid glove look of upper. They're built with a Flurab-Line Level Heel and Sole and artistic arch.

Besides, they're made of Normal-Calf, an exclusively Foot-rite leather. This leather, being almost as soft and supple as the live calf's skin, finishes like silk and yields an ebony lustre when blacked or polished. Finally, they're moulded over lasts sculptured from the ideally formed feet of model athletes, which give them new, original, and exquisitely handsome shapes—shapes that you can't get in any other shoe—shapes that'll make your feet feel proud. The same price anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00 and $5.00. Every Pair Goodyear Welted.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in regard to my ten-year Endowment Policy of 1897 which matured to-day and in affords me pleasure to-day that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The satisfactory surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be given under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having sustained the extraordinary loss of over $100,000 by the disastrous fire in this city last April, it has been able to offer such liberal options as are available to me under the Policy. In fact the Insurance option, as paid me Life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

I wish most cordially the Company a long continuance of its prosperity.

Yours very truly,

EDMONTON WORLD'S GREAEST RAW FUR CENTRE.

Rule of the Fur Traders—Reminiscences of Days Long Past—Indian Trappers and Their Work—Hazardous and Lonely—Beavers no Longer a Staple Commodity—Trails Played Out.

When you listen to the Russian Doukhober talking prices to a Scottish half-bred outside a real estate office with a French name kept by an Irishman from Jamaica, you acknowledge that Edmonton on the Silver Saskatchewan, eight hundred miles north of Winnipeg, is cosmopolitan. When the vociferous Jehu at the railway station yells, accommodatingly, "Drive you to any hotel or any tent in town for a dollar!" you realize that the city is growing and growing apace. When you read the sign, "The Honorable Hudson Bay Company, established 1670," you remember that here was "The Last House" spoken of by the few missionaries and explorers who passed this way a hundred years ago; partakers from post to post of the hospitality of the Ancient Company.

Seeking Edmonton to-day the traveler arrives luxuriously in a parlor car dazzled somewhat with the panorama of new raw towns and intervening stretches of wheat which mark the whole stretch from Winnipeg.

Have Floated Their Furs.

Edmonton is unique. Street cars and electric lights and automobiles and Worth gowns, and, in equal evidence with these, the Stetson hat of the cowboy and beaded moccasin of the Blackfoot. There are four-storey public buildings of stone and down in the coulee fifty families are living in tents because carpenters and builders cannot keep pace with immigration. The whole thing is a bit disconcerting. When you stop to listen to the strains of the Moonlight Sonata drifting out from a tent and see the owner of a lean-to shack step from his shabby roof-tree into a five-thousand dollar auto, you rub your eyes and wonder if you have found Topsey Turvey Land.

The city sits high up on the north bank of the North Saskatchewan, down whose wide-stream, to barter at her gates, trader and trapper have floated their furs for a century.

Lineage of Romance.

For many decades Edmonton was the end of the trail; at this outpost of Empire the Hudson Bay Co., acting as middlemen, passed the products of the chase from Cree to Christian, the products of civilization from Christian to Cree. Up to her front door came trader and adventurer. Away from her back door once a year groaned the wooden wheels of the Red River ox carts on their grand voyage into an unknown North. This beautiful, and perhaps the most progressive, of the cities of Western Canada has a history ancient and a lineage of romance. Old are the trails that lead to her doors. An honorable daughter of the Hudson Bay Co., and the greatest of its raw fur centers, the history of Edmonton cannot well be studied apart from that of the parent company, the world's oldest existing chartered trading concern.

Fascinating is the story of the rule of the fur traders.

Clumsy Red River Carts.

In these old fur days the trade between Edmonton and Winnipeg, the present hustling capital of Manitoba, was by bull train. Freighters left Edmonton as soon as the grass was green, and the oxen, with their clumsy Red River carts, took two months to leisurely cover the eight or nine hundred miles to Winnipeg.

These carts, forerunners of the palatial parlor cars, were built, by the half-breeds, of oak, and no iron entered into their construction; the wheels were without tires, an extra axle being lashed neath the car by shaganappi (rawhide), after the fashion of the extra wheel of the automobilist of to-day. An ox could drag half a ton fifteen miles a day, in one of these creaking carts, and often May, June, July, August and September were occupied in the round trip from Edmonton and Winnipeg and back to Edmonton again.

For the consumer it was costly freighting; a 200-pound barrel of salt, which at the works cost, perhaps a dollar, would have its value increased twenty or thirty dollars by the time it creaked and jolted and rattled its summer journey from Winnipeg to Edmonton.

Princely Packs of Fox.

Inside the old Fort incredible numbers of buffalo robes were bought from Blackfoot and Cree, who warred and hunted on the Great Plains while the Wood Indians of the Peace and Athabasca brought in princely packs of fox, fisher, marten, lynx, beaver, and bear skins.

From the mighty waterways of the far north those precious pelts were carried on snowshoes, in dog sleighs, and by canal and river portage to the gates of old Edmonton, thence down the Saskatchewan in York boats by lake and river to Hudson's Bay and the company's sailing ships to London—a far call from the Mackenzie mouth within the Arctic Circle to old Father Thames, from the back of a silver fox to the back of a dowager duchess.

In the bronze and green days of early autumn still, as of old, the Indian trapper with his wife and dogs and babies, his winter's provisions and his household goods, turns his paddle northward to match for half a year his cunning and endurance with that of the furry brothers of the place.

Skill As a Hunter.

Outfitting is a family affair; the squaw assists her spouse to wisely choose bacon and beans and blankets, big traps for the bear and little ones for the muskrat, and even the brown-faced, big-eyed babies have a voice in the yearly purchase. All this the storekeeper furnishes on the credit of the furs that are to come. The Indian's promissory note is the uncaught fox, the endorsement his recorded skill as a mighty hunter.

Poling, paddling, peaking, up lonely rivers they go, scudding before the wind across unnamed lakes and making portage from water to water, to reach the fur country just as winter is solidifying the universe. The six-fathom or north canoes of the old days held three tons each and on starting out were loaded to the gunwale with flour and tents and guns and babies, not forgetting gum and spruce-roots for hurried repairs to a crack in the birch-bark.

Wigwams Are Built.

It is but a thin sheeting between Indian and water and even the babies learn to tread gently. When the earliest frosts crisping the lakes and rivers make a knife-edge that menaces the birch-bark the canoes are discarded for snowshoes and sleighs and the long journey is continued. Arrived in the fur country, wigwams are built, and from these domestic and strategic centers the trapper works. As the beaver dams and fox trails play out, the family altar shifts to fresh woods and pastures new, and within the wigwam the precious pile of skins, the Indian bank account, adds to golden numbers.

So the winter wears away and the summer sun slants strong among the pines; the rills and river sing again the anthem of the free; it is time to turn south to Edmonton.

Sled and snowshoes are cast aside, the old canoes brought out of winter cache and the homeward journey begins, the journey toward the Fort, where summer pleasures succeed winter vigils and the trapper reaps for skin of marten and beaver all the tawdry sweets of civilized life.

Charm of Trapper.

Trapping is hazardous and lonely, and tries the soul of a man, but it has the perpetual charm of the element of chance, and looking at traps is like looking at the tapes of a ticker. Every pearl-diver dreams of finding the wonderful pink pearl, so every trapper cherishes visions of a silver fox that will bring to him kudos and riches. Every great World's Fair gives an impetus to the fur trade. One dealer paid $3,000 for a Canadian silver fox, two and half feet in length, for the Paris Exposition. The fact was chronicled by the press of two continents and sent the heart of the trapper beating in excitement and anticipation. Might not he hope to find a skin to rival this.

But the good old days are gone, the days when an Indian hunter could kill his 700 or 800 beavers in a season, carrying only the choicest to the doors of the trader, using some as rugs and mats and piously hanging a quota on the trees to commemorate the death of parent or child.

The beaver was always the unit of trade value. In 1743, according to Joseph la France the Hudson Bay factor gave two fish-hooks for one beaver, an axe or a pound of gunpowder for four beavers, a checked shirt or a common straw hat for seven bears, a gain of two thousand per cent!

The Poisons Must Be Removed

FROM THE SYSTEM—BOTH KIDNEYS AND BOWELS ARE RESTORED TO ACTION BY

There three ways, and three only, by which the system can be rid of poisonous waste matter, the bowels, the kidneys and the skin.

The bowels are named first, because on them falls the greater part of this work, and so long as they do do their duty there is seldom trouble with the kidneys, or skin, as excretory organs.

When the bowels fail, however, and become sluggish and constipated, there is work thrown on the kidneys which they have no business to do, and which they cannot do for any length of time without becoming deranged.

Now, there is only one medical treatment which recognises this condition of affairs, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is, so far as we know, the only kidney medicine that regulates the bowels, as well as the kidneys, and thereby removes the cause of trouble, and cures the most complicated cases.

You can scarcely find a case of kidney disease that did not begin with liver and bowel troubles and which could not therefore have been prevented by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Jas. H. Harvey, baker, 641 George street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—"I was troubled very much with constipation and pains in the back. At times the pains were very sharp, like a stab with a knife, and caused me great suffering.

"I heard of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. I am pleased to say that they soon helped me, and I used them right along until cured. I never have pains in my back now and only take a pill in order to keep my bowels regular."

Thousands of people are ready to testify to the superiority of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, as a cure for kidney troubles. The reason of their efficiency is found in their action on the Liver and Bowels, as well as the Kidneys.

EDMONTON OLD-TIMER TELLS A STORY OF GREAT KILLING.

Was In Winter of 1867-68 — Buffalo Driving a Science—Use Animal's Instinct to Their Own Destruction —Caught In the Pound—Favorable Wind Necessary—Wholesale Slaughter of "Prairie Kings."

An old-timer of Edmonton, Albert Tate, by name, has had his memories of by-gone buffalo hunts stirred by reading of the troubles that modern cowboys have had in herding up and shipping the Pablo buffalo herd, recently purchased by the Dominion Government. He does not hold a high opinion of the methods adopted by those who are handling this herd. He says that the driving of buffalo is a science, understood by the old buffalo hunters. He points out that the instinct of the animals, which led to their destruction, was studied and taken advantage of, and cannot yet be obliterated by a few years or generations of a semi-captivity, and that if the managers of the Pablo herd were not too far above taking a few suggestions, etc.

To make plain the methods adopted of buffalo hunting in the old days Mr. Tate tells the story of a great round-up which occurred forty years ago. Here is the story as told by himself to a western reporter:

It was in the winter of 1867-68, when Edmonton meant the group of old log buildings which stand near the excavations for the foundation of the new Parliament Buildings on Capital Hill—not a single house then, where the flourishing city now stands—no school, no church, no ferry, and only one well defined train running toward St. Albert. Those were the days of the wild and woolly west, and no mistake about it. The country was in the possession of the Indians and buffalo. That winter the buffalo had been reported as decidedly uneasy in their movements, with a strong tendency for more southern pastures. So it was decided to organize a large hunting party to lay up a store of meat and provision before the buffalo moved into the prairies beyond the Battle and Red Deer rivers, where firewood was scarce.

It was well that this was done, for no sooner had we reached the "buffalo line," than the migration to the south began. In a few weeks hardly a buffalo would be seen north of the Battle river. The white men and half-breeds conceded to the request of the Indians, who had inferior horses and guns, to build a "pound"—or Pee-tee quahan—and drive the buffalo in, and each share up alike.

A pound was accordingly built in a natural hollow or valley, with the walls of young poplar and willow brush, tepee poles and buffalo rugs in a circle on the higher edge, so that the buffalo, when driven in, were at a disadvantage, should they attempt to leap, being on a lower level.

The entrance to the pound was arranged according to the nature of the surrounding country, always taking into consideration the migratory movements of the buffalo, which was south in this particular occasion. The entrance was therefore placed in the wall facing the north. A rough line of fence was run for about half a mile or more from each side of the gateway, gradually widening out to the east and west respectively.

These lines were continued by living posts, boys on ponies, with the writer in charge of this squad, and the lines still extending, were made up of young men on good ponies until at the last the "wings" were made up of full armed hunters on fast horses ready to give chase and kill should the buffalo break through the lines. Others there were whose special duty it was to "watch, wait and signal," thus enabling the "living lines" to remain discreetly "out of sight and wind" to the last and crucial moment.

The driving of a wild herd of any kind of animals into a pound is always an undertaking fraught with many difficulties and not the least of which is that the herd may be twenty, thirty or even fifty miles away. To do this successfully was the dream of every young hunter—as the nation at large owed him their thanks and gratitude, and he was supposed to have covered himself with glory enough to last an ordinary lifetime.

One or two having been chosen, the fortunate and envied hunters rode out amid the good wishes of all in the camp "to bring the herd home." Theirs was no ordinary duty, and they realized their responsibilities.

Having located the herd, they took their bearings, along their proposed route towards the wings of the pound. Every range of hills was fully noted; every valley, stream or bluff, on each and every shifting of the wind and its effect on the herd, which during this time was never "startled."

Waiting for favorable wind, time and place, often occupied days and nights of exposure to rain and snow. From whatever point north, south, east or west, the herd might be "startled," they must eventually be brought up many miles north of the pound, and then, only then, allow them scope to follow their instinctive southern movement, merely guiding them by cautious exposures, first to the west or to the east as the case might be, towards those invisible, but watchful "wings" already mentioned.

Slowly, very slowly at first, the buffalo were "induced" to go southwards. The slightest mistake in judgment on the part of the two principal actors—"Natch-che Pahah"—meant failure, starvation and disgrace. Nothing too trivial for the notice of these human eagles, aye, they must not only note, but anticipate every detail—the current of air around this bluff, up that ravine, and down this coulee — they must telegraph their intentions to the ever-watchful waiters miles in advance.

At last, after long waiting, the signal was given. "They have started!" "They have started!" soon came the other signal. "They have formed in line." "The leaders are off!" These telegrams reached the anxious camp hours and hours before any outward movement could be noted.

Discreetly, the living wings closed up the rear, out of sight from the now running herd, until at last even the small boys were in the rear of the now frantic drove. Too late, too late! There was only the open space in front with a solid living wall behind in the distance, until finally, the winds and gods being propitious, the buffalo were in the hollow, surmounted by huge walls, and the gateway instantly filled up. Now came the time of our lives.

While the two successful drivers were helped to dismount their tired horses, placed on valuable couches of buffalo robes amidst a circle of admirers, who placed every imaginable dainty before them, enjoying the rest they had so gallantly earned, we boys began the slaughter of calves, taken up by the older ones, until not one living animal was left, good, bad or indifferent.

Look at our map of Alberta, and follow the branch line of railway from Wetaskiwin east until you come to a station called Hardisty, and if my memory is not too much at fault, two hills, known in those times as "The Fars," should be eight or ten miles to the northeast. At the foot of the larger hill I have no doubt there will still be seen piles of bones, testifying to the wholesale slaughter of these "Kings of the Prairies."

EVILS OF ALCOHOL.

Gems From an English Primary School Examination.

A paper published in Yorkshire, England, reports that some 6,000 children of Gateshead were recently required to do essays on "Physical Deterioration and Alcohol," as tots in the primary schools of this part of the world may now toss off brochures on "Variations In the Epithelium Cells In Invertebrates, Marsupials and Plantigrades." These Gateshead children had valuable thoughts to contribute to the temperance movement. The Yorkshire paper goes the length of publishing some of the gems brought out in this outpouring of infantile sapience. Here are a few of same:

"Alcohol is useful," says one of them, being most exquisitely pithy, "but not in the body. It is useful for polishing furniture."

"I hope I shall never touch it until I am dead," says another, and we wish him luck.

"A man who takes alcoholic drinks can see two things at once."

"The children of drunkards are often weak and are sometimes troubled with being bowlegged"—truly an irritating affliction.

"Those who take drink are not so broad chested as they were 100 years ago." How true!

"When a man is ill the doctor will say, 'Are you a drinker of alcohol?' and if he says 'yes,' the doctor will say, "That is what has made you ill; you have a fatty liver.'"

"The more temporary we live the better it will be for body and mind."

"Some people say that if you want to speak at a concert you should take a glass of beer before. You should not. It is certain that it makes you speak, but you speak a heap of rubbish."

"When a man gets drunk his brains will not telegraph properly."

"I will finish up with a piece of poetry I have made up myself:

"Never be a drunkard;
Never touch the gin;
Always be teetotal,
And you're sure to win."

Protecting His Magazines.

"While waiting at the doctor's the other day I picked up a magazine from his table to pass the time," said the man who observes things. "All through the book on nearly every other page was stamped his name, and it so irritated me that I spoke to him about it.

"'If I didn't fill that magazine up with my name,' he said, 'it wouldn't last ten minutes in this place. Somebody would be sure to carry it away. Even as it is, I lose one every little while.'"

The Boss.

"All right," said Elsie, "we'll play theater. I'll be the boss."

"No," replied Tommy, "I will. It takes a man to be manager."

"Of course, that's all right. I mean I'll be the leading lady."—Kansas City Independent.

AUSTRALIAN BUSH FIRE

DEADLY PERIL OF WHICH SETTLERS ARE IN DREAD.

Mostly Due to Carelessness—Spreads Frequently Over Hundreds of Acres—Spectacle of Grandeur—Follows Season of Drought — Danger to Cattle—Flames Baffle All Efforts to Stop Them.

It would be difficult for any one who has never experienced or witnessed a bush fire to form any idea of its immensity and even grandeur or to realize its far-reaching powers of devastation and ravaging destruction. The origin of these fires may in most cases be traced to carelessness either on the part of travelers or natives, and they are generally the result of a deserted campfire which has been left smouldering. Even a lighted match thrown heedlessly into the dry grass may give rise to a conflagration over hundreds of acres, lasting perhaps for weeks and causing the loss of valuable pasture and even life.

I have good cause to remember one such fire on a station near Port August, in South Australia, writes a correspondent of The London Field. There had been a splendid winter. The grass was thick and high, and the lambing percentage had been exceptional. Since October, however, no rain had fallen beyond an occasional slight shower. The dams, lagoons and creeks were drying up and the long grass was rapidly becoming rank and woody. For weeks past the heat had been terrific, and the lurid haze which partly obscured the sun as it sank away to the west like a blood red ball and the fitful waves of hot air which blew across the plains indicated but too surely that the country was ablaze at no great distance. Day by day the atmosphere became more and more unbearable, while the gusts of wind from the north were as if from a raging furnace. We were naturally on the alert for emergencies, knowing full well that, surrounded as we were by ring barked dead timber and high grass, our powers would be taxed to their utmost limits should a strong wind set in; indeed, the task would be beyond our best united efforts to avert disaster and loss.

Saving the Sheep.

While at breakfast one morning the summons arrived for all hands to saddle up at once and start off for "Balmoral Castle," the name given to our shepherd's log hut. On arrival there we saw at a glance that nothing short of a heavy downpour of rain or a sudden change in the wind could save the situation. As it could only be the work of a very short time for the run to be completely gutted we divided our forces, some of us mustering the dazed and half-suffocated sheep to drive them away into safety, while the rest started to combat the flames by beating them out with bags and boughs. By this means we were at least able to hold our own for some considerable time, but the strain of such continuous effort can be better imagined than described, for in this fearful heat, amid the soot and smoke, we dared not relax our labors for a moment.

Our difficulties were further increased in the afternoon, when the wind began to describe those eddying circles so common in Australia, carrying cinders, leaves and hot ashes in rapid circular columns to a great height in rapid succession and scattering the debris in all directions, setting fire to the grass behind us, thus rendering our efforts to isolate the burning herbage of no avail.

As the flames, fanned by the breeze, rapidly enveloped the dead gum and box trees they merged into one huge bonfire, while the crashing of withered limbs or a giant trunk burned right through jeopardised anything alive which might pass near or under it. At last we succeeded in driving most of the sheep away to a salt bush flat which was absolutely clear of grass or tree, but many of them had been smothered in the crush or been killed by falling timber. Leaving a few of the men in charge of the sheep, we galloped along the creek which bounded the fire in the hope that we might check its progress, but here again we were baffled, and it was now evident that our best course would be to return to the station, in case the buildings should be endangered, cutting away the grass for some distance around.

A Desolate Scene.

About sundown the wind dropped and we were at last able to get some rest and refreshment, which we sorely needed, although we had to take our turns at watching all through the night.

A huge gum tree, ring barked and partly dead, not far from the woolshed caught fire, and the eucalyptus timber, which is highly inflammable, was soon ablaze. The shed was doomed for a certainty, and no time could be lost in clearing out the bales of wool from the crop and the sheep skins stored there. Scarcely was the place emptied when a burning limb fell across the corrugated roof and the greasy pens and boards became a furnace. In a short time not a vestige of the woolshed remained but one roof. The fire had indeed done its worst, and riding round a few days later I saw a truly desolate scene.

Grass had entirely disappeared, bushes were charred and shriveled, the ground was strewn with ashes and burned timber, while snakes, lizards, possums, birds and many carcasses of sheep were lying about. Traces of smouldering timber remained for many a day, until a heavy downpour of rain put an effectual end to it. The sheep and cattle had now to depend on "salt" and "blue" bush as their only fodder, although the bountiful rains which came shortly after brought rich crops of grass, the ground having been thoroughly fertilized by the wood ash and manure from the burned vegetation.

Opinions of Immigration Methods of Some Organizations.

"The trouble with a great many of the immigrants who come out here is that some of the religious organizations, the charitable societies, and people who do not know about the class of immigrant required for Canada, are all in the business, and do not pay the attention to the personnel of the immigrants they are dealing with, and send them out without any careful selection, and as a result all the agents are blamed for what is only due to the inexperience of these bodies." This was how Mr. R. Courtney summed up his opinion of the causes for dissatisfaction among some of the recent arrivals in Canada. Mr. Courtney is the well-known immigration agent whose offices in London, England, are so often the Mecca of those who desire to go to the colonies.

Mr. Courtney says that these organizations to which he refers get a bigger commission from the shipping companies than do the regular agents, and for the purpose of putting an end to what he calls "this graft" the regular agents have formed an organization, and will bring before the attention of the British Board of Trade and the Canadian Government this special privilege granted to the religious and charitable societies. Mr. Courtney is making personal inquiries as to the prospects in Canada for domestics and farm hands for next spring.

GOOD WORDS FOR CANADA.

Lord Stradbroke Delighted With His Tour of the Dominion.

Lord and Lady Stradbroke, after a three months' visit to Canada, sailed from Montreal for England on the Empress of Ireland. They came to Canada last August, when Lord Stradbroke was the honorary commander of the British artillery team which competed at Petewawa; and since that time have been visiting almost every section of the Dominion, and especially the West, which has made a most favorable impression on Lord Stradbroke.

Before his departure Lord Stradbroke spoke enthusiastically of the Canadian West, which he is convinced will be the source of the country's great prosperity in the future.

Speaking of the merits of the different teams at Petewawa, Lord Stradbroke said he was delighted with the success of the Canadians and he was enthusiastic in his appreciation of the good results which would follow the bringing together of the British and Canadian teams in friendly rivalry.

"Your citizen soldiers," he said, "are all of a good stamp, sturdy, strongly built fellows, and there is no reason why you should not be able to build up a nucleus for the fighting force of the Empire here in the Dominion."

Through Skeena Canyon.

A Vancouver despatch tells of a daring passage of the Skeena Canyon by six men in a small skiff a short time ago.

The men were all passengers on the wrecked steamer Hazelton and wished to get down to Port Essington. No canoes were obtainable and walking was out of the question, so they applied to the captain of the Hazelton for permission to take one of the steamer's boats. This was granted, and two hours was spent selecting a captain. B. W. Huckell, an old boatman of Michigan, was finally selected, and the intrepid sextette started on their trip.

Huckell had only a small paddle to guide the skiff, while Day and Lathrop had an oar each. No sooner had they struck the swirl of boiling water than Lathrop lost his oar and rendered the other useless. The men's lives hung on the ability of Huckell, and the strength of his little oar Luckily both were good for the occasion, and the six adventurers came out of the whirlpool safe and sound after a time that they will not readily forget for the rest of their lives.

A Royal Martyr to Etiquette.

In Spain the etiquette to be observed in the royal palaces was carried to such length as to make martyrs of their kings. There is a historic instance. Philip III. was gravely seated by the fire. The firemaker of the court had kindled so great a quantity of wood that the monarch was nearly suffocated with heat, and his grandeur would not suffer him to rise from the chair. The domestics could not presume to enter the apartment because it was against the etiquette. At length the Marquis do Totat appeared, and the king ordered him to damp the fires, but he excused himself, alleging that he was forbidden by the etiquette to perform such a function, for which the Duc d'Usseda ought to be called upon, as it was his business. The duke was gone out. The fire burned fiercer, and the king endured it rather than derogate from his dignity. But his blood was heated to such a degree that he was seriously ill the next day. A violent fever succeeded, which carried him off in the twenty-fourth year of his age.—London Standard.

WHY IRELAND IS POOR

REPORT OF COMMISSION ON CONGESTION IN EMERALD ISLE.

Enquiry Shows Both Dismal and Brighter Sides of Life—Sir Horace Plunkett's Aid — Peasants Loaded With Debt — Exodus Across the Seas — Co-operation Among Farmers—Lands Are Untilled.

The Government has just issued the voluminous evidence taken before the royal commission on the congestion in Ireland, and many are the gloomy and dismal phases of life in the Emerald Isle which can be picked out of its pages.

Rev. Thomas McAnran, a parish priest of Killinaga, County Cavan, supplies one which is typical of many. He says that as soon as the youth of the country are able to provide for themselves they fly off to America, thus leaving the aged and the young children to look after the homes, with the result that the lands are not tilled as much as they should be, the children are not sent to school and all depend for support on the credit given by the local shopkeepers, waiting for the American dollar.

The further result is they become loaded with debt, and if the shopkeepers refuse them credit there is nothing before them but an emigrant ship to America or the workhouse. Father McAnran states that anything that might be called land in Enniskillen, a rural district, is at present under bullock, the people having been banished in and after the famine years to the mountains and America.

There are marks of poverty all around. The people are half fed and half clad, the children are degenerate and the surface of the country itself is a barren wilderness.

The Brighter Side.

But a brighter phase of Irish life is to be seen in many parts of Ireland, where the land question is no longer a political but an economic one. A few years ago Danish butter took the place of Irish butter in the markets, and the Danish pig won in death a triumph over his living brother and undersold him at his own door. Other countries were no less aggressive, and it was useless for the dairy farmer of Limerick or Cork to have grass so rich you could grease your boots on it when butter, that was its outcome, was rejected by the buyers.

When the darkest hour seemed to have arrived, Sir Horace Plunkett took the burden of his countrymen on his own shoulders. He found that the reasons for the Irish being thrust out of the markets of the world were want of joint action and want of a scientific practical knowledge. Science had been at work both on the Danish farm and in the French poultry yard. It was soon understood how the Danish pig had routed the Irish pig.

Danish farmers had co-operated, had formed, first, creameries which gave a great quantity of milk for pig feeding, and afterward co-operative bacon factories. Again the Danish Government had come to their help with technical instruction, expert advice and material support.

State Employed Experts.

Experts were sent to England and other countries to report on the wants of the markets. The yearly contribution by the State to the promotion of agriculture and industry is £168,000 ($540,000). The same course has been followed in France, Austria, Holland, Bavaria, Belgium, Wartemburg, Hungary and Switzerland.

But for Ireland, the country of all others most dependent on agriculture, practically nothing had been done. Sir Horace Plunkett told the farmers they must begin amongst themselves. "Self help by mutual help" was his motto. He showed them how important it was to combine and trust one another and to work together on the lines that farmers in other countries had worked on.

He formed an agricultural organization, with societies in different parts of the country, where the farmers were taught to work out their own salvation and not listen to the political agitator. Success has resulted. The trade of the creamery societies is steadily increasing.

Poultry societies have also been started and are proving a great boon, for, though hens lay as well in congested districts as elsewhere, eggs could only be sold at a nominal price to traveling hucksters or bartered on very bad terms at the village shop.

In those parts of Ireland where the people became industrious and thrifty everything is going very well, but in districts like that described by Father McAnran there seems to be no hope, because the lands are of the worst quality, the soil consisting of a yellow daub with a mixture of sand, ruinous to the health of cattle or crops.

KEEPING WHITE MAN OUT.

Toronto Lady's Charges Against Hudson Bay Co.

Serious complaints are made against the Hudson Bay Co. by Mrs. Lota M. Scholfield, of Toronto, who has just returned from an eventful trip to Cumberland House, the first inland post established by the Hudson Bay Co., just south of the fifty-fourth degree.

"Cumberland is a land so rich in game," declares Mrs. Schofield, "that the Hudson Bay Co. want to keep the white man out. Though the Northwest police are sent there by the Government, even they do not receive any attentions from the company's officers. The Indians belong to the company, body and soul, and the factors, too. White people cannot get stuff in except in winter, and then they must go after it with dogs." Mrs. Schofield left Toronto on July 30. The return journey, which was commenced on Oct. 15, was adventurous. At Cedar Lake, which is said to be swarming with snakes, the engineer of the fish company's boat declared that his vessel could proceed no farther owing to defects in the boiler, and the boat was accordingly drawn up beside a broken-down craft belonging to the Hudson Bay Co. At night the men withdrew to the latter vessel, leaving Mrs. Scholfield and her daughter alone in the Fish Co.'s boat. They had not long retired to rest when, to Mrs. Scholfield's horror, the boat was found to be on fire.

The two ladies at once commenced dashing water on the flames, but it was not until the men came on the scene with axes and cut down some of the partitions that the fire was extinguished. To make matters worse a terrific storm was raging and it continued until daylight, when they set out for the portage again, walking across. On Lake Winnipegosis another severe storm was encountered.

Natal's Troops Begin March Against Dinizulu.

CHIEF LIKELY TO RESIST

Natives Gathered About Royal Kraal —Are Well Armed With Rifles—Ten Thousand Spearmen Ready to Take the Field — Expedition May Have a Difficult Task Ahead — Cetewayo's Son.

London, Dec. 5.—The march of Natal's troops into Zululand began yesterday. The avowed object of the expedition is the capture of Dinizulu. There is general apprehension that Cetewayo's son, who has already had the experience of being a British prisoner at St. Helena and didn't like it, will resist, and as the Zulus gathered about the royal kraal are said to be well armed with rifles, while 10,000 spearmen are ready to take the field, the expedition is believed to have a difficult task ahead.

MRS. GOOLD TO DIE.

Condemned to Death For Murder at Monte Carlo.

Monte Carlo, Dec. 5—After a speedy trial before the Superior Court of Monaco, Vere St. Leger Goold and his wife Marie, were convicted yesterday of the murder of Emma Levin here last summer. The court found that Mrs. Gohld was the chief instigator of the crime and sentenced her to death by the guillotine, and that Goold was less responsible by reason of his being under the influence of liquor at the time the murder was committed, and sentenced him to imprisonment for life.

The trial of the Goolds consumed less than three days. It attracted attention from all over the world because of the enormity of the crime, the manner in which the murder was committed and the dramatic arrest of the principals, who were taken by the police while seeking to escape with a trunk containing portions of the body in their possession.

Goold and his wife left Monte Carlo early last August, going to Marseilles. A hotel porter in that city noticed blood oozing from a trunk which the two had brought with them, and when they drove off with the trunk the porter notified the police and the arrest followed.

Statements made as to the facts in the case were at great variance, Goold himself confessing that he had committed the murder and that his wife had nothing to do with it. The police did not put much faith in his story, and as the case was presented to the court, his wife was shown to be the real instigator.

The evidence went to show that Emma Levin, who was possessed of considerable jewelry and some money, had been invited to visit the Goolds, who were in needy circumstances. There she was killed and later a quantity of her jewelry was found in the possession of Goold and his wife. Her body was dismembered and packed away in a trunk and valise which the murderers were trying to dispose of when the crime was discovered.

The Goolds at one time were residents of Montreal.

Governor of Moscow Had Narrow Escape From Death.

HORSES BLOWN TO PIECES

Coachman Seriously Wounded—Bomb Thrown at Carriage While General Was Driving—Assassin Badly Mutilated—Terrorists Plan Wholesale Destruction — Kill Czar, and Blow Up the Douma.

Moscow, Dec. 5.—An unsuccessful attempt was made in this city yesterday upon the life of Lieut.-Gen. Guerschelmann, Governor-General of Moscow. He escaped death only by a narrow margin. A woman hurled a bomb at the general's carriage while he was driving yesterday morning in the Lefort quarter of the city. The horses were blown to pieces and the coachman was seriously wounded. The Governor-General, however, came out of the explosion untouched. The woman was so severely mutilated by her own bomb that she had to be removed to a hospital. She is in a dying condition.

Terrorists Make Plans.

Paris, Dec. 5.—A Geneva despatch received here states that the police have discovered a Russian Terrorist plot to assassinate the Emperor, blow up the Imperial Palace and the Douma, and pillage the Imperial Bank of Russia. One arrest has been made in connection with the alleged plot.

ARREST GLACE BAY MAYOR.

Was to Have Been Guest at Banquet When Police Came.

Glace Bay, N. S., Dec. 5.—Last night Mayor Burchell was arrested at the instance of the Dominion Coal Co. The mayor at the time was walking up the street on his way to the Clan Macdonald banquet, at which he was the guest of honor. He was taken to Sydney. Bail was fixed at the sum of $10,000.

Burchell is now out on bail, preliminary to a hearing Tuesday next. Several years ago, when the Dominion Coal Co. took charge of the Cape Breton mines, Mr. Burchell was appointed superintendent of stores and held this position 13 years, at the end of which time the company dispensed with his services.

At that time there was talk concerning an alleged heavy shortage in his department. Talk on the matter died away, but was occasionally revived. Rumors have of late been rife once more in connection with the case, but the denouement came with startling quickness. As to the amount of the shortage alleged against Mr. Burchell there is a wide divergence given. It is variously stated from about $10,000 upwards to $150,000.

THREE MEN BURNED.

Sewer Gas Explodes Causing Flame Twenty Feet High.

Galt, Dec. 5.—There was an explosion yesterday afternoon in the cellar of the Malleable Iron Works, caused by sewer gas, when two foreign workmen went into the cellar and lit a match. There was a terrific noise and an outburst of flame 20 feet high. Both men were burned. Thomas Stockford, outside, was caught by the flame and also severely scorched.

Robert Vatch, while walking along a pit at the lime kiln, fell a distance of 60 feet. He lit on his side and escaped with injuries to the head and three ribs broken.

Kew Pleads Guilty.

THE OUTCRY A VERY HOLLOW ONE

Mr. Fisher's Effective Reply to Criticism of Meat Inspection.

HAD ONLY ONE COMPLAINT

Mr. Clements Descends to Personalities and Is Rebuked by Speaker—Question of Ross Rifles Come Up —Progress in G. T. P. Construction—Mr. Graham Will Bring the Railways to Time.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The tone of the debate on the address was perceptibly lowered yesterday afternoon by Mr. Clements of West Kent, who embroidered a lengthy criticism of the meat-packing regulations with an indulgence in personalities that twice brought him under the displeasure of the Speaker. He was followed by Hon. Sydney Fisher, who exposed the hollowness of the outcry against the meat inspection regulations, dealt with the question of rural mail delivery, and riddled the wall-worn balance of trade theory. Armed with luminous figures, he staggered the House with the enormous expenditure of the United States on rural mail delivery, an expenditure estimated at thirty-five million dollars for next year, and expressed the belief that the demands of the rural population of Canada for better postal facilities could adequately be met without plunging into a system like that in vogue across the line.

Replying to a question by Mr. Foster, the Minister of Railways said that between Winnipeg and Edmonton 800 miles of the Grand Trunk Pacific are under construction; west of Edmonton, none; east of Winnipeg, 360 miles. The estimated cost of grading, track-laying and ballasting, including cost of ties and rails on the portions under contract between Winnipeg and Edmonton is $18,400,000; between Edmonton and the coast, $30,700,000; between Winnipeg and Moncton, $41,946,250, these amounts including the cost of engineering and contingencies. The estimated mileages from Moncton to Winnipeg, Winnipeg to Edmonton, and Edmonton to the coast were, respectively, 1,397, 800 and 940 miles.

Mr. Foster also asked about Mr. Hyman's resignation and salary as Minister of Public Works.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that Mr. Hyman left active control of the Public Works Department on Dec. 4, 1906, the date of his first resignation being Nov. 19, 1906. He had declined to accept Mr. Hyman's resignation, urging him to continue in office.

On returning to Ottawa about July 22, Sir Wilfrid found that His Excellency the Governor-General was in the Maritime Provinces. As soon as possible, however, the matter was laid before him, and on Aug. 29, 1907, Mr. Hyman's connection with the Public Works ceased, his successor being sworn in on that day. Mr. Hyman's salary was paid up to the last-mentioned date.

Hon. Mr. Fielding and the Banks.

Replying to a question by Mr. Foster, the Minister of Finance said that his negotiations with the banks as to arrangements to provide funds for the removal of the wheat from the west were confidential, and it would not be well to make them public at the present time. Later on he hoped to be able to make a statement on the matter.

Replying to Mr. Borden, the Finance Minister said that the increased subsidies to the province, with the exception of that to Alberta, had been paid. There was a question as to the proper interpretation of the act in the case of Alberta, which, if it had not been settled in the last few hours, would be settled very shortly.

Sir Frederick Borden informed the Hon. Col. Worthington that there were no negotiations between the Government and the Vickers-Maxim Co., or any other concern looking to the transfer or other disposition of the Bess Rifle Co.'s contract with the Government to the Vickers-Maxim Co. or any other firm.

Mr. Macdonell of Toronto read a telegram from Mayor Coatsworth, saying that 300 destitute Bulgarian immigrants were stranded in the city. The municipal authorities were caring for them, and urging that the matter be brought to the attention of the Minister of the Interior. Mr. Oliver promised to make enquiries.

Complained of Ottawa Service.

George Taylor drew the attention of the Minister of Railways to the inconvenience caused to the travelling public by the failure of Grand Trunk and C. P. R. trains to make connections at Brockville for passengers to and from Ottawa. Dr. Reid made a similar complaint as regards connections at Prescott. Messrs. Henderson and Bennett also pointed out inconveniences of a like character in other parts of Ontario, and Mr. Morin made complaint of the failure of the Intercolonial to afford connection in Quebec with the Quebec Central Railway.

Mr. Graham, Minister of Railways, promised to see that the Brockville case was brought before the Board of Railway Commissioners.

A question by Mr. Foster elicited the information that the Department of Militia has ordered to date 32,000 Ross rifles, of which 28,000 have been delivered. The sum of $1,172,854 has been paid to the company and $972,-869 is still due. For 450 sub-targets the Department has paid $112,540.

Mr. Fisher informed Mr. Clements that under the new Meats and Canned Goods Act there are employed 51 veterinary and 22 lay inspectors.

Mr. Paquet was informed that during the past two years 264 immigrants were refused admittance to Canada, and 338 were deported. Between Jan. 1, 1903, and Oct. 1 of this year, 61,-676 children under 12 years of age were admitted to Canada as immigrants.

The Budget Debate.

Mr. Clements of Kent, resuming the debate on the address, raised a laugh by remarking upon the hard luck of Archie Campbell, who instead of being taken into the Cabinet was shut over among the grey-haired old fellows in the Senate. In this connection Mr. Clements expressed the opinion that an elective Senate would be more popular in the country than the institution as at present constituted. After referring with regret to the evidences of decreased prosperity, Mr. Clements dealt with the Minister of Agriculture and his hostile reception by the farmers of Chatham, because of the unpopularity of the meat inspection regulations which he criticized at length and described as ridiculous, unnecessary, and unjust. He made a strong plea for encouragement of the tobacco growing industry, also for an efficient cold storage service and rural postal delivery.

Mr. Fisher, in reply, admitted that in Chatham he encountered a bitter feeling against the meat inspection regulations, which, however, he defended as both necessary and advantageous.

Mr. Fisher disapproved of the rural free delivery scheme, to the evident dissatisfaction of his follower, Mr. McIntyre of South Perth.

E. Norman Lewis moved the adjournment of the debate.

LEMIEUX BANQUETTED.

Receives Assurances That Jap Emigration Will Be Controlled.

Tokio, Dec. 5.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Canadian Minister of Labor, was tendered a banquet Tuesday night by the municipality. Among those present were: Sir Claude M. Macdonald, the British ambassador; Viscount Hayashi, the Japanese Foreign Minister; Baron Chinda and Messrs. Verret and Preston.

Mr. Shibusawa presided and toasted Mr. Lemieux, who responded, expressing the firm belief that all differences would be amicably settled.

In an interview Viscount Hayashi stated that the Government was anxious to avoid any sacrifice of Japanese treaty rights with Canada or the United States, but that it could and would control emgration to both countries.

New Naval Base.

Glasgow, Dec. 5.—The plans for the new naval base at Rosyth, Scotland, have been completed and the work will commence early in 1908.

The basin will cover an area of 56 acres, with a depth of 36 feet at all tides. Access will be obtained through a lock 850 feet long.

The basin is to be practically square, with quay accommodation for 23 warships, although this may be doubled.

The plans provide for the construction of a graving dock to accommodate the largest of this amount of ships.

Must Go to the Courts.

Berlin, Dec. 5.—Minister of War Von Finem announced in the Reichstag yesterday that the Emperor had ordered the suspension of the court of honor proceedings against Gen. Count Wilhelm Von Hohenau, who, together with Major Count Johannes Lynar, was compromised by the testimony given in the Harden-Von Moltke libel suit.

The action means that Count Von Hohenau must take his chances in an ordinary court of justice.

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY DECEMBER 5 1907

FIVE MEMBERS OF SCHOOL BOARD WILL BE RETIRING AT THE END OF THIS YEAR

On Account of Board Being Elected on the Two Year Plan—Those Who Will Retire.

MAY BE RE-ELECTED

Unless some of the members of the present Board of Education are re-elected the Board next year will be somewhat different from that which has represented the public for the past twelve months.

The School Board is elected on the two-year plan, and this year five of the members are retiring. They are Messrs. John Crane, D. W. Dumble, W. H. Hill, William Pringle and Dr. Burnham. These men have all been attentive and industrious during their term of office, and no doubt they have served the public, in whose confidence they have been placed, to the best of their ability.

Each year five of the members of the school board retire. Of course, they may be re-elected, if it is the wish of the people, and it is probable that the five who are due to retire, will stand for re-election.

If the Board is minus the above-mentioned members it will mean the loss of several chairmen of committees. Mr. Dumble is chairman of the Queen Alexandra school Committee, Mr. Hill that on Appointments, and Mr. Pringle of the Supervision and King Edward School Building Committees.

Those who have another year to spend on the Board are Messrs. W. S. Boothman, E. F. Ackerman, R. Fair and Dr. Morrison. Mr. L. M. Hayes, who was appointed by the Separate School Board, has served two years and is also scheduled to retire.

CURE ON A C. P. R. LINER

A Canadian Lady's Appreciation of a Trip on the Empress of Ireland

"Mary Maxwell," the well known correspondent of the Winnipeg Free Press, writes that paper her impressions of the Atlantic trip on one of the C.P.R. Empresses. She says:—

"I advise any woman contemplating a holiday trip across the ocean to go by the Canadian steamship lines. By good luck I selected the Empress of Ireland, and was so charmed by the magnificence of that palatial ship that I made the return journey on her again. Life aboard the gigantic vessel is incomparably delightful; from the bookings of berths to the exchanges of English moneys as we neared Liverpool, every conceivable luxury was ours. Cut flowers for the dining tables; concerts and Sunday services aboard; the evening recreations in the cosy writing room, or cafe comforts in luxurious lounging chairs, or Bristol whist in corners; while the greyness without responded with chatter and laughter. The deck chairs sat tete-a-tete, with whispering confabs in sheltered nooks, while all around ranged and swept a sea expanse all shining and glittering like a jewel casket opened to our sight. The officers manning the boat, the most delightful hosts on all occasions, while Captain Kendall, 'conqueror of the weather,' headsome as Adonis, beamed from his seat at table upon each and every guest gathered about that ample board. All too brief that six days voyage between the old world and the new! All too brief the new-made friendships on that return journey — but renewed in health and spirits, carrying souvenirs of the trip, and never-to-be-forgotten memories of a reunion covering grounds one had dreamed about, but never expected to steal!"

STORE WAS SUCCESSFULLY MOVED

Mr. Kennedy's Store Moved 100 Feet West—Work Gotten Five-as Men Finish

While the store belonging to Mr. Kennedy, Aylmer street, was being moved the cracked clock in the brick pentheuse counting off the seconds of the day, and just as the job was finished it decided five times and the men sat on their seats and went home.

The work was under the direction of Mr. George Oliver, foreman for Mr. Elisha McCarthy, and this is the second time he has been successful in moving. Mr. Kennedy's store has been moved about 100 feet west of its former location.

THE WEATHER.

During the night the temperature went down to 4 degrees below zero, but had moderated towards morning, and at seven o'clock the thermometer registered 5 degrees above. The present cold snap is apparently over.

To be Held at Mark Street—A Men's Society to be Formed

At a meeting held at Mark street Methodist church last night, a committee of five was appointed for the purpose of arranging a reception to the men of the congregation on Monday night, December 16. Character in Medicine

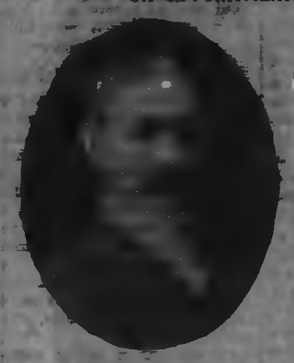
In medicine, as in every sphere of human action, it is character that tells. Every prescription that Dr. A W Chase gave to his fellow men, is full of character, full o fthe honest sterling character which made the grand old doctor respected, admired and loved by all who knew him. The integrity of Dr. Chase is shown in every one of his famous family medicines.

GOSPEL HALL EVANGELIST CHARACTERIZES THE ALLEGED SPECIAL GIFT OF TONGUES REPORTED AS A GLARING PIECE OF ACROBATIC NONSENSE

Mr. Mapledon Referred to the Subject at the Gospel Hall Last Night—"Beware of the People Who Have Revelations From God," He Remarked.

Speaking at the Gospel Hall last night, Evangelist Mapledon, who is conducting meetings in the city, referred to the gift of hidden tongues, over which question there has been considerable excitement and discussion in Ottawa and other places recently. The evangelist, referred to the gift, which some people have termed a revelation from God, as acrobatic nonsense, and remarked that while he believed that these people were acting in the belief that they were helping the cause of the Master, the idea of getting up and talking a lot of gibberish was ridiculous.

RETIRING CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS



MR. W. H. HILL

The Way in Which Preachers Are Chosen Comes In For Some Comment From the Speaker—Talking a Lot of Gibberish is Ridiculous.

"Beware the Christian who has a revelation from God," said Mr. Mapledon. "It is absolute nonsense."

The evangelist also referred to the manner in which preachers were selected for churches in these days. He asked his hearers to imagine Paul noticing that the people at Corinth wanted a pastor, and sitting down to write them a letter in which he stated that he was a graduate of such and such a college, was a good speaker, and if the congregation would increase the remuneration by $500 he would accept the position. He remarked that he knew of a city on the other side where a preacher could not get a position unless he belonged to the Masons.

APPEALS OF THE STUDENTS

Regulations by Education Department Regarding the Model Schools

OF INTEREST TO TEACHERS

According to a regulation issued by the Ontario Education Department this morning, those students attending Model Schools pending their appeals and whose appeals have not been sustained, may complete the professional course in the training school and receive their certificates should they pass the Model School examination in 1907, and the academic or non-professional in 1908.

Also, the Minister of Education may grant second class interim certificates to holders of professional third-class certificates, provided that they pass the final examinations of groups 1 and 2, and an examination of group 3 at the professional summer school of Normal school standard in 108.

Regulations 87 is amended to permit the Minister of Education, though only in case of scarcity in inspectoral districts, to renew until a date not later than July, 1909, a third class certificate, but on the application of the inspector and only within his jurisdiction.

KANSAS CITY BANK WAS CLOSED ITS DOORS

Kansas City, December 5th. — The National Bank of Commerce, the largest bank in Kansas City, did not open its doors this morning. The bank had deposits exceeding thirty millions of dollars.

The Examiner would be pleased if all their subscribers who have had their street numbers changed would let this office know the new number in order that the address may be entered correctly on the delivery lists.

PRESENTATION OF A SABRE

Sergt.-Major Brittain Remembered by His Class

At the conclusion of the examination of the non-com's class at the drill shed last night a pleasing function was held when the instructor, Sergt.-Major Brittain, was presented with a pair of French duelling sabres of the latest pattern, and of excellent workmanship. Sergt.-Major Jos. Duffus made the presentation and Lieut. Shrubsall made an appropriate address.

He referred to the interest that Sergt.-Major Brittain had always shown in the welfare of the class and the happy relations that he had always fostered, which made the class one of the most successful in many respects that has been together at the drill shed. He thanked Sergt.-Major Brittain on behalf of the class and called upon Sergt.-Major Duffus to make the presentation.

Sergt.-Major Brittain made a feeling reply, thanking the class for the sentiments which were expressed. It was mostly due to the enthusiasm that had marked the efforts of the class and the willingness they had shown to learn the work. The sabres were a suitable present and are highly prized by Sergt.-Major Brittain, who, perhaps, is the only possessor of such a pair in the city.

Second Series Of Concerts

Mr. Rupert Gliddon to-day told the Examiner that in the near future the public will hear a series of band concerts of popular music. When these will begin has not yet been arranged and neither has the place for the concerts been considered. However, the fact that we are to have a series of concerts by the 57th Regimental Band during the season will be news received with delight by many of the citizens.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

ASSURANCE OF A LIMIT

Minister of Labour, Rodolph Lemieux, Sends a Message From Japan About Immigration

PLANS FOR LIMITATION

Examiner Special

Tokio, Dec. 5—Hon. Rodolph Lemieux, Canadian Minister of Labour, held a friendly conference to-day with Viscount Hayashi, Minister of Foreign Affairs at the foreign office and received verbal assurances of the limitation of Japanese immigration. He was also informed that full details of the plans on foot for the control of the immigration would be given him later.

C. P. R. DOUBLE TRACKING TO BE COMPLETED NEXT OCTOBER

On his way down to Montreal Mr. H. H. Lillie, chief operator of the C.P.R., Toronto, is stopping here for a few days the guest of his brother, Mr. B. A. Lillie, local manager of the Machine Telephone Company.

Mr. Lillie told the Examiner this afternoon that he was on his way to Montreal to inspect the new switchboard in the C.P.R. telegraph office in that city. Mr. Lillie said that he expected the automatic telegraph would soon be in use in Canada. The Americans now had an automatic line between New York and Chicago and it was proving to be a great success. Over each wire eight messages can be sent at one time, and are received at opposite ends and written by a typewriter. This will be a boon to telegraph companies and will do away with a great many operators.

In speaking about the C. P. R. double track which is so much talked about, he thought the line would be completed about October next. The blasting is going on now between Montreal and Smith's Falls, and this will be the first section to be double-tracked.

The telegraph wires have suffered greatly from the blasting in that section. Two linesmen are with the construction party and are kept busy all day repairing broken wires. When the rock is blasted it shoots up into the air and then drops on the wires, thus breaking them.

Mr. Lillie was greatly pleased with Peterborough, and in company, with his brother, hired a conveyance this afternoon and drove about the city. He thinks this city is one of the best places between Toronto and Montreal.

WILL CASE WAS DISMISSED WITH COSTS BY JUSTICE MABEE

At Osgoode Hall yesterday Mr. Justice Mabee gave judgment in the case of Robertson v. Robertson, which was heard at the Assizes here. The particulars of the action, which was dismissed with costs, are as follows:—

The plaintiffs, Sarah Jane Robertson and Mary Jane Robertson, are executrices of the will of the late John Robertson, deceased, and the defendant, Mabel Hannah Robertson, is a widow residing in North Monaghan, and the administratrix of the estate of the late William Henry Robertson, deceased. The plaintiffs allege that the said John Robertson was the tenant for life of certain lands in South Monaghan and that the said William Henry Robertson leased the land from the former on May 2nd, 1898, and occupied them until his death in September, 1906. The plaintiffs claim that at the time of his death William Henry Robertson was indebted to John Robertson in the sum of $2,400. The plaintiffs claim this sum as arrears of rent due the estate of the late John Robertson, bequeathed the plaintiff by his last will and testament. L. M. Hayes and A. P. Perrault, for plaintiffs; F. D. Kerr for defendants.

METEORLOGICAL WISEACRE DREAMS OF A MILD WINTER

This morning an old gentleman, who is somewhat of a weather prophet having followed the changes of the winds and their effects since youth, remarked that we were going to have an open winter, and, further, said that we would see the snow off the streets before Christmas. He spoke in a confident manner, and based his statements on the fact that to-day is the last day of the winter season, which begins with this month. The first Thursday of the first month of each season determines the weather for the whole season. If on that day the wind is blowing from a cold quarter the season will see the wind generally from the same point. To-day, this gentleman said, the wind is from the south, and we may expect to see it mostly from that direction until the close of the season.

The general public, most of whom are skeptical about such things, will take more interest in the weather conditions to learn whether there is any reliability in the so-called forecasts.

CITIZEN OF PETERBOROUGH TRIES TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF YOUNG ENGLISHMAN OUT OF WO

A Story of Young Man Who T... the Winter Without Work— An Offer to Cut Two C... of Wood.

QUESTIONABLE CHARITY

A young Englishman, who is present out of employment, reported a case of a citizen of this ... trying to take advantage of this ... by an offer that is by no means ... itable to him. This man had ... cords of hardwood, and wanted it ... and when the young man applied ... work he was offered $2 out the ... cords in three cuts and split ... pile it.

Evidently this very charitable ... man who make such a generous ... fer, is trying to make a few ... from the existing conditions of ... money market.

This young Englishman is respectable in appearance, and is believed to be industrious. He has only been from the old country about ... months and worked near Bobcaygeon for a time, but he was taken ill ... was forced to go to the hospital ... Lindsay. His bill ate up ... money he had saved and the approach of winter found him out of work, ... the victim of unfavourable circumstances. He came to Peterborough but has not been successful in securing a permanent situation.

Gets Bed and Fire

He is rooming at a house where the family give him a bed and the use of the fire, but he provides his own meals. Some of these are blamed the young man not having been able to get continuous work, merely odd job presenting itself. He is very anxious to secure work, and is a promising young fellow. It is learned that his family are above the average, and his mother does not know his plight.

"Thank God, I'm not married!" said yesterday; "it helps me a ... ling to look after myself!" His brother says that he is coming out in the spring, but he is trying to help him not to do without referring to his own difficulty.

If some society were organized to look after cases like this a great deal of wood would be done this winter. Those people who have time to devote themselves to charity have plenty of scope to exercise that virtue.

Billy Grace the well known Orillia and Chatham lacrosse player, who accompanied the Canadian lacrosse team to Australia this summer, was in the city yesterday and called upon a number of his friends, including Mr. A M Regan of the National Hotel. Mr. Grace stated that the Canadians had a most enjoyable trip to Australia and that the trip had been a success in every way only one game being lost out of the large number played, although the Australians on their big grounds put up a hard fight.

A LITTLE LESSON

The old fable tells of the foolishly tender-hearted husbandman who found a chilled viper and placed him on his hearth and brought him to life. Was the viper grateful? He turned and stung the hand that warmed him. Does not this suggest the trusts and the trouble they are making for President Roosevelt and the people of the United States? A Chinese wall protective system warmed them into life, and now they sting the hand that fed them. As the Globe points out, Canada pulled the fangs of the trusts in advance by withdrawing the protection that generated the poison. One would think that the United States, with all their exceeding cleverness and astuteness in business, would have long ago seen the folly and evil of high protection. They see themselves in the grip of the trusts through the operation of protection gone mad. They have seen, under the adverse gale of protection, their American marine swept from the seas, so that when they want to get a few tons of coal carried to the Pacific for the use of their battleships they have to charter British ships. If a few months ago Japan and the United States had come to blows, what would have been the position of the United States? Would Japan have waited for the United States warships to crawl around Cape Horn, and have waited for them to reach the Pacific before it struck a blow? Would Japan have waited? Not probably. Japan could, in that event, have descended upon the western coasts of the United States and have blown every coast city into the air before the United States could have got a battleship into the Pacific, and as the battleships strayed into the war zone one by one they would have been cut off in detail. In the beginning, at least, of a war, the United States would have been as much at the mercy of Japan, through the indirectly direct operation of a high-tariff, as it is now at the mercy of the trusts, through the same medium. Is not this a little lesson? Uncle Sam boasts of his strength. He flamboyantly claims the whole of the North American continent and proposes planting the United States flag at the North Pole. Uncle Sam has quite enough to do at home, enough internal enemies to fight, without stretching out his hands for the North Pole, like, in view of his impotence in relation to Japan, a child reaching out for the moon.

A MATTER OF CROSS ENTRY

The Whitney Government is in luck in regard to its finances. It entered office with everything rosy in the matter of revenue. Its Liberal predecessors had provided large sources of supplementary revenue, succession dues, corporation taxes, etc. Though the Conservatives had opposed the adoption of these measures, they were quite willing to accept—and, to do them justice, to lavishly spend—these resulting revenues. Now, they are getting the benefit of the increased Dominion subsidy, which now amounts to $2,128,772, of which the first instalment of $400,000, has been paid. This Dominion subsidy is a nice arrangement, a good deal like make-believe finance, like the great squabble of city and school board, over the purchase of school grounds for a park. Ontario contributes the lion's share of Dominion revenue, and partly gets it back in the shape of a subsidy To this extent this province is under indirectly direct taxation. The Dominion collects the customs duties and returns a portion of them to Ontario, and the other provinces. In a way, Ontario pays the subsidy, which, to some, seems like found money. The city collects money from the people for school purposes, and turns it over to the Board of Education to spend. Whether or not the School Board gets its price for part of the King Edward school lot for a park—whether or not the city gets its property at the price it offers, will not make a pin's difference to the ratepayers—they will have to furnish the money in any case. If the Board's price is paid, there will be deferred demands for school money. If the city gets it at its price, the demand for money for school purposes, will come a little sooner. The financial operation involved in either case is, in general terms, a matter of cross-entry — taking the people's money out of one pocket and putting it into another.

A RUBBER PLATFORM

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the course of a splendid speech in the House Tuesday, said:—

The year 1907, has seen the construction of a new platform for the new Conservative party. It is a memorable structure. It is not remarkable for what one would look in such a structure, but rather for the very reverse. It is remarkable not, for its solity, but for its elasticity. It was built, not of oak, but of India rubber. Its planks are not the ordinary boards, but nameless, shapeless things, intended to contract or expand according to time, place and circumstance. I do not think I am at all unduly severe if I say that almost every proposition advanced was coupled with an "if" or a "but" which makes it susceptible of a double interpretation. Every idea is combatted by the surrounding one. Every step forward is followed by a step backward, and Mr. Borden reminded me very much of a caged squirrel, always in motion but always revolving in a circle and accomplishing nothing.

OUR TREATY WITH FRANCE

The terms of the Franco-Canadian treaty were made known yesterday to Parliament. The treaty grants the benefits of the French minimum tariff to Canadian horses, cattle, meats, cheese, butter, vegetables, apples, pears, peaches, lumber, timber, wood pulp, and, in addition to these natural products, a considerable range of manufactures. In return, France will enjoy the advantage of Canada's intermediate tariff upon a large number of products, which are enumerated.

The Opposition cannot consistently object to the main outlines of the treaty. A number of Mr. Borden's supporters, notably Mr. Armstrong, of East Lambton, have been railing against the German surtax on the ground that it deprived Canada of the advantage of the German minimum tariff, which would open the German market to Canadian farm products. These alleged friends of the Canadian farmer will be convicted of rank insincerity, if they obstruct a treaty which places nearly all Canadian agricultural products on a preferred footing in the French market. This anxiety for the farmer's interests is a recent development in the Conservative ranks at Ottawa. When members of the present Opposition vote to reduce the duty on agricultural implements 10 per cent. they are either deserters of the traditional policy of their party, or they are playing the game regardless of principle. We shall see what these new-found champions of the farmers will do in the present instance.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hon. Geo. E. Foster has become the champion of the Chinese, whom he declares have been treated "immorally" by Canada, that is by the Canadian Government. George is not a bad Celestial himself. He has made a beautiful chop suey of his career.

The Speech from the Throne refers to the Georgian Bay canal. Though there is no specific statement of intention to construct it, the Government is evidently paving the way. It is making haste to get the Trent Canal out of the way by completing it, so that undivided national attention may be given to another great national transportation enterprise.

The investigation into park matters in Toronto reveals very loose civic methods What result would come from an investigation in to Peterborough's civic methods? There might not be revealed anything overtly dishonest or crooked, but there seems no doubt, judging by results, that there would be shown a good deal of slipshod and methodless method and unsystematic system — with inevitable waste and unsatisfactory results.
